Council Recognizes Two From Police Department

by Kathleen Gallagher

At the June 19 meeting of the city council, Acting Chief of Police Thomas Kemp presented Michelle Moo-Young as the Greenbelt Police Department's Civilian of the Year and MPO Michael Eppard as the department's Officer of the Year for 2016. The awards were first presented last fall at the annual Public Safety Awards Banquet at Greenbelt American Legion Post 136.

Moo-Young and Eppard were also honored on June 15 at the annual awards program of the Police Chiefs Association of Prince George's County. During this event, the Police Chiefs Association also named Eppard as their Officer of the Year for Prince George's County.

Kemp first introduced Moo-Young, a 22-year veteran of the department. She began her career as a communications specialist and subsequently became an administrative assistant in the records unit and then an administrative coordinator in the administrative unit. Currently, her core duties include serving as the department's background and appreciation testifying to her professionalism and her unfailing willingness to go above and beyond assigned duties. Kemp particularly noted her ability to organize meetings and all types of events, saying that whatever the activity, "Michelle is the person you want coordinating and overseeing it."

Kemp added that somehow, in addition to all her other responsibilities, Moo-Young finds time to contribute to the department by doing undercover work as McGruff the Crime Dog's trusty partner, Mighty Michelle.

Kemp introduced Eppard by saying that a peek into his personnel file reveals that in his relatively short five years on the Greenbelt force, Eppard, too, has accumulated quite a few letters of appreciation and commendation. One of these cites him for an investigation that removed multiple firearms from area streets through his work with an Eleanor Roosevelt High School student whose life was being threatened. Kemp noted that Eppard has also been a recipient of the Maryland

by Chris Cherry and Elizabeth Gardner

Creative Kids Camper Iris Gaycken enjoys a classic in children's literature.

This summer, young Greenbelters can take part in the Greenbelt Legacy 80th Anniversary celebration by reading some of the terrific books that enthralled Greenbelt youngsters during the town's first years. To launch the kids of today on their time-traveling adventure, the Recreation Department's Creative Kids Camp has published an anniversary reading list called Best of Yesterday, which features all of the Newbery Award-winning books of the 1930s, along with other significant children's books of the time.

The list is a treasure trove for young readers: a mixture of golden classics and rare gems awaiting rediscovery. Beloved fictional characters who made their debut in the 1930s include Babar, Madeline, Mary Poppins and the indefatigable sleuth, Nancy Drew. The Little House books by Laura Ingalls Wilder first appeared during the decade, along with the first works by Dr. Seuss. In 1937, the year Greenbelt was founded, J.R.R. Tolkien's The Hobbit was published. The poet W.H. Auden called it one of the best children's stories of the century.

Some enchanting, lesser-known titles on the list include Swallows and Amazons by Arthur Ransome, which chronicles the summer sailing adventures of four children who pretend to be pirates, and Mr. Popper's Penguins by Richard and Florence Atwater, which describes the Popper family's efforts to accommodate a dozen penguins in their small home.

In addition to providing entertainment, several books on the list seek to inspire young See BOOKS, page 8

Barbara Likowski Was 2007's Outstanding Citizen

by Sandra A. Lange

In 2007, the Outstanding Citizen Committee honored someone who was not a well-known figure in the city. Barbara Likowski worked quietly "behind the scenes" for over 36 years as a member of the Greenbelt News Review staff. She served as assistant editor and, in later years as her health declined, as assistant editor emerita. For more than 30 years, she was one of the most diligent, hard-working News Review editors. She rarely missed Tuesday's editing deadline and frequently performed

Letters to the Editor

Two of Greenbelt's Best Friends

Rabbi Jonathan Cohen and Pharmacist Sajida Qayumi have been two of the strongest threads in the everyday life of this city for so many years that it is hard to imagine the future without them. Better role models and public servants in the truest sense of the word are hard to acquire and keep for so many years.

