City, Co-op Dicker On Transfer of Land

Greenbelt Consumer Services, Inc. (Co-op) has offered to deed to the city the land the Co-op owns behind the Center mall. Known as Parcel #6, provided certain conditions are met. The city has countered with a proposal that includes its own conditions. The counter-proposal, prepared by City Manager Charles McDonald was approved by the city council with minor changes at its meeting last week.

The Co-op has offered the parcel for use by the city as a parking lot or for the erection of the proposed new municipal building to house the city offices. However, the city has refused to accept any restriction on how the land might be used.

The city agreed without change to the Co-op request that the city construct a road connecting the East and West parking lots and also an additional parking lot behind the Co-op store. This work would be completed within two years, with a portion to be done in the first year.

The Co-op asked to be exempted from providing additional parking if it should decide to add to its store building and also sought exemption from present and future levies of special taxes for clean-up, etc. The city said it would not provide additional parking for building additions except as agreed at the time of the transfer of the deed and that it could not consider absolving anyone from special levies and assessments in exchange for land.

Another condition proposed by the Co-op was an option to buy back any portion of Parcel 6 at the current assessed valuation if the city should sell the land in the future. The city said that it would require a clear title to the land, but that such an option could be included in the deed. The Co-op, in exercising its option, would have to match any acceptable proposal received by the city.

UN Trip Planned

Greenbelt citizens—old or young—are invited to study the United Nations on a charter bus trip Friday, November 24, at 7:30 a.m. Starting from Twin Pines Savings & Loan Association, which is sponsoring and subsidizing the trip to promote world peace, the group will be accompanied by an experienced trip leader who will comment on points of interest along the way. Luncheon will be served at the UN Building before the tour, and conference may be arranged for a special interest groups in various phases of the UN, such as UNICEF or UNESCO.

Dinner near Times Square and a walking tour of Chinatown will conclude the visit to New York City. The bus will return to Greenbelt and deliver tour members to their courts by 11 p.m.

Included in the cost of the trip will be two meals, fare, and tour of the UN. Adults and students are invited to participate and sign up at Twin Pines office. Only forty can be accommodated.

There will be a Thanksgiving Dance for teenagers on Wednesday, November 22, at 8 p.m., at the Youth Center. Party dresses will be worn by the girls and suit jackets by the boys. Music will be provided by the B.J.'s. There will be an admission charge.

Forsees Expansion Soon of News Review

Al Skolnik has been re-elected president of the Greenbelt Cooperative Publishing Association for a third term. The Association sponsors the GREENBELT NEWS REVIEW, which is now entering its 25th year of publication. Other officers named were Virginia Beauchamp, vice-president; Bernice Kastner, secretary; and Harry Zubkoff, treasurer. Filling out the 5-man governing board is Bess Halperin, who is the only newcomer to the board.

Russ Greenbaum was reappointed editor—a post he has held since February 1, 1960. In his report to the membership, Greenbaum observed that the newspaper, like the city itself, is on the verge of a period of expansion.

"As the population and activities of Greenbelt grow," he said, "a need for a larger newspaper is sure to develop." Even today we find that many news items have to be held up because of a lack of news space in our weekly paper. We may shortly have to consider seriously the possibility of publishing a 6-page or 8-page paper on a regular basis."

Such an expansion in the size of the paper would present many problems, Greenbaum stated. In the first place, there is a question of financing. Current advertising hardly pays the way for the present 4-page paper. Fortunately, money raised through past and future fund drives may ease the financial problem.

In the second place, Greenbaum continued, there is the question of staffing. The present staff is overtaxed merely getting out a 4-page paper week-in and week-out.

Beltway Construction Speeded Up; City Expressway Hub by 1964

Plans for speeding up the construction of the Capitol Beltway in Maryland, announced last week by the State Roads Commission, will make Greenbelt by 1964, or soon after, the hub of a master interstate expressway system that will enable local residents to drive hundreds of miles north, east, south and west on limited access highways. The Beltway is being completed two years earlier than previously planned.

Silvers to Address Local CD Hearings

County Civil Defense Director R. Hal Silvers will speak at the local public hearing on civil defense, to be held on Monday, November 27, at 8 p.m. in the Youth Center. Silvers will describe the civil defense network, which includes federal, state, county, and municipal agencies. He will analyze in detail the role of local municipalities. A question and answer period will follow.

Silvers, a Greenbelt resident, was scheduled to deliver another address on November 27. Despite the fact that this engagement was made many months ago, he has arranged to send a deputy to represent him, in order that he himself may be present at the Greenbelt hearing.

