City, Other BARC Neighbors Work to Preserve Facility

by Elaine Skolnik

Recent reductions in the budgets for the Henry A. Wallace Beltsville Agricultural Research Center (BARC) and nearby facilities have prompted strong opposition by Maryland’s U.S. Senators Barbara Mikulski and Benjamin Cardin and Congressman Steny Hoyer, who represents Greenbelt. Hoyer has been deep in cuts over the years in the United States Department of Agriculture’s (USDA) budgets afflicting BARC’s Agricultural Research Service (ARS), the center’s mission as a world-class research facility is in jeopardy. Similarly, nearby National Agricultural Library’s (NAL) reputation as one of the world’s largest and most comprehensive agricultural research libraries is at risk.

In other BARC developments this spring, on May 22 the U.S. Senate overrode President Bush veto of a comprehensive farm bill that includes language for a five-year pilot project permitting enhanced-use leasing authority at BARC and NAL. The project, however, requires that BARC’s mission as “the world’s largest and most diverse agricultural research center” remain “at the only working farm ‘inside the Beltway.’” She noted in her January 10, 2008, letter to Greenbelt Mayor Judith Davis that BARC “provides air quality benefits, supports biodiversity and contributes to the well-being of the mid-Atlantic area developed area.”

According to Director Johnson (May 5, 2008, Corridor, Inc. – Prince George’s, Inc. Magazine), “the research center employs 1,100 federal employees and approximately 270 scientists – 30 percent decrease from 1989.” In USDA budget years 2006, 2007 and 2008, funding has eroded for BACR’s research programs, scientists and the re habilitation of buildings and laboratories. USDA fiscal years run from October to September 30, and are submitted to the president in early spring.

Congressional Advocacy Mikulski, Cardin, and Hoyer expressed their dismay in a January 9, 2008, letter to USDA’s Acting Secretary. They decried the reduction in the number of BARC researchers and scientists and the failure to adequately fund renovations of

Battle for BARC

The many attempts over the years to chip away land at the Henry A. Wallace Beltsville Agricultural Research Center (BARC) have consistently drawn fire from successive Greenbelt City Councils, state and federal elected officials and citizens groups. Originally 14,000 acres in size, the BARC complex now comprises 6,500 acres.

In 1993 federal agents bought 12,189 acres including not only what is now Greenbelt but what later became the Goddard Space Flight Center and the Patuxent Wildlife Refuge. Prior to moving to Beltsville, the Agricultural Research Center was located in Virginia on land later designated for the Pentagon.

Threats to BARC over the years have included a steady leasing of land to federal agencies not compatible with BARC’s mission. City officials, however, have always considered BARC land part of the city’s greenbelt and were concerned about the effect of development upon wetlands and BARC’s mission. Responding to this concern, in 1987 Congressman Hoyer was successful in preventing the sale at auction of 14 acres of BARC land on Baltimore Avenue. Subsequently Hoyer introduced legislation, which Congress passed, prohibiting

by Thomas X. White

With just two presentations, two brief budget public hearings and few business items on the agenda, a full city council breezed through its regular meeting on May 27 by 9:15 p.m.

City Manager Michael McLaughlin introduced the new city clerk, expressing pleasure that Cindy Murray, a 33-year city employee is taking over after Kathleen Gallaher left last month to take a job at the University of Maryland. Murray began with the city as a police dispatcher and held many administrative positions in the Public Works Department, most recently as the city’s Recycling Coordinator.

Representatives of Unit 136, American Legion Auxiliary made their annual presentation introducing the sale of poppies in commemoration of Memorial Day 2008. Mayor Judith Davis expressed the city’s appreciation for the Greenbelt American Legion Post, its auxiliary units and the Disabled American Veterans sponsoring the traditional Memorial Day ceremonies at Roosevelt Center and at the Post each year.

FY09 Budget Hearings

Although council had pretty much completed deliberations on the city manager’s proposed budget, a second public hearing on the proposed budget was scheduled as part of the meeting as well as a state-required public hearing on the constant yield tax rate. Davis recessed the regular meeting to conduct the hearings, during which no public comments or questions were offered. She announced that a majority of council had agreed not to raise the city’s property tax rate this year and that only a few adjustment to the manager’s proposed Fiscal Year 2009 budget would be made by council. (See News Review May 29 article.) She also noted that city property owners will see a slight reduction (0.08 cents) in their county property tax rate for FY09.

To comply with state requirements Davis announced that the city’s property tax rate will be set when the FY09 budget is adopted at a council meeting June 2.

introduced for first reading was an ordinance to amend city code to reduce the Park and Recreation Advisory Board from 12 members to 11.

