County Schools Open Tuesday

Tuesday, September 4 is the first day of school for approximately 128,000 students in Prince Georges County. About 6,000 of these will be in kindergarten, 56,000 in elementary and 65,000 in secondary schools. Enrollment is expected to drop about 4% from last year. With the closing of ten facilities, there will be nine fewer elementary schools and one less junior high, leaving a total of 145 elementary schools, 41 junior highs, 19 senior highs, 10 special centers and two vocational centers. The County is the eleventh largest school district in the nation.

State law requires school attendance by every child between the ages of 6 and 16. Children who will be five years old on or before January 1, 1980 may attend kindergarten this fall. Parents registering their children for kindergarten or to begin school in Prince George's County for the first time should bring the following: proof of birthdate, preferably the child's birth certificate; record of immunization for children entering kindergarten through grade 6 — diphtheria, tetanus, pertussis, polio, measles (rubeola), and rubella (German measles); record of rubeola for all students through grade 12; legal proof of residence — settlement papers, rental contract, etc.; student's transfer card or last report card from previous school for students entering above grade 1.

Food Services

Regular lunch meal prices will increase to 55c for elementary school students and 60c for secondary students. Adult meals will increase to $1.15. Prices for a la carte lunch items will increase slightly. Milk prices will be the same as last year — 10c per half pint for students and 20c for adults. Prices for a la carte breakfast items, vegetables, desserts and other items will increase slightly this fall.

County schools offer free and reduced-price breakfasts and lunches to youngsters whose family size and income entitle them to eligibility. The formula for determining eligibility also takes into account unusual family expenses for medical bills, shelter, casualty losses, or special education costs. Application forms will be provided all children at the beginning of the school year. All information is treated as confidential. About 28% of the lunches the Prince Georges Schools served last year were free or reduced price lunches under this program.

(Actually, no student pays the entire cost of the regular meals served. The federal and state governments are expected to put more than $4.5 million into the school lunch program in Prince Georges County.)

Instruction

Efforts to help students master the basic skills continue as the central thrust of the instructional program of the Prince Georges County Public Schools. This will include stepped up activities aimed at identifying students with deficiencies in some of those skills and providing them with additional help.

Modification of the county's junior high school program will be completed this year. New reading/English/language arts programs will be used and the teaching of reading skills will be integrated into most of the other junior high courses. Phasing in of the changes began with 7th graders in 1977-78, was extended to 8th grade last year, and will be carried into 9th grade this year.

The TAG (Talented and Gifted) program will be extended county-wide this year and the Project Basic program, the state mandated program which sets minimum requirements for graduation, will be implemented.

Special Education

The number of children receiving services from the Special Education Department is increasing. See SCHOOL, Page 2, Col. 3

The Labor Day Festival; It's a Weekend of Fun

by Sandra Barnes

Led by the Outstanding Citizen of 1979, the 25th annual Labor Day Parade next Monday will be one of the many highlights of the festive Festival weekend, August 31 through September 3.

The 25th annual Greenbelt Labor Day Festival will feature carnival rides, food and game booths, stage events, a Miss Greenbelt Pageant, pet show, art show and photography exhibit, athletic events and a talent show throughout the holiday weekend.

Festivities begin Friday night with Opening Ceremonies and performance by the Greenbelt Concert Band. The seventh annual Outstanding Citizen award will be given to the Greenbelt person selected by judges from an array of nominations. The award is presented in the memory of "Pop" Cipriano, a familiar fixture of many Labor Day parades in his flower-bedecked donkey cart.

During opening ceremonies, tribute will be paid to those individuals who worked so hard to make 25 years of Labor Day Festivals possible.

Throughout Opening Ceremonies clowns will circulate through the carnival area giving out tickets for a drawing for free carnival rides.

Miss Greenbelt Pageant contestants will be presented on stage Friday and Saturday evenings with the swimsuit competition on Sunday afternoon. The crowning of Miss Greenbelt will take place Sunday evening.

Stage events throughout the weekend will feature Irish and German dancers, folk singing, musical variety acts, a bluegrass concert, a magic act, and chamber music.

Many activities will be held in Braden Field, the tennis courts, and areas around the Youth Center. Skydiving on Saturday will feature Greenbelter Ray McCawley jumping into Braden Field.

This year special contests will be held on Sunday at 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. for the first time. All children, from babies to teens, are invited to test their skills in games for their age group from the diaper derby to pie eating.

