City’s Outstanding Citizen 2012, “Ambassador” John Henry Jones

by Virginia Beaucamp

“Greenbelt’s unofficial ambassador to just about everyone.” This is how Bob Zugby, chair of the committee to choose this year’s Outstanding Citizen, characterized the man the group had chosen to honor with that title.

But earlier Zugby had kept us guessing, dodging even revealing this person’s gender. Finally, of course, the name had to be revealed in what became a great, thundering climax as we learned that the enthusiastic singer of Happy byline Day, the Golden Age Club member, the GHI resident, was, in fact – John Henry Jones, Green-belt’s Outstanding Citizen for 2012.

Before that revelation, Zugby had also let slip that the person in question was a great gardener, that he helps to set up the booths for Labor Day weekends, that at age 84 he still goes door to door every week delivering the

News Review in Lakeside North. Jones, a retired

Greenbelt resident, was – as they gathered and her partner, sons and their close friends – as they gathered around him on the stage. Along with the cheers, John Henry – as he’s widely known received the traditional pack of gift certificates donated by Greenbelt area businesses. They were presented in a tote/bag/buck pack donated by the Greenbelt 75th Anniversary Committee. Bob Zugby expressed gratitude to the event’s principal sponsor, the Greenbelt Rotary Club in the person of Harold Weinier, president of the Greenbelt Rotary Club, who presents the Outstanding Citizen award to John Henry Jones, the 2012 recipient.

Green Candidate Auerbach Is Running for Congress

L ongtime Greenbelt resident Bob S. Auerbach, age 92, a retired librarian and lifelong peace activist, has been nominated as the 2012 Green Party candidate for Congress from Maryland’s Fifth District and will appear on the general election ballot.

Auerbach aims to promote the key values of the Green Party, which include nonviolence, environmental wisdom, social justice and grassroots democracy. Green Party candidates seek to avoid conflicts of interest they see in the dominant parties’ campaign finance system driven by money from wealthy corporate interests they believe complicate democracy and compromise elected officials’ ability to serve.

After litigation and petitioning, Maryland election officials announced last week the Maryland Green Party has again been certified as a ballot-qualified potential party for the 2012 election. Certification of ballot status ensures that Bob Auerbach will be on the Tuesday, November 6 general election ballot.

History Auerbach became active in politics (especially election reform) in the 1930s and has been active in the Congress on Racial Equality (CORE) in the 1940s and 1950s; the Fellowship of Reconciliation (1940-1950); and the War Resisters League. He served as Maryland Green Party chair from 1997 to 2005. Auerbach won the Green Party nomination for Maryland District 5 U.S. House of Representatives in 2002 and again in 2004. He won the Green Party nomination for Comptroller of Maryland in 2006 although the Board of Elections removed his name from the statewide ballot in 2006 for what are described as technical reasons.

While we enjoyed summer and Labor Day festival, the Maryland-National Capital Park & Planning Commission (M-NCPPC) quietly released the Preliminary Greenbelt Metro Area and MD 193 Corridor Sector Plan and Proposed Sectional Map Amendment (Preliminary Plan for public review. The 426 page document is available online at www.gpplanning.org/greenbelt.htm and a limited number of copies are available at the Greenbelt Community Center info desk and the Springhill Lake Recreation Center.

The Greenbelt Library has a copy available for reading at the library but no copies for distribution.

Citizens, organizations and local governments have until October 17 to submit comments for the record on the Preliminary Plan. A joint public hearing by Prince George’s County Planning Board and Prince George’s County Council citizens as the District Council for zoning is scheduled at 7 p.m. on Tuesday, October 2 in the First Floor Committee Hearing Room of the County Adminis-

The nearly two-year effort to update a portion of the Greenbelt Area Sector Plan involved a series of community workshops that ended in May this year. The deadline for the Preliminary Plan was expected in early July but copies were not available until late July. The Greenbelt Planning and Community Development Department will brief council on the plan and make recommendations for official city comments for the record at its September 24 meeting. A follow-

“Dance is so fleeting,” Foster said. “It’s nice to know that the piece is over, the costumes that I make and the dancers wore, seeing those and touching those gives me more a sense of what was. It’s the memory of the motion.”