Rabbi Cohen has been the soft-spoken leader of not only Mishkan Torah but also for so many who have worked for peace and understanding among the different religions. As a long-standing member of the Greenbelt Interfaith Leadership Association, he has appeared at many of the various churches as part of the annual Interfaith Service on Thanksgiving Eve. It has always been a joy to listen to his well-researched and crafted sermons, prayers and other presentations. I remember leaving the Mowatt Memorial Methodist Church after one such service where he had participated with many of the leaders of the other faith communities. Barbara and I were crossing the street with him when he remarked "A Baptist minister and a Jewish rabbi on the same dais . . . only in Greenbelt." Yes, because leaders like you, Rabbi Cohen, helped to make it so.

Sajida Qayumi has been a counselor and a friend while being a top-flight pharmacist at the Co-op. Always free with advice and recommendations, she has been the one able to cut through all of the red tape of big Pharma and to work sensible resolutions to problems with prescriptions and insurance coverage. Her welcoming smile at the pharmacy counter has served to allay fears as well as problems with medicine for so many of Greenbelt's sick and their caregivers.

I am sure I speak for many when I express my heartfelt gratitude to both of these wonderful people. You have been role models and inspirations to us in the way you have carried yourself and the care you have shown for Greenbelt and its citizens. The places where each of you will settle will be so much the better for your presence. Greenbelt is Great! God is Love.

Wonder Woman Review for Kids

by Jackson Tuthill, age 12

(Review may contain spoilers.)

At last, a super hero movie with a female star! First of all, the acting is impeccable, and Gal Gadot hits it out of the park playing Diana. The World War I setting is a refreshing break from the modern city setting that is traditional for superhero movies, and in other works is far underused in comparison to World War II. Diana's backstory was also a mold-breaker in that she did not grow up living a normal life.

Unlike the mess that was Batman v Superman: Dawn of Justice, Wonder Woman did not feel like trying too hard to be dark and mature. That was one of my biggest problems with Batman v Superman as it made the entire movie feel slow and forced, not to mention it left no trace of any sort of lightheartedness. A few of Steve's remarks were pretty funny, and hearing Diana's thoughts on early 1900s society was very entertaining. The movie had some deep themes regarding sexism in that time period, and the movie actually took war and death a lot more seriously than other superhero flicks.

And as you would expect, the final showdown has lots of CGI. Bottom line is that Wonder Woman is a refreshing departure from the standard superhero formula that fixes almost all the problems with most superhero movies, and as such, Wonder Woman may be one of the best action movies ever made. Be sure to catch Wonder Woman at AMC Academy 8 Theater in Greenbelt!

Geneva L. Halsey

Geneva Halsey, 85, died at home on June 24, 2017. She was born October 1, 1931, in Washington, D.C., to Henry and Emma Liggons, and grew up in the Logan Circle neighborhood.

She was a proud graduate of Paul Laurence Dunbar High School, class of 1949.

Pursuing her childhood dream of becoming a teacher, she attended Miner Teachers College, graduating in 1953. While there she was introduced by a mutual friend to Jesse Halsey, a student at Howard University. In October 1954, Jesse and Geneva were united in marriage.

A devoted wife, Mrs. Halsey supported her husband's career as a U.S. Air Force officer, moving many times before settling in Greenbelt in 1968. Initially she was not happy about moving to Greenbelt, as she was a city girl and did not drive. However, she grew to love the community.

Mrs. Halsey returned to her teaching career after moving to Boxwood Village, teaching first at Greenbelt North End School (now Greenbelt Elementary), then at Berwyn Heights Elementary School, Bond Mill Elementary in Laurel and finally retiring from Springhill Lake Elementary. In her retirement she volunteered with Meals on Wheels and the American Heart Association, and was a substitute teacher at Greenbelt Elementary. She enjoyed being a member of the Golden Age Club, taking pottery classes and attending aqua-aerobics in Greenbelt. She also enjoyed gardening and traveling with friends and family.

She is survived by Jesse, her husband of 62 years; their children Jennifer, Warren (Lynelle), Janice and Leslie; sister Henrietta Hawkins; sister-in-law Rosa McNair; niece Deborah Hughes (Thomas); five grandchildren; two great-grandchildren and a host of other relatives and friends. Viewing and service will be held on Friday July 7 at 12:30 and 1:30 p.m. at Fort Lincoln Funeral Home and Cemetery, 3401 Bladensburg Road, Brentwood.

