Greenbelt Paralympian Wins Relay Silver Medal in Paris

by Jack Downs

Zach Shattuck, a Greenbelt native who lived on Hillside Road during his childhood, represented Team USA at the Paris Paralympics earlier this month, where he won a silver medal in the 4 x 50m freestyle relay.

Greenbelt Connections

Much of Shattuck's family have lived in Greenbelt, including his grandparents Jack and Dolores (Dee) Downs, who resided on Crescent Road from 1958 until their deaths in 2021 and 2023 respectively. Shattuck also coached the Greenbelt Municipal Swim Team Barracudas for the 2022-2023 season.

Shattuck left the Greenbelt Barracudas last year to coach at St. Mary's College of Maryland, where he stayed until he left for the Olympic and Paralympic Training Center in Colorado Springs to prepare for the Paralympic Trials. Moving to the training center "gave me a lot more of a sense of where I was at and what I needed to do to get where I needed to be," he said.

On the Ballot: Maryland Constitutional Amendment on Reproductive Freedom

by Erica Johns

In the November 5 general election, Maryland voters will decide on a proposed amendment to the Maryland Constitution about reproductive freedom. If passed, the amendment will secure a state constitutional right to reproductive rights already enacted in Maryland legislation.

The measure will appear as Ballot Question 1: "The proposed amendment confirms an individual's fundamental right to reproductive freedom, including but not limited to the ability to make and effectuate decisions to prevent, continue or end the individual's pregnancy, and provides the State may not, directly or indirectly, deny, burden or abridge the right unless justified by a compelling State interest achieved by the least restrictive means." This sentence reflects the actual amendment text. Voters will vote for or against the amendment.

Green Ridge House Residents Wait 23 Minutes for Fire Response

by Anna Bedford-Dillow

At 11:18 a.m. on Monday, September 23, a fire alarm sounded in the Green Ridge House apartments on Ridge Road. It was a mechanical failure but it would be 23 minutes before a single fire engine responded to the multi-story 101-unit complex that is home to elderly and disabled residents. Residents recounted the fear they felt waiting for a response from the fire department and say it highlights the problem with removing career firefighters from Greenbelt.

"It points out the problem that we're having with losing our career fighters," resident Bobbi

Troyer told the News Review. It's a 101-unit HUD building filled with senior citizens and disabled folks, some of whom are ordered to stay in their rooms until they're removed by firefighters, emphasized Troyer. "Blood could be on their hands," said Troyer of those responsible for removing Greenbelt's career firefighters. "In 23 minutes it would burn to the ground. Even today some could have died of fear."

Residents were listening to the alarm for 23 minutes, she reported. One lady on the third floor came out onto her balcony and was sent back into her apartment to wait, said Troyer. "How terrifying for her to see us all See GREEN RIDGE, page 11

The fundraiser for the Greenbelt Animal Shelter was a rare opportunity for the pooches of Greenbelt to take a turn in the outdoor pool before it closes for the winter. Dogs of all kinds turned out to plunge, paddle, run around or spectate. See more photos, page 16.

Letters Policy during Elections

Deadline for letters is 6 p.m. Monday. Submission does not guarantee publication. Letters should be no longer than 300 words (shorter letters are more likely to be published). Letters may be edited for clarity, grammar, civility and space constraints. The News Review may add a comment from the editor if deemed necessary. All letters must include the letter writer's name, physical address and telephone number. Only the name will be published; the News Review will consider requests for the name to be withheld. The News Review will not print letters endorsing candidates. The News Review will not print a letter raising a new issue the week prior to election day, when no other party would have a chance to respond.

On Screen at Greenbelt Cinema

Lee

This directorial feature from award-winning cinematographer Ellen Kuras portrays a pivotal decade in the life of American war correspondent and photographer, Lee Miller (Kate Winslet). Miller's singular talent and unbridled tenacity resulted in some of the 20th century's most indelible images of war, including an iconic photo of Miller herself, posing defiantly in Hitler's private bathtub. Miller had a profound understanding and empathy for women and the voiceless victims of war. Her images display both the fragility and ferocity of the human experience. Above all, the film shows how Miller lived her life at full throttle in pursuit of truth, for which she paid a huge personal price, forcing her to confront a traumatic and deeply buried secret from her childhood.

Megalopolis

In this Roman epic set in an imagined Modern America, the City of New Rome must change, causing conflict between Cesar Catilina (Adam Driver), a genius artist who seeks to leap into a utopian, idealistic future, and his opposition, Mayor Franklyn Cicero (Giancarlo Esposito), who remains committed to a regressive status quo, perpetuating greed, special interests and partisan warfare. Torn between them is socialite Julia Cicero (Nathalie Emmanuel), the mayor's daughter, whose love for Cesar has divided her loyalties, forcing her to discover what she truly believes humanity deserves.

Paul McCartney & Wings: One Hand Clapping

Directed by David Litchfield, this film captured a moment when Paul McCartney and Wings had found and defined their signature sound. Filmed over four days at Abbey Road Studios in August 1974, the film provides an insight into the inner workings of the band as they work and play together in the studio. Including performances of tracks from Wings masterpiece Band on the Run (released in 1973), intimate footage of the band hanging out in the studio, combined with audio interview snippets, the film also includes, previously unreleased in full footage, a solo acoustic performance by Paul called The Backyard Sessions. In addition to the film, this screening event includes an introduction by Paul McCartney recorded exclusively for movie theater audiences as well as newly-released Polaroids of the band.

Imitation of Life

Lora Meredith (Lana Turner), a white single mother who dreams of being on Broadway, has a chance encounter with Annie Johnson (Juanita Moore), an African American widow. Annie becomes the caretaker of Lora's daughter, Suzie (Sandra Dee), while Lora pursues her stage career. Both women deal with the difficulties of motherhood: Lora's thirst for fame threatens her relationship with Suzie, while Annie's light-skinned daughter, Sarah Jane (Susan Kohner), struggles with her African American identity.

Obituaries

Keith Bair

Keith Alan Bair died on July 29, 2024, in Dewey, Ariz. He was born on August 27, 1949, at North Capitol Street Hospital in Washington, D.C., to parents Bruce and Lois (Buckley) Bair, and joined brother Dennis.

Keith attended school in Greenbelt for several years and made many more childhood memories during frequent visits to GHI and his aunt Barbara Buckley.

After graduation, Keith served in the United States Army, eventually settling in Colorado, where he married the love of his life, Beverly (Otis) Bair. After Beverly died in 2014, Keith returned to Greenbelt where he cared for his aunt Barbara and realized his dream of becoming a pet parent to a Basenji; he was twice blessed with canine siblings Boo and Ziggy.