Local performers will be in Saturday's Talent Show. Acts include a rock band, folk singer, pop singer, guitarist, and tap dancer. In addition see LABOR DAY page 4, col. 1

Free Shuttle Bus Available For Everyone at Labor Day Festival

For the third consecutive year a shuttle bus will provide free transportation for the Labor Day Festival. The bus will operate from 7-10 p.m. Friday, August 31; 12-10 p.m. Saturday and Sunday; and 12-5 p.m. Monday. The first stop will be at Edmonston Road and Edmonston Court at 7:10 p.m. Friday. Thereafter, the bus will depart every hour on the hour from the Carnival area to the first and successive stops listed in the box on this page to pick up and drop off passengers

The bus, a white Prince Georges County bus with blue markings and a Labor Day Festival sign, is normally used to ferry Prince Georges County employees to and from the parking lot. Fleet Administrator Robert H. Dunn and his assistant Lou Feldman have been instrumental in arranging the service with the Greenbelt Labor Day Festival Committee. Not only does the county provide the bus and drivers, it also arranges for back-up support in the event a bus breaks down or a driver becomes sick. In the past, one driver had to cancel out because his wife went into labor. The city of Greenbelt reimburses the county for the cost of the bus.

Motor Pool Dispatcher Carl Cotton has driven through the city with the bus drivers to lay out the safest and most convenient route. Most bus stops will be marked with a sign and a ribbon. The approximate time after the hour that the bus will be at representative stops is given in the following bus schedule. Due to traffic conditions, the time could vary as much as five minutes either way.

CONVERTIBLES NEEDED

If someone has a convertible which can be used for Greenbelts Outstanding Citizen in the Labor Day Parade, please contact Linda Shevitz, 345-9358.

See You at The Festival!

The Greenbelt Labor Day Festival has been a Greenbelt tradition for 25 years and, true to the spirit of Greenbelt, it continues to be planned, organized, and staged by the efforts of a dedicated group of public-minded citizens.

When the "dog days" of summer draw to a close and students await the reopening of school, this last fling of summer creates a special excitement. Long-time Greenbelt residents await with equal anticipation that weekend when they can enjoy a community wide get-together, — where all their friends and neighbors can congregate in one place at the same time for a good, old-fashioned fun-fest.

The newer residents of our city, especially those from Greenbriar, Windsor Green, and Glen Oaks, should not miss out on the chance to be a part of their new home town. We strongly urge them to come out and join the rest of us for our four-day, party.

As for the more experienced residents, let us thank the Labor Day Festival Committee for the hard work they've put in this year and every year for a quarter of a century.

To everyone: have fun, and see you there!

PTSA Supports Overpass

To the Editor:

The students of Eleanor Roosevelt High School need the help of the registered voters of Greenbelt. Since its inception in 1937, Greenbelt has had a special interest in the safety of young people attending school.

The Greenbelt City Election will include a referendum on the subject of the overpass across the Baltimore-Washington Parkway to allow students in the city to walk to school safely. We urge all Greenbelt voters to support the overpass at the Gardenway location.

At an earlier time PTSA had proposed that there be an overpass and that it be located at Gardenway. We now reaffirm our position for the following reasons: (1) There is presently no safe route to walk to the high school; (2) The Gardenway location is the shortest and most direct route from the core of the city to the school; (3) The Gardenway location was strongly endorsed in a student poll. Also, the Gardenway location for the overpass has been approved by the Federal Highway Administration and funds to build it have been allocated from the Safety Fund of the Federal Highway Administration.

Dial 911 For Fire/Rescue

by Wayne Lewis

G.V.F.D. & R.S. will be participating in the Greenbelt Labor Day Festival again this year. Our theme will be "Fire Prevention and Energy Conservation." The festival first aid station will also be located in our booth. A smoke detector, donated by G.H.I., will be given away on Sunday by drawing the winner from all those who have signed up at our booth (one entry per household). Many handouts on Fire Prevention and Energy Conservation will be available as will the DIAL 911 telephone stickers.

Any G.H.I. member who had their smoke detector installed by G.H.I. and has misplaced the instruction booklet on the care and operation of the detector may stop by the G.H.I. offices to obtain a copy. Be sure to read the instructions on testing and cleaning as well as battery replacement techniques. If you buy an extra battery for your detector, keep it in the refrigerator to prolong its usefulness.

Education department has been increasing. It's anticipated that, in the coming year, such services will be provided to approximately 15,000 students.

Special education programs and services are available for eligible students who are handicapped intellectually, physically, or emotionally. These programs encompass special centers for students with multiple handicaps, classes for children with special learning problems within the regular school, and special resource and itinerant teachers who work with students in the regular program. A program of home teaching is also available for students who are unable to attend school for extended periods of time.

For the second year, there will be a program for handicapped preschool age youngsters. Four special education centers serving young children ages three through seven, will continue to be in operation in locations around the county.

As required by federal and state law, the Prince Georges schools are moving toward meeting a 1981 deadline for special education services to all handicapped children from birth through age 21. Another part of the federal requirement is already being fulfilled by the county's Child Find Program, an effort to identify and evaluate all handicapped youngsters spanning that entire age group. Anyone knowing of such a youngster who is not already enrolled in a school program should contact the Prince Georges County Child Find Office at 262-6122.