John Hartnett

John Hartnett of Laurel Hill Road died on June 19, 2017, after a long illness. He was witty by nature and his door was always open to all who enjoyed listening to his life adventure stories. Described as a hell of a nice guy and good neighbor, he will be missed by Caitlyn, Karl and Claudia, as well as his other neighbors on Laurel Hill. A Mass will be held on Monday, July 10 at 10 a.m. at St. Jerome's Church in Hyattsville.

Lanny LeForte

Lanny LeForte, 72, died on May 21, 2017.

He lived in Greenbelt from 1950 to 2000 when he and his wife Jan moved to Kirkland, Arizona.

In Greenbelt he was a carpenter. In Arizona he became a first responder for the Southern Yavapai Fire Department.

Mr. LeForte is survived by his wife Jan Edge LeForte, brother Larry LeForte, nieces Mary and Vanessa and nephew Larry II.

City Notes

Animal Control staff reports two cruelty cases and a bite report were investigated, an injured turtle was taken to wildlife rehab, one dog was picked up running at large and was returned to its owner, one cat and one dog were surrendered by owner, one stray cat was brought into the shelter by a citizen and one kitten was adopted.

Planning staff made a site visit to pedestrian and bike improvements throughout the city and inspected conditions at Lakeside Drive and Westway in response to a citizen request for a new crosswalk.

Street Maintenance/Special Details crews installed new thermos plastic stop lines on all newly-paved roads – Mathew Street, Megan Lane and in historic Greenbelt. Older thermos plastic stop lines in historic Greenbelt were also replaced.

Facility Maintenance crews completed the HVAC project at the Municipal Building and installed LED flood lights at Buddy Attick Park near the restrooms.

Refuse/Recycling/Sustainability crews collected 31.99 tons of refuse and 12.71 tons of recyclable material.

Springhill Lake Recreation Center is busy with drop-in programs and its new Eagle Vision class. Offered twice a week, this free program offers active games, nutrition/health information and a complimentary snack to promote an active and healthy lifestyle for participants. Quesadillas were prepared by participants last Tuesday and the nutritional benefits of popcorn followed up a workout of indoor soccer and fitness stations. Thank you to Co-op for its generous support of this free program.

CARES is participating in the Prince George's County School summer lunch program, serving lunches three days a week (Monday, Wednesday and Thursday) at the Springhill Lake Recreation Center. This is the only open lunch meal program offered in Greenbelt this year. Lists of all summer meal sites can be found at pgcps.org.

Mishkan Torah Hosts Film, Jews of Nigeria

The film, Re-emerging: The Jews of Nigeria, will be screened at Mishkan Torah on Sunday, July 9 at 4 p.m. The 93-minute film will be followed by a discussion led by Sabrina Sojourner, the co-convenor of the DMV chapter of the Jewish Multiracial Network (JMN).

The 2012 documentary film by Jeff L. Lieberman introduces the Igbo people of Nigeria. Although most of the 25 million Igbo practice some form of Christianity today, many were taught by their elders that they were descendants of one of the Twelve Tribes of Israel. When the introduction of the internet allowed more access to information about Judaism, at least some Igbo saw many parallels between the two traditions. As a result, a number of Igbo people have embraced Judaism and created communities structured around what they believe is their ancestral religion.

This touching film raises many questions about race, religion and identity. It demonstrates the passion and love the Igbo have for Judaism, illustrates the possible route their ancestors may have taken from the Middle East to this part of Africa, examines some of the parallel traditions and shows how they are educating themselves about and connecting to modern Judaism. It also discusses how some segments of the global Jewish community support their efforts, while others are more dubious about their ancestral claim.

Condolences to the family and friends of former Greenbelter Lanny LeForte, who died on May 21 in Arizona, where he and his wife Jan had lived since 2000.

We were saddened to hear of the death on June 19 of John Hartnett of Laurel Hill Road.

Condolences to the family and friends of longtime Greenbelt resident and teacher Geneva Halsey, who died on June 24.

Congratulations to:

- Celia Craze, director of Planning and Community Development, also retired recently.

"Everyone is doing the best they can. (Even me.)"