TANYA elastic being at all rolled into one fun-filled outstanding 2012 Festival. I am honored on Greenbelt's 75th birthday. I sincerely appreciate the hard work of Bob Zugby and his Outstanding Citizen Committee, as well as the scores of people involved in making the presentation and reception extra special. Our family was delighted.

In every aspect of our lives, let us be free to express our opinion, discuss our differences, and work on solutions to our problems together. Respond to calls for volunteers. Let us respect each other, make the community cleaner and a dear friend to every one of us.

I am impressed with how seriously and compassionately Lauren of our Animal Control Department responded to my call at 3 a.m. When you pass by, glance over at the bench and I bet you see the corrected ad on page 9 and turn out Sunday for this 9th annual fundraising walk here. Well, they did it again. Sure- ly, I thought, this trip to Boston couldn’t live up to the good vibes and memories of the four other trips Barry and Mary Moxon have led. … But it did. This time quite a few new faces were on the bus, those who had missed other trips with us – to the Smoky Mountains, Savannah, Niagara Falls and to the Biltmore in North Carolina. The new folks blended right in. All of us saw a lot, learned a lot, certainly ate a lot and had a great time.

We started off early on Thurs- day, May 17, with 42 travelers on the bus.

By the time we arrived at our destination, the John F. Kennedy Library in Cambridge, we’d made stops for restrooms and lunch, heard new jokes and started to get acquainted with the new pas- sengers. Luckily our hotel in Marblehead was large and comfortable. We got to bed early, preparing for three activity-packed days in the Boston area.

Day 1: JFK Library

Next morning our first stop was the John F. Kennedy Library and Museum, completed in 1979. The building, designed by fa- mous architect I.M. Pei, overlooks Dorchester Bay, with the Boston skyline in the distance. It houses a gift shop and a small café on the first floor, museum exhibits on a lower level and official papers on the first floor, museum exhibits on a lower level and official papers on the upper floor.

We started out by seeing a movie, depicting first the early years of the man-corrected Kennedy family, all laughing and smiling, swimming and sailing, and then struck by tragedies during World War II and ended with the very thin JFK campaigning for sena- tor and then later, his election as President.

We then visited the many ex- hibits, including family life and 1950s and 1960s, with radios, black-and-white TV, manual typewriters, a pop-up toaster, an ironing board. In the hallways between exhibits were on-the-job training centers – the Boston area.

Standing on the Old North Bridge, where the “shot heard round the world” was fired. Pictured, Kathleen McFar- land, Ellen Haynäs, Mary Ann Tretler, Sharon Miller, and ‘60s, with radios, black-and- white TV, manual typewriters, a pop-up toaster, an ironing board.

“Gold Coast,” Gloucester

Then Allen directed the bus to a “road less traveled” along the seashore, called the “Gold Coast.” This contained fabulous houses and beaches where wealthy sea captains built homes and where lovely resort towns such as Manchester-by-the-Sea, have sprung up.

We learned the correct pronun- ciations of Gloucester and of Quincy (with a “z”). Near Gloucester we stopped along the beach to see the famous statue memorializing The Fisherman and a newer one of his wife and dogs, waiting for his return from sea.

Crossing a picturesque draw- bridge, we arrived at our dinner destination, the Gloucester House restaurant, where, before dinner, the handsome owner presented a talk about the history of the en- tire Cape Ann area and its value to the fishing industry and other businesses. One small fact I re- member: the first American Le- gion post had been established in Gloucester!

We had an excellent dinner there (most of us ordering had- den). After lunch we went to Revere Park, where the “two lanterns aloft” of Longfellow’s poem had been hung. There a young Park Service employee, Masha, told us about the history and the two monuments there. I was touched by the sympathy she expressed for the young British soldiers who’d been sent so far away to America, not expecting to fight or to die.

Old North Bridge

We walked then onto the Old North Bridge and stood on the very spot where colonists and British soldiers had battled, with casualties on both sides.

On the other side of the bridge is an engaging exhibit in a room set up with a model of the bridge nearby. There she told us of the meetings in Lexington on the “18th of April, in ‘75” in which the Sons of Liberty planned the warning ride by Paul Revere and others that set in motion the Revolutionary War.