When Barbara died in 2019, Keith, Boo and Ziggy retired to the Prescott Valley area of Arizona just as he and Beverly planned. While content to enjoy the beautiful winter weather with his dogs, Keith also joined the Jerome S. Cranke/Prescott Valley American Legion Post #140 and attended local faith services as a devout Assemblies of God adherent.

Keith will be fondly remembered for his massive collection of slogan T-shirts plus an encyclopedic knowledge of and insatiable curiosity about American cinema and television, world history and dad jokes.

School (class of 1961). After college, the army and his wedding, he returned with his wife, Bobbi, and they raised their two children, Jeannie and Theo, in three different homes on Ridge Road. They continued to live in Greenbelt until retirement.

Tony was a man known for his kindness and patience, his ever-present sense of humor, his quick intelligence and keen insight and his enjoyment of life. He was quick with puns and jokes (good and bad), a talent he passed on to his son, who could keep him laughing like no one else. He shared his love of books, particularly science fiction, with everyone he could and often passed along his favorite books to his children, grandchildren, friends and extended family.

Tony's professional life was centered in public service. After graduating from Duke University in 1965, he returned to Maryland and taught at High Point High School. He was drafted in 1967 and served three years in the Army, including a tour in Vietnam and a year stationed in Germany. After the Army he returned to Greenbelt and used his GI Bill benefits to attend the University of Maryland Law School. He practiced criminal law in Prince George's County as a state's attorney, then a public defender and then again as a state's attorney, until he reluctantly retired in 2011. He enjoyed the challenges of the courtroom and always did his best for his clients and the

Contemplative Prayer At Comm. Church

A contemplative prayer group meets on Tuesdays at the Greenbelt Community Church, 1 Hillside Road, from 12:30 to 1:30 p.m. This is a time to pray in silence for oneself, others and the world. It nurtures inner and outer peace and reinforces the oneness of all people and creation.

The format for this group is an opening introduction, 30 minutes of silence and then some sharing. All are welcome to attend from all denominations and faith traditions. For more information, contact Patience Robbins at patience.robbins@gmail.com.

Our condolences to the family and friends of Keith Bair, an early and recent Greenbelter, who was the nephew and final caretaker of longtime Greenbelter Barbara Buckley.

Our sympathies also to the family and friends of Frederick Anthony "Tony" McCarthy. He lived most of his life in Greenbelt and dedicated his life to public service.

Hearty congratulations to swimmer Zach Shattuck for his part in the silver-medal-winning 4 x 50m freestyle relay team at the Paralympics in Paris. Much of his family was there to cheer him on.

Congratulations to Greenbelt's Jay Evans who won the 2024 Samuel J. Heyman Service to America Medals® People's Choice Award. Evans was selected along with his colleague Yan Ping (Judy) Chen for their work in the Agricultural Research Service revolutionizing bee diagnosis and treatment.

Congratulations also to the recipients of the annual Goddard Space Flight Center awards, including Greenbelters Jon Gardner (Center Director's Award), Padi Boyd (Leadership Award) and Vanderlei Martins (NASA Distinguished Public Service).

FEATURED PETS MORNING GLORY

Ready for Adoption?
 Call (301) 474-6124

2-year-old Morning Glory was found in an abandoned apartment back in April with her two siblings, who've both since been adopted. Morning Glory is a petite gal. She has a tiny face, tiny paws, tiny meow, and a tiny tail—even her 6-month-old (still adoptable) roommate Dusty has outgrown her! Morning Glory would be happiest as the only pet in the home. She's not the biggest fan of having to share her human's attention (or lap), but her sweet personality is more than enough to fill your home.

If you're interested in adopting mini Morning Glory, call (301) 474-6124 or email animalservices@greenbeltmd.gov!

PUBLIC STATEMENT REGARDING PRINCE GEORGE'S COUNTY FIRE/EMS SUMMER STAFFING PLAN FOR GREENBELT VOLUNTEER FIRE DEPARTMENT

Greenbelt, MD - The City of Greenbelt is disappointed in the County's decision to reassign 24 career personnel from Greenbelt Station 835 on July 1, resulting in the removal of all career personnel from our Station. County Fire Chief Tiffany Green and County leadership ordered the redeployment of 55 career firefighters from Berwyn Heights, Greenbelt, Bunker Hill, and Bowie Station. We are gravely concerned with the impact in response times of emergencies in Greenbelt and our surrounding areas.

Greenbelt will continue to work in tandem with College Park and Berwyn Heights alongside County leadership in addressing our concerns and fighting for the City of Greenbelt.

Peace Day at Buddy Attick Park: Speakers Bring a Sense of Hope

by Diya Shah

Peace Day tree planting. The tree was planted in honor of Marc "Kap" Kapastin, the longtime general counsel for Quantum Companies, who owns Beltway Plaza. Although he didn't live in Greenbelt, he had a very strong community spirit and was supportive of many Greenbelt activities, including the Labor Day Festival, the Greenbelt Farmers Market and The SPACE Free Art For All nonprofit in the mall.

Greenbelt Rotary Club members and other notable Greenbelt residents gathered at Buddy Attick Park on Saturday, September 21 to celebrate World Peace Day. The event featured inspiring speeches from community leaders who emphasized unity in today's divisive world. Throughout the afternoon, the community-driven conversations that took place fostered a sense of hope, capturing the event's core mission of promoting peace.

Nomie Hamid, the current Rotary district governor for District 7620, welcomed the crowd that included Greenbelt Rotarians, former Rotary district governors and Greenbelt city councilmembers. In kicking off the event, Hamid reminded the community of the importance of peace within their life and also the importance of nurturing peace around the globe. "Let us remember that peace begins with each one of us in our interactions," said Hamid. "Let us go forward with renewed strength to act in ways that bring about the peace we wish to see in this world," Hamid said in conclusion.

Mayor Emmett Jordan took the stage to commemorate the life of Marc "Kap" Kapastin, one of the founding members of the Greenbelt Rotary Club. Jordan announced that the city council, in partnership with the Rotary Club, would be planting a tree in honor of Kapastin's life and contributions to the Greenbelt community. "We're hopeful that by planting this tree today, we are symbolically planting the seeds of peace, but also honoring the legacy of Kap," said Jordan before leading the crowd across the park to plant the tree.

The rest of the event passed informally as attendees and Rotarians conversed in small groups and shared stories about the different projects in which they are involved.

