Students Present Design Plans For Elderly Housing Project

by Mary Colombo

Assuming that the housing project for the elderly is actually built, what should it look like? How should it be set on the Ridge Road site? Can the building be made to fit in well with other buildings in the city? What kind of rooms should be in it? These are the sorts of questions citizens and those responsible for choosing the final design plan must answer before the building can actually be built.

Answers to questions like these were recently given by a group of architectural students from the University of Maryland at a presentation given before a group of citizens at the end of May. Although several students did plans, only two were actually presented then. One was given by William C. Stratton, 25-A Parkway, a life-time resident of Greenbelt, and the other was given by Joseph W. Beagle, a part-time employee of the city. Summaries of the other plans were given by one of the professors from the university for students who were unable to attend.

The idea for a presentation regarding the elderly housing project came from Stratton. As one of the requirements for his fifth and final year of architectural studies, Stratton had to present a thesis which included a building design for a specific site. His interest in the city of Greenbelt led him to pick the elderly housing project for his topic. A teacher at Maryland, hearing of Stratton's project, decided to give the same assignment to members of one of his classes.

In creating the presentations the students all were required to work with the same 3-acre site on Ridge Road. They were to design a building of 100 units to be inhabited by "elderly people" (Minimum age will probably be around sixty.) who are not incapacitated to such a degree that they can not take care of themselves.

Another major consideration was that, although a building of this size and function would be unique in the city, it would have to fit in with the original city plans as well as the buildings that are in the city now.

There the similarities ended. As might be expected, each design differed in appearance and in emphasis.

Stratton's building is L-shaped. Taking advantage of the sloping nature of the site, he designed a building that is four stories near the street and five or six stories high at the corner furthest away from the street. His building has 60 one-bedroom units and 40 efficiencies. It has two elevators. Each floor has a large glassed-in lounge area which overlooks the woods. On the lower floors are located the laundry room and a

Views on Issues Sought

Fifth Congressional District citizens and civic and political clubs are invited to present their views on current issues for consideration at the Democratic National Convention in July, announced Leo E. Green, chairman of the district's delegation to the convention and secretary for the Maryland delegation. The hearing is scheduled for Monday, June 28 at 7:30 p.m. in the auditorium of the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission building, 6600 Kenilworth Avenue, Riverdale.

Green said he hoped that a large number would attend the hearing and voice their concerns. Those not wishing to attend the hearing are invited to express their views in writing in care of Leo E. Green, 3123 Belair Drive, Bowie, Maryland 20715.

common dining room. Beside the building is a parking lot for about 35 cars. He explained that for an elderly housing project, fewer parking spaces are required than for a regular housing project.

Since fewer residents are expected to have cars, how then do those without accomplish such things as shopping, recreation, entertainment? Stratton's feeling is that the city of Greenbelt offers a lot to supply these needs. Therefore, provisions would not necessarily have to be made for them in the project itself. He feels that residents could use the city center facilities for shopping, recreation, library, classes at the Youth Center, etc. Some residents, he assumes, could walk. For others who find walking up the slope from the center too difficult he proposes using golf carts. They could be used by residents of the building for a small fee to provide transportation to and from the city center.

Beagle and the group working with him had another idea, however. Their idea was to provide a self sufficient environment for elderly residents. As a result, this group's building was slightly larger than Stratton's. It, too, included a mix of one-bedroom and efficiency units. However, there was a laundry room on each floor and more community space. There were separate rooms for such things as cards, pool, lounging, etc. A ramp led from the second level to the garden and the woods.

Cost naturally is a critical issue in choosing a design for this building. The students did present cost estimates. However, they admit that, although they are in line with area construction costs for similar units now, the figures they used would quite likely be out of date by the time construction actually begins.

It is, of course, much too early to tell what the final elderly housing project will look like or, if, in fact, it will be built. However, as long as housing for the elderly in Greenbelt is being considered, it is not too early for citizens to think about what kind of building could be put on that site that would meet the requirements for housing and be an architectural asset to the city as well.