Celinda Marsh, PBUUC member since 2007 and former Worship Associate; with Worship Associate Will Snyder

In the book Rising Strong, Brené Brown struggles with the question, "Is everyone doing the best they can?" She discovers that compassion and peace follow those who choose to believe it is true. To me, her reflections resonate with our first UU Principle - promoting the inherent worth and dignity of every person. But, as a workaholic perfectionist, the hardest part for me is not giving other people the benefit of the doubt, but imagining that (maybe) I am doing my best, too.

Local Artist Exhibits Work In Virginia Art League Show

by Cathie Meetre

Sally Davies is a painter who lives and works on Research Road in Greenbelt. Her new exhibit at The Art League in Alexandria Va. (Torpedo Factory Art Center), runs from July 6 through August 6, with an opening reception on Thursday, July 13. Her large and vibrant paintings are views from unusual vantage points (e.g. from a bridge, top of a castle wall or out a cathedral window) in countries that include England, Canada, Italy, France, Japan, Greece, Bermuda, Iceland, Netherlands and the U.S. (The most recent painting is a view from the entrance hall of the National Gallery of Art in D.C.) Davies will give a demo at the gallery on Saturday, July 22 at 2 p.m.

Davies notes, "Especially in this current political world of insular countries and self-protectionism, I wanted to show our planet as one whole place, a community. Aside from recognizable architectural clues for a specific place, the people in my paintings look so familiar. They are doing ordinary things, like going to work, taking kids to school, cycling home and meeting with friends. The image of a mother holding her child's hand while crossing the street is universal. I want to show that bond of humanity throughout the world."

When photographing and piecing together her images, Davies looks for a dynamic composition, interesting play of light and shadow, intriguing characters and a suggestion of architectural details. She begins with an abstract under-painting on a blank canvas – swirls and patterns with lots of movement. In the final works, only a hint of the abstract under-painting remains visible. The result is a strong, uncluttered design – always from a bird's eye view.

Davies was born in England and immigrated to Canada as a young girl. She studied illustration and graphic design at Sheridan College in Canada and has illustrated magazines, cookbooks, menus, posters, textbooks and many children's books. Her illustrations are done with ink line and bright watercolor washes and are very different from her fine art paintings, which tend to be looser in style. Over the past 15 years, Davies has shifted her interest to exhibiting her fine art paintings in various galleries in the mid-Atlantic region. She's a member of The Art League and a signature member of Baltimore Watercolor Society and the Potomac Valley Watercolorists.

At the gallery's suggestion, Davies, with her husband Derrick Early, made a series of time lapse photographs of the paintings as she worked on them. The fascinating series of videos that resulted is available at tinyurl.com/h4pav2u. Viewing them offers amazing insight into the gradual growth of the painting as Davies works out her image. For the watcher, the mind's eye of the artist is gradually revealed layer by layer as the picture is built up detail by detail and the conception emerges.

Davies and Early moved to Greenbelt in 2009, finding a house with a huge, light-filled space to create her art (and a big garden with sunlight to grow veggies.) Her studio windows look out onto trees and the light is perfect for painting. Davies commented, "We love the community spirit in Greenbelt. It has a lively art scene, and I can walk or cycle to the Co-op, the farmer's market, a movie, the library, or to events at the Roosevelt Center or Community Center. It is a great place to live!"

For further information on Davies' work, view a short video on the exhibit and see her at work in her studio in Greenbelt at youtube.com/watch?v=DZz22FB7xps.

readers to overcome life's challenges – a reflection, undoubtedly, of the hardships imposed by the Great Depression and the early responsibility shouldered by many young people of the time. Thus, the books feature character-building adventures in which the young protagonist perseveres through adversity and comes of age. In Waterless Mountain by Laura Adams Armer, a Navajo boy living in Arizona in the 1920s undergoes years of rigorous training to become a medicine man. In Calico Bush by Rachel Field, a young French orphan indentures herself to a farming family in 18th century Maine. In Young Fu of the Upper Yangtze by Elizabeth Lewis, the son of a poor widow goes to the big city on the Yangtze River to apprentice with a coppersmith.

