When The SIREN BLOWS

By Rita Fisher

With the beginning of the new year comes the beginning of a new record book and the new series of reasons for the volunteers to run from their homes to answer the call when the siren blows. And this past week, as anyone who was still in town can remember, the siren did a good bit of calling.

The only 9-1 call which came in was on January 3, and this call for help came from the Parkway. Luckily no one was injured, and no transportation was necessary to a hospital.

The first call on record for the year for the fire fighters came from outside Greenbelt. On January 1, at 2:51 p.m., a fire was reported at the empty St. Ann's Orphanage. It was an abandoned building, and the fire was extinguished easily with little damage done. Possible is the idea that children were involved. The men made a second trip with the equipment on New Year's Day and found a burning tree stump, which they extinguished with a booster line. The men were called out with the equipment on a fire call on January 3—a brush fire in the rear of 10 court of Southway. Again the police are investigating the possibility that children may have caused the fire.

Twenty-five men were on hand at Braden Field on a cold, muddy, rainy Saturday night on January 2 at Braden Field. To keep their promise to the kids at the time promised, they held the Annual Tree Burning in spite of the elements. And the movie, held on January 4 at the Greenbelt Theater, was enjoyed by one and all.

The Rescue Squad was called out on at least five calls on the weekend. The first call, on January 1, was to carry to Prince Georges Hospital an elderly woman who has symptoms of heart trouble. The second trip, on January 2, was an emergency transport to Leland Memorial for a woman in Greenbelt. Again on January 2 the siren blew, and the men took to Prince Georges Hospital a man who was scalded on his face, shoulder, back, arm and right side. They went out on the 9-1 call, but no transportation was necessary. And in the wee hours of the morning of January 4, a baby decided it was time, so the men took a woman to Prince Georges Hospital.

Men of the Greenbelt department will go to the University of Maryland Fire service extension to practice putting out fires in heavily smoke filled buildings. If it is anything like it was last year, which I happened to witness, the men will don masks and go into a smoke-filled structure and extinguish the fire. This is exciting to watch and quite an experience for the men. They will be having this drill on Sunday morning, January 24.

January 12 by Rita Fisher

FLASH — As of this writing, which is Tuesday evening, the siren has been silent for one full week. Of course, the regular routine test alarm went off at noon on Saturday. There were two routine transportation trips made by the Rescue Squad but the sirens were silent for these runs.

This is a good time to put in a few words about the Ladies Auxiliary. They will be serving a Saturday Supper at the Fire Hall on Saturday, January 30, from 4:30 to 8 p.m. On the menu will be hot dogs, baked beans, cole slaw, gin-

New Budget for County Library is $698,445

A record budget of $698,445 will be presented to the county commissioners by Prince George's County Memorial Library for fiscal year 1960-61, Miss Elizabeth B. Hage, director, said Thursday.

Department-wise the biggest request of $313,260, is for the extension services. This is the department which includes 10 branches and three bookmobiles.

Most important services projected by the budget are establishment of two new branches, one at Bladensburg, another at Upper Marlboro, to be in rented quarters.

The budget also calls for hiring of four children's librarians to work with parents and children in the branches. This will enable the present staff to devote more time to working with adult readers.

More than a half a million books and materials were circulated in 1958-9, a climb of 18 percent above the previous year.

"Although circulation is not a complete picture of the services given, it does serve as a good barometer of public demand and from the looks of our soaring population, demand for books and materials is going to keep on rising sharply in the year ahead," commented the director.

Fire Alarm System

The city council at a special meeting on Monday night approved the principle of installing an automatic fire detection system in the new municipal buildings. This system may be the first of its kind in the state, according to Bob Mogel, chairman of the fire protection planning and survey committee of the Greenbelt Volunteer Fire Department.

The system as planned will send a signal through the new police department quarters to the firehouse and automatically set off the siren. Provision will be made so that other public buildings as well as business establishments can tie into the system. Mogel plans to make a survey of the various fire detection systems on the market to determine the best 24-hour monitoring service suitable to the city's needs.

"The new system will eliminate the three causes of major fires—delay in detection, delay in alarm, and delay in response," Mogel said.

Three Members Named To Planning Committee

Lewis Bernstein, 123 Northway, Isadore Parker, 45-J Ridge, and Charles Schwan, Jr. 7-A Crescent have been named by the city council to serve as public members on the newly-organized committee to establish a city planning commission. This committee will submit recommendations to the council regarding the composition of the commission and the scope of its functions.