Busses

The county school system will operate 804 buses in the 1979-80 school year. One hundred twenty-five buses will be new. One hundred four will replace vehicles which were retired after ten years of use, as required by state law. Twenty-one will be additional elevator equipped buses. It costs $157.00 to transport each youngster throughout the school year. About 79,000 Prince Georges pupils ride buses twice daily.

Emergency School Closings

When schools must be closed, opened later than usual or be closed early because of weather or other emergency conditions, an announcement will be made over all Washington area radio and TV stations. In order to keep telephone lines open for emergency calls, parents are requested NOT to call the schools, Central Office, or radio stations. When schools are closed early, bus transportation will be available for those students who are bused.

White Elephant Booth

Residents of Green Ridge House are hunting for white elephants for their festival booth. Contributions of art objects, jewelry, hardware, tools, dishes, etc., will be most welcome. Anything but books or clothing!

They suggest people bring the items directly to the booth when they go to the festival. For pick up call Green Ridge House at 474-7595.

Volunteer Tutors Needed

Greenbelt CARES Youth Services Bureau is in need of dedicated volunteers to tutor youth in the Greenbelt area. The only qualifications are a desire to help young people and a commitment of one hour per week.

CARES needs persons who can offer assistance in Math, English, Social Studies, Science, and various other subjects. There will be an orientation for volunteer tutors on September 15, from 10 a.m. to 12 noon in the Greenbelt Library. CARES provides training and supervision through monthly meetings of the volunteer tutors.

The tutoring service is available to community children free of charge. For further information, please call 345-6660.

Bike & Trike Contest

The Greenbelt Lions Club will again sponsor the decorated Bike and Trike contest on Labor Day, September 3. Every participant will receive a prize. Trophies will be awarded to the following age groups: up to 4 years, 5-7, 8-9, and 10-12.

A fifth trophy will be awarded for a specialty. To register, interested boys and girls should report at 9 a.m. at the realty company next to Mobil gas station. Bikes must be in good condition and decorated.

Community Church News

Greenbelt Community Church will be celebrating Homecoming Sunday on September 2 at the 11 a.m. Family Worship Service. This has been a tradition for many years; a time for former members and friends, who are back for the Labor Day Festival, to again worship at Community Church. All are welcome.

Greenbelt Community Church will also be holding its third Annual Luncheon-on-the-Lawn immediately following the Labor Day Parade. The menu will include: Bar-b-que, Hot Dogs, Cole Slaw, Potato Chips, Cakes, Kool Aid, Coffee and Tea.

Registration for Church School will be held during the morning Family Worship Service on September 2 immediately following the Children's sermon.

GHI Board Gears up For Rehabilitation Vote

by Katherine Keene

A special meeting of the Board of Directors of Greenbelt Homes, Inc., held on August 23, was marked by hard work and—as usual—much talk.

The first hour and a half was devoted to wording of the motion to be presented for membership approval on August 28. The board was mindful that the original rehabilitation program was designed primarily to prevent heat loss from the houses and thus to burn less oil, which is constantly increasing in price. At the same time the County Department of Licenses and Permits (DLP), in exchange for endorsing the application for a rehabilitation loan from HUD at only 3% interest, has set a five-year deadline on completion of other work that the corporation had hoped to be able to spread over a longer period of time. Both projects must now be undertaken together. Should the HUD funds be lost, the county-required work will still have to be done.

During this discussion Eunice Coxon stated that she had been in touch with two top officials of the county who said they did not know of the work required by the DLP. "I have to find what the truth is, and that's a job with GHI," she stated. Councilman Parris Glendinning did not know of the demands, and "someone is not telling the truth here," she asserted sharply.

President Don Volk explained that a list of items had been received from William Gullett, now head of the County Board of Licenses and Permits, and that it was entirely possible that members of the County Council might not be aware of all actions done by DLP. Coxon also asserted that "we the members have heard nothing about block grants," but board members stated that Community Development block grants had been described and discussed at board meetings, City council meetings and in the News Review.

In addition Coxon stated that one "of the most misunderstood things in this world of cooperatives is capital improvement. I think you had better explain what a capital improvement program is and you had better explain it right." Again, board members questioned the assumption that GHI members had never been told what a capital improvement program was.

Inasmuch as HUD will require GHI to have a separate corporation to serve as general contractor, GHI established a new entity, Greenbelt Homes Development Corporation, to serve as general contractor. The board authorized GHI to contract with the Development Corporation on a negotiated basis. The motion authorized management to negotiate and enter into a contract. Director Ed James objected to the motion since he had not read the contract. Volk explained that there was as yet no contract and that the motion merely authorized management to enter into a contract, but James was still opposed.