DEMOCRATIC CLUB

All Greenbelt Democrats are invited to attend an organizational meeting on Fri., Jun. 18, at 8 p.m. in the meeting room at Greenbriar.

Outstanding Citizen Award

Now that Memorial Day has come and gone, can Labor Day be far behind? It's time to start thinking about your choice for Greenbelt's Outstanding Citizen for the 1976 award. But please remember that unless a person is nominated for the award, that person cannot be considered. Also remember that nominees are judged on their volunteer service to the community, not service rendered in connection with their work. Tell all. Competition is keen and the judges need all the background information to come to a decision. The deadline for nominations is August 7. Mail nominations to Ruth Dee, 39-J Ridge Rd., Greenbelt, Md. 20770. For additional information, Call Mrs. Dee at 474-2973.

Long Range Comment

by Alexander Barnes

The GHI Long Range Planning Committee deserves the thanks of the membership for having worked long and hard in developing a workmanlike plan for the first phase of this report ordered by the membership. It appears to take a reasoned approach to improve the physical plant with a minimum of disruption to the dwellers of the units.

We moved to Greenbelt the first day of 1966, the day we were married. We liked the concepts of a planned community and co-operatives. We weren't here just until we could afford to move somewhere else. In the past decade we have learned more about the creation of Greenbelt. To summarize the problems encountered in bringing the Greenbelt concept to fruition, it was a miracle it happened at all; it was an even greater miracle that a physical plant was laid down which tended to continue the spirit of community as well as it has. Greenbelt's fathers were intent in building a community, not just putting up buildings.

But drastic changes have occurred since Greenbelt's beginning which appear to have for the most part tended to cause that spirit to dwindle.

Unfortunately, the GHI-LRP, while giving diligent attention in their report to revitalizing the dwellings did so without addressing the issue of revitalizing GHI as a community.

While the GHI-LRP Report states as a "Basic philosophy" that "... the present concept and form of our community should be retained", we would ask if the following items could be, and should be improved upon:

1. In the last election there were only 13 candidates for 12 posts; only 20% of the members voted; the leading candidate got only 15% of the potential vote; the annual membership meeting gathered fewer than 100 members.
2. The Board has been frequently unable to get the membership to vote for needed budget increases which the Board has said are essential and sometimes critical.
3. Some members feel a w/they separation between themselves and the Board.

If a long range planning committee doesn't address those issues, who will?

In addition the GHI-LRP should have asked the members the following questions and adopted plans to implement the answers:

1. Should GHI take steps to increase integration by race, income, and age? (Now, such segregation puts many of our children on buses).
2. Should GHI become a condominium? (Would better financing offset the costs?)
3. Should GHI develop a method to charge each member for the heat he uses? (That's already being done in the Larger Homes.)
4. Is 1609 the optimum number of units?
5. Are there better ways to structure GHI organizationally? Would clusters and villages such as are found in Reston improve member communications?

Parental comments have been added only to show that the ideas are not completely unreasonable. And other members may have other equally valid considerations. If a long range planning committee doesn't address those questions, who will?

Referendum Likely on Senior Citizen Housing, Council Tends Housekeeping

by Bob McGee

In contrast to the heavy special meeting on the budget the preceding week, the regular Greenbelt City Council meeting for Monday, June 14, 1975 was light, sweet, and nicely short—very easy on tired citizens, councilmen and sometime reporters. Most of the business related to pulling loose budget ends together and giving kudos to hard-working, citizen volunteers.

Both Mayor Gil Weidenfeld and the City Council were presented Certificates of Appreciation by Mark Bernstein of Prince George's County Association for Retarded Citizens for their support of the recent bike-a-thon for the retarded which was co-sponsored by the City Recreation Department. In turn, the mayor and council presented certificates to Bill Wheatley, who rode the longest distance—83 miles, and to Josea White, who raised the most money—over $500.