The first item invoking substantive discussion was on proposed patio screening in front of the New Deal Café (NDC). NDC President Peter May and Bill Wilkerson were present for their proposal to screen off an area under the front canopy, where beer and wine may be served. City staff recommended council approval subject to two conditions: 1) the NDC agrees to a site visit with the city Planning and Community Development staff at time of installation and 2) that NDC staff be responsible for repair and replacement of damaged fencing and to keep the patio area clean. NDC has selected

The Advisory Committee on Education (ACE) presented the annual student awards at the May 12 Greenbelt City Council meeting. Mayor Judith Davis commented on how great it was to see such a large number of people present and reciting the pledge of Allegiance, with which the meetings begin.

ACE chair Jeff Morisette, in charge of the presentations, commented that this year represented the 12th Annual ACE student awards and the 11th year of presenting a scholarship award to two students from Eleanor Roosevelt High School (ERHS).

Morisette said the award recognizes Greenbelt youth who have traditions of citizenship, maturity and academic achievement. “While many students, city and middle school students received a $20 gift certificate to Books A Million. The two

Monthly Movie

Is “The Queen”

The next monthly movie, “The Queen,” will be shown on Monday, June 9. A discussion of the movie will take place at the Community Center Senior Lounge, Room 111.

Astronomical Star Parties June 7, 8

On Saturday, June 7, the Astronomical Society will hold a sidewalk astronomy party at the Roosevelt Center from 7 to 8 p.m. on the rooftop terrace of the Roosevelt Center. On Sunday, June 8, the society will hold a sidewalk astronomy party at the Roosevelt Center on the New Deal Café. Members of the society will be at the science fair and other celestial objects at approximately 8:15 p.m. in the dome at the visitors center. The evening will be cancelled without further notice.

Farmers Market

Farmers Market is open in Old Greenbelt in the west parking lot of Greenbelt Atomic Park. Open on Thursday, June 12 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Visit www.greenbeltfarmersmarket.org for details.

Golden Age Club

The Golden Age Club has lived up to its reputation for being active. Many members of the club enjoyed Karen Hasley’s annual picnic at Buddy Attick Park with hamburgers and hot dogs and other picnic food. Then, after some careful instructions, several of us put on life vests and went kayaking on the lake. It was really fun and beautiful on the lake. A great time was had by all and no one got wet.

On June 11, Dr. Chatroth, a cardiologist, will be the speaker. The birthday potluck lunch will be on June 18 and on June 27. We’ll have a song fest with Chrisy Cherry and Steve Brodd.

Greenbelt Park is Seeking Junior Rangers

Each park in the National Park Service conducts its junior ranger program in different ways due to staff and other factors. The process includes an application and an essay on why the young person would want to become a junior ranger. The Greenbelt Park Junior Ranger Program is for youth ages 8 to 12. The goal at Greenbelt Park is to provide a learning experience and to promote appreciation and understanding of the environment. As a junior ranger, participants will learn to “preserve and protect the nation’s natural and cultural resources for the education and enjoyment of future generations.” Activities in correlation with the program are intended to engage participants in the National Park experience.

Applications are available at the park. For additional information call 301-344-3948. Pre-registration is necessary. Program dates are: first session, June 16 through Friday, June 20 and second session – Monday, July 7 through Friday, July 11. Program hours are from 9 a.m. until 3 p.m. Participants are permitted to attend one session. Ten junior rangers will be selected per session.

Notice of Charter Amendment Resolution No. 2008-1

At its regular meeting of May 12, 2008, the City Council adopted a resolution to amend the City Charter. As required by state law, this resolution will be posted in its entirety for 40 days, until June 21, at the Municipal Building, as well as on the City’s Web site at www.greenbelt-md.gov. A copy may also be requested of the City Clerk. The charter amendment will be effective on July 1, 2008, unless a proper petition to submit the amendment to the voters on a referendum is filed as permitted by law. This notice is given to provide a fair summary of the resolution, as also required by state law.

A Resolution . . . to Amend the Charter of the City of Greenbelt . . . by Amending Paragraph (d), “Powers,” of Section 12, Titled “Employee Relations Board” to Empower to Hear Grievances Arising out of Collective Bargaining Agreements: Subsequent to a referendum question on the ballot of the 2005 City election, the City Council amended the City Code to include a Labor Code for the purpose of recognizing the right of certain police officers to organize and bargain collectively. The Labor Code requires that all collective bargaining agreements (CBAs) must include a grievance procedure containing a provision for binding decision by the City’s Employee Relations Board (ERB). Since the existing powers of the ERB in grievance procedures were limited to making recommendations to the City Council, it was necessary to amend the charter to enable the ERB to address grievances arising out of CBAs as required by the Labor Code.

REMOVAL OF DISEASED WILLOW OAKS

On or around June 9, 2008, the City of Greenbelt Public Works Department will be taking down two large willow oaks that are situated near Greenbelt Library and behind the Greenbelt Community Center. This decision has been very difficult for everyone involved. It is not easy to see trees fail because of drought and disease. These trees have provided years of aesthetic and environmental service to Greenbelt and these citizens. Just like any living entity there is decline and death. Unfortunately our large arboral friends present a significant risk to houses, people, cars, and electric lines. Lesley Riddle, the superintendent of parks for Greenbelt, and the Advisory Committee on Trees have determined that these two trees pose multiple risk. The City will need to have these trees removed.