According to Jennifer Dudley, the current president of the Greenbelt Rotary Club, the goal of the day's event is not simply celebrating world peace. "It's more important to celebrate toward world peace and to just celebrate each other," said Dudley.

As president, Dudley wants the club to get more invested and involved in the Greenbelt community. "It's important to us," she said. "Because everyone needs peace – whether it's in yourself or in your community."

Council and Staffers Consider Community Center Policies

by Cathie Meetre

The Greenbelt City Council worksession on August 28 included the senior staff of the Department of Recreation, including Director Greg Varda, Arts Supervisor Nicole DeWald, Acting Assistant Director of Recreation Facilities & Operations Andrew Phelan, plus City Treasurer Bertha Gaymon and City Manager Josué Salmerón.

Although not on the agenda, perhaps the most tantalizing element of the evening was progress on the Greenbelt Armory acquisition (see City Notes on p.11). Concerns exist on growing graffiti and vandalism while the building remains owned by the federal government, excluding the city. Salmerón expressed cautious optimism that action would occur before the end of the year. City management has been working to move a purchase forward and is working on hiring a consultant to perform a feasibility study.

Recognition Groups

A recognition group is an association of citizens that meets several criteria – a leading one being that it is not for profit (though not necessarily a 501(c)(3)). After going through an application process, such groups can apply for city funding and limited free use of city facilities.

Since 2018, the 29 recognition groups have increased to over 51, putting pressure on space and support. In addition, the current official business plan was crafted in the 1990s and is out of date, with numerous informal changes to accommodate changing needs.

Varda will lead the team updating the plan and will involve other departments in its development and deployment.

More Funding

New in the city budget this year is an additional $36,500 in discretionary funding for recognition groups. One well-received idea floated by DeWald was the addition of a one-time on-ramp for new groups as needed. One suggestion made initially by Mayor Emmett Jordan was that first-time applicants out of the annual cycle be limited to a lower amount (regular upper limit is $5,000) of perhaps $2,500. This received a favorable nod from participants.

Groups would then be eligible to apply for the larger amount in the next full cycle.

Regular applications go live in November and receipt is through February but referring a mid-year application to a single most relevant advisory board (rather than a multiboard) would speed the on-ramp process. In response to a question by Councilmember Danielle McKinney, DeWald explained that there is a basic application for certification, renewed annually, to establish the relationship with the city for use of space and facilities.

Expanding Scope

Because residents and organizations are now associated with a wider span of activities than originally, Varda's update will include the Recreation Department as overall coordinator but draw in other city departments as it does effectively now.

Former councilmember J Davis noted that the original evaluation process was set up to avoid "any taint of favoritism" in assessing requests for funds. The process, which Davis feels has worked well, keeps the decisions out of council hands until the last step. Davis also noted that, given the tenacity with which groups are reminded to submit, council and the system in place need to be somewhat strict about enforcing the deadlines if the process is to be fair.

A request came from Bob Rand that organizations with different fiscal years from the city should be able to submit their financial statements per the organization's fiscal year and that rather than filling in the form, they should be able to submit reports generated by their accounting software. DeWald countered that she understood, but having material in different formats and for different periods would make it difficult to compare among many applications.

Review Boards

DeWald said it would be helpful if council would request advisory boards to suggest participants, particularly from advisory boards, in the review process. City management has had mixed success in appointing evaluators, and recruiting members from advisory boards would elicit members who are experienced and have a commitment. In reinforcing a comment from Councilmember Kristin Weaver, DeWald echoed that those who do serve often note how much they enjoyed the experience.

Matching Grants

Jordan noted that all grants require some degree of matching. Full details of the restrictions and policies as they stand at this time can be found on the city website in a document entitled City of Greenbelt Policy and Information Guide for Recognition Groups. DeWald also informed council that although questions in the applications ask how many residents are involved in or are affected by the proposed grant, there's no cutoff – it's just one factor that is considered.

Reporting

Jordan also suggested adding a requirement for a short report on the outcome of the grant. At the moment, although recipients complete a financial report, they don't describe the fate of their projects unless they apply for a new round.

In response, Varda reminded council that it interviews all the recognition groups annually and this was also a time that council could ask about achievements. DeWald confirmed an annual statement of expenditures is required, saying it would be easy to incorporate a request for a list of accomplishments. In response to questions from Jordan, staff noted that it is rare that groups don't spend the money. Gaymon clarified that if it isn't spent, it goes back into the general fund. Occasionally, an organization will fail to come up with its match, but rarely. Each such case is dealt with individually.

Community Center

Phelan described the current utilization of the Community Center space. There are programs and organizations that occupy space essentially permanently and pay rent, like the News Review, GATe and the Nursery School; and several are city programs for seniors. Some spaces are in high demand especially those with specific facilities like a kitchen or a dance studio. He also summarized the annual process that the department goes through to allocate forward utilization where it contacts groups that routinely use the Center to allocate space for the upcoming year and avoid conflicts.

There are online information and application forms, but many

Mishkan Torah's Karp Family School Welcomes Toddlers, Kindergartners

by Karen Knee

The first day of classes for Mishkan Torah's Karp Family Hebrew School was Sunday, September 8. Cantor Yael Fischman, the K-8 teacher, welcomed a new group of kindergarten students who spent about an hour listening to stories, singing songs and forming Hebrew letters out of Play-Doh. She was assisted by Gonzaga High School senior Quinn Gibson, who has previously taught art classes to kids at Glen Echo Park.

Next door, Phyllis Oresky and her helper, Maggie Brown, taught a Torah for Tots class for kids ages 2 to 4. The toddlers and their parents learned about the Jewish New Year, Rosh Hashanah, which is coming up on October 3 to 4. They sampled apples and honey, a traditional Rosh Hashanah food to usher in a sweet year, and decorated apple and honey plates to take home.

In addition to weekly Hebrew School classes and monthly Torah for Tots, Mishkan Torah is also offering family services for the High Holidays and a Pizza in the Hut celebration for the harvest holiday of Sukkot on Friday evening, October 18. All classes and events are free and open to all individuals and families who are interested in being part of a Jewish community. For more information, visit mishkantorah.org or contact childrensd@mishkantorah.org.

county. During his many years in Greenbelt and Prince George's County, he also served on a variety of local boards and civic organizations, including the Greenbelt Advisory Planning Board and the Board of Trustees for Prince George's Community College, among others.

