Transfer of Contract Charge Upped From $25 to $100 on GHI Houses

By Al Skolnik

The charge levied by Greenbelt Homes, Inc. to transfer a mutual ownership contract to a new purchaser has been increased from $25 to $100, effective July 1, 1960, it was announced by GHI manager Paul Campbell last week. This raise was voted by the GHI board of directors after receiving a report from the sales committee that the current transfer fee is not enough to cover the cost of processing the paperwork.

Campbell noted that the $100 transfer fee is equivalent to closing fees, which generally run into hundreds of dollars in the case of fee simple homes. He acknowledged, however, that the new fee is considerably in excess of actual processing costs.

In taking this action, the board was influenced by concern over the "profits" that selling members were making on their GHI units and were taking out of Greenbelt. A large percentage of this gain, it is claimed by GHI, results not from the individual's contribution, but from such factors as Greenbelt's planning, new highways, outside physical improvement, and the operations of the corporation.

The last includes comparatively low monthly costs, the high standard of maintenance, water line and heating plant improvements, landscape beautification, and costs of setting up the corporation and running it. All these factors, it was argued, go toward making the housing unit more desirable today.

It was therefore thought that some of the "unearned increment" accruing to a seller leaving Greenbelt might justifiably be recouped by the corporation in order to finance constantly needed improvements in Greenbelt.

The question which management could not answer at this time was whether the increased transfer fee would fall on the buyer or the seller. If the real estate market is such that the seller cannot hike his price to cover the cost of the transfer fee, then he will be in effect sharing part of his "profit" with the corporation. On the other hand, if the seller can hike his selling price, then it will be the buyer, rather than the seller, who will be paying for "past improvements."

Property Lines

Management also announced last week that charts will be prepared and mailed to each member showing the extent of his property lines. At present many members have fenced in or otherwise used for their own purposes land which is not included within their lot lines.

While GHI has no intention of forcing people to give up this additional property at this time, the corporation wants everybody to be on notice that this property remains available to the corporation if needed for other purposes and that members presently using these parcels of land are doing so at the sufferance of the corporation.

City's Bus Operation Slashed By Operation

By Russ Greenbaum

In order to reduce the large annual deficit resulting from the operation of the city bus to Baltimore Boulevard, the city council voted last Friday night to cut sharply the number of bus runs.

The initial motion was presented by Councilman Dave Champion to eliminate the first run in the morning at 6:35 a.m. and the last run in the evening at 7:51 p.m. on the Monday through Friday schedule. A recent survey by the city showed that there were usually only two passengers on this early run and never more than four.

Councilman Edgar Smith objected to compressing the time schedule and suggested that it would be preferable to run the bus once an hour throughout the day. However, it was pointed out that this would not reduce the bus operator's salary, where the greatest economy could be achieved. Champion's motion was passed by a 4-1 vote.

Champion then moved to eliminate Saturday bus service completely. He pointed out that in 80 percent of the Saturday runs the passengers are so few that not even half the cost of the run is met (based on a figure of $2.78 for each round trip operation). He noted that on one recent Saturday there were no passengers at all between 4 p.m. and 7 p.m., the last run.

Smith again strongly objected on the grounds that the city has an obligation to provide some service on Saturday. He again proposed an hourly service on Saturday. Mayor Alan Kistler also expressed his reluctance to cutting the Saturday operation in its entirety, since this would be a hardship for the few who used the bus. The city manager, when asked his opinion, said that he favored hourly trips, and this was enough to defeat the Champion motion by a 3-2 vote.

A new motion by Smith amended by Champion then proposed a Saturday schedule of bus runs at 8, 9 and 10 a.m. and 2:30, 3:30 and 4:30 p.m. This reduced the number of Saturday runs from 15 to 6. The motion was passed unanimously. City manager McDonald also received approval from the council to eliminate the portion of the bus route that went up Northway Extended. This run was inaugurated last year to serve the Woodland Hills and Lakewood developments but has not proved its worth. The bus, when the new schedule begins, will turn up Hillside instead of going up Northway from Crescent.

Greenbelt Loses 6-5 To Beltsville Nine

The Greenbelt Shamrocks lost their first game in the Tri-County League last Sunday by 6-5 at Beltsville and by virtue of rained-out games fell to fourth place. Each team had 10 walks. Beltsville led in hits 7-5 and also led in error 5-3.

