GHI $8,200 Behind Budget Estimate Due To Increase In Maintenance Cost

First quarter experience of Greenbelt Homes, Inc. for 1960 shows light impairment in the corporation's position, according to a fiscal report submitted by GHI comptroller Roy Breashears to the board of directors at its regular meeting, Thursday, May 12.

During the first three months of 1960, expenses incurred with respect to the operation of housing units totaled $312,500, some $8,000 greater than the budgeted amount. Income from members and tenants amounted to $281,700, about $200 less than the forecast. On balance then, the corporation's net position was some $8,200 worse than the original estimate.

This situation was almost entirely attributable to an increase of $7,500 in maintenance and repair costs over the anticipated amounts. Some of this increase represented repair items that were pushed up to the first quarter and part represented the initiation of a gutter guard program, the costs of which will be reimbursed from maintenance reserves if necessary.

Insurance expenses also rose by $1,400 over the budgeted amount, but were still lower than first quarter expenditures for last year. Other costs of $120,200 which were some expense items were about the same as anticipated, except for heating $1,000 below the amount forecast. Breashears noted that first quarter heating costs for the past three years 1958-1960 have remained stable, varying by less than $200.

As for non-operating expenses, the corporation spent $2,000 more in the first quarter than expected. This was offset, however, by income from sources other than monthly charges which were $3,000 more than forecast, attributable mainly to increased sales fees and income from sales of services to Greenbelt Development Corporation, operator of the apartments.

A comparison with last year's experience revealed that total operating and non-operating expenditures for the first quarter of 1960 increased by $13,200 over 1959, while total income for the two years remained the same.

BENEFIT SOFTBALL GAME

The Greenbelt Little League will sponsor a Benefit Softball double header at Braden Field Saturday night, June 4, starting at 7 p.m. This is a benefit for the Little League and will be played by two of the best teams in the Washington-Baltimore area.

Earl Contractors -- who played as Maggie's Restaurant last year and are the defending regional champions -- will take the field against The North Side Athletic Club of Baltimore, who have beaten Johnnie's Used Car regional champions.

No admission and all are invited to watch these championship teams square off.

Summer Reading Program

Registration for the summer-reading program will be held on June 8-11 at the Center School. Admission to these classes will be limited to pupils currently in grades 3-6.

Parents desiring to enroll their children should obtain a copy of the information bulletin from the nearest elementary school office.

A tuition fee of $30 will be charged for one and one-half hours of instruction daily for the summer program, which runs from July 5 through August 19.

First Grade Registration

Final registration for first grade will take place on Friday, June 3 at Center and North End Schools between 9 a.m. and 11:30 p.m. and 1:30 p.m. and 3 p.m. Parents are requested to bring medical records and birth certificates.

Greenbelt Road Due For Dualization

Two representatives of the Maryland State Roads Commission met with City Manager Charles R. McDonald last week to discuss the dedication by the city of land to be used in the development of the Capital Beltway and in the widening of Greenbelt rd. A slight shift in the proposed location of the Beltway from Edmonston rd extended, toward the Beltsville Farm, requires the dedication of additional land from the sewage disposal property belonging to the city of Greenbelt.

In all, about eight and a half acres of city property will be dedicated for road building purposes. An additional four acres along the right of way will be granted for easement -- that is, for the adjusting of streams, sloping of banks, and other changes necessary to the road building but not part of the road itself. This "easement" property will be owned and maintained by the city, though building upon it will be prohibited.

Meeting with McDonald last week were Haines B. Felter, Chief of the Bureau of Government and Public Utility Right of Way Acquisition for the Roads Commission, and Stephen M. Bojanowski, Supervisor of Right of Ways for the Prince Georges County area.

According to information which has reached the city manager, bidding will begin after July 1 for the three projects necessary to the dualizing of Greenbelt rd. These include: the section from Kenilworth ave. east to the overpass at the Baltimore-Washington pkwy., a second bridge over the B&O railroad tracks and the section of road from Branchville east to Kenilworth ave.

Library Building Site Still Being Discussed

Greenbelt may still get its own library building, but the present prospect is that it will not be a wing of the city's new municipal office building.