Member Request

A member selling his home requested that he be refunded payments on the rehab made to date, a total of $60.96. The board voted to deny this request, since the member had benefited from previous capital improvements and on the basis that he would have taken the rehab program into consideration when he set the selling price of the home. Director Smith pointed out that the accrual of $60.96 is part of what the member was selling, just as the accrued payments on the old GNMA mortgage were part of the selling price of the houses for 25 years.

Coxon was disturbed because the funds collected to date are not in an escrow account and because she said there had been no deposit in March. General Manager Royal Breashears said two deposits had been made in April. No comment was made on her assertion that the funds should be in an escrow account.

A long discussion centered on a member's request to change his unit to electric baseboard heat. The real problem was how one member at a time could convert without making the members who had not converted continue to pay costs greater than they would otherwise have paid. Director Jim Smith pointed out that costs of maintaining a heating plant would continue even if only one house in a row continued to use it. While agreeing that it would be almost impossible to find an entire row in GHI that would agree on anything, the board discussed the possibility of moving that, if an entire plant converted to electric heat, it would pay no further heating costs. After an interminable discussion, this motion was not passed, and the member requesting to turn to baseboard heat was given permission to do so subject to allowing GHI to know the cost savings and with an adjustment in monthly costs.

The board approved the bid for trim paint on the four free-standing homes. In just eight seconds they agreed to accept the bid of Amerada Hess Corporation as the supplier of fuel oil for the year beginning September 1. The bids were .7150 cents a gallon for metered delivery and .6300 for tank wagon delivery.

Truck Conversion

An interesting bit of business was the approval of the conversion of 18 trucks to the use of liquid propane. This will cost only half as much as regular gasoline, get the same mileage, be a domestic product and therefore not dependent on foreign suppliers, and provide less wear on engines! Several comments from Board and audience suggested that there might be other cars presented as candidates for conversion.

The board moved that when representatives of the board are needed for meetings with governmental agencies, the President of the Corporation would attend or designate another to represent him. It was pointed out that there are a great many such meetings, and that one person could hardly attend all. James felt that all such meetings should be publicized to all members of the board.

The manager reported that insulation prices are increasing but that the lowest bidder for the cellulose insulation approved for the frame homes has indicated they would guarantee GHI price protection on their quote if a contract were signed. It was decided that this could not be done at least until after the membership meeting of the 29th, and even later should it be possible to take advantage of the HUD loan.

Margaret Hogensen presented a case of a member who does not want insulation of the type approved by the board blown into his masonry home because of an allergy. The board felt that this would create no problems, since the policy is that members may contract for their own insulation provided that it is "equal to or better than" that to be done by GHI.

Problems and Opportunities

Charles F. Schwan, Jr.

Candidate for Reelection To Council

(Communication is far from ideal between voters and officeholders. As a candidate for city council I plan to publish over the next several weeks some thoughts on the future of Greenbelt. I should be happy to hear any citizen's reaction to these thoughts.)

Within the next decade, the remaining vacant land in Greenbelt should be almost fully developed. Commercial construction is proceeding now in Springhill Lake North, the Golden Triangle, and Greenway. Residential development should be completed in Windsor Green, Parcel 15 (near the lake, Charlestowne Village and the American Legion) and Parcel 1 (between GHI and the Agricultural Research Center). Other, much smaller commercial and residential building will be completed. Even Metro is scheduled to reach Greenbelt by 1990.

These developments will have far reaching consequences. Greenbelt's current estimated population of 22,250 should increase by about 20 percent to around 27,000. More single-family homes are expected to be built, which will make it possible for more apartment dwellers who wish to continue to live in Greenbelt to find homes to buy, or others seeking larger homes to find them.

Local employment opportunities, comparatively few now, should increase dramatically given the anticipated commercial developments, particularly the office buildings in the Golden Triangle, Springhill Lake North and Greenway. When Metro arrives at long last, commuting will be made easier and more economical for hundreds of Greenbelters.

Paradoxically, it should be possible for the city to increase the number, scope and quality of services it provides and at the same time reduce the real property tax rate. The real property tax base is expected to grow by at least 68-70 percent, most of it commercial. Thus, in the coming years taxes on commercial property should amount to a much larger share of total collections, while residents will pay a decreasing share. Not a large item now, personal property tax collections (paid by businesses) should increase significantly. Amusement tax collections, too, should increase.

During the next decade we shall need to add more personnel, police for example, to meet the needs of a larger Greenbelt. There will not be a proportionate increase in costs since overhead personnel costs (still only one Chief of Police), central communications equipment and similar budget items will be little affected by an increase in the patrol force. We should be able, therefore, to increase the value and costs of services within the limits of increased revenues. And let's not forget this would occur despite a reduced share of the tax burden for the home owner and a lower tax rate on all real property.

tion, a different type of act will be dedicated to the deaf citizens of Greenbelt when Tina Farrall sings and signs two musical numbers.