The Council received a letter of resignation from James Parochetti, and verbal indication from Fred Ford that he did not wish to be re-appointed, to the Park and Recreation Advisory Board. On motion by Councilman Charles Schwan, council voted to send both gentlemen letters of commendation and thanks for their many dedicated hours of service to the Greenbelt community. Also on motion by Schwan, council voted to appoint Darwin Beck as Chairman of the Community Relations Advisory Board. On motions by Councilmen Richard Castaldi and Richard Pilski, Wayne Spong and Ronald Ott—both of whom had given prior indication of interest—were reappointed to PRAB for additional three-year terms. This still leaves four vacancies on this board, and there are additional vacancies on other boards for which council is still reviewing resumes for the purpose of making appointments.

Following a motion by Councilman Thomas White, and considerable discussion, council unanimously voted to approve the draft administrative agreement concerning air quality planning for the National Capital Interstate Air Quality Control Region with the exceptions requested by White. These consisted of urging the Metropolitan Council of Governments to expand the planning group to 15 elected officials, to be selected from the official governmental jurisdictions, plus one or two additional technical members from each of the three major jurisdictions. This would provide for heavier involvement of elected officials than COG was recommending for this important policy-making body.

Referendum Likely

At the outset of the meeting, council received a petition from Margaret Zanin requesting, in essence, that the housing for the elderly issue be taken to referendum through the vehicle of putting the proposed Charter Amendment (to permit the city to enter into contract agreements for 40 years, instead of the present 10 year limitation) on the ballot. The approximately 640 signatures are about 50% more than are needed, so that even if all of the signatures are not authenticated by the City Clerk, Gudrun Mills, it would appear that this matter will finally be acted on by all of the voters of Greenbelt. Council also received a letter from Viola Keer requesting that voting machines be used if the housing for the elderly issue goes before the voters in referendum.

Miscellaneous

In other business, council unanimously approved a resolution amending the city's pay plan to provide for an average 4% cost-of-living increase for city employees. It passed an ordinance empowering the city to issue tax anticipation notes and selling said notes to the Suburban Trust Co. as a cheaper form of borrowing to carry the city through the summer period when it annually experiences a shortage in cash-flow until major revenues for the new fiscal year are realized in September. It also passed an ordinance to amend the City Code permitting the city to levy personal property taxes on unincorporated businesses, as it now may do on incorporated ones. Council also deferred discussion on the development plan for parcel 7 to the next meeting, at which time it agreed to also consider Pilski's request for consideration of the development of a recreation complex on the landfill as an alternative to plans for active recreation development on Parcel 7.

Weidenfeld requested city manager, James Giese, to prepare some "ballpark figures" on the landfill and other possible options in preparation for that discussion. There was also some lively discussion relative to acceptance of the Advisory Planning Board Report #175 on the Baltimore-Washington Parkway which will be reviewed in a future article. Finally, council unanimously set the compensation for the City Manager, effective July 1, 1976, at $27,000 per year.

E. Roosevelt Tech Center Acceptance Letters Ready

by Mary Lou Williamson

Students who have applied to attend the Eleanor Roosevelt Technical Center and have been accepted should hear by early next week. Roosevelt principal Robert Ogden told the News Review "all our screening work has been finished. We are now waiting for an OK from the superintendent's office to go ahead. We hope to send out acceptance letters on Friday." Staffing is 50% complete; interviewing continues. The remainder of the staff will be accepted later in the summer after a firm enrollment figure has been arrived at. Ogden doubts, for example, whether all 400 slots will be filled under the open enrollment provision. The pupil accounting office is reviewing applications to be certain there is no tipping of racial balance in the schools represented by applicants. Also, students may have applied both to the Tech Center and through open enrollment.