Two sites near the commercial center owned by the city are available for a library building, the News Review has learned. The city council has indicated a willingness to transfer to the county library association city property for the construction of a library building.

County library officials have always indicated a preference for a separate library building close to the business center of a community. For this reason, it is understood they favor a site owned by the city adjacent to the Center School in preference to a wing of the municipal office building, as previously proposed on an informal basis. Another possible city-owned site is the slope encircled by a sidewalk on the other side of the Centerway underpass.

Mayor Alan Kistler has noted that the council "is very much concerned" about a library building for Greenbelt. The council plans to schedule a series of meetings with the county commissioners and county library officials on this matter.

Recreation Highway Funds Get Approved

The recreation and highways expenditure budgets for 1960-61 were approved by city council on Tuesday, May 31 with little change in overall totals. In the recreation program, cuts were made of $350 in arts and crafts, $200 in conferences and training, and $245 in rental allowances, but these savings were offset by an addition of $240 for a swimming team coach and by the restoration of $400 from a previously cut amount of $1,000 to the swimming pool account.

The savings in arts and crafts is being made possible through the utilization of county facilities and personnel. Rental allowances involving recreation activities using the Center School building were shaved in the hope that the Community Recreation Building would be constructed before the end of the year. It was pointed out, however, that no real savings is involved here since additional sums, not budgeted for, will be needed to provide maintenance and janitorial services in the new building.

The restoration of $400 to the swimming pool budget was necessitated by disclosure that the swimming pool will be kept open the equivalent of 12 days more this year. This fact was not taken into account when the cut of $1,000 was first voted.

The highways budget was approved with two cuts: $200 for conferences and training and $500 in the estimated cost of street lighting service.

The council adjourned after making an initial decision on the trash collection budget to retain the allocation of 40% of the Superintendent of Public Work's salary to trash collection.

GHI SUBMITS HIGH BID

The Greenbelt Post Office held an auction on Friday, May 27 in order to dispose of some old furniture which was no longer of use or outdated. Six sealed bids were submitted and the sale was made to the highest bidder, GHI. The accepted bid was in the amount of $176.56 with a certified check for $44.14 as a deposit.

Architects Design for Municipal Office Building Gets Council Okay

By Russ Greenbaum

The design of the city's new municipal office building or city hall was given final approval by the city council at a special meeting last Friday. The architects, Saterlee and Smith, were directed to prepare the working drawings and specifications preliminary to placing the building out for bids.

The building, which it is estimated will cost about $120,000, will be a two-level structure containing about 7000 square feet, at least a thousand square feet less than either of the other two new municipal buildings, the firehouse and the Youth Center. The building, to be located between the new firehouse and St. Hugh's on Crescent rd., will be of unusual and striking design. A large part of the exterior will consist of glass walls. The middle portion of the structure will be banded by decorative masonry.

The second level, containing the offices of the city manager, city clerk, city treasurer, and chief of police, plus a small meeting room for about 20 persons, will be entered directly from Crescent rd. via a wooden foot bridge. A parking lot will be at the rear, where there will be an entrance to the lower level.

The major portion of the lower level will consist of the council meeting chamber. This will have a raised platform on which the council will meet. There will be room for about 125 spectators in the council chamber, which will also be available to the general public for meetings and special events.

A small conference room will also be located on the floor as well as storage facilities. The building will be completely air conditioned. A bond must be floated or money borrowed from a bank in order to finance this structure. The citizens of Greenbelt authorized this at the last city election.

Present plans are that the construction will begin in the fall and be completed by next spring. Meanwhile, the new firehouse and rescue squad building is expected to be completed next month. The new community youth and recreation center just underway is not expected to be finished until late fall or early winter.

What may be the final council meeting on the 1960 City budget will be held tomorrow night (Friday) at 8 p.m. Mayor Alan Kistler has announced. Final approval of the various budget accounts could be completed then and the 1960 City tax rate informally announced by the city manager. The 1960 rate, which is expected to be several cents higher than the 1959 rate of $1.61 must be officially established by June 10.