Carnival rides will include the merry-go-round and other kiddie rides, ferris wheel, giant slide, swinging gym and other favorites. Cotton candy, popcorn, funnel cakes, candy apples—the old standbys—join new additions in the carnival area such as crepes, make-your-own bumper stickers, T-shirts, and other surprises.

Street dances will close the Festival Friday, Saturday and Sunday evenings.

Labor Day Highlights

Two special events on Labor Day will be the parade and Salute to Americans at Work. The parade will feature musical groups, elected officials, Ronald McDonald and Twinkle the Kid, floats, marching units, clown groups, antique autos, the Markland Medieval Militia with the Festival's only animal this year, a Falcon.

The Salute to Workers will offer many opportunities to participate in job skills. Children may have their faces painted by a theatre group; young and old may learn computer skills and games; violin making and pottery; learn to put on a puppet show; repair a bicycle; have a free ride on the C&P Telephone Company's bucket truck.

See the Schedule of Events elsewhere in the paper for a complete list of events, times and parade route.

Police Blotter

After a chase in the early morning hours of August 24, a rental automobile that was stolen from the Baltimore-Washington International Airport was stopped near Green Ridge House on Ridge Road. The driver was not an escaped prisoner as was first feared. Participating in the chase were Park, State and Greenbelt police, and a helicopter. A police cruiser and a parked car were hit when the stolen car rolled into them after the non-resident driver jumped from the car. There were no injuries and the driver was arrested.

Residents of an apartment in Greenbriar reported that a man entered their apartment and accused them of damaging his car, which was parked outside. He then robbed them at gun point of $70 and fled the scene.

The A&P and Beltway Plaza Cleaners reported cash missing from their registers recently.

The occupant of a Crescent Road apartment reported she was assaulted by a prowler, who entered her unlocked apartment.

A resident of a Parkway Road apartment reported jewelry missing from the apartment. Investigation is continuing in all of the foregoing cases.

DAV Honors National Commander Thompson

The national commander of the Disabled American Veterans, Paul L. Thompson, will be honored by the Prince Georges Chapter #25 of the D.A.V. at a dinner on September 4. Chapter commander Leo Gerton announced that the dinner will be held at 7:30 p.m. in Lasick's College Inn in College Park, Md.

Guests will include Congresswoman Gladys Spellman, State Senator Edward Conroy, D.A.V. State Department Commander Tom Wallace and Department Adjutant Emanuel Orrenberg. The master of ceremonies will be First Vice Commander Anthony Marino.

Thompson, who is from Baltimore, was recently elected national commander of the D.A.V. at the annual convention in Boston. He is the first Vietnam veteran as well as the first black American to hold the top post of a major U.S. veterans' organization. The holder of five Bronze Stars for bravery, Thompson served in the military for 26 years before retiring in 1966 with a disability. Thompson has been active in veterans' affairs ever since he retired.

(This is the first of three articles prepared by the City staff to provide information concerning the two questions placed on the ballot for the September 18th City election. This article provides information concerning the Charter Amendment Referendum in which voters will be deciding whether or not the City Council should have authority to issue bonds to be repaid out of specially identified revenues and not from general taxes for the purpose of rehabilitating existing buildings or structures.)

How the Referendum Came About

The proposal for the City Council to adopt a Charter Amendment to enable the City to issue revenue bonds was first put forth by the Board of Directors of Greenbelt Homes, Inc. (GHI). GHI was exploring several possible alternatives to secure financing for its approved rehabilitation program. The Council was advised that GHI was having difficulty in obtaining low cost financing. One possible solution was for the City to issue revenue bonds. The bonds would be redeemed with funds paid by GHI to repay the loan. No tax monies would be obligated to the repayment of the bonds.

Revenue bond financing for private development and redevelopment has been used by many cities and counties to encourage desirable development and to assist low income residents in being able to afford loans to improve their properties.

It was felt that it was in the interest of the entire city for older properties to be improved and modernized. It was also felt that even some newer properties might need to undertake improvement projects for the purpose of energy conservation. This means of financing might also prove useful for rehabilitating the older buildings in the Greenbelt Commercial Center. Thus, while the original request came from GHI, the Council felt that over the long run, many areas could benefit from this type of financial assistance.

Accordingly, the Council directed that a Charter Amendment be prepared authorizing the Council to issue revenue bonds for the rehabilitation of existing structures. The Charter Amendment was unanimously adopted by the Council on June 11, 1979.

In accordance with state law, a petition for referendum signed by more than 20% of the registered voters and bearing 484 valid signatures was filed with the City Clerk. When petitioned, a Charter Amendment must then be placed on the ballot and whether or not it becomes law is decided by the vote at the election.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Q. What are revenue bonds?

A. These bonds are issued by state and local governments. Instead of pledging tax monies for the payment of debt service (principal and interest), only specifically identified revenue sources are pledged to the debt service. Revenue bonds are used most frequently to finance construction for new business and industry that is willing to move to a community. It has also been used for the purpose of making loans for housing rehabilitation and business revitalization projects.