Moving

Moving date is June 21 for Ogden and his staff — the day the temporary phone system is to be installed in the new building. The first load of furniture was delivered Tuesday, June 15, and deliveries will now continue on a daily basis. Open house, however, must await the Board of Education's acceptance of the building for occupancy — and probably won't occur before August. Most of the building looks finished, said Ogden, but there is still a lot to be done. The electrical wireup, for example, is behind schedule.

Colors

School colors are again causing problems. Aqua and white were selected in May by students who will attend the comprehensive portion of the school. Pretty colors, appropriate, too, said one citizen, who noted that the school's name sake, Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, almost always wore some shade of blue. But the companies who make school athletic uniforms say aqua is not a standard color. Aqua and white would have to be specially ordered from companies who make high-quality professional uniforms, costing considerably more. Thus, a decision will have to be made soon as to whether another color or a different shade of blue should be used for uniforms. Ogden hopes that those students who led the effort to select the colors will be able to help with this current problem.

Do Not Disturb Council
To the Editor:

Mr. McGee's reporting of the budget hearing leaves me in a state of bewilderment. Having attended many budget hearings in many cities, and being familiar with budgets; I found this meeting, interesting, amusing, but most of all very disturbing.

At the opening of the meeting, I found myself listening to the mayor telling the audience the council had reached a decision to raise the tax rate by 5 cents. He had made this statement before one item of the budget had been considered. We knew the end before the meeting had even started.

McGee then missed the most important scene of the entire evening, and this came when he failed to report that Councilmen Schwan and White objected to the citizens of Lakeside raising questions on line items of the budget. Schwan went so far as to state that the council was there to approve the budget that had been worked out in the work session.

Fortunately, Councilman Pilski showed some concern for the citizens there; and indicated there was plenty of time to consider the items, he was willing to listen, and reconsider if necessary.

As the evening wore on, I realized that all the decisions had been predetermined and no changes would be made. At the end of the evening, I was proven to be correct as not one change was made.

To attempt to reinforce the increase in the tax rate, Mayor Weidenfeld stated that the tax rate would have been higher last year if council had known the size of the rebates to GHI, and Springhill Lake. What council should have realized is that even with the rebates, the city had operated well, and there was no great outcry from the citizens.

Is this the way the city is run, I asked my new neighbors??? The answer told me the council was under new leadership. I alerted me to become more concerned with a council that has a do not disturb attitude.

Busing Concerns Parent
To the Editor:

I feel I must speak out against busing. Let me first state that I am not opposed to integration, to open housing or to good schools for all children. Here is what I am against: a., children waiting in the dark and cold of winter mornings for buses that arrive up to one hour late; b., a long wait in the multipurpose room before school begins because the bus driver has to go back and make a second run; c., buses in such poor condition that they often break down; and most of all, the thing they said could not happen . . . but it did.

On the last day of school a whole load of kindergarten children living in Boxwood Village were put on the wrong bus and sent to University Square Apartments. Several children refused to get off the bus and got home safely. Two other 6 year olds got off the bus, as they had been told, and walked for over an hour in 90° weather. Where did they walk? Down Greenbelt Road and along Kenilworth Ave. to the lake where they were finally found by a frantic mother. Anyone familiar with Greenbelt knows how dangerous this is.

This is what we parents, black and white, object to. Must our children be subjected to all this when we live a short walk from good public schools?

People who are not directly involved in busing may discuss it in abstract philosophical terms, those of us who put our children on buses every day have more mundane concerns — our children's welfare and safety.

Mrs. Sandra Olek

Gudrun H. Mills
City Clerk

The annual tick season has started in Maryland and will continue through August, said Dr. Kenneth L. Crawford, Chief of the Maryland Department of Health and Mental Hygiene's Division of Veterinary Medicine. Dr. Crawford warns residents to take precautions to protect themselves and their children against Rocky Mountain Spotted Fever, a disease which is transmitted to man by the bite of an infected tick.