Greenbelters Clean Up Litter From Sub-Watersheds of Bay

by Erin Josephitis

At the city council meeting on Monday, June 5, Mayor Emmett Jordan announced a proclamation to observe the second week of June as Chesapeake Bay Awareness Week, and urged city staff and residents to do their part every day of the year to protect the Chesapeake Bay. On Saturday, June 10, a group of 13 volunteers gathered to clean up litter from the Woodlands Conservation Area on Hanover Parkway.

The cleanup event began with an opportunity for volunteers to introduce each other, reflect and share their favorite things about the Chesapeake Bay. Individuals were grateful for a variety of things that the Bay provides, including recreation, wildlife, transportation and scenic beauty. Everyone knows that litter is unsightly, but they might not realize how much it actually threatens the health of the Bay. These are among the many reasons why Greenbelt Public Works is committed to providing volunteer service-learning opportunities to reduce the impact of pollution on our local waterways and the Chesapeake Bay. Before starting to clean up litter in the woods, volunteers learned about safety procedures for staying hydrated and avoiding poison ivy and ticks.

In less than two hours, volunteers of all ages collected 460 pounds of litter and beautified the Woodlands Conservation Area. Volunteers learned Greenbelt's materials disposal guidelines, as well as the importance of reducing waste destined for the landfill and recycling as much as possible. Working in teams was crucial for properly placing materials into bags separated for landfill or recycling and removing some of the larger items. Among the heavier items hauled out of the woods were three tires and a mattress. Eleven bags of litter were sent to the landfill. Nine bags of recyclable materials were recycled. Some of the most common materials overall were plastic bags, chip bags, candy wrappers, as well as plastic bottles and aluminum cans. Many of the materials collected were floatables, which means they could have easily been transported along with stormwater runoff into storm drains or streams and finally into the Chesapeake Bay.

The event concluded with Jordan's remarks to thank the group of volunteers for their time and energy. After all, an hour or two is a small sacrifice when it comes to making a huge impact on cleaning up litter from our local sub-watersheds of the Chesapeake Bay. For more environmental volunteer and educational workshop opportunities, visit the Green Steps on the city website calendar at greenbeltmd.gov.

Greenbelt has made many noteworthy accomplishments in water quality and is a leader in Chesapeake Bay restoration efforts. Some of these practices include rain barrels/cisterns, rain gardens, permeable pavement and tree canopy. Residents are encouraged to follow these stormwater best management practices and apply for reimbursement through Prince George's County Rain Check Rebate. Each individual and community action serves to filter polluted stormwater runoff, as well as reduces and removes pollutants that would otherwise make their way into the Chesapeake Bay.

Also contributing to Eppard's awards were his actions in two life-saving rescues in Greenbelt, for which he was recognized by council at a meeting in August of last year. One involved the successful resuscitation of a local juvenile who had attempted to take her own life. In the other event, Eppard saved the life of a victim of a serious stabbing by quickly employing a tourniquet to slow the bleeding and by applying pressure until the fire department arrived to transport the victim to the hospital.

Eppard has also served as a volunteer firefighter and until recently was a member of the Maryland Army National Guard.

Town Council Bans

The Town Council of Greenbelt at its meeting Monday night passed the much debated ordinance prohibiting the wearing of bathing suits, shorts, halters and housecoats within certain areas within the town of Greenbelt, by a vote of 3 to 2, Mr. East and Mr. Morrison dissenting.

The ordinance makes it unlawful for any person 14 years of age or older to wear bathing suits, bathrobes, kimonos, housecoats and what are known as shorts and halters within what is commonly known as the mercantile area of the town of Greenbelt. This ordinance takes effect July 1 and conviction carries a fine of from two to twenty-five dollars.

Vehicle Crime

Twenty-five crimes involving vehicles were reported in the seven-day period June 22 through June 28. Fifteen were thefts from vehicles, five vandalism and five stolen or recovered vehicles.

A silver 2004 Volvo S90 SUV with Md. tags A292242 was taken from the 5900 block Cherrywood Lane. A 2012 Toyota Camry stolen from the 5800 block Cherrywood Terrace was recovered in Riverdale Park after it had been involved in an accident prior to it having been reported stolen.