Q. Will revenue bonds impose taxes on Greenbelt citizens?

A. Absolutely not. The charter amendment prohibits tax funds from being obligated to repay loans. There is nothing mandatory about the proposal. Any party receiving a loan must be a willing borrower and only such revenues as are pledged by the borrower or such property as may be pledged as security for the loan will be obligated to the repayment of the loan. Although the bonds are issued in the City's name, neither the city government nor its taxpayers will be obligated to the repayment.

Q. Why do revenue bonds pay lower interest rates?

A. They are issued by a government. The interest paid to the lender is not subject to Federal income tax.

Q. Isn't Congress proposing to prohibit local governments from issuing tax exempt revenue bonds?

A. The Internal Revenue Service and some members of Congress are concerned with the increased use of revenue bonds by local governments and have proposed a variety of restrictions on their use. The main concern is the use of revenue bonds to provide low interest rate mortgage money for lending to home buyers. Greenbelt's Charter Amendment is not for that purpose. However, depending on what Congress decides, the City could be restricted in its use of revenue bonds beyond those restrictions placed in the Charter Amendment.

Q. What is the difference in interest rates between financing with revenue bonds and financing with private banks or other lenders?

A. For revenue bonds, the interest rate would probably be between 7% and 9%. With a private lender, interest rates would probably be between 13% and 15%. If a thousand dollars were borrowed, the annual interest under revenue bonds would be between $70 and $90 instead of between $130 and $150 if privately financed.

Q. If the Charter Amendment passes, will the City issue revenue bonds on behalf of GHI for rehabilitation?

A. We don't know. If the Charter Amendment is approved, GHI would first have to ask the City Council to issue revenue bonds and the City Council would have to agree to do so. GHI is exploring all possible financing alternatives in order to get the best loan possible. There is a good chance that GHI might obtain a Federal Government loan at a 3% rate of interest. It might also borrow funds from the State of Maryland. It can also borrow from banks and other lenders—but at higher interest rates. However, except for subsidized loan programs such as the 3% loan from the Federal Government, the cheapest way for GHI to borrow money probably would be the City issuing revenue bonds.

Q. How would GHI or another property owner borrow money for rehabilitation from City revenue bonds?

A. GHI or another property owner would have to request the City Council to issue revenue bonds and submit the rehabilitation plan and financing plan for Council review. The City Council would have to determine if the proposal were feasible and one the Council would be willing to support. Then the property owner and the City would have to go to bond buyers and determine if they would be willing to loan money for the proposed program. These investors will be very much concerned that the investment is sound and that the property owner is able to repay the loan. A bond attorney will also have to approve the proposal to ensure that everything is done in compliance with all laws and, most particularly, that the bonds qualify as tax exempt bonds.

Q. Won't there be a lot of expenses in borrowing money this way?

A. Yes. Even so, the cost of the loan will be less than most other ways of borrowing money. It is estimated that the expenses of borrowing the money over and above the interest paid to bond holders will amount to an added annual expense of 1%-1½% to the borrower of the bond funds. These expenses will be for the processing of the loan and the collection of payments and for paying the cost of mortgage insurance. There will also be one time expenses related to the bond sale. But the estimated 4% to 6% savings in interest as compared with a private loan over the long life of the loan (up to 40 years) will be much greater. Also, there are fees involved with other forms of loans.

Q. If GHI receives a loan, won't increased payments be imposed upon its residents?

A. Whether or not GHI borrows money is up to the members of GHI. If a majority of GHI members do not want to borrow money, they can prevent GHI from doing so. GHI is authorized to borrow money based upon a vote of its members just as the City is authorized to borrow money (general obligation bonds) based upon a vote of its citizens. If GHI is authorized to borrow money, the GHI Board can increase the monthly charges to those members receiving improvements from rehabilitation. That increase will be made for both those who voted for the rehabilitation program and those who voted against.

The City Council will not decide whether or not GHI will borrow money. However, the City Council will decide whether or not to issue revenue bonds; if GHI decides to borrow money in that manner and if the charter amendment is approved by the voters.

Q. What happens if the loan is not repaid?

A. That happening is not very likely. Lenders are not interested in making loans if they feel the borrower is not able to repay. The City Council will not want to be a party to a potentially bad loan, either. The lenders will probably require GHI to obtain mortgage insurance to assure repayment under various circumstances.

Any time a mortgage loan or home improvement loan is made, the lender usually requires the pledge of property worth more than the loan towards the repayment of the loan. If a borrower is not able to make repayment, a lender will first work with the borrower in making other arrangements for repayment of the loan such as time extensions and refinancing. If all else fails, the lender may foreclose and force the property to be sold. In such a case, the lender receives the amount of his loan plus expenses of the foreclosure and the property owner receives the rest. This is true whether the money is borrowed from a bank, a savings and loan, the Federal Government, or by means of revenue bond financing.