Ticks are usually found in moist wooded or grassy areas in vacant lots, fields, thickets, in shrubs along fences, and in various recreation and camping sites. Dr. Crawford recommends avoiding such areas when possible. Otherwise, wear tight-fitting clothing with trousers tightly secured at the ankles. Application of tick repellent can be helpful. A thorough self or "buddy-type" examination for ticks on the body and clothing should be made when leaving these areas. Parents should carefully examine their children if they have been playing in areas that might be infested. This exam should be a "head-to-toe type", conducted as often as necessary, but especially at bath and bedtimes. Special care should be taken in examining hair-covered areas.

If a tick is found, it should be removed immediately. If it is firmly attached to the skin, take care not to crush it, thus risking additional skin contamination. Remove the ticks with tweezers, pliers or paper tissue. Apply a liberal amount of rubbing alcohol or fingernail polish remover with cotton to the tick. This will make it loosen its hold. Clean the wound and apply an antiseptic. Then dispose of the tick by burning, placing it in alcohol or flushing down the toilet. Only about two percent of all ticks are infected and can transmit Rocky Mountain Spotted Fever. However, the disease, if suspected, should be treated promptly. It can be treated with antibiotics. Symptoms of the disease, usually appearing within 3 to 10 days after the attachment of an infected tick, include headache, fever (occasionally 104 to 106 degrees), fatigue, aching lower back, and a faint rash which appears on the lower arms and legs.

Family dogs are highly susceptible to tick infection. Owners should inspect them before allowing them indoors after exercise in a possible infested area. Veterinarians can give advice on selecting tick repellents for pets.

On June 26, she will be one of six area gymnasts to compete against a championship West German girls team at Kennedy High School. After having gone through a series of preliminary qualifications, Margie is to perform on the balance beam, vaulting horse, and free exercise events.

Congratulations to Susan Jones, daughter of Mr. & Mrs. George Jones, 113 Northway, who has received a scholarship to the University of Delaware Freshman Honors Program. This program is for selected freshman students. Most of them will have elected to begin their university work as "early admission" candidates. They will be intellectually qualified for an honors university freshman year even though they may not have formally completed their high school studies.

Library Seek Information

After years of providing information, the Prince Georges County Memorial Library system is now seeking information. The library is sending residents a brief questionnaire to get ideas on how library services could be improved. The questionnaire is short and a postage paid return envelope is provided. Residents are asked to spend a few minutes to complete the questionnaire and drop it in the nearest mailbox or take it to the library. Each response counts.

The money for the questionnaire comes from a special federal grant, not from county taxes.

Site Opposite NASA Zoned for Housing

Zoning approval for a small-sized shopping mall opposite the main gate to NASA on Greenbelt Road was recently denied by the Prince Georges County Council in a 9-to-1 vote. Instead, the Council approved zoning density for single-family detached dwellings (R-80) for the 14-acres which the Conrad Cafritz interests had requested be made community-commercial (C-C).

The Cafritz proposal incorporated a 100,000 sq. ft. mini-mall, anchored by a chain drug and major food store. It was to be located on the southeast corner of Cipriano-Greenbelt Road intersection.

While changing the pivotal part of the zoning request from C-C to R-80, the Council approved unchanged the request for an adjacent 12-acres of R-80 density eastward on Greenbelt Road. The Council also approved unchanged the applicant's request for six acres of townhouse (R-T) density on the opposite, or southwest, corner of Cipriano and Greenbelt roads.

The initial request for this particular zoning change dates back to August, 1966. From the beginning, the portions of it relating to

Astronomy Evenings Begin

An opportunity to renew acquaintance with the fabulous universe will be made available to the public Tuesday evening, June 22, at the NASA/Goddard Space Flight Center.

The first Bicentennial Astronomy Evening will begin at 8 p.m. with the premiere showing of a space film followed by a short talk on early astronomers. At 9:10 p.m. the action will move outdoors for the observation of "fuzzies" through a Questar telescope which can develop up to 300 power.