After retiring, Tony and Bobbi moved to Deep Creek Lake in Garrett County, Md. There they continued to enjoy the companionship of longtime friends from Greenbelt, who retired there, and also cherished the new friends and community he found in the county. He enjoyed playing golf and bridge. He joined Emmanuel Lutheran Church, did water aerobics at the CARC, and worked out at GoPT and Cardiac Rehab – places he became infamous for making others laugh. He and Bobbi loved traveling across the country and the world. He particularly enjoyed taking river cruises in America and Europe. When they were not traveling, they loved hosting family and friends at their home nestled among the trees on the lakeshore.

He was predeceased by his father, Frederick Anthony McCarthy, Sr.; his mother, Imogene Jones McCarthy Byerly; and his stepfather, Theodore C. Byerly.

He is survived by his wife Roberta Bole "Bobbi" McCarthy; son Theodore McCarthy of Alexandria, Va.; daughter Jean Spear, son-in-law Eric; three granddaughters, Acadia, Colleen and Rebecca Spear of Portsmouth, N.H.; and his brother John McCarthy, of Sorrento, Fla. They all love him dearly. His memory is treasured by an expansive web of cousins, in-laws, nieces, nephews and friends, both life-long and recently made.

A Celebration of Life service will be held in Greenbelt, on Monday, September 30 at 11 a.m. at Greenbelt Community Church, with a social hour to follow in the church hall. The family welcomes all who knew and loved Tony to join them. Anyone wishing to share their favorite memories or photos of Tony can email them to the family using Tony's email address, famccarthy@yahoo.com.

City Council Approves Spending On Economic Planning, Land Use

by Michael Zeliff

On September 9, the Greenbelt City Council addressed issues ranging from economic development to a three-year database contract for police investigations. A separate article deals with discussion of a city charter amendment on noncitizen voting (see page 1).

Recent Closed Meetings

Council approved three Statements for the Record involving closed meetings that occurred on July 31, August 19 and August 26. All three examined policies regarding city personnel, with the last closed meeting also addressing potential litigation and security where “public discussion would constitute a risk.”

City Manager’s Report

City Manager Josué Salmerón began Administrative Reports by declaring the Labor Day Festival to be a great success, with cleanup finished by Wednesday morning. Work funded by the American Rescue Plan Act (ARPA) continues on Braden Field, the pool and on Buddy Attick and Springhill Lake Recreation Center playgrounds. A grant from Safe Streets for All will provide $200,000 in transportation improvements that will also make possible additional such funding for Greenbelt in the future. Diversity, Equity and Inclusion events will occur on September 21 at Beltway Plaza, on September 24 via Zoom, at Greenbriar Community Center on September 26 and at Springhill Lake Elementary School on September 28. Other dates and locations are pending. Salmerón recognized Police Officer Joshua Forney who received a Lifesaving Award for his prompt response to a man in dire need (see article in the September 12 issue) and he noted the recent hiring of John Mason as Greenbelt’s economic development manager (see article on page 16) and Patricia Fillman as the new animal control supervisor. Salmerón added that staff are testing social media as a marketing platform for expanding communication.

Economic Development

Mayor Emmett Jordan introduced Willdan Financial Services of Washington, D.C., and Bethesda as the choice among 24 applicants to assemble an economic development, strategic plan and marketing report for Greenbelt. Salmerón explained that the city is still recovering from the Covid pandemic and this report will assist not only businesses but also residents. Managing Principal Molly McKay stated that Willdan recently worked on the Prince George’s County 2035 project and so already has “boots on the ground.” Its goal here will be to develop a work plan for economic development over the next five years. Jordan noted that Greenbelt is surrounded by “economic drivers” such as Goddard Space Flight Center, Beltsville Agricultural Research Center, the University of Maryland and Luminis Healthcare, not to mention the proposed new FBI headquarters. After objections by resident Bill Orleans that city staff can do this work, and after resident Michael Hartman pointed out to McKay that Greenbelt has three very different kinds of shopping enclaves, council voted 6-1, with Councilmember Rodney Roberts opposed, to fund this study at not more than $75,000. On a related front, Jordan introduced Mason, the new economic development manager. Having worked in Prince George’s County since 2014 and, before that, five years on the Eastern Shore, Mason defined one goal as being to make Greenbelt more healthy, wealthy and wise. Councilmember Danielle McKinney asked that Mason encourage businesses to participate in the Learn 2 Earn program that prepares high school students for working.

Waiving Bidding Procedures

Council passed a resolution 7-0 allowing staff “to waive bidding procedures and to authorize by resolution a negotiated purchase or contract whenever it is in the best interests of the city.” Whereas council must approve of purchases made by the city that exceed $10,000, this amendment will allow waivers, for example in some cases where the cost of multiple purchases from the same vendor exceed that amount during a fiscal year. City Treasurer Bertha Gaymon assured council that vendors included here have established good relations with the city by proving themselves capable.

Land Use Authority

Council discussed legislation under consideration in the state assembly that will grant municipalities within Prince George’s County the right to make land use decisions so long as they use a certified planner, while county council retains authority over zoning. Based in part on his experience as the former city manager of Yellow Springs, Ohio, Salmerón explained that this legislation will give Greenbelt the option of making land use decisions more quickly and cheaply for itself or of deferring to the county when decisions require more research and expertise. Whereas Roberts dismissed this legislation as worthless because it has failed to advance within the state assembly before, Jordan and Councilmember Kristen Weaver felt that some possible progress is better than none. Council voted 6-1 in support, with Roberts opposed.

Police Database

Council approved 6-1 spending $15,737 for a three-year contract to provide Greenbelt’s police department with the CLEAR Investigative Database. This sum includes nearly $5,000 already allocated for a trial run during the first year, which has quickly proven its value in compiling public information not already consolidated about, for example, crime suspects. While council supported this expenditure, Weaver, McKinney and Jordan asked Lieutenant Michael Parsley about transparency in how the data are collected, used and stored. Residents Amanda Jennings and Bill Orleans expressed doubts.

Road Resurfacing

Council also approved 7-0 spending $527,000 on road See COUNCIL, page 10

Peace Month Talk on Moving To Climate-Centered Economy

by Donna Hoffmeister

A group of 716 scientists wrote an open letter to President Biden and Congress on July 8, 2024, arguing against building a new land-based intercontinental ballistic missile system. Replacing the Minuteman III ICBMs will cost at least $131 billion. However, cost isn’t their only concern. These scientists assert that land-based nuclear weapons are obsolete, as nuclear-armed submarines and bomber jets provide more than adequate security. They argue that expanding the U.S. arsenal will not enhance safety. This year alone, $34 billion is invested in nuclear weapons.

