State of City Is Good, Manager Reports

by Bill Rowland

"As compared to many other governments, I would say the state of the city is very good." With these words, Greenbelt Manager James Giese began his second annual "State of the City" address to the city council and members of three city advisory boards, during a meeting of the boards with the council on February 9.

About 15 members of the Advisory Planning Board, the Recreation Advisory Board, and the Community Relations Advisory Board attended this meeting, together with four council members. (Councilman Richard Piski was out of town.) In addition to Giese's message, the chairmen of the boards briefly reviewed for the council the principal activities of their groups during the last year.

Last year City Manager Giese, in his first State of the City address, presented a broad review of a wide range of planning and development activities going on within the city. This year, he focused attention on the increasing legal and tax ramifications faced by the city from commercial development; gave some preliminary information about commercial property values and about its crime rate; and touched briefly on the condition of the city's streets.

Property Taxes

For most of its 20 years as a "privately owned" city — that is, since its sale by the Federal government in 1963 — Greenbelt has drawn only a small part of its revenues from commercial property tax assessments, or its crime rate; and touched briefly on the condition of the city's streets.

Court Parent Program
Seeking Volunteers

The Greenbelt Center School PTA is revitalizing the Court Parent program. The purpose of the program is to provide a responsible adult whom children can contact when they need help. When a child comes to the court parent, he or she puts a sign in the window. This sign, an illustration of a green hand, is a signal to children that help is nearby. When a child signs up with a court parent to help, the court parent would contact the child's parents or the police if necessary.

The program began in the early 1970s and since then has had over 100 people serving as court parents. Ideally several people in each court or street would serve as court parents. Many current court parents were not available as a child in regular school.

People who are now court parents are asked to contact the Center School PTA President Beverly Colvin to let her know whether they can still serve on this community project. Other individuals who would like to serve as court parents are asked to contact Beverly Colvin at 441-4822.

The Baha'i Fashion Show is an annual event that has become a beloved tradition in Greenbelt. It provides a platform for local businesses to showcase their products and support the Roosevelt Orchestra, which has a passionate following in the community.

The proceeds from the event will help support the orchestra's ongoing expenses, including equipment purchases, rehearsal costs, and travel expenses for concerts and performances. The Baha'i community is dedicated to supporting local arts and cultural organizations, and the fashion show is a way to give back to the community. The event is open to the public, and tickets are available at the door. Tickets can also be purchased in advance through local Baha'i centers or online.

STATE OF THE CITY
preliminary information about crime begins to come in, the hopes based on unaudited counts compiled by the police department. He said these figures for the first three months of 1981 were "rather startling," in that they showed a marked decrease in crimes. But, Giese went on, the figures for the entire year "are not good," He noted significant increases in the larceny/theft category, which he attributes to the move to new shopping center. Crimes against persons also show an increase. On the good side, according to Giese, criminal arrests have increased, with aid by shopping center security guards.

Giese plans to do a detailed analysis of the increase, including breakdowns by parts of the city.

Fred Giese, Chairman of the Advisory Planning Board, said that the board's major task for more than a year has been review of the 1970 Master Plan for the Greenbelt/Colege Park area, so that it can be used as a reference to contribute during forthcoming amendment of the Master Plan by the Park and Planning Commission. Fred Giese said the board's completed report on the Master Plan would be approved by the APB members at their next meeting of Mar. 18 and would then be submitted to the council.

The APB last month expressed the continued interest of APB in having a city policy against which to evaluate future annexation proposals. The council had previously shown no interest in such a policy. The APB continues pressure to develop land south of the city's boundaries and feel the relationship of the proposed annexation to development, and the impacts of annexation on the residential character of the city, should be studied. Volt said the APB proposes to make such a study of the proposed annexation for use in looking at future annexation proposals.

Don Volk, Chairman of the Park and Recreation Advisory Board, listed the proposed Lake Park Pool and Recreation Area and development of ballfields as among PRAB's concerns in the past year. He expressed the need for planning to be coordinated with the contest can be held responsible if a photo is lost or damaged.

The APB has decided to sponsor a Greenbelt Photo Contest. The theme of the contest is "Life in Greenbelt." The contest is open to all Greenbelt Residents.