The first skirmish was actually held in Lexington, which had its own memorials and its own Min- ute Men statue in the town park, though less famous than the one in Concord.

We re-boarded the bus and drove through Concord. Who knew that all those famous authors lived there? Nathaniel Hawthorne, Ralph Waldo Emerson, Henry David Thoreau and Louisa May Alcott – all lived near each other in Con- cord – and all at the same time! We arrived at Minute Man National Park in Concord, where Masha led us to log benches un- der shade, near a serene river and with a picturesque wooden bridge nearby. There she told us about the first official battle.

If you don’t remember anything else about this tour,” she said, “remember this date: April 19, 1775.” (Paul Revere’s ride had taken place the previous evening.) She showed us the spot on this side of the stream where the first British soldier had died and the two monuments there. I was touched by the sympathy she expressed for the young British soldiers who’d been sent so far away to America, not expecting to fight or to die.

Old North Bridge

Our fascinating tour guide, Mas- ha, dressed in colonial costume, met us at the visitors center in Lexington, her home town, teat- us of the meetings in Lexington on the “18th of April, in ‘75” in which the Sons of Liberty planned the warning ride by Paul Revere and others that set in motion the Revolutionary War.

Those of us living in Greenbelt at that time remember the major blizzard the day before.

Hearing the stirring phrases in Kennedy’s own voice and see- ing his gestures, brought back memories of how revitalized the country was by this new young president, so articulate, so inspir- ing. I sat transfixed, watching the people at his side: Jackie, LBJ, even the poet Robert Frost, an old man then.

When the speech ended with the oft-quoted words, “Ask not what your country can do for you, ask what you can do for your country,” I, like others watching, jumped up applauding.

After a bite of lunch and a quick trip to the gift shop, we were then on our way to our af- ternoon adventure.

After a tour around Salem, in which Allen pointed out the Peabody Essex Museum, full of treasures collected by sea cap- tains from China and all over the world, the Witch Museum and other sites, he pointed the way to the waterfront and the House of Seven Gables made famous by Hawthorne’s novel.

We were on our own then for lunch and shopping or sight-see- ing. My own little group ended up watching Morris dancers per- form near the Old Custom House (the first in the country) and had lobster rolls for lunch outside un- der umbrellas at a restaurant near the water.

Day 2: Salem

The next day we met our new tour guide, Allen, and started off for Salem. I wanted to hear about the witches. But right away Al- len knocked the wind out of my sails, so to speak. He said the witches. But right away Al- len knocked the wind out of my sails, so to speak. He said the famous witch trials didn’t occur until 1692, whereas the Great Salem had been founded in 1626, already an important shipping port. Indeed, the visitors’ center and gift shop was stock full of nauti- cal books and merchandise, with a trophy a witch’s broom to be found.

We learned a lot about Salem, because of its maritime history, had been the first place designated by the Park Service as a National Historical Site.

Allen made a bow to the witch theme, however, by taking us first to the cemetery where the 19 inno- cent people who were hanged as witches had been buried. A small park adjoining the cemetery holds stone benches bearing each name.

He pointed out that some of the most respected families in New England history, like Em-erson and Nathaniel Hawthorne, had ancestors by blood or mar- riage who had been judges in the

The 1989 Approved Master Plan for Langley Park-College Park-Greenbelt and Vicinity and the 1990 Adopted Sectional Map Amendment for Planning Areas 65, 66 and 67 (the Preliminary Plan impacts a portion of Planning area 67).

The Preliminary Plan also builds on the 2002 Approved General Plan for Prince Georges County for centers and corridors in what is known as the Developed Tier, addresses sustainable development tied to existing and proposed mass transit options and incorporates recommendations from functional area master plans such as for Green Infrastructure, Transportation and Water Resources. Of importance to Greenbelt, the Preliminary Plan proposes specific zoning classification changes in the Sector Plan area that would implement land use recommendations for selected parcels within the Sector Plan area.

After the October 17 close of the comment period a digest of submitted testimony on the Preliminary Plan will be sent to the Planning Board for consideration by the end of 2012, with the Planning Board taking up to three months to review and modify it. from the era, leading visitors through each room of the historic house and dancing through the motions of daily life.