Q. Will revenue bonds be used for other rehabilitation and energy conservation proposals if the Charter Amendment passes?

A. That depends. First, it is unclear at present what restrictions will be imposed by the Federal Government on the use of revenue bonds. Second, any loan must be approved by the City Council. Some possible uses might be to provide low cost loans:

- for the rehabilitation of deteriorating business properties;
- for the undertaking of energy conservation measures for houses, apartments and businesses;
- for improvements to older free standing houses with loans being made to individual home owners.
- for loans in the future to condominium associations for the purpose of improving their properties in the same way GHI is undertaking rehabilitation at this time.

Capitol Cadillac High Sign Reconsidered and Rejected

by Leta Mach

At city council's August 13 meeting, Capitol Cadillac officials registered shock when their request for approval of a revised site plan providing for an illuminated pole sign was denied. Councilman Thomas White's comment "the closer to September we get, the more fragile our majorities" covered the subject as two councilmen changed their previous positions to make council's stand still 3-2 against the sign.

The Capitol Cadillac controversy was a long-standing one, explained Councilman Gil Weidenfeld as he moved to reconsider council's previous May 7 rejection of the sign. It was necessary that a councilman who had voted with the majority on May 7 move for this reconsideration. Because a commitment for a low-rise sign had been made by a former Capitol Cadillac vice-president, Weidenfeld said he had previously voted against the high-rise sign. Since then, however, all the councilmen except Mayor Richard Pilski, who was out of town, had taken a tour of Capitol Cadillac. As a demonstration, Capitol Cadillac officials had placed a balloon at the exact height of the proposed sign. The tour led Weidenfeld to conclude that there were reasons to reconsider. "The last thing I would like to see happen is that it not be successful (like Klein's)", he explained. "Give them a sign that can be seen from the Beltway," he finished.

Councilman Richard Castaldi seconded Weidenfeld, declaring that council should look at all the Golden Triangle signs individually. Low-rise signs would be poor for some organizations, in his opinion.

Although he felt it was "not all that bad a sign," Councilman Charles Schwan said he would vote against the sign, thus reaffirming his previous position. Councilman Thomas White again spoke adamantly against the sign. "I hold out hope to convince one of you gentlemen," he said. His concerns included the precedent for the Triangle development and the effect on the city's input with the planning board, since the city had previously requested the sign be turned down. White felt a low-lying monumental sign in front of the building would be seen better by travelers on Greenbelt Road.

However, Dave Freishtat, attorney for Capitol Cadillac, expressed the agency's view that shrubbery in front of the building would look better than a sign. "Everything is relative," he noted, pointing out that because of the slope of the land, the high-rise sign seemed like a low sign when travelling on the Beltway.

Mayor Richard Pilski expressed surprise by all the discussion about the sign. He, in turn, surprised everyone by voting against the high sign. Previously a supporter of the sign, he explained that he had just returned from a vacation where he was displeased by the views along the highways. "The sign rather bothers me," he said.

Cable TV

Council received other requests, which it took under advisement. Former County Executive Winfield M. Kelly, Jr., appeared briefly before council to announce that he was "involved in something new in Prince Georges County—cable TV." He left council a copy of the annual report of the Storer Broadcasting Company, which he represented, and asked if he could return in two or three weeks with a firm proposal. Council, however, felt it would be better to wait until after the election next month.

Tugwell Road?

Albert Herling appeared before council with a request that the name of Southway Road be changed to Tugwell Road. Herling felt the name change for the city's entrance would be a much-needed, permanent reminder of Rexford Tugwell. "We as a community owe him a great debt, as the editorial in the News Review pointed out well," he said. Schwan found it an "excellent idea". Pilski agreed that it be taken under consideration. "Thank you for all you've done for this program; I know of one instance where a life was saved," Mayor Pilski told CPR representatives as they received awards early in the evening. The city also received a letter from the Heart Association of Southern Maryland in recognition of its support of the CPR program. Leo Gerton, representing the heart association, presented awards to Henry Fisher, Marilyn Fowler, Ron Ernst and the Greenbelt Youth Center. Woodrow Wofford received a special award for taking care of the CPR "dummies".

Gerton explained that by its first anniversary next month, 200 individuals will have passed the course as compared to 150 individuals in other areas. He added that Greenbelt will soon have a self-contained program when Fowler and Ernst become instructor trainees. Representing the Recreation Department, Ernst presented certificates of appreciation to Fowler, Gerton, Fisher, Wofford and himself.