All "fuzzies" were once thought to be comets by pioneer telescopic astronomers, but were later discovered to be star clusters, nebulae or other celestial objects as well as comet.

For free tickets to this program, write to Special Programs Office Goddard Space Flight Center, Greenbelt, Maryland 20771, or call 982-5366 between 8 a.m. and 4:30 p.m.

Additional Astronomy Evenings will be held twice monthly during the summer at Goddard featuring observations of the moon, the planets, stars and other stellar object.

All programs will be held on schedule despite cloud cover, which at times may preclude the actual use of telescopes.

additional housing for the area have been greeted warmly by local residents.

The shopping center concept, however, was vocally opposed at various stages of the re-zoning process by a group of concerned member of the neighborhood involved. Also voicing opposition along the way were spokesmen and spokeswomen for the Cipriano Woods and Presley Manor Civic Associations.

After Harry Crayton joined the Payroll Savings Plan.

Can you tell the difference?

There isn't any. And that's the point.

Joining the Payroll Savings Plan is so easy and painless, you'll hardly notice you're saving.

All you do is sign up at work. Then an amount you specify is automatically set aside from your paycheck and used to buy U.S. Savings Bonds.

And while you're spending your take-home pay, you're still building a solid nest egg.

Maybe you won't look any different. Or feel any different.

But you'll be a lot richer.

Now U.S. Bonds pay 6% interest when held to maturity of 5 years (4% the first year). Lost, stolen or destroyed. Bonds can be replaced if records are kept. When needed, Bonds can be cashed at your bank. Interest is not subject to state or local income taxes, and federal tax may be deferred until redemption.

Police Blotter

During the past month, the following occurred:

More than 200 interested citizens attended the Police Department's Inspection and Open House on May 14. All members of the Department were pleased to see the interest shown by the visitors. The crowd was the largest one ever to come to this event.

Cpl. Miskell apprehended and released to parental custody two juveniles who were found discharging B-B guns in an area where extensive damage to windows had previously been done. Eighteen other juvenile complaints were handled internally.

Two residential breaking and enterings, one on Lakeside Drive and one on Periwinkle Court, are under investigation.

Investigations have been made in a total of eighteen motor vehicle collisions. A lookout has been issued for the operator of a hit and run vehicle which seriously injured a pedestrian on Greenbelt Road.

A local adult female charged with a variety of traffic offenses (assault on a police officer, and resisting arrest) was found guilty in Maryland District Court and sentenced to thirty-two days in the County jail and one year active probation.

Shortly after groceries were stolen from the shopping cart of an elderly woman, investigation by Officer Ceccarelli revealed the identity of the thief, an eighteen year old resident of Hanover Parkway. The subject was apprehended, charged and incarcerated in lieu of $100 bond.

A nineteen year old resident of Hillside Road, apprehended by Officer Duprat shortly after he was observed peering into a window of a residence on Ridge Road, has been found guilty in court and is awaiting sentencing.

A fifty year old Crofton male, charged by the Department with first degree homicide in the shot gun slaying of a resident of Edmonston Road, has been found guilty in Circuit Court and is awaiting sentencing.

There was a breaking and entering at an elementary school, another at a construction site trailer, and a third at a residence on Southway Road.

Officer Duprat apprehended three juveniles in a stolen auto. All three were released to parental custody. Cpl. Miskell recovered two stolen autos in Springhill Lake while Officer Craze recovered a third.

Twenty complaints with regard to juveniles were investigated during one week, all of which have been resolved within the Department. One case, involving an assault on a junior high teacher, by one of her students, may still require action by the juvenile court.

Officers assisted in traffic and crowd control at the scene of a fire on Springhill Lane. Moderate damage was done to townhouses there; no injuries were reported.

Officer Blake apprehended and released to parental custody a sixteen year old resident of Crescent Road who was apprehended tampering with a parked automobile.