President Biden’s 2025 budget allocates over $1 trillion to military funding. Out of every $100 in federal spending, $69 goes toward military spending, leaving just $31 for everything else – from housing programs to public education, public health and environmental protection. This raises an important question: Are there ways to reduce the military budget?

Miriam Pemberton, Ph.D., an expert on transitioning to a peace economy, has studied the connections between climate change and militarism for decades. She first served as director of the National Commission for Economic Conversion and Disarmament, then as a fellow at the Institute for Policy Studies, where she led the Peace Economy Transitions Project.

Collaborating with Lawrence Korb at the Center for American Progress, Pemberton headed the team that produced the annual Unified Security Budget for the United States. She also co-edited Lessons from Iraq: Avoiding the Next War (Paradigm, 2008) with William Hartung. Her recent book, Six Stops on the National Security Tour: Rethinking Warfare Economies (Routledge, 2023),

Meals on Wheels-College Park Celebrates 50 Years of Service

by Karen Yoho

Celebrating 50 years of service is a momentous event, but to have NBC4's Molette Green spend the morning with you telling your story on live television, bringing you cake and a big check, takes it to another level. Meals on Wheels of College Park (MOWCP) celebrated on Friday, September 13 with dozens of volunteers, College Park Mayor Fazlul Kabir and District 1 County Council Member Thomas Dernoga. All of the party attendees arrived at the Prince George's County Elks Lodge well before the NBC4 Washington broadcast kicked off at 6 a.m. Before the sun was up, everyone went into full-on Meals on Wheels mode, slicing, cooking, bagging and sorting while cheering on the big birthday with cowbells and pompoms.

Green presented MOWCP with a $4,500 check from the Food4Families fund. The amount represented the cost to feed their clients for one day. "We need money because funding we relied on is drying up, we need volunteers and we need fresh produce. We appreciate all the support of the community," said Lisa Ealley, MOWCP president.

Green encouraged volunteers and viewers, "This is a celebration and a call to action. You are the extraordinary people making a difference in so many lives." Immediately following the first broadcast, MOWCP received more than a dozen inquiries from potential volunteers on their website.

Formed in 1974 to feed a small number of elderly and homebound people in College Park facing hunger and social isolation, MOWCP now provides meal delivery to approximately 170 seniors and persons with disabilities five days a week. MOWCP also serves Greenbelt, Adelphi, Berwyn Heights, Hyattsville, Beltsville and Riverdale Park. "Clients receive a hot nutritious lunch/dinner, plus healthy options for breakfast, a light lunch or dinner meal, and one half-gallon of milk (weekly)," explained Ealley. "More importantly, in addition to ensuring nutritional needs, our caring volunteers perform a wellness check and provide a social link to the isolation they may face."

MOWCP volunteers serve in a wide variety of roles from food preparation and meal packaging, to delivering food to homes, managing the deliveries and ensuring dietary requirements are rentals or requests begin with a phone call and one-time renters for events like birthdays are requested to come in to see the facilities. Recognition groups and city functions generally have priority.

Larger Spaces

Weaver asked about groups that need larger or more frequent facilities. Varda responded that so far they had been able to accommodate them but added that, in theory, recognition groups are limited to one free room a month. If a group's meetings all take place in a single month, an exception can be made based on community value. Phelan said they would much rather have groups less restricted and put the space to use than to be strict and have the space go unused. Weaver was alert to the possibility that this might cost the city more – or perhaps result in less rental income. Varda concurred.

Another similar example of flexibility is that although the gym is not free to recognition groups, there are exceptions, such as a concert band performance. The team is working on updating the written policies to match reality and to promote consistency.

During the discussion, it was mentioned that only the commercial kitchen is substantially underutilized – often the problem is permitting by state or county authorities. In addition, there is no dedicated performance space. Varda mentioned that the stadium seating used in the gym for performances helped but was not ideal and also brought up the potential use of community schools after hours – noting that so far, that county initiative has gone nowhere.

In closing, Jordan noted that the city has more recreational/community infrastructure than any other place in the county.

resurfacing and concrete projects negotiated at lower cost by the county and scheduled to occur during Fiscal Year 2025. Beyond this work planned in four Greenbelt locations, council discussed making improvements that will discourage motorists from driving in the wrong direction on Centerway, a one-way street, after Hartman during Petitions and Requests said that a neighbor had recounted to him nearly being hit by a speeding car that had ignored signage and entered Centerway the wrong way.

Council also approved 6-1 a proposal to spend $25,000 on a healthcare voucher program previously funded by ARPA that "was highly successful assisting over 440 individuals with medical, dental and/or behavioral health care services." Councilmember Amy Knesel voiced her support and yet also asked about long-term funding within a tight budget.

outside, not even allowed on the property," she said. Those able to leave the building had to go across the street, she said. "People were terrified ... Had it been a fire there would have been many deaths."

The truck that finally arrived was from West Lanham Hills Engine #28, said resident Charlene Backstrom. "Even though it was not an actual call for fire, a 23-minute delay could have been life or death," she told the News Review.

Kathie Scriven is one of the Green Ridge residents with mobility issues who is supposed to wait in her apartment for the fire department to get her out. One of the residents in Scriven's wing of the complex is an amputee, she said. "There are several residents who were very concerned. The fire alarm just kept going and going and going. If it was a drill it goes for about three minutes," she said.

Scriven said steps are hard for her and she has two flights of stairs to make it to an exit. She wanted to follow the procedures but no one showed up, she said. "It was a very long time ... You do get nervous." Scriven was able to get her wheeled walker and make her way down the corridor to a stairwell. "I figured if I saw smoke down the hall at least I was near the stairs," she said. "I felt a little bit more comfortable being near the stairs but of course [the fire] could have been in the stairs." Elevators are disabled during fire alarms. From the hallway she could watch people outside.

One engine was not a sufficient response for a call from Green Ridge House, says Scriven. "There's no way they would be able to get all the people out who need to be transferred ... It's a very dangerous situation." Should a fire alarm sound at 5:30 p.m. rush hour instead of 11 a.m., Scriven believes it may take twice as long to get a response.

"There are a lot of safety concerns here at Green Ridge House," said Backstrom. "Twenty-three minutes is too long for a firetruck to get here."

"We're outraged," said Mayor Emmett Jordan. "Twenty-three minutes is unacceptable." It's what they feared may happen, he told the News Review. Jordan said the council will be demanding a meeting with Prince George's County Fire Department Chief Tiffany Green about the incident at Green Ridge House and demanding Greenbelt's career firefighters back. It was very fortunate that there was no fire on Monday or lives could have been lost, he said.