Roy Lassiter obtained his fourth win for Beltsville going the distance and Bill Moore suffered the loss. Butch Brown came on in relief in the 5th inning with the score 6-3 in Beltsville's favor and held the winner's scoreless from that point.

Greenbelt meets Burtonsville in a double-header at Braden Field June 12. Game time is 1 p.m. and 3:30 p.m.

AFTERNOON SWIMMING

Beginning next week, on a trial basis, the municipal swimming pool will open at 2 p.m. instead of at 4 p.m. as it has in the past few weeks.

Annual Bike Rodeo Slated for June 15

Greenbelt's second annual bicycle rodeo will be held June 18 at the Center School and is to include bicycle riding boys and girls 12 years of age and under, according to Dr. James Elam of the Mowatt Memorial Methodist Church. Dr. Elam organized last year's event for the church and is promoting this year's enlarged program.

The Methodist Church and the Junior Chamber of Commerce are joint sponsors of the rodeo this year and representatives of these organizations met at the city offices Monday night to make plans. The city officials are helping in this safety promotion effort and the Lions Club is again furnishing inspection stickers.

There are to be trophies for each class, boys and girls, for mechanical condition of the bicycle, knowledge of safety rules, and skill in riding. Riding ability will be tested by such stunts as the slalom or zig-zag, figure 8, balance at slow speed and stop and go tests, etc.

Only licensed, safety inspected bicycles can be entered in the rodeo. Licenses can be secured any Saturday morning between 10 a.m. and 12 noon by applying at the fire station in Centerway. Inspection will also be made at the rodeo.

JAYCEES HOLD ELECTION

The annual election of officers will be the business of the meeting of the Greenbelt Junior Chamber of Commerce on Thursday, June 9 at 8:30 p.m. in the city offices. All members are urged to attend this meeting to elect their officers for the 1960-61 season.

Recreation Committee Elects

The newly formed Recreation Advisory Committee met on Monday and elected Francis White, chairman, Rev. Glenn Samuelson, vice chairman and Elaine Skolnik, secretary.

The committee will meet on Monday, June 13 at 8:30 p.m. at 2-E Northway.

Council Cuts Tax Rate, Approves Surprising 1960 Figure of $1.60

By Al Skolnik

An astonishingly low tax rate for 1960 of $1.60 per $100 assessed valuation—a decrease of 1 cent below last year's tax rate—was approved by the city council at a special meeting on Monday, June 6. This action came as a surprise to many observers, including the councilmen themselves who throughout the two and a half month arduous review of the budget were anticipating a tax increase of 10 to 15 cents.

The last-minute factor which altered the councilmen's thinking was a re-evaluation of revenue from sources other than real property taxes. Originally estimated at $119,773, the council upped this estimate by $7,954, of which $3,700 represented new taxes on businesses.

Other items contributing to the lowered tax rate were net deletions of $7,936 from the $294,733 expenditure budget presented by city manager Charles T. McDonald and a decision by council to utilize $15,070 surplus from last year's operations to meet this year's expenditures. These efforts left $144,000 to be raised from real property taxes on an estimated valuation of $9 million.

The new budget of $286,797, which is effective July 1, 1960, is the first under the new fiscal-year system the city adopted last fall. Expenditures for calendar year 1959 totaled $287,891, but figures for the first part of 1960 have not yet been compiled.

A Liberal Budget

Despite the lowered tax rate, the approved budget retains all the major items asked for by the city manager. These include the addition of one full-time officer, one full-time clerk, and one part-time clerk to the police department, of one skilled laborer to the highway department, and of one skilled laborer and summer-time help to the municipal park and playground department.

The police switchboard will continue to be kept open 24 hours a day. Money was included to continue the stepped-up municipal park maintenance and restoration program, including $1,500 for 5,000 sq. yds. of sod and $500 for beautifying of Center Mall Park. The budget also allows $500 for snow removal and other roadside emergencies and $600 for court marking and maintenance.

The recreation budget continues the regular programs of men's gyms, woman's slimnastics, basketball league, bowling league, arts and crafts, and holiday and summer activities. Assistance is provided to the athletic teams for umpires, scorers, referees, and to the band for instruction. Swimming instructors and a swimming team coach are also included.