D.C. Metropolitan police recovered two vehicles stolen from Greenbelt. A 2000 Dodge Caravan taken from the 6200 block Springhill Court was recovered in the 2500 block 34th Street S.E.; and a 2011 Ford Econoline E250 van stolen from the 9100 block Edmonston Road was recovered in the area of 30th and Southern Avenues, S.E. A 2008 Ford Econoline E450 van reported stolen by Howard County police was recovered on Springhill Court near Edmonston Road.

Thefts from vehicles are broken down as follows. Rear Md. tag 5EYH79A was taken from 100 block Centerway and four tires and rims were taken from a vehicle in the 5800 block Cherrywood Lane. An attempt was made to remove tires from one vehicle in the 6400 block Ivy Lane, which also had a window broken out.

Electronic equipment was taken from eight locations after windows were broken out to gain access. Stereo equipment was taken from the 5800 block Cherrywood Lane, 9100 block Edmonston Court, 6200 block Springhill Drive and 9100 Edmonston Road. On June 22, officers responded to a report of four tires and rims being taken from the 6400 block Ivy Lane and observed a suspect vehicle in the area, with people entering it and attempting to flee. Officers attempted to catch up to it but cut off contact when the vehicle was observed getting onto the off ramp for Route 495 in the wrong direction. It was learned a short time later that the vehicle had collided into a tractor trailer and the occupants fled on foot. The vehicle they had been driving, a 2005 Dodge Ram 2500 pickup truck, was discovered to have been stolen from Alexandria.

Five incidents of vandalism were reported, three of which involved holes being punched in gas tanks, one each in the 8100 block Lakecrest Drive, 100 block Westway and 6000 block Springhill Drive. A passenger side window was broken in the 6100 block Greenbelt Road and a windshield was cracked in the unit block Westway.

Transportation's Future In Greenbelt and Beyond

by Matthew Arbach

According to Ben Hampton, transportation planner with the National Capital Region Transportation Planning Board (TPB), a million more people are expected to reside in the metropolitan D.C. region by 2045. This will present obvious challenges to Greenbelt residents and the local transportation system. In order to look ahead, TPB created the Visualize2045 program as a way to gather information and create a long-term plan for this future. Data is being acquired via a survey released in June and available until July 31. The survey can be accessed through the website at mwcog.org/visualize2045.

The focus of Visualize2045 is "on regionally significant road and transit projects, but will also highlight bicycle and pedestrian projects and key land-use issues facing the region," according to their website. It will be a "multimodal approach, not relying on any one travel mode to accommodate future population growth and address the region's diverse transportation challenges. The aim is to help elected leaders, regional planners and the public better understand the kinds of decisions we need to make today to realize a more desirable transportation future." Survey participants are asked to weigh in on and rate the importance of things such as transportation reliability and safety, as well as travel time with options including driving, biking, bus, rail and walking. Detailed issues such as traffic delays, tolls, fares and parking fees, infrastructure condition and design, crime and destination are addressed. One section asks for ideas about improving specific roadways using a map of the area and movable icons. Gender, annual income, zip code and ethnicity are requested. For non-English speakers, those without internet access or anyone needing other accommodations, call 202-962-3297 or 202-962-3113 (TDD).

TPB is an information nexus "responsible for developing and carrying out a continuing, cooperative and comprehensive transportation process in the metropolitan area," according to their website. Situated in the offices of and staffed by the independent and non-profit Metropolitan Washington Council of Governments, TPB is the federally designated metropolitan planning organization for metropolitan Washington. It is comprised of over 40 elected officials in 23 county and city jurisdictions stretching from Frederick County to Charles County, a region of more than 3,500 square miles on which over 5 million people reside.

Members include representatives of three state departments of transportation and WMATA. The Greenbelt representatives are Rodney Roberts and Konrad Herling.

The TPB takes a two-fold approach: the Financially Constrained Long-Range Transportation Plan (CLRPT) and the Long-Range Plan Task Force. CLRPT focuses on projects that are monetarily and logically feasible in the next 20 years. Currently, its financial plan indicates an available budget of $244 billion to carry out its determinations. The

Master Plan for Rec Dept. Considered After 10 Months

by Matthew Arbach

The Greenbelt Recreation Department and Park and Recreation Advisory Board convened their final community meeting with GreenPlay LLC on Wednesday, June 21 at the Springhill Lake Recreation Center, on their work to create a master plan for re-designing and bolstering of the parks and recreational areas in Greenbelt. Eight focus meetings, a facility tour and three community meetings were held from June 19 to 21. This is the first such effort undertaken by the city. Now begins a 10-month process of information gathering based upon current data and future surveys. ROC Association as well as LSG Landscape Architects are also involved, the latter contributing to the evaluation of the current facilities and amenities using a scale going from "good" to "in need of removal."