Troyer concurred. "They need to fight for the people and not for the dollar!" she said of those responsible for the county fire department staffing decision. "We love our firemen and we want them back!"

The Prince George's County Fire Department had not provided information or comment on the incident by the time of press.

ballot as an advisory question. 59 percent of voters responded yes, 30 percent responded no, and 11 percent did not respond.

The vast majority of the attendees at the council meeting on Monday were supporters of all-resident voting, including representatives from CASA, elected officials from surrounding areas, and supportive Greenbelt residents. The first speaker from CASA, a Maryland-based Latino and immigration advocacy-and-assistance organization, emphasized approximately 30 percent of Greenbelt residents are born outside the United States, higher than the national average of 13.5 percent and this kind of measure is “not radical or unprecedented.” [Editor’s Note: Country of birth does not necessarily correlate to country of citizenship.]

In Prince George’s County, Hyattsville, Mount Rainier, Colmar Manor and Cheverly have all adopted all-resident voting, as has Takoma Park in Montgomery County, which enabled noncitizen voting 30 years ago, and the town of Frederick, which amended their charter just last week. Likewise, the Local Resident Voting Rights Amendment Act of 2022 allows noncitizens who are D.C. residents to vote in local elections beginning this year.

Mount Rainier’s mayor, Celine Benitez, said that their city passed noncitizen voting in 2017 and urged Greenbelt to join the “cool” group of cities who have done so.

Speakers who took the podium at the meeting were universally in favor of the amendment. “I think it’s going to make our community stronger. I think it’s going to make our community more inclusive. I think when we listen to and include everyone it’s better for our entire community,” said John Appiah-Duffell of Gardenway. Residents and guests spoke of immigrants’ contributions to the community and the tax base. “Taxation without representation is fundamentally unjust,” said Chris Herman of Southway.

Resident Bill Orleans said the change was long overdue since it was first asked of and supported by residents in 2021 and again in the election 10 months ago. He suggested he would not be alive and perhaps members of the Youth Advisory Committee may not be alive when the council next amends the charter with other good suggestions they’ve received, such as electing council by district.

Frankie Fritz of Ridge Road pointed to recent marginalization of immigrant communities in national rhetoric and that “people are easy targets when they don’t have a voice in their political process.” The threats of violence against immigrants in Springfield, Ohio, reminded him of the bombings in Birmingham, Ala. to prevent people from having the right to vote. “All of these things are connected. All of these choreographies of violence that we see time and time and time again in our history rooted in the idea that we can’t let other people into our political process ... we know are wrong,” he said. “We know that it will advance racial equity to do these things.”

Resident Michael Hartman asked what kind of outreach had been done to the noncitizen community and if interpretive services had been offered. He urged the council going forward to communicate to the noncitizen community in ways that will reach them, such as announcements home to parents through schools, via influencers in those communities, posters in shopping centers and houses of worship and in other ways they receive information.

Rick Ransom, chair of the Community Relations Advisory Board (CRAB), said CRAB enthusiastically supports the proposal. “I was born and raised here. I’ve been in Greenbelt almost all my life ... I can speak with experience about what Old Greenbelt was like ... Does that mean that I’m better qualified to speak about what’s good for Greenbelt in 2024 than someone who was not born here, did not grow up here? And I think the answer’s no,” said Ransom. He reminded council of the city’s community pledge to be a community that is open, accessible, safe and fair to all. He urged the amendment in the interest of being fair to all.

Lone Opposition

Resident Bob Rudd, who joined the meeting online, was the sole voice in opposition to the change to the city’s charter. Voting is a right of citizenship, reserved for those who go through the citizenship process, he told council. He pointed to the example of foreign-born Councilmember Silke Pope. He also cautioned council that the validity of future elections would be called into question and lawsuits may follow if they allow noncitizens to vote.

Pope, who has in the past spoken against noncitizens voting in local elections, was absent from the meeting. Mayor Emmett Jordan said Pope was unable to attend due to a follow-up from surgery. She had not responded to the News Review’s request for comment by the time of press.

Jordan pushed back on the idea that the measure has taken a long time. Since the advisory question on last year’s ballot an ordinance had to be drafted and code amendments made, he stressed.

Registration Requirements

Steve Gilbert of the city Board of Elections said he had suggested before noncitizens register to vote they should live in Greenbelt for a period of six months to a year and demonstrate some involvement in the city. However, the rest of the committee shot down those suggestions, he said. Consequently the only additional requirement is that noncitizens register 21 days before an election to allow the city clerk time to add their names. Before the next election there will probably be a need to employ staff to aid in the process, he said.

Noncitizens will be required to show proof of residence or sign an affidavit, noted Gilbert. Proof might include a driver’s license, a document from the University of Maryland, the State of Maryland or somewhere similar with your address in Greenbelt. Without a paper someone could take an oath and sign an affidavit, said Gilbert. “My main concern is that people actually have to live here,” said Councilmember Rodney Roberts, who asked if a homeless person could use the affidavit. Gilbert responded that it was arguable if they did not have a formal address and they would have to consider that. “I think it should be considered now,” said Roberts. Roberts said he wanted everyone to be treated fairly and go through the same process to register to vote.

“An affidavit is not a trivial document. You are stating under oath the contents of the affidavit ... It’s the same as testifying in court,” said Gilbert, who is a retired lawyer. Roberts asked if there would be a penalty for falsifying an affidavit. Gilbert said with a false affidavit the decision to prosecute would be a state’s attorney decision, not a city decision. Councilmember Kristen Weaver said there’s a similar process to register in Maryland.

The council voted unanimously to amend the City Code and the City Charter to allow all-resident voting. The vote was 6-0, with Pope absent.

“Today Greenbelt takes a historic step forward in inclusive governance with the passage of all-resident voting. So it’s a reflection of our community’s commitment to ensuring that every resident has an opportunity to participate in the process. So by extending these voting rights to all adult residents regardless of citizenship status we recognize the vital contributions of our diverse population, where nearly 30 percent are foreign-born. As we move forward, joining neighboring municipalities in this progressive move, we reaffirm that in Greenbelt every resident counts,” said Jordan on the legislation’s passage.

Councilmember Jenni Pompei, who had introduced the resolution at the September 9 meeting, acknowledged the late councilmember Ric Gordon for whom this was a real passion, she said. “I’m sad he wasn’t here to see it today but I know he’d be really proud of his city,” said Pompei.