City Planners Veto GCS Station Access

The Advisory Planning Board has recommended to the city council that it turn down the request of Greenbelt Consumer Services, Inc. for use of city-owned park land as an access to the service station on Southway. The Board cited increased traffic hazards and the inconvenience to adjoining neighbors as the basis for its decision.

GCS had requested permission to extend the North entrance to its gas station 50-70 feet onto city-owned park land. The new road construction on Southway had made it inconvenient for motorists using the gas station to return to Greenbelt or get into Washington via the Parkway. The GCS proposal would have made an entrance and exit adjacent to the crossover in the road.

The Board pointed out that construction of a new entrance would increase the number of traffic cross-over movements from 3 to 11. The additional hazards, the Board concluded, would outweigh any possible inconvenience to Greenbelt residents who patronize the gas station and to GCS.

The Board also observed that since the park land was dedicated by GCS's landlord to the city in 1956 for the purpose of providing a screened buffer, it would now be an act of bad faith to permit the land to be used for other than park. The inconvenience to adjoining residents could not be adequately overcome, the Board said, by any screening which GCS could provide, because the plan proposes to reduce the buffer area to an inadequate size for proper screening.

Thanksgiving Service

The Eleventh Annual Thanksgiving Day Service will be held this year in the Jewish Community Center at 10 a.m. Participating churches are the Mowatt Memorial Methodist Church, Greenbelt Community Church, and the Jewish Community Center, with the Services alternating in the various buildings. The speaker this year will be the Rev. Lyle Harper of the Methodist Church. The entire community is invited to this special Thanksgiving Day Service.

Greenbelt is already on the Baltimore-Washington Parkway, which now extends to a point several miles north of Baltimore via the Harbor Tunnel. The Northeast Expressway now under construction will connect this road with the Delaware Memorial Bridge and the New Jersey Turnpike. When completed, this thoroughway will carry Greenbelters to the heart of New York City or to upper New York state or west to Chicago, requiring them only to pass through toll gates.

The Capitol Beltway, now under construction just below the city, will permit expressway travel due east all the way to Annapolis and the Chesapeake Bay Bridge via the John Hanson Highway, west to North Silver Spring (Georgia Avenue and Forest Glen Road) in about a third of the time now required, or over to the National Pike which goes north to Frederick and the Pennsylvania state line.

The Beltway will also completely bypass the District and enable local motorists to cross into Virginia via the new Woodrow Wilson (Jones Point) Bridge and connect with the Virginia section of the Beltway. However, when the Anacostia Freeway, which also connects with the Woodrow Wilson Bridge, is completed, Greenbelters will find this to be a shorter express route (via the Kenilworth Expressway) to Virginia than the Beltway.

The 1964 completion date for the Beltway is based on the just-announced construction plans through the end of 1962. Already under construction just outside the city is the huge cloverleaf which will connect the Beltway with the Washington-Baltimore Parkway and Greenbelt Road. Bids for the construction of the section between Greenbelt and the John Hanson Highway (Annapolis Expressway) will be advertised on April 2. The state has promised that the entire section between Greenbelt and the Woodrow Wilson Bridge will be completed by the end of 1962.

In the other direction, bids for the construction of the bridges overpassing Edmonston Road (just north of Greenbelt Junior High), Baltimore Boulevard, New Hampshire Avenue, and Northwest Branch creek will be advertised next July, while the Greenbelt Road overpass will be advertised in September. The section of the Beltway between University Boulevard and North Silver Spring is already completed. Construction of the section between Baltimore Boulevard and New Hampshire Avenue will be advertised in December.

Presumably, construction of the remaining sections of the Beltway will get underway in 1963, making the 1964 date a reasonable estimate for final completion. The Virginia section of the Beltway is well along and should be completed earlier than that date.

Peace Corps Exams

The Peace Corps examinations will be held in Baltimore, Md., at 8:30 a.m. promptly November 28 and 29 for those in this area who wish to apply. Postmaster Edward C. Kaighn was informed today.

Peace Corps posters, giving this information, will be displayed in the local post office on the bulletin boards.

Two CD View Points

To the Editor:

I read with great interest the report in the NEWS REVIEW of the proposals and comments on civil defense made at the City Council meeting of Nov. 6. It is heartening to see such interest in this very important subject. The article in the NEWS REVIEW left me with the impression that two somewhat opposing viewpoints were presented; one advocating a program whereby Greenbelt's citizens may prepare themselves to cope with possible future disasters, whether natural or man-made; and the other advocating a program which would work for a better way to insure peace, deemphasizing the desirability of preparing for any disaster.