The approved budget, however, does not include any capital improvement items. Council has pending before it an amending ordinance to the city charter which would be nothing to prevent the capital improvement budget through a bond issue or bank note. If the change is adopted, there would permit the financing of a council from initiating such a program this year since the cost of financing such indebtedness could be postponed until the next tax year. McDonald also indicated that there may be some surplus from the six-month interim budget which would permit a start on capital improvements this year.

The approved budget also does not take into account any expenditure for interest or retirement of bonds for the new building program.

Budget Reductions

The major reductions in the budget were achieved through reducing bus service operations by $2,700, services and supplies by $1,550, and conferences and training by $1,225. Additional book savings of $2,400 were made by a decision to meet the expenses of a planning commission, a detailed audit, and a possible referendum from miscellaneous funds.

The economies in the bus service between Greenbelt and the Baltimore Boulevard were effected by eliminating the first and last run on weekdays and reducing the number of Saturday runs from 15 to 6 (see article elsewhere for details). The bus budget, which had been originally estimated at $15,200 by the city manager, was thus reduced to $12,500. The council, in approving a $3,000 deficit for bus operations, conceded that there has to be some subsidy to provide a needed service for Greenbelt residents.

Trash Collection

In passing the 1960-1961 budget, the council took into consideration the request of Greenbelt Homes, Inc. that such items as cleaning the commercial center and leaf collections be not charged against trash collection fees. The council moved that separate accounts be set up for these items and that the amount of $6,100 be transferred from trash collection (including supervision) to cover these activities.

The effect of this move was to reduce the amount chargeable against trash collection from $46,600 to $40,500. By coincidence, this is the amount expected to be collected in the coming fiscal year from trash collection service fees.

To cover the expenses of cleaning the streets and sidewalks of the Center Mall, the budget calls for $1,669 to be raised by a service charge against the businesses in the Center.

Another new revenue-producing item is expected to be a personal property (inventory) tax on businesses in town, based on county assessment values. This tax is expected to yield $2,000.

Finally, the council estimated that revenue from State-shared taxes—especially income, race track, and gasoline—in fiscal year 1961 will be some $2,200 higher than anticipated and from license permits, and rents some $1,500 higher. It was also assumed that swimming pool income will be $600 higher than estimated by the city manager.

Mrs. Muir's Youthful Bards Recite Compose Verses at Library Club

By Elizabeth Hage, County Library Director

Fourth, fifth and sixth graders in Greenbelt, Md., not only read modern verse, they write it. They are encouraged to do so by Mrs. Marjorie Muir, Librarian at the Greenbelt branch of the Prince George's County Memorial Library.

Two years ago she decided to see if children who liked reading poetry couldn't be stimulated to write it. She founded a poetry club which sponsored a bi-weekly poetry hour.

At a recent session Susan Jackson, fifth grader, at Center Elementary School, recited this verse composed for the Greenbelt library poetry hour.

"Poetry is a stream
Rushing over stones
Or maybe like a
Soft wind blowing through
The Robin's home."

While few of the children's poems display genius, many of them have the freshness and spontaneity of Susan's verse, said Mrs. Muir.

The idea of the poetry club caught on and the first year (1958-59) 30 children joined, boys as well as girls. This year 50 children signed up for it at the beginning of the season. They don't all come at once, average attendance is about 15. Girls predominate but there are a number of boys who attend regularly, Mrs. Muir said.

Poetry is readily appreciated by children; in fact, it is their natural language, the librarian said.

"Children have the same capacity for wonder and spontaneity that great poets have," she said. "Their response to the seasons of the year, to nature and to people, generally inspire their first efforts," she added.

According to Miss Louise MacDiarmid, coordinator of children's services for the county library, Mrs. Muir has many qualities that helped insure the success of the poetry club. These include the fact that she is perceptive and patient, willing to let the children unfold at their own pace, and most important, she knows and loves poetry herself.

Mrs. Muir says it is important for children to have a place to come where they can feel at ease and be quiet. The club has developed a regular procedure. The first half hour is given over to poetry appreciation.

Children read favorite selections from anthologies or Mrs. Muir may read aloud to them or they may watch a film such as "The Red Balloon," or "White Mane."

Then a candle to inspiration is lit by one of the three club officers. The candle is a great trick one that changes color as it burns and lasts all season.

For the next half hour the children read or compose their own poems. All participation is voluntary, no one is asked to do anything. The children are enthusiastic about the club.