WANTED: Volunteer Board Treasurer for Greenbelt Farmers Market

Dear Greenbelt Community,

This October marks 8 years that Carissa Ralbovsky, our current Treasurer, has served on the board of directors of the Greenbelt Farmers Market. This community treasure is near and dear to her heart and she has loved working with a tireless team of volunteers and our outstanding market manager to help the market happen each week.

In 2025, Carissa is looking to support GFM in a smaller capacity. As such, we are looking for someone who can join the board as our new Treasurer and shadow her for the rest of this season, so she can provide training on how to manage the market’s finances.

Experience with Quickbooks or accounting is not required, though some experience with finance and/or budgeting helps. Treasurer-specific duties only take an hour or two a month, and Carissa is committed to being an on-going resource for training and questions. If you are interested, please e-mail us at info@greenbeltfarmersmarket.org.

How Did We Get Here?

The 1973 U. S. Supreme Court decision Roe v. Wade held, "A person may choose to have an abortion until a fetus becomes viable," affording the right nationwide, based on the U.S. Constitution's 14th Amendment privacy right. Maryland legislation passed in 1991 and confirmed by voters in 1992 went further, making abortion legal in Maryland up to viability, and after viability to protect the mother's health or in cases of serious fetal deformity.

In March 2022 the Maryland House of Delegates approved a state Right to Reproductive Liberty Amendment, which did not exit the General Assembly in that legislative session. Three months later in June 2022, the U.S. Supreme Court issued its Dobbs v. Jackson Women's Health Organization decision, writing that there is no constitutional right to abortion, overturning Roe v. Wade's national coverage and returning the decision to the states. In March 2023, Maryland's General Assembly approved the amendment and this 2024 referendum asks Maryland voters to decide for or against it.

Why an Amendment?

If the 1991 legislation made abortion legal, why does this amendment matter? An amendment would guarantee the existing right as a constitutional right for Marylanders. Passing the amendment will secure the right against future legislative repeal or court cases. Not passing the amendment means the existing right could be removed by future legislation or court cases.

One may wonder why the proposed amendment includes the phrase "including but not limited to ... pregnancy." Jakeya Johnson, executive director of the pro-choice nonprofit organization Reproductive Justice Maryland, said the phrase gives flexibility to address other reproductive rights if challenged in the future, such as contraception and fertility treatments.

Local Perspectives

The News Review contacted Greenbelt Baptist, Catholic, Jewish, Methodist and United Church of Christ faith communities for their perspectives. St. Hugh's Catholic Church and Mishkan Torah Synagogue representatives responded.

Father Walter Tappe of St. Hugh's wrote, "The Catholic Church in Maryland opposes this amendment since it contradicts the fundamental principles of respect for human dignity and the inherent right to life ... and urges voters and all people of good will to reject this ballot initiative. The Catholic Church stands in solidarity with women and children and rejects the notion that abortion is a solution to the challenges faced by women in crisis situations. It is essential to pursue solutions that include compassionate support, resources and alternatives to abortion for women facing difficult circumstances."

Mishkan Torah's Phyllis Oresky referred readers to an article on the website My Jewish Life (tinyurl.com/45j26j7e). It says that Judaism "takes a far less stringent approach to abortion than many Christian denominations" and describes varying opinions within Judaism. For instance, it said that while Conservative and Reform Judaism take more lenient positions than Orthodox Judaism, many Orthodox rabbis are "... cautious about laying down firm standards, insisting instead that cases be judged individually."

Greenbelt Alliance for Reproductive Freedom (GARF) member Nancy Newton wrote that GARF sees reproductive freedom "as an issue that touches almost everyone, everywhere. Of course, it's about personal autonomy and basic human rights. The proposed amendment is clearly a key issue because it will protect the right to reproductive freedom into the future, regardless of attempts to restrict access to abortion. We're finding that, even though many Greenbelters support the right to abortion, they are not aware of Ballot Question #1. That's why we're working with other organizations to ensure Maryland voters know about this measure and incorporate this right into the state constitution."

Greenbelt's delegates and state senator (Anne Healey, Ashanti Martinez, Nicole Williams and Alonzo Washington) voted in 2023 to put the 2024 referendum before voters, and Williams co-sponsored it. Maryland U.S. Senate candidates Angela Alsobrooks and Larry Hogan told the Bowie Sun they plan to vote for the amendment. Maryland is one of 10 states with reproductive rights measures on the ballot this fall, along with Arizona, Colorado, Florida, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, New York and South Dakota.

STATEMENT REGARDING MAGLEV PROJECT

As the premier credit union serving Prince George's County since 1967, we are committed to maintaining open communication with our members. Recently, we received feedback regarding our planned participation in an upcoming event at Bowie State University, which will discuss the MAGLEV project.

MAGLEV is a high-speed train rail system that former Governor Larry Hogan proposed several years ago. One of the credit union's strategic initiatives is to foster deeper relationships within the education community, and Bowie State University is one of our key education partners. This partnership has allowed us the opportunity to participate in a variety of events and programs.

We understand that many of our members, particularly those in Greenbelt, have concerns about this high-speed train initiative. While our intention was to engage with the educational community and share information about the benefits of credit union membership, we recognize that our involvement could be misinterpreted as support for the MAGLEV project.

After careful consideration, we have decided to rescind our sponsorship and participation in the event. We appreciate the concerns expressed by our members and remain dedicated to representing your interests.

Thank you for your continued trust in us. We will always strive to uphold our mission of providing quality financial products, services, and insights to our community.

Sincerely,

Prince George's Community Federal Credit Union

got a pretty good idea of when his head's going to hit," said Shattuck. "When Abbas touched, I was chasing down the Chinese swimmer [in the third leg in order] to give Ellie her best chance." With very little practice as a team, Zach's reaction time off the wall was one-tenth of a second in the final, down from three-tenths in the preliminaries. The Chinese competitor Shattuck was racing was Jiang Yuyan, who lost an arm and leg in an accident at age 4, and who won seven gold medals in Paris. "In the water with Leanne, watching the screen, I realized, 'Holy smokes! We're about to win a silver medal!'" Zach remembers.

Close Race for 200 M

Shattuck's first race of the Paralympics was the 200-meter individual medley (IM) preliminary in which he almost qualified for the 200 IM. He made the finals when another swimmer was disqualified. But just minutes later, the swimmer successfully appealed and the disqualification was overturned. However, Shattuck took the opportunity to focus on the positive and on the relay. If he'd made the finals for the 200 IM he would have had to swim the finals of the relay one hour later. "To be honest, the 200 IM is a challenge for me. It takes a lot out of my body. I was stoked to swim the time I swam – the third fastest I'd ever done. But I also wanted to be as fresh as I could be for the relay [the same day], which was the best chance of medaling. So, when I heard about the disqualification being overturned, I thought, 'you guys go do your thing, I'll do mine [in the relay].'" Zach recalls.