The June 21 community meeting was a presentation of the information obtained in the focus meetings by GreenPlay representative Dylan Packetbush and Adam Bossi. A summation of strengths, improvements and challenges, programming opportunities, health of the current facilities and amenities, and priorities was laid out to the city representatives and community members.

Existing strengths included praise of the parks, staff, camps, maintenance, and group support, as well as the variety and inclusiveness of the programs offered and their fees. Possible improvements centered on developing connectivity of the various recreation areas and group communication, as well as increasing resources, available space for new facilities and infrastructure. Programming opportunities focused on improving scheduling, providing of more health and fitness activities, increased public art and a general reevaluation of each program's aptness to the needs of the community. An issue mentioned was the limited amount of free meeting space allowed to all recognized groups, of which there are many.

Suggested upgrades to the existing facilities were indicated for the pool, indoor spaces, athletic fields and Buddy Attick Park. There was also an interest in a public concert venue and event space and the community gathering space. This process of development and redesign will take five to 10 years.

Founded in 1999, GreenPlay LLC consults with communities in their efforts to improve and develop "services for park, recreation, open space and related agencies," according to their Long-Range Task Force looks to development beyond this time period.

Hampton says that there are around 500 long-range projects being developed by TPB. More recent projects include the Inter-county Connector and the Purple Line, planned to extend from Bethesda to New Carrollton. Periodic check-ins with various projects are made on a four-year schedule. Most projects will require decades to reach fruition and cost in the billions. The year 2045 has been established as a "designated horizon year." Air quality and the environment also factor strongly in deliberations.

Herling and Cynthia Newcomer are two Greenbelt residents interested in the ongoing viability of transportation in our community. Herling sees two major priorities for the immediate future: a circular bus, possibly funded by the county, connecting each neighborhood and development, thus promoting inclusiveness; and more under- and over-passes, allowing safe crossings, especially along the high-risk thoroughfares of Greenbelt Road and Kenilworth Avenue. For Herling, transportation ties into a community's resiliency, its ability to remain cohesive and united. Newcomer, a member of Transit Riders United of Greenbelt, envisions a future with more funding for Metro, both bus and rail service. She sees the goal as lower fares and increased service. Currently, fares have been rising, service has been diminishing and ridership is reduced. Metro already has such a prominent position in area transit that bolstering its facilities would be a wise choice. Ultimately, transportation is about connection: to work, family and the necessities of life. As we move into an uncertain future, with shifting circumstances and resources, Visualize2045 seeks to make that future more efficient and enjoyable for everyone.

website. Working from offices in New Hampshire, Virginia, Maryland and California, GreenPlay has a staff of "experienced parks, recreation and open space professionals."

The future survey will be two-fold: one accessed on the city website and another sent out by mail to different residential areas. A random and controlled sampling will help ensure statistically valid data. At the very least, thousands of completed surveys are anticipated.

Packetbush also discussed the idea of the campus or a gathering place for residents. He said a city campus is defined as a part of the city with a "wide-range of amenities depending community need." Greenbelt currently has such an area with the Aquatic & Fitness Center, the Community Center and the Youth Center all juxtaposing one another. The master plan looks to improve what already exists.

The issue of connectivity was also frequently mentioned. Greenbelt has wonderful amenities, like parks and trails, yet major roadways often cause significant geographical separation between parts of the city. A primary goal is a trail to connect the various neighborhoods. Residents at Greenbelt Station seek to remedy a physical disconnection from the rest of Greenbelt and look to increase amenities, like a dog park and an indoor facility.

A challenge to the master plan will be the diverse demographics of the city and surrounding areas, resulting in the creation of something with a general approval. A point presented several times was the ratio of long-term to short-term residents in Franklin Park and how that would affect the final plan, as well as the nationwide rise in the numbers of millennials and their needs. Changes in transportation and increased staffing needs are other factors for consideration.