While it is sad to see large trees die and have to be removed; the intention of the Arbor Day celebration this year was to mitigate the lose of these trees by planting three willow oaks and three chestnut oaks in the vicinity of the trees that need to be removed.

laboratory space to accommodate state-of-the-art research.
In preparation for BARC’s centennial in 2010, they reported that USDA develop strategic plans detailing the USDA’s short- and long-term visions for BARC and NAL. They have asked USDA to take action to address their concerns regarding the operation budgets at BARC and NAL.

With respect to NAL, Mukul- skii, Cardin and Hoyer were es- pecially concerned about leaking windows and other deficiencies that compromise the library’s irreplaceable collections. “This is not how the world’s most com- prehensive agricultural research facility and one of the largest agricultural libraries should be forced to operate,” the letter stat- ed.

The three legislators are ex- pected to continue their quest to ensure that BARC and the NAL will be able to continue to under- take their critical missions as two of the “world’s foremost agricul- tural research institutions.”

Pilot Project
Sharing their goals is John Peter Thompson, president of the non-profit Agricultural Research Alliance-Beltsville (Alliance). Thompson is chairman of Behnke’s Nurser- ies Company in Beltsville.

The Senate override of Presi- dent Bush’s veto of the farm bill could mean a go-ahead for a five-year pilot project permitting enhanced-use leasing authority at BARC and NAL. Thomp- son, a passionate supporter of BARC’s mission, helped craft a program to permit the leasing of vacant space at BARC/ARS and the library to private companies engaged in business compatible with the Center’s mission.

Partnering with Thompson in promoting the enhanced-use leasing authority was Renee Winsky, president and executive director of Maryland Technology Devel- opment Corporation.

Thompson told the News Re- view that Winsky will carry out the marketing portion of pilot projects while he, as a volunteer, concentrates on the battle to pro- tect BARC through the Alliance. Winsky served as the Alliance secretary.

In her May 28 letter, Winsky thanked Mikulski, Cardin and Hoyer for their support of the en- hanced-use leasing authority. She envi- sions, for example, developing an incubator “as the bedrock program for Maryland start-up companies seeking to take advan- tage of BARC research, expertise and facilities.”

As a business incubator, she noted the facility will promote new Maryland businesses “which in turn will spin off as suffi- cient companies in the greater Maryland economy.” (Winsky, a graduate of Eleanor Roose- evelt High School, was former Public Relations/Communications Director for the City of Greenbelt. Her parent resides in Greenbelt.)

Thompson has been a major force in creating the Alliance. He said the organization will continue to advocate for BARC and its agricultural and horticul- tural activities before legislative, executive, administrative and judicial bodies. He noted that over the years his government util- ity and maintenance costs have created the current challenge of restoring funds for programs and personnel, and in particular for scientists.

Another acreage, however, has been transferred from the re- search center for non-agricul- tural uses – the construction of a maintenance and service yard for Metro, a Southern Mary- land U.S. District Courthouse and a four-building headquar- ters facility for the U.S. De- partment of Agriculture.

City council was most con- cerned about USDA’s head- quarters’ building on Sunnyside Avenue. With 1,500 new em- ployees located there, council believed that the complex would encroach upon the city’s greenbelt and increase traffic on local roads. However, oth- ers in the community thought the USDA complex would help preserve BARC land for com- putable uses.

The Agenda was amended to remove two items and to add two items suggested by Mach. City staff removed a proposed resolution on purchase of a new surveillance camera system for the Aquatic & Fitness Center; Councilmember Konrad Herling requested an item relating to Rec- ognition Group status be re- moved. Mach’s items concerned Mach’s motion to the city’s Public Safety Advisory Com- mittee asking whether Greenbelt should conduct its own emergen- cy preparedness day, rather than take part in a proposed multi-ju- risdictional drill.

Under meetings it was an- nounced that the city would par- ticipate in a workshop on June 11 with representatives from the Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority and Greenbelt Station developers to discuss is- sues associated with the proposed North Core development, and on July 21 with the State Highway Administration to discuss the Route 1/Route 201 Alternative planning process/update.

GIVE BLOOD, GIVE LIFE
“Don’t be intimidated by the appearance of your smile.”

Ask yourself if any of these areas may be affecting the beauty of your smile:

- The color or shape of your teeth
- Spaces or missing teeth
- Noticeable cavities or old dental work
- Uneven or unhealthy gums

If so, come into the offices of the McCarl Dental Group for a complete and comprehensive evaluation.

Nicole Burgess of Severna Park had severely discolored teeth from a very early age. Throughout her life, Nicole had been self-conscious of her smile. In just three short weeks, the McCarl Dental Group gave Nicole a beautiful smile and a new start in life! Call the McCarl Dental Group to see if a smile makeover could change your life.