The next regular meeting of the city council will be on Monday, June 13, inaugurating the summer schedule of one regular meeting per month.

SUMMER GHI MEETINGS

The summer schedule of meetings for the Greenbelt Homes, Inc. board of directors has been set for June 16, July 14, and August 11. The membership gave the board authority at the annual meeting in March to reduce its meeting nights from two to one for the months of June, July, and August.

The Council Bogs Down

About three or four months after the present city council took office last fall, the News Review praised the council for its dynamic, forthright approach to the city's problems. We noted that the new council, dominated by youth and enthusiasm, had tackled aggressively and intelligently problems which had been longstanding and had apparently frustrated previous council bodies.

The News Review has not lost its respect for the council, but it can no longer be ignored that the council has definitely bogged down in its progress toward a more efficient handling of civic matters. The budget discussion is the major example, although not the only one. Given the first opportunity of any council to review the city's proposed annual budget without the pressure of a close deadline, the councilmen have not used this time effectively. It is a sad fact that the council — perhaps in its eagerness to get all the facts — have become mired in a morass of details.

The council has continued to meet frequently but sometimes has spent several hours discussing small points. This is not only wasting the valuable and limited time of the councilmen themselves but also the time of city officials and personnel who are not paid (except for the secretarial duties of the city clerk) for the extra time involved. We are sure that the city's departmental supervisors are glad to give this time, but we cannot help feeling that their morale must suffer when they see so many unimportant points bandied about and when they must provide the same information repeatedly. It has been noted that some councilmen have asked the same question two or three times over a period of time, apparently failing to remember they have previously received the information.

Mayor Alan Kistler, who has already demonstrated qualities of strong leadership, has stated that the council will adhere to the firm schedule of winding up the budget hearings by this coming Friday night. Let us now see if the council can discipline themselves and conclude discussions which have gone on far too long.

We hope that the present councilmen, with their other admirable traits, will also be self-critical enough to see their faults and correct them in the future.

CORRECTION MADE

To the Editor:

I would like to make a correction in an otherwise excellent report of the Council's budget meeting appearing in your May 12, 1960 issue.

The News Review is in error in attributing to me the statement of dissatisfaction with the "fiscal accountability" of certain athletic organizations in town.

My motion to reduce coach and instruction fees by approximately one third was based solely, and my remarks were addressed only, to the question of moving towards self sustenance on the part of these organizations.

The question of fiscal reporting was raised by a member of Council, but the reference was not in so general terms as the news account might have suggested. The reference was specific, dealing with the financial statement a particular group had submitted for the Council's information.

It is important that a particular reference not be translated as in general application. No member of the Council, to my knowledge, questions the integrity or honesty or responsibility of the men who head the Little League and the Boys Club. These men, and others before them, have given generously of their time and effort, to the benefit of our Greenbelt children and ultimately to the benefit of the entire community.

They have proven themselves as unselfish, dedicated men without whose contributions the City would have been hard pressed to carry on a complete recreational program.

To say that does not invalidate, of course, the belief that it would be better for all concerned if the organizations these men represent were able to conduct their programs without the financial aid of the City and without the accompanying measure of control the City must exercise when taxpayers' funds are involved.

My move, to repeat, was to take a step in the direction of self-sustaining operations for the several organizations in question. Others did not share my feeling that such a step should be taken at this time. It is entirely conceivable they were right, and I wrong. I frequently am.

Sincerely,
Alan Kistler

BAKERY VISIT REPORT

By Beverly Francisco and Rita Skolnik, Third Grade

On Monday, May 13, Mrs. Collins' third grade class and some students from Mrs. Loftus' and Mrs. Benson's class went to the Continental Bakery.

The bus ride was fun. We liked the bumps.

At the bakery we had our pictures taken. There were many rooms. Some of them were very noisy and hot.

Two mothers came along. They were Mrs. Hoy and Mrs. Francisco. Everyone received gifts. The children got books about bread, rulers, a little loaf of bread, snowballs, and buns. The mothers got a big loaf of bread and a little loaf, a pack of buns, a ruler, and a book about bread. Everyone received a baker's hat.