“All of our work has story at its core,” Foster said. “People need life. It’s actually so that’s something I can offer my community.”

Unlike many contemporary pieces, Foster said Alight’s work isn’t meant to be edgy or sexy. “There is hope in all of our work . . . sort of a core of optimism.”

The community and viewers have responded well. Foster tells a story of a woman who came to a recent performance to try to communicate this almost exercise in empathy and compassion. “She said, ‘to make something that really . . . we really do support each other,’” Foster said.

For One Another

“One of the most delightful parts of it is being with and for one another . . . we really do support each other,” Foster said.

Through the group heads to the back-yard of the museum for the shoot, Foster talks with the videographer, discussing the angle of the upcoming take. Her hands seem to do the talking for her as she gestures and acts a scene.

“She’s extremely creative, and one of the things Angela pairs with that is the ability to see the end proj- ect and all of the steps to get there . . . she likes to do things well,” said Monica Warren, an Alight dancer. “It’s not a chore. It’s something she wants to work on.”

Foster says it all comes natural- ly to her and is something she was “hardwired” to do. At any given time, she says, she has at least 10 ideas for projects circling her mind.

“She knows what she wants; she’s certain about it and sticks to it,” said Valerie Branch, an Alight dancer.

It’s not just another Thursday for Foster. Today happens to be her ninth wedding anniversary. Her husband is at home preparing a celebratory dinner for them.

The couple met in elementary school, growing up in Jessamine County in northern Kentucky. They didn’t start dating until the summer after her graduation from Hope College, when she was headed to New York City for work and he was in Russia for a semester abroad. “We wrote letters and emails back and forth. It was very romantic. Very Indio- rom-com,” Foster said.

Meet Frank DeBernardo, Vice President
By Robin Everly

Although Frank DeBernardo is one of our newly elected first-time Board members, he has been active in the Greenbelt community since moving to GHI in July 2004. Frank treasures GHI for its park-like ambiance and walkability along with the spirited civic-mindedness of its residents. Frank has tons of administrative and community experience that he is bringing to the Board. He is currently on the City of Greenbelt 75th Anniversary Committee. For the past four years, he has represented Prince George’s County and our community on the Metro Riders’ Advisory Council, which he chaired on the Metro Riders’ Advisory Board on Rider and Council, which he chaired.

Frank has been executive director of New Ways Ministery for 18 years, a job that he loves. New Ways is a national Catholic ministry of advocacy, reconciliation, and education for lesbian and gay Catholics and the wider church and civil communities. The organization’s purpose is to build bridges between lesbian and gay people and the Catholic Church.

When asked why he ran for the Board and what he hopes to accomplish, Frank answered, “I ran because I think I might be able to help the GHI community in two areas – communications and volunteer recruitment. These are a big part of my job as executive director of a non-profit, and I hope that I can bring some of that experience to GHI.” He feels GHI is facing a big issue with the upcoming upgrades to our units. When asked what he felt is the most pressing issue facing GHI, he answered, “that we have to find better ways to help people become involved in the work of the cooperative. Two areas in which I think we can improve are educating people on what it means to live in a cooperative and providing people with opportunities to become involved in areas that affect their lives and families.”

So far, Frank is learning a lot, enjoying his colleagues on the Board and he is impressed with the GHI staff. He respects the members who have come to meetings to voice their concerns and says: “The passion and interest I have seen has given me a new appreciation for living in GHI.”

Welcome aboard, Frank!

Pepco Upgrade
Pepco will be undertaking a significant infrastructure upgrade in Old Greenbelt in the coming months. The project involves replacing 500 utility poles, 250 transformers and 58,000 feet of electrical transmission lines that have reached the end of their useful service life. Pepco will be conducting significant tree pruning and removal in conjunction with this project. GHI and city staff have been meeting with Pepco representatives for several months during the project’s planning phase to minimize the impact of this project on GHI and city residents as well as the tree canopy throughout the city. If you have any questions or comments concerning this project, you may email them to pepcoproject@greenbeltmd.gov. Documents from the August 17 public presentation are now posted.