It seems to me that both proposals have great merit and are not contradictory, but complimentary to one another. There is no question that one of the greatest problems confronting mankind at present is how to maintain peace and to lessen world tensions so that the chances of a war, accidental or purposeful, are decreased. Unfortunately, at present, no well-informed person can guarantee that a war will not break out in the near future. The chances happily appear to be remote, but with the tensions between the great powers at such a high pitch because of situations like Berlin and South Viet-Nam, who's to know what would happen if the Russian or U. S. radar sets mistake a meteor for a missile, or if one of our SAC pilots becomes beserk while on an air alert heading toward Russia and releases his thermonuclear load, or the Russian or American leaders feel that their only chance for survival is to strike the other country first? I repeat, the chances are remote, but then who can offer a guarantee?

It seems clear to me that at least two things must be done SIMULTANEOUSLY. One is to do as much as we can to lessen the chances of war. Besides supporting the United Nations in its efforts to effectively lessen the world's tensions, we should also support in any way possible the efforts of the recently established U. S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, which is also concerned with lessening world tension. We should encourage organizations with which we are associated to invite qualified speakers on the topic of arms control and disarmament.

Secondly, since at present the chances of war are not at zero, we should do all that we can to protect ourselves against this possibility. We should carefully consider, investigate, inform ourselves, and decide on the best Civil Defense system of shelters consistent with our means. A community effort appears best because then we can combine our resources and talents to do a better job than can be done by any individual. Besides, a community program is in the best tradition of our democratic way of life, which maintains that it is the duty of government to protect its citizens equally regardless of means.

We have all heard it maintained that future war will be so destructive and horrible that the world will be destroyed, and therefore why bother about trying to protect oneself? Even if one could survive with protection, the remains of the world would be so desolate and terrible that one would have been better off to have perished in the war. The difficulty with that reasoning is that it assumes that life is black or white. We all have had bitter experiences in life emphasizing how naive that reasoning is. Life is black or white, a war will come and the world will be destroyed, or a war will not come and we

For Florida

To The Editor:

I am a former resident of Greenbelt (for 23 years) now living in Port Charlotte, Florida, since late July, 1961. I have read with considerable interest, and some resentment, the adverse report presented in your issue of November 2 under the heading "BELL'S CAN'T STAND FLORIDA; RETURN HOME," which depicted Port Charlotte as "no place for retired people" and cited a variety of evils relating to life in Port Charlotte.

One of the chief requirements for successful retirement away from the "home" community is summed up in the booklet, "Facts About Florida Retirement," published by the Retirement Department, Florida Development Commission, as follows:

"Inability to adjust to CHANGE keeps many people from all the rewards of retirement. A move to Florida or anywhere else usually means a break from family and friends. You should be emotionally prepared to adjust to this break, and plan to take an interest in making new friends."

In our own case, the "break" from family, neighbors, and friends in Greenbelt was not easy; but we have found wonderfully congenial neighbors in Port Charlotte (mostly "retired people," incidentally), which helps tremendously to offset the natural loneliness for family and former acquaintances in or near Greenbelt.

I doubt that any of the 6,000 or more residents of Port Charlotte would say that everything here is absolutely perfect; but can that be said of ANY community--e.g., Greenbelt? True, the sun was intensely hot in the middle of the day during August and part of September; but the heat and humidity were offset to a considerable degree by cooling breezes. The nights were pleasantly cool for sleeping without benefit of fans or air-conditioning, which was decidedly different from our experience in Greenbelt. We find living costs (i.e., groceries, etc.) no higher than in Greenbelt and in some instances even less, especially if one watches the newspaper "ads" for "specials"--for example: 5 lbs. sugar, 17¢; coffee (standard labels), 28¢ per lb.; Land-O-Lakes butter, 38¢ per lb.; 5 lbs. flour (Gold Medal), 29¢; etc., etc. Other features not found in Greenbelt are: no State income taxes, and an exemption for tax purposes of the first $5,000 assessed valuation on homes (permanent residents only).

On the whole, I would say (contrary to the statement in your article) that Port Charlotte is a good place for retired people who start out with the proper attitude toward breaking away from family and friends and who are willing to make friends among the many fine people who have come to Port Charlotte to spend their retirement years.

Since your paper has in the past published many letters expressing differing viewpoints on various subjects, I sincerely trust that you will find space in your next issue for this "rebuttal" to the article prominently displayed in your issue of November 2.

Best regards to all of our Greenbelt friends and former neighbors!