After the visit, we went to Greenbelt Lake. We had a picnic, and played games. It was fun.

Mrs. Greenbelt at Home

By Vivian Greenbaum

A few years ago Russ spent a winter in the British Museum Reading Room. He didn't exactly spend the whole winter there. He would come home at night, presumably to organize the notes he had taken during the day. As the winter wore on, however, the pile of notes that he brought home became slimmer and slimmer. One day I questioned him about this.

"That British Museum is a cold place to work," he said. "I wish they'd heat it up a bit. My fingers are too cold to write."

"Karl Marx wrote there," I pointed out. "And when he came out he had 'Das Kapital' under his arm."

"I would like," Russ said blowing on his fingers, "to have seen even Karl Marx do it wearing gloves."

This attitude towards cold has been characteristic of Russ all of his life. Until two weeks ago, that is, when we moved into our new house. For the first time, Russ is paying his own heating bills, and he is never cold now. He doesn't exactly stand guard over the thermostat, but he is never very far away from it.

"Look at the children's lips," I tell him. "They're blue."

"Put more clothes on them."

"They've only got two sweaters apiece, and they're wearing both of them."

"Then put their coats on."

The other day I went over to the thermostat to turn it on, only to find Russ peering at me from around a door.

"I want to take a bath," I announced defensively. "It will be cheaper to pay for a half-hour's heat than to pay a doctor to treat me for chilblains."

"And that's another thing," Russ said. "Americans take too many baths. In addition to the heat, do you realize how much hot water that uses up?"

"I could heat up a kettle on the Rev. Joseph T. Haslinger offered his first Solemn High Mass at St. Hughs Church on Sunday, May 29 at 12:15 p.m. Altar boys were his brothers, Robert, John Paul and Henry. At 7 p.m. Solemn Benediction in the church was given by Rev. Haslinger, assisted by the Rev. Father Dowgiallo and Rev. Paul Liston.

Rev. Haslinger is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Haslinger of 11-N Ridge rd. He was ordained in St. Matthews Cathedral, Washington, D. C. on May 28.

"And scoop up the water from the tub afterwards to scrub the kitchen floor. And maybe we could get one of those portable kerosene heaters to heat the bathroom."

My sarcasm was lost on him. "That idea about the heater is good. No point in heating up a whole house just to take a bath."

I talked him out of that, but the worst was yet to come. Last night I found him poring over the Montgomery Ward catalogue.

"Let's see," he said. "Three for each member of the family should be enough."

I went up and looked over his shoulder, and my suspicions were confirmed. I'm going to protest, but it probably won't do any good. So, come next winter, if you see the Greenbaum family scratching away, don't be alarmed. It won't be anything contagious.

When The SIREN BLOWS

by Rita Fisher

May 24

I will tell you a bit of my own personal experiences and recreation to the events which followed one another on Sunday evening as a beginning for this column. First, my mother was visiting us and we had just returned from my brother's home in West Hyattsville, where she was spending the night. We decided to stop at the pharmacy for something, and it was there at around ten o'clock when the siren went off—and so did my husband to see what he could do to help. I walked down to the firehouse a few minutes later and found that they were out on call at Lakecrest Circle, near the Legion Hall. Some wires had come down and were burning in situations such as this, the men standby until the Pepco maintenance crew arrives.

I sat down at the Firehouse and listened to the Fireboard radio while I waited. Then another call came in for Greenbelt reporting an auto accident on the B-W Parkway. The other fire engine and ambulance took off then, leaving this place empty and deserted except for myself. Over the radio I heard a familiar voice, my husband's, say that ambulance number 359 was enroute to P.G. with an injured person. Well, it seems that they took off for the accident scene, and the second ambulance stood by where the wires were down. So I knew I would be waiting a bit longer while they made the run to P.G.

Eventually the men and the equipment returned to the firehouse, and Fire Chief Dutton had with him some broken pieces of insulators which came from a pole near the firehouse that had been hit by lightning. No other damage was apparent, but all I can add is that that one came close. We finally got home around midnight.