In addition to the three public members, the 9-man committee will consist of a member of council appointed by the mayor, the city manager, the manager of GCS and a member of GCS living within the city of Greenbelt, the manager of GHI and a member of the GHI board. GHI has already designated Hans Jorgensen as its representative. The other appointees are expected to be announced at the next city council meeting this Monday.

The three public representatives were chosen from an original list of ten names, two nominated by each councilman. The city manager was directed to choose five names from the ten submitted by council. The council then voted by secret ballot on the final selection of three names from the list of five.

Twin Pines Pays Extra Dividend and Refund

The Board of Directors of Twin Pines Savings and Loan Association has declared a 1% extra dividend to savers and a 1% patronage refund to borrowers. Both were declared as of December 31, and are entered on the Quarterly Statements that went into the mails this week.

The extra dividend is in addition to the regular quarterly dividend, which is calculated on a 5% per year basis. The year-end dividend equals 1/5 of the total paid in dividends to each depositor during 1959. This raises the return to savers during 1959 to six percent.

Borrowers from Twin Pine are charged 6% per year on the amount they borrow which is comparable to 12% per year on the unpaid balance of the loan. The 1% refunded to them reduces the rate for last year to 5% on the loan or 10% on the unpaid balance.

Twin Pines total income for the year amounted to $34,032, while expenses were $10,753, leaving net earnings of $23,279. $5,218 of this was paid out in dividends and patronage refunds; $4,656 was put in Reserves; $1,500 was placed in a Reserve for Death Payments; $336 was set aside for payment of Federal Income Taxes; and the balance of $11,569 was added to Undivided Earnings.

At the beginning of 1959 Twin Pines had 128 members and assets of $32,155. By the end of the year membership had grown to 449 and assets to $187,375.

Those Living Behind Locked Doors

by Rita Fisher

We held a Christmas party for the women of Ward CT-6 at St. Elizabeth's Hospital this month. There was an air of Christmas in the room as we walked in. Decorations were up, and the women were all dressed in anticipation of a little bit different kind of a party from the regular monthly ones that they have been used to for over two years now. We have been visiting this ward and many of the same women for that long a time. We have become friends with so many of them, and we have come to know the little things that make them "different" from people on the outside.

It seems as though the spirit of Christmas comes to this ward in some outstanding way each year. Last year, a patient who had not spoken for fifteen years used her voice to thank us for the party. We were overjoyed and felt that the efforts we had put forth had been rewarded. This year, from my own personal experience on the day party, I received my reward for a year's work when the woman who usually lay on the floor behind a bench, and who never responded in any way to our questions, was sitting on the bench and smiled at me. And a dear friend, a woman who the nurses said could hear and talk but who apparently wanted to have us think she could not, started to talk to me. Her voice, though soft, was clear and sweet. I can't express just how I felt as I listened to her and yet fell back to her quiet nodding and smiling until she knew the nurse wouldn't notice her. This meant that I had finally gained her confidence and was a friend.

We distributed a little Christmas gift to each of the women. All were somewhat similar, washcloths and soap, in various colors. This may seem like a simple item to use as a gift, but this was something that each woman could consider as a personal belonging, and just a little different from the type issued by the hospital: colored washcloths and perfumed soap. I heard many of them say that was a well appreciated gift.

We played Bingo and saw to it that every woman who played won a prize. They constantly seem to enjoy coming to the prize table to pick a prize. They look the items over, pick them up and put them down, and finally they make their decision and go back to their tables to play some more. It was while I was standing by the prize table to try to help the ladies make their choices that Miss G. spoke to me. I was really surprised. She had already decided on one thing, and with it still in her hand, was looking the items over as if to take something else too. I told her that she should go back and try to win some more. Then she told me that she was to pick two prizes. Her voice was soft but so clear. I was quite excited at what had happened.

After we had served refreshments, I went over to the table where she was sitting with two other women. I looked at her and asked her her last name on the pretext that I had forgotten it. She told me. I was hungry for more words from this woman who had never said a word to any of us before. She continued speaking, but I could not catch all her words because of the other sounds in the room, and I could not ask her to repeat what she had said. A nurse came toward us and walked past our table. Miss G. watched as the nurse passed by and just smiled and nodded her head, always keeping her eye on the nurse. When she felt safe again, she resumed talking.