According to Recreation Director Julie McHale, the impetus for creating a master plan was "the development in Greenbelt West and the aging infrastructure of our facilities/parks/fields. A master plan of our facilities, programs and amenities was a good place to start." Ultimately, McHale said "staff will make their recommendations and request funding for the next fiscal year and the council will either approve the funding or not."

Butterflies Swarm the Gallery

Campers Reveal In Writing Animal Roles

Campers took up the challenge to write a day in camp from a non-human point of view. Animals of all types and shapes were represented.

Audrey
Hi! I am a chicken. I go to camp CCC (Crazy Chicken Camp). I just started walking to camp with my friend Feathers. Sometimes we walk, but when we get bored, we fly. I just learned how to fly at CCC. The crazy thing about CCC is that there are no counselors. The young chickens like me are in charge. Feathers and I are interns for the YC group (Young Chickens).

Ani
CKC from a fish's perspective
I can't drive, so I swim to camp. I have to take a lot of detours. By the time I get there, camp has started. Someone has to carry me up the stairs in a water bottle. I chose to be with the Olympians because they are the best! We had dance first and since I have no legs, Elta had to put me in some water, and I flopped around. Then we had music and since I can't sing, I just bubbled. During writing someone wrote a story about me. Here it is. The end!

Rebecca
Poofy the dog.
I'm on my way to camp then I saw the most beautiful thing ever. A fire hydrant! I think you all know what I did. The next thing I saw was someone eating a hamburger. Of course he wanted to share with me. So I make my way over there and he says "Shoo! Shoo!" I think he's mistaken because my name's Poofy.

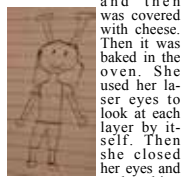

I sit there and beg but he won't share. He's mean. Doesn't he know that sharing is caring? I guess he

Campers Create Mysteries ... And Solve Them

In honor of the Cookie Caper, campers worked on plotting mysteries. Here are some of the successes.

Titans Mystery June 21
An alien visited Greenbelt because she heard about that amazing stuff called chocolate. The "chocolate" she found had a crust, and tomato sauce and then was covered with cheese. Then it was baked in the oven. She used her laser eyes to look at each layer by itself. Then she closed her eyes and took a bite.

It was good. No wonder people like chocolate. As she sat eating, she read the News Review. She saw a story about the mayor speaking at the opening of a new family clinic. "Nothing is more important than family," said the mayor. The next story said the Mayor of Greenbelt was acting oddly. The reporter tried to ask a question See TITANS, page 3

Dear Mrs. Roosevelt ...

Campers write letters in response to Mrs. Roosevelt's My Day column that discussed Greenbelt's School and Community Center.

Dear Mrs. Roosevelt,
You told us about the old school. I want to tell you about Greenbelt Middle School. I am going to have five classes. I have a locker that is green and yellow. The lunchroom menu has a lot of food. The water fountains, the bathrooms are different and the classes are different than what was in the old school. That is why I like Greenbelt Middle School.
-Fennan

Dear Ms. Roosevelt,
Thank you for making Greenbelt for everybody. Thank you from our hearts.
From Ava

Dear Ms. Roosevelt,
Thank you for what you did to Greenbelt. You are nice. I would like to know a lot of things you did. I wish I got to meet you.
Love, Macaela

Dear Mrs. Roosevelt,
The school that you spoke of in your My Day column from May 24, 1937 is no longer a school. It is now just a community center during the school year. But during the summer, the building is used for summer camp and it is a community center still!

Griffins Session One 2017

Griffins Mystery June 21
The building went missing one day. It was a big town. The camp and playground had gone away too. They asked the Panda.

The panda ate the building because the walls were made of bamboo. They took care of the panda by getting him fresh bamboo. The cookie, the gigantic cookie, was eaten by a mouse, or perhaps moved into a porta, which does seem more likely. The camp and playground sunk into the ground because the classes became too heavy. So Sam and Annina lightened everything up. They told jokes. They sang songs. The camp responded and came out of the hole so campers could come back.