The Rescue Squad carried three young boys to P.G. last week because of accidents. Last Wednesday a five year old boy from Plateau Place was out on the top of his head when a rock rolled down a sliding board. The same day a boy with an injured left thumb was taken to the hospital. Early Sunday afternoon, a young teen-ager was injured in a bicycle accident behind the bowling alley and was taken to the hospital with a possible broken collar bone.

The injured woman in the auto accident was carried to the hospital complaining of back and neck pains.

On Monday a young woman was carried from her apartment on Crescent Road to the hospital when she suffered a miscarriage.

There was an auto accident reported early this a.m., but no apparent injuries were reported.

May 31

I was down at the Center on Friday afternoon when I heard the triple siren go off. I watched the equipment go by and decided to stop by the Firehouse on the way home to see what the call was for. This was at 2:40 p.m. It was about 4:30 before I was ready to go home and when I walked down and saw that the men were still out. I was surprised.

Two of the Ladies Auxiliary members were there and they told me that they had just gotten word from the men requesting coffee and sandwiches at the scene of the fire. The location was on Good Luck rd. at Kenilworth ave. Not having a kitchen or any place to store food meant that the women had to make a quick decision about the food and then purchase it. I offered my money and services and was given a list of things to buy. I rushed to the store and purchased the items and rather than stand in line, decided to declare the purchase an emergency and ask to be checked out immediately. Well, maybe it really wasn't that much of an emergency, but I thought I'd see if it would work and it did.

I rushed back and in a short time a bag full sandwiches and a filled coffee urn, plus some buns, were on their way to the scene. Oh, yes, I was on the Utility truck, along with Mrs. Pat Jones and two of the firemen as it was driven to the location of the fire.

What an experience! The hydrant where the water was being pumped from was at the foot of Good Luck rd. and the fire was in an abandoned house at the top of the hill. It took about 2000 feet of hose to get the water where it was needed. And it all had to be pumped uphill. While we were enroute, I could see the smoke coming from the scene, but there were no flames when we got there. The truck that we were in made quite a trip up that hill going around and over the hose on the road.

We served coffee and sandwiches to those that wanted them and finally left the scene at about 6:30. The men arrived back at the firehouse at about 7. More coffee was waiting for them. After a four-and-half hour call, they were tired.

What kind of men are members of a group fighting a fire like this voluntarily? Some are still young men, not finished with their schooling. Four policemen were at the scene, two are D. C. men, and two are Greenbelt men (all residents of our city). Also on the scene were a railroad man, a bus driver and an appliance mechanic.

Mrs. Jones and I were not the only women who rushed to the firehouse to aid the men. There were also Mrs. Dutton, Mrs. Wynkoop, Mrs. Reynolds and Mrs. Wiser. Want to meet these women? Come to the Bazaar on Saturday. They'll be doing their share of work. See you then?

Aquatic Youth Invited To Join the Pool Team

The Greenbelt Swimming Team will meet at the Pool from 8 p.m. to 9 p.m. on Monday through Friday until June 22.

Swimmers, age 8 to 16, interested in competitive swimming and willing to practice regularly are invited to join the team. Contact Warren Leddick.

Jack Trudeau will again coach the team. Trudeau, a physical education major at the University of Maryland, coached the team last summer and directed them during the winter months at the Naval Research Lab Pool.

It has been arranged that fathers will attend and serve as officials at the meets. This group is headed by Mr. Peacock.

4-H Demonstration Day

By Barbara Skolnik

Five of Mrs. Helen Geller's 4-H Cloverettes went to the Frederick J. Sasser High School in Upper Marlboro on May 14 for Demonstration Day. This is the day when 4-H members show what they can do. They are really teaching what they have learned.

The following girls demonstrated: Elise Geller—putting in a skirt zipper, Barbara Geller—under stitching, Eva Garin—sewing up the side seam for a zipper, Jeanette Louk—clean finishing and Barbara Skolnik—marking a hem.

DUPLICATE BRIDGE

Greenbelt bridge players are reminded that the final duplicate game of the 1959-60 year is scheduled for tomorrow, June 3, at the North End School. The game will start at 8 p.m.