Benise Unger, 9, fourth grader at Center Elementary School, said she missed only two sessions when she had scarlet fever.

"I remember the first poem I ever tried to write, way last winter," she recalled. "I thought and thought about it all day and then right after supper the rest of it came to me," she said.

Her poem began, "Snowman is so very fat, snowman wears a tall black hat."

Ruth Amberg, 9, fourth grader at Center School, said she liked being with other people who enjoyed poetry too.

"My father helped teach me some poems by heart and how to recite them before we had the poetry club," Ruth said. "Here at the poetry hour we feel at ease because we are with other children who like poetry, too," she explained.

The community of Greenbelt is proud of the poetry hour. Club members have produced two anthologies of verse, the second due to be published by Prince Georges County Memorial Library the first week in June.

The effects of the club extend beyond its own membership and affect their school and home life, Mrs. Muir said.

"One family started a poetry hour at home and one teacher reported that in her class children were asking for poems instead of stories to be read aloud to them," she said.

Both Miss MacDiarmid and Mrs. Muir think poetry hours could be started by other community libraries. The children, too, would like to spread the word.

For these youngsters have developed a love of poetry and the ability to distinguish the genuine from sentimental doggerel. As Susan Jackson put it:

"Really lovely poetry
Is hard to put into words."

Mrs. Greenbelt at Home

By Vivian Greenbaum

If we are being observed by other planets, we must present a puzzle to them. I can imagine some Martian sociologist writing: "Although there appear to be two sexes on earth, there is little discernible difference between them. Earth people all wear long, two-legged garments, emit smoke from their mouths, and are carried about in vehicles with four wheels. Both sexes appear to be preoccupied with the care of children, whom they push around in smaller vehicles."

For the benefit of any Martian sociologist who might have a lens powerful enough to read this and brains enough to decipher it, I would like to explain the difference between the sexes. It's true that both sexes take care of children, but women's children are the ones pushed around in the small vehicles, and the men's children are the large vehicles with four wheels. Although each has custody of the other's child sometimes, neither understands the care and feeding of it.

All of these children require check-ups at times. Let's follow a mother as she takes her child in for one. She understands her role completely. She is to give information and to apply a stranglehold to the child when necessary. She does not venture a diagnosis or a remedy; neither does she follow the doctor around and peer into each ear and down the throat with him. The man, on the other hand, feels that no one understands his child the way he does. He would prefer to treat it at home. If the case is beyond him and he must take it to an expert, he hovers anxiously around and breathes down the mechanic's neck as together. They search out the trouble.

As I said, each sex occasionally has charge of the other's child. When the man returns the woman's child, does she examine it for bruises and bumps? Well, not very often, and usually only after the child himself reports that "Daddy let me fall down a man-hole." But when the woman returns the man's child, he goes out and examines it from end to end with a magnifying glass.

Then there is the feeding of the children. Both sexes are completely ignorant of the feeding of the other's child. The woman will come home and say, "You mean I was gone all morning, and you didn't even give him a glass of milk?" The man will say, "You drove that car around all day and didn't put gas in! Oil I don't expect. But gas, yet! What do you think a car runs on-air?"

The greatest concern to the man is that, unlike the woman, he cannot bring his child into the house at night and tuck it tenderly away. A garage is a poor substitute—so cold and bare. One of these days an enterprising architect is going to design a house with a door wide enough to permit the car to be driven right into the livingroom. And then won't the Martian sociologists have a field day?

"Over half of my service business comes through the Yellow Pages" says Milton L. Klein, President, A.C. Electric Co., Washington.

Mr. Klein founded A.C. Electric Co. in 1945, as a one-man one-car operation. Today he has 27 employees, with 14 service trucks, 4 company cars for estimating, and one station wagon. From the start, Mr. Klein has advertised in the Yellow Pages. "As far as I am concerned, it is the only advertising there is!" he says.

Why does Mr. Klein feel the Yellow Pages are such a good investment? His reasons:

Universal local coverage—in the areas you serve, the Yellow Pages carry messages into almost every home and office!

The message is timely—always there when the people you want to reach want to reach you!

Great for new business—since newcomers to your community almost always make first contacts with local stores and services through the Yellow Pages!

Mr. Klein reports that "if it weren't for the Yellow Pages, my service business would be doing only half as well as it is today. They have proven to be the most profitable means of advertising, with the greatest results!"