Atmosphere

When asked about how Paris responded to the Paralympians, Shattuck said, "The Parisians did an unbelievable job of creating an atmosphere that was unique to the Olympics. In the pool, no matter who it was, the crowd cheered loudly for every single race. To have 14,000 people cheering you on is just incredible."

Shattuck's previous Paralympic experience was in Tokyo in 2021. Due to Covid the 2020 Games were delayed one year, and family, friends and the public were not allowed into the various venues to watch the competitions. "It was an immense difference [from Tokyo], where maybe the stands had a couple of hundred people, mostly other athletes and staff, that were eerily quiet. At the Paris Paralympics I got to have an authentic Olympic experience, and that's what it's all about. The reception was surprising but not unexpected. Europeans and other cultures around the world do a really good job of embracing athletes with disabilities, and it showed," Shattuck said.

The Paris experience has given him access to new coaches and friends he'll have for a very long time. Winning a medal also opens up a lot of opportunities. Shattuck's family (22 of whom were cheering in the stands at the Paris La Defense Arena) has supported him at every level, from T-ball in Greenbelt to high school varsity soccer and basketball in Carroll County. The assumption by many was that each level probably represented the last one where Zach could be competitive. But Shattuck has continually set his sights on the next level.

"The Olympics and Paralympics is pretty much the gold standard of athletics, and to be able to place my name in that company is something that 10-year-old me would never think I could've done," says Shattuck. "I remember writing as a young teen that I wanted to be the best dwarf athlete of all time. Being an athlete has carried me to where I am, and that's what made me the swimmer I am."

What's Next?

When asked what's next, Shattuck said, "I've got a couple of opportunities to continue coaching at the college level or to get back into club coaching. I also want to explore outdoor education and the nature center areas."

As far as plans for a possible run at the 2028 Summer Olympics in Los Angeles are concerned, "I want to get back into the gym. I want to buy a bike, swim two-three times a week, a couple thousand yards to keep my body ready. I want to stay close to the water as I decide."

In the near term, "We have a Team USA visit at the White House this weekend," shared Shattuck. He'll ponder his life choices beginning Monday.

Jack Downs lives in Florida and is one of Zach Shattuck's uncles.

Raiders Remain Savage In Early Season Victories

by Patrick Gleason

Claire Aloga and Sadie Swart celebrate after another Raider goal on September 19 against Suitland.

Senior Jada Savage wasted no time in accruing a hat trick against the Wise Pumas on September 23, and not much later she scored her fourth en route to a 7-0 triumph that punctuated the first third of the Raiders schedule where they have outscored opponents 36-0. Savage highlights the exacting Raider attack that has efficiently navigated county opponents thus far. Junior Claudia van der Have capped the first half scoring against the Pumas with a strong shot from the right side of the goal. In the second half, senior Sadie Swart, in her second game back after an ACL tear last November, placed a penalty kick in the side netting, while striker Gabriella Martinez mirrored van der Have's goal with a well-placed shot in the final minutes.

The victory followed another lopsided win against the Suitland Rams on September 19. Savage netted three more goals in that contest, while Swart, Yadira Reyes Carranza and Claire Aloga also scored. Roosevelt anticipates a stiffer test against the Bowie Bulldogs on September 25.

Junior Varsity

Meanwhile, the junior varsity's schedule continues to test a squad full of promise. The Raiders fought back to gain a 5-3 win at St. Mary's Ryken on September 17. After trailing 2-0 at halftime, Morgan Parks halved the deficit before the Raiders conceded again. Then, sophomore Treasure Wogu netted a second-half hat trick to put Roosevelt ahead. Forward Alima Kargbo capped the scoring in an eventful second half. Though the Raiders fell to Elizabeth Seton in a tightly contested 1-0 defeat two days later, they continue to grow as they look toward a September 30 home game with Our Lady of Good Counsel.

Senior Alyssa Casey takes aim as teammate Claudia van der Have looks on during the Raider victory.

John Mason Joins City as New Economic Development Manager

The Greenbelt City Council welcomed John Mason as the city's new economic development manager. A 25-year economic development veteran, Mason brings a wealth of experience from state, county and local levels.

projects and working with aspiring entrepreneurs and startup companies to fulfill the dream of owning and operating a successful enterprise.

Originally from Norfolk, Va., Mason has now lived and worked in Maryland for over 30 years, spending 10 years in Bowie and nearly a decade at his current residence in Hanover.

Mason earned a bachelor's degree in business administration/marketing from Southeastern University in Washington, D.C., and a master's degree in business administration from Wilmington University in Delaware.

As a former standout college athlete, Mason is an avid golfer who enjoys competitive tennis and cycling. He is also active within his church, serving in community outreach ministries.

Mason is a self-proclaimed technology buff who loves testing and implementing the newest technological innovations to serve clients better.

"Economic development is truly a team sport. It takes seamless partnerships between public, private and nonprofit economic-development professionals, the commercial real estate brokerage and development community, and so much more," said Mason. "I feel blessed to lead the economic development initiatives for a city with such a vibrant history, and I am very excited to continue building upon the incredible accomplishments of the City of Greenbelt."

City of Greenbelt News Release

"Given the loss of retail and restaurants in our city and the ongoing recovery from Covid-19's impacts on our local economy, it was crucial to fill this position swiftly with someone who has a strong background in economic development, is well acquainted with the area and can effectively help our local business recovery while driving our growth and increasing our competitiveness," said City Manager Josué Salmerón. "Throughout the interview process, we encountered many impressive candidates, but John distinguished himself with his expertise, experience and genuine enthusiasm for what he could contribute to Greenbelt."

Mayor Emmett Jordan expressed enthusiasm about the hiring decision, stating, "Hiring a new economic manager was a key component of our planning framework for FY25. We are thrilled that John has chosen to join Greenbelt, where he will play a vital role in enhancing our business and workforce development programs for current and future residents."

Annual Pooch Plunge

On Saturday, September 7, the Greenbelt Aquatic & Fitness Center sponsored the annual Pooch Plunge. The fundraiser for the Greenbelt Animal Shelter was a rare opportunity for the pooches of Greenbelt to take a turn in the outdoor pool before it closes for the summer. Dogs of all kinds turned out to plunge, paddle, run around or spectate.