Officer Ceccarelli released to parental custody two 16 year old juveniles from Westway, who were caught breaking lights in the parking lot of a local shopping center. Restitution will be made.

Five animal complaints, including one bite case, were investigated.

Thirty-two juvenile related offenses were investigated during another week. All except one was handled without referral to the Juvenile Court.

Officer Craze recovered two stolen autos, one of which had been reported stolen nearly a year ago in Virginia. Cpl. Miskell recovered a stolen motorcycle shortly after it was reported missing in Springhill Lake.

Seventeen motor vehicle collisions, four involving personal injuries, were reported. Look-outs have been issued in connection with two collisions which involved hit and run drivers.

Shortly after the theft of construction materials from a site on Greenbelt Road, Officer Duprat apprehended two subjects. Both are residents of the city and are awaiting court action.

Two attempted breaking and enterings, one on Ridge Road and one on Northway, were reported and investigated.

Activities at North End . .

by Sandra Bazzes

North End elementary School celebrated School and Community Week beginning May 24 when the communities of Greenbelt and Landover were described to the students in an assembly program. Members of the Student Council, assisted by parent volunteers (this reporter-parent and Janet Summons), gave short reports on Greenbelt's history, recreation, schools, city government, wildlife, police and fire departments, Greenbelt Lake and Indian Springs. Terry Summons, Kenny MacNamara, Donna Abernathy, Florence Yearwood, Missy Kennedy, Robert Ferguson, and Jay Jenkins participated.

Betty Allen, from the Greenbelt Library, showed pictures of Greenbelt as it was 35 years ago. This was followed by a movie presentation of various current sites in both Greenbelt and Landover. Physical education instructor Joe Emerson, trailed the Landover children with his movie camera as they boarded their buses and made the daily trip to Greenbelt.

The following day was Beautification Day and the entire school was spruced up inside and out. Each class volunteered to beautify one area of the school.

On the third day, the students celebrated Teacher Appreciation Day with another assembly program. Each teacher received a decorated booklet and flower in appreciation of his or her service.

The next day was Supporting Staff Day and members of the cafeteria, custodial and office staff were honored and presented with a flower. Also, the many volunteer parents who had helped in the classrooms throughout the year were thanked at a special tea and presented with certificates of appreciation. Principal Jean Miller warmly praised the parents for their hours of volunteer work in the school and she in turn was thanked by the parents for her cooperative attitude in making visitors in the school feel welcomed.

Last, but not least, Children's Appreciation Day was celebrated. Over 3500 happy faces were made and awarded to those children who brightened the day by displaying a friendly smile, saying a kind word, performing a thoughtful deed—or just being nice that day.

The entire week's activities were guided by Mrs. Kathy Curl, second grade teacher and sponsor of the Student Council.

Officer Ceccarelli identified and apprehended two Springhill Lake juveniles shortly after the two broke into a coin operated machine in a laundry room there. One of the two has been charged and is awaiting action by the juvenile court.

Investigation by Officer Duprat has resulted in the charging of a 22 year old male resident for larceny of construction materials from the bike trail under construction along Greenbelt Road.

Twenty-nine juvenile complaints were received and investigated.

Two autos, both from Springhill Lake, were stolen during the week. Neither has yet been recovered even though look-outs have been issued.

Investigation by Cpl. Brumley has resulted in the apprehension of two brothers for breaking and entering an apartment in the city. The elder of the two was incarcerated. The younger, a juvenile, was released to parental custody pending a hearing in juvenile court.

Officer Cancelose apprehended and charged a juvenile resident with receiving stolen property, after the youth had been observed in possession of a stolen bike whose appearance had been materially altered. The youth is in parental custody at this time.

Cpl. Coombes apprehended two Springhill Lake juveniles breaking street lights near their residence. Both were released to parental custody.

The new state law requiring payment of outstanding parking tickets prior to issuance of motor vehicle plates has resulted in collection of $2,142 on 382 previously unpaid tickets.
