New JCC Building Dedication Sunday Ends 4-Year Do-It-Yourself Program

By Isadore Parker

The Jewish Community Center of Prince Georges County will dedicate its newly-completed building Sunday, March 20, at 8 p.m. Rabbi Morris A. Sandhaus, assistant to the Chief, Chaplain Service, Veterans Administration, will officiate and Isaac Frank, executive director of the Jewish Community Council of Washington, will speak.

The first religious services in the new home will be held on Friday, March 18, prior to the formal dedication. Rabbi Raymond Krinsky of the Northeast Hebrew Congregation will conduct the services and Elihu Platt, of the Jewish Welfare Board and on the Executive Board of the Jewish Community Council of Washington, will speak. His topic will be "Judaism for the Modern Jew."

4-Year Dream

The week-end dedication celebration culminates a four-year dream of Greenbelt residents of the Jewish faith. In 1951, the small congregation of about 50 families began their building program with the "do-it-yourself" spirit now sweeping the country. Most members are middle-income federal employees. Having scarce funds to work with, the congregation decided to build the Center with its own volunteer labor.

"Your week-ends belong to the community center" was the slogan that motivated the group, and ground was broken for the building in 1952. None of the group had professional experience in the building trades. However, some professional laborers volunteered their services, and one skilled bricklayer was employed to give instructions and guidance in the early stages. Many members became experienced brick-layers and mortar-mixers, and found the manual labor a satisfying change from regular daily office tasks. Women brought iced tea and lemonade during the summer week-ends.

Along with the actual construction, members sought contributions of building materials and equipment. The group found many area suppliers sympathetic to their goal who generously furnished a major portion of the construction materials.

"JCC" Day

The spirit of the group impressed Greenbelt residents, and on two occasions celebrations of "JCC" Day were held when members of other faiths joined their Jewish neighbors to labor on the building. These included a Protestant minister and civic leaders of Catholic, Baptist, Methodist, Lutheran and other faiths, who nailed boards and laid brick.

Meanwhile, the congregation held money-raising activities to purchase materials not contributed. On occasion specialized craftsmen were hired, as the need arose.

When the problem of putting steel girders and a roof confronted the amateur builders late last year, the congregation decided it was time for professionally-skilled help 75% of the building was standing. To complete the job. At this time they borrowed $15,000 and engaged a contractor. Of contemporary design, the building is now valued at close to $90,000.

Many Activities

The new building will be used for religious services, Sunday School program, confirmation classes, Hebrew school, youth activities, including Girl Scout and Boy Scout meetings, and inter-denominational social activities on a county-wide basis. The interior is designed as one large auditorium that can be divided into classrooms by folding partitions. In the past, congregation activities have been held in the Greenbelt Community building, with High Holy Day services conducted in the Community Church.

President of the Jewish-Community Center is Ben Rosenzweig, recently re-elected to that job.

Land for the building site was purchased from the Federal government in 1949. The congregation has now grown to 120 families; many were inspired to join the local group by the rising edifice and spirit of their members. It is expected that an expanding area of the county will be served by the Community Center for religious and spiritual needs of the Jewish residents.

Sunday's dedication is considered by residents of Greenbelt as a symbol of neighborliness and brotherhood, as well as a house of worship. The fourth building to house a religious organization in Greenbelt, it is the first erected on a "do-it-yourself" basis.

Englander Optimistic On GCS Future Growth

By Gretchen Keene

At the Greenbelt Consumer Services board meeting Friday, March 11, Louis Englander, GCS auditor reported "With 1 1/2 million dollars in assets as of January 29, our 15 year old youngster is a pretty lusty giant. Sales in GCS increased by 6% last year earning a net savings of $116,000."

In 1940, with $345,000 in total business, GCS paid its first patronage refund of $2,000. This year the estimated refund will be $55,000. Englander spoke of the potential of GCS in Greenbelt, Takoma Park, Wheaton and other undeveloped areas. He praised the board of directors as men of "unqualified ability as verified by the success of GCS," and commented on the confidence of its public.

General Manager Sam Ashelman presented a simple outline of future hopes, mentioning centralized buying, broader merchandising policy and simplified warehousing.

6 Incumbents, 3 New Directors Elected At GVHC Annual Meeting

By Russell Greenbaum

Nine candidates for the Greenbelt Veteran Housing Corporation Board of Directors were elected to the board in the annual GVHC voting March 10 and 11. A total of 263 ballots were cast, compared to 542 in last year's election. All six incumbent directors who ran for reelection were returned to the board.

Heading the list, as last year, was Ed Burgoon, who has been serving as acting president of the board; he garnered 223 votes, runner-up was Frank Lastner with 197 votes. Hans Jorgenson was close behind with 191 votes. Fourth with 172 votes was Bruce Bowman, who ran second to Burgoon in last year's election.