Respectfully,
Maye M. Horstman

Last Friday's seven-table duplicate bridge game saw a lopsided victory in one direction and a dead heat in the other direction. Frances Sanders and Ann Pisano ran away from their East - West opposition, winning by a margin of seven points over their nearest rivals, Simon & Tina Pristoop. The North-South race ended in a draw between the Sid Barnett - Jack Sanders combine and the mother-and-son team of Bea and Al Skolnik. Because of the Thanksgiving holiday, the next game has been postponed to Friday, December 8.

Police News

The office at St. Hugh's Parochial School reportedly was entered on Monday night November 6. Signs of vandalism in various parts of the building included a number of partially-burned papers.

Police are still receiving complaints about the abuse of parked cars in 17 court of Ridge Road, with the blame placed on youngsters waiting in and around the garages for the morning school bus. An effort will be made to relocate the bus stop.

A 48-cup electric percolator, unclaimed since last July, when it was found in the woods by police, has been identified as the property of the kitchen at St. Hugh's. Two other appliances, found at the same time, are still unclaimed.

Abramowitz Plays

On Sunday, November 12, the Potomac School of Virginia, together with several private musical organizations, presented cellist Jonathan Abramowitz of Greenbelt in recital, performing works by Vitali, Locatelli, Prokofiev, and Hindemith.

A large gathering of music students and teachers were in attendance to hear the young artist display the virtuosity that won him the coveted first-prize award in the National Society of Arts and Letters competition early this year.

Young Abramowitz, a ninth grader at Greenbelt Junior High School, has been invited to play this winter for members of the international diplomatic circle; he will also give a public recital at the Meridian Hill International house this spring.

St. Hugh's CD Program

A committee of parents and teachers of St. Hugh's parochial school is at work on a civil defense program to protect the 440 pupils enrolled there, in the event of nuclear attack. At the sounding of a "take shelter" alarm, pupils and teachers will evacuate to the corridors, which will be stocked with food, water, and blankets. Carpenters have already begun boarding up the corridor windows and building wooden covers for classroom doors and transoms.

Sister Laurentia, Principal of the school, commented: "We feel that it is moral obligation to prepare to safeguard our children, as far as we can."

The Home and School Association of St. Hugh's, a group which is similar to the PTA in public schools, is carrying out the details of the program.

The Greenbelt Democratic Club will hold its first Annual Thanksgiving dance at the Greenbelt American Legion on Friday, November 24, 9 to 1. Music will be furnished by the Belle Tones.

Tickets may be had by calling Frank Lastner, GR 4-4567; Ed Smith, GR 4-5043; or Bud Dean, GR 4-6086.

JCC Brunch

Dr. David Stern will speak at a Sunday morning brunch at the Jewish Community Center of Prince Georges County on November 19 at 10 a.m. His topic will be "Archaeology in Israel."

Jaycees Incorporate

At their regular monthly meeting on November 9, the Greenbelt Jaycees voted to incorporate the organization, with member Howard Chasanow as legal council.

The Jaycees will also hold their annual Food Bonanza at a date to be announced.

The regular monthly meeting was highlighted by an orientation program, presented by Jaycees from Frederick, Laurel, Catonsville, and Rieterstown. Two new members, Joe Lasick and Tom Myrick, were installed.

The next meeting to be held in December at the College Inn, will feature a report on the annual membership drive by the two team captains, John Huffman and Warren Leddick.

Teen Club Wins

The Greenbelt Teen Club has been selected by PARENTS' MAGAZINE as one of the youth groups in the United States and Canada to receive its Youth Group Achievement Award for 1960-61. The Certificate of Honor awarded by the magazine was presented to the Teen Club by the Lions Club at its meeting last week.

The awards have been presented by the magazine since 1954 to young people for constructive service performed in their community.

Two CD View Points

will lead a happy peaceful life. Our life today doesn't fit into this naive division, so how can we expect the future to do so? No one can maintain that we have either war or peace at present. We have something in between, called a "cold war." In the same way, how can anyone maintain that a future nuclear war will mean the end of this world? As an example, the following could conceivably happen. Russia mounts a nuclear attack on our country, but before many missiles can be launched and their bomber fleets put into full operation we strike back and destroy their striking power. Only a few of our military and missile bases and cities are hit, and then with only a fraction of the intended bombs. These target areas are only partially destroyed. Then, perhaps against their pious hopes, many are not killed who would have been in a successful all-out attack. Instead these are maimed or their children orphaned, whereas with a shelter system much of this catastrophe would have been prevented. The United States, not being greatly damaged, recovers completely in a few years.

No one can predict the future. It is our challenge and our duty to improve our own and our children's and their children's chances of survival, come what may!

Sincerely,
Ed Stern