Also at that table was Miss M. She has quite a personality compared to many of the other women. She appears alert and full of pep. She has always assisted us in setting up the place for whatever we had in mind. She has been very much interested in our activities and our families. I had told her that I wished it were possible for her to come visit us. She has often said that she would like to do this so that she could meet my family. She remembers the children's names and asks about them every time.

The time, as always, passed quickly, and we said our goodbyes. I made a solemn promise to bring along a picture of little Lori on our next trip. I had promised it the last time and the thought slipped my mind completely. When I did remember it was when I walked into the room, and that was too late. I really felt bad because so many of them ask about the baby. I know they are waiting for it.

THANKS

We wish to express our deepest appreciation and gratitude to our friends and neighbors for the floral tribute, the Mass Cards, also other cards and other expressions of sympathy during the sickness and death of our father, Charles A. Prairie.

We also wish to thank the men on the Greenbelt Ambulance Rescue Squad for their fast, efficient work and kindness.

Sincerely,
Edward C. and Hilda Prairie
18-L Ridge

THANKS

I wish to thank all the many friends who were so kind and thoughtful during my recent illness. Their expressions of good will were wonderful for my morale.

Postponed Xmas Show Held Despite Measles

The Crescent Nursery School and Kindergarten of Beltsville, which several Greenbelt youngsters attend, had to cancel its Christmas pageant last month when about half of the youngsters came down with the measles. Mrs. W. J. Rogers, director of the school, who was determined that the show must go on, waited until the children had recovered and rescheduled the pageant for last Saturday night.

Mrs. Rogers, who is English, announced with cheery British aplomb that there would be some changes in the program because four more youngsters had come down with measles that week and one with the chicken pox. One of those with measles was Elizabeth Anderson of Greenbelt. Local youngsters who appeared were Olga Penney and Stephen Love.

Police News Review

A 17-year old local boy charged with rape by a 15-year old local girl had the charge reduced to assault and battery by the state's attorney, according to Greenbelt police. The boy admitted having relations with the girl but denied the rape charge. The juvenile judge waived jurisdiction, and the boy was given a six-month suspended sentence.

The incident occurred in the home of the girl while her parents were out of town, the police reported. Neither the boy nor the girl have a previous juvenile record, and medical examination showed that the girl had not had relations previously. Statutory rape is not involved because the offender was under 18.

Dog Poisoning

The police have reported the first recorded case of a dog being poisoned in Greenbelt. The dog is a collie owned by Donald Burgess of 55-H Ridge. The dog is still alive, but it is not yet known whether it will fully recover.

Green pellets of the type used for rat poison were sprinkled around. Apparently the dog ate so many that he threw up most of the poison. The police were concerned because the poison pellets might have been picked up by children playing in the area, but all the tablets appear to have been found.

Investigation determined that the dog stayed in the yard and was not a nuisance to gardens and other people's property. However, there were some complaints that the dog barked excessively during the day. Conviction of the culprit could result in a fine of up to 100 dollars.

A rash of animal bites were also reported by the police. In one case a squirrel that had been raised by a local boy as a pet bit a pregnant woman. The squirrel did not have rabies, and the woman only required tetanus shots. Four dog bites have also been referred to the police but were all of a minor nature.

Police Chief Jim Williams reported that prowlers were reported in the attic of 20-court, Hillside. Upon police investigation, it was discovered that the prowler had used the attic of the court to gain admittance to an empty house. Nothing was reported missing.

Officer Herb Faulconer recovered a missing car at the lake area. This car had been reported stolen from Silver Spring.

Also from the files this week comes this report: a young man was walking through an underpass (built to protect pedestrians) when suddenly he was struck on the head by a large object. In a somewhat dazed condition, the man saw that it was an automobile tire apparently dropped on him by a youngster seen running away.

You Can Do It Too!

Mr. and Mrs. "X" who lived in Greenbelt needed a larger house, but had no cash. Greenbelt Realty Company, through its Multiple Listing Service, found the ideal house for them - a 4-bedroom detached house, with a basement, large yard, and other features which they had always dreamed of AND promptly sold their Greenbelt frame house for enough to take care of the down payment, settlement charges, and moving expenses.

Mr. and Mrs. "Z" who had a brick house did even better. Greenbelt Realty Company found exactly the house they had always wanted and sold their Greenbelt house for enough to take care of the down payment, settlement charges and moving expenses - with enough cash left over to furnish the living room of their new home.