Newcomer John Phariss came in fifth with 158 votes, topping incumbent Al Long by one vote. Frank Kriby was returned to the board with 155 votes. Another newcomer, Leland Leasia, made it with 149 votes while the ninth position was filled by Percy Andros, a member of the 1953 board, with 146 votes.

Other candidates were Richard O. Taylor, Bernard Sisco, Henley Goode, Herman Sirlin, and Hal Silvers, who finished in that order. Elected to the audit committee were Leonard Barron, J. Walsh Bargas and Frank LaParle, all unopposed.

PGJCC In Greenbelt Elects New Officers

At a membership meeting of the Jewish Community Center of Prince Georges County last Saturday night, new officers were elected for the coming year. Ben Rosenzweig was reelected President. Other officers elected were Morris Steinman, Vice President for Administration (incumbent, unopposed); Moe Hoffman, Vice President for Program Planning; Mrs. Nettie Steinman, Financial Secretary (incumbent, unopposed); Mrs. Helen Kushner, Treasurer (unopposed); Mrs. Blanche Kramer, Recording Secretary (incumbent, unopposed); Mrs. Ethel Rosenzweig, Corresponding Secretary (incumbent, unopposed). The following board members were elected: Mort Berroza, Murray Ryss, Leon Ackerman, and Jack Ratzkin.

The members are looking forward to the next meeting, which will be held in their new building.

Navy Wives Sponsor Drive For Clothing

At the last meeting of the Truman Riddle Navy Wives Club Tuesday, March 8, at the home of former Greenbelter Mrs. Margaret Wiram, 4408 Yuca St., Beltsville, it was decided that the club would sponsor a clothing drive for needy persons in the county. Anyone who has clothing to contribute please contact Mrs. Halpin at GR. 3-2776 and she will pick up the article.

As this was the first meeting held at the lovely new home of Mrs. Wiram, she was presented with a luncheon cloth in honor of the occasion. Mrs. Lorene Hanna was voted in as a new member.

Choral Rehearsal

The Community Choral Group will have a special rehearsal Saturday, March 19, at 3 p.m. at the JCC building to practice their program for the dedication on Sunday.

What could be safer than your government Savings Bond? If it is lost or destroyed, the Treasury will replace it.

members was reflected in the fact that the annual meeting held Thursday night, was almost cancelled because of the lack of a quorum. As late as 9:20 p.m. the meeting was ten shy of the required ten percent quorum. Finally, shortly before 9:45 p.m., just as Chairman Burgoon was announcing that he would have to recess the meeting because of no quorum, it was reported that the required number had entered the meeting.

Most vigorous discussion was centered around the amendment to the by-laws proposed by the board of directors, to abolish quarterly meetings, leaving only the annual membership meeting. Burgoon pointed out that much time, effort & expense goes into the board's preparation for quarterly meetings, which are at present attended by a handful of members. No quarterly meeting during the past year had a quorum present and thus no official business could be conducted. Burgoon noted that the GVHC News Letter would keep the members adequately informed of what the GVHC management and board were doing.

Challenged

Several speakers however, challenged this viewpoint, arguing that the membership would lose contact with the board of directors, would be unable to obtain detailed information about board actions. Director Al Long refuted these arguments on the grounds that the amendment would not affect the democratic process. He pointed out that the board could call a special membership meeting at any time, especially if pressured by several members attending a board meeting, and that 50 members could still call a meeting by means of a petition.

A compromise motion to hold semi-annual meetings was proposed by Leonard Baron, but this was ruled out of order by the meeting's parliamentarian, Bernard Bordenet.

The amendment to discontinue quarterly meetings failed to pass when a show of hands revealed that the required two-thirds majority was obviously lacking.

Question: Answer

At the end of the meeting Matt Amberg demanded an explanation of the board's recent move to support proposed state legislation concerning the status of contracts signed by members of housing cooperatives. Following adjournment, Abraham Chasanow, GVHC general counsel, explained that he had participated in the preparation of a bill which would define the present GVHC contract's legal status and that would also give official recognition to housing cooperatives by the state of Maryland.

He stated that the Potomac Heights Housing Corporation, a cooperative in the District, had been disturbed by an informal opinion of a local judge that he doubted the validity of its contract. The D.C. group decided to seek a law confirming its type of contract and had sought support from GVHC, the only other housing cooperative in the area. The board had voted $500 to help obtain this remedial legislation.

the OTHER THIEF...

A flippant young man had just been urged by his companion to attend to spiritual matters. Unimpressed he shrugged his shoulder and answered, "I've still got a lot of time for religion. Remember the thief on the cross?"

"Which one?" asked the more serious young man.

Yes, which one? There were two thieves crucified with Christ. For one the eleventh hour was too late.

Someone has said, "He who postpones repentance a single day has one more day to repent of and one less day to repent in."

The Bible tells us: "Now is the accepted time. Now is the day of salvation." Now is the time to repent of our personal sins and to turn to Jesus Christ for mercy and pardon.

If you have not yet found forgiveness for your sins through faith in the Christian Gospel, our Church extends to you a most hearty invitation.