Shopping Center Rezoning

In other business, council moved to ask the District Council for approval of the rezoning of the center mall shopping area from Rural-Planned-Community (R-P-C) to Commercial Shopping Center (C-S-C) without conditions. The approval was contingent upon receiving a signed revised agreement from the shopping center owners, George and Lisa Christacos. The agreement gives the city an easement on the center sidewalks, which will be brought up to standard at the property owners' expense. In return, the city agreed to give the shopping center the right to use the city parking lots and to support the rezoning petition. The District Council is tentatively scheduled to consider the petitions on September 25.

Council unanimously passed two resolutions. One authorized the waiver of bid procedures to purchase public official liability insurance. Another provided that a referendum question on the charter amendment about revenue bond financing be placed on the ballot at the regular city election in September. After a brief discussion, council moved that it had no objection to MNCPPC placing the Springhill Lake industrial property, site of the future Metro Station, in reservation. White was concerned about the loss of city tax revenues.

Greenbelt Festival Celebrates It's First Quarter Century

by Sandra Barnes

The Greenbelt Labor Day Festival Committee is celebrating its 25th anniversary. The Festival began with a three-member committee — Vincent Caruso, Henry Brautigam, and Eli Don Bullian — who organized what was called the "Greenbelt Festival" dedicated to "The Youth of Greenbelt".

From 1955 through 1960, all proceeds from the Festival were earmarked for the building fund of the Greenbelt Youth Center. After the Youth Center opened on December 31, 1960, the 1961 Festival celebrated "The Youth Center—A Job Well Done."

Just as the first Festival was dedicated to "The Youth of Greenbelt," the Festivals each year thereafter have focused on bringing the community together to work on projects for Greenbelt organizations. For the past several years, the theme of the Festival has been "Unity Through Community Involvement." Only non-profit organizations are permitted to have booths or otherwise raise funds at the Festival.

In the program of the first Festival, the Festival Committee thanked "the people of Greenbelt who made the festival possible and . . . those individuals who gave unlimited time and effort toward this project . . . We build for the future as individuals, organizations, and as a city . . . The Greenbelt Festival stands as a symbol of that cooperation."

Those who have worked on the Festival over its 25-year history have represented every organization in Greenbelt. Thousands of people have been involved. Many of the organizations that participated in the first Festival are participating in the 1979 Festival. These include the American Legion, the Boys (and Girls) Club, Cub and Boy Scouts, Community Church, Credit Union, Greenbelt Consumer Services, Greenbelt Veterans Housing Corp. (now GHI), Jewish Community Center (Mishkan Torah), Lions Club, Little League, Methodist Church, St. Hugh's, Suburban Trust, Women's Club, the Youth Center, Fire and Rescue Squad, Greenbelt Band (now the Greenbelt Concert Band).

It is interesting to note that only a few of the organizations no longer exist: Greenbelt Majorettes, Greenbelt Motors, Greenbelt Theatre, and the Izaak Walton League.

Four-day Format

The format for the 1979 Festival follows that of its predecessors—a four-day event beginning Friday night of the Labor Day weekend. Opening Ceremonies are followed by a "Talent Contest" and "Majorette Specialty."

The forerunner of the present-day "Miss Greenbelt Pageant" was called the "Popularity Contest." People voted for their favorite girl by depositing money in jars located at various places around town. The girl receiving the most money was declared the winner. Other features of the first Festival were a jitterbug contest, majorette contest, athletic contests (100 yard dash, tug-of-war, horseshoes, golf-driving), square dancing, art exhibit, and the traditional Labor Day Parade, followed by a baseball game, band contest, boxing exhibition, bass fishing contest, and awarding of trophies.

It should be noted that Eli Don Bullian and Henry Brautigam served as chairman and treasurer respectively from the second Festival to the eighth, with members or officers of the various organizations: e.g., Lions Club, American Legion, Junior Chamber of Commerce, Women's Club, Toastmasters Club, and Fire-Rescue, rounding out the committee. In 1963 Eli Don Bullian acted as general chairman while a separate group of officers was formed.

Today the numerous organizations that participate in the Festival comprise the Festival Committee, which elects a Steering Committee. The Steering Committee organizes the Festival each year.

Building on the early foundations, the Festival Steering Committee has adhered to the traditions of the past, endeavoring to fill each Festival program with an array of events designed to entertain. The Festival, as described in the Schedule of Events, is a weekend when all Greenbelters can come together, both in volunteer work and for entertainment. Just as the first Festival was dedicated to the youth of Greenbelt, all Festivals are dedicated to the citizens of Greenbelt, who have kept it alive and growing.

New Carrollton Station Has Satellite Parking

Through the joint efforts of Prince Georges County and Colonial Parking, Incorporated, a satellite parking lot with shuttle bus service to the New Carrollton Metrorail Station opened on August 30. The lot, the Palmer Drive-In Theatre, is located on Palmer Highway (MD 704) approximately 2.5 miles east of the New Carrollton Metro Station and ¼-mile northeast of John Hanson Highway (U.S. 50).

In announcing the opening of the new facility, County Executive Lawrence J. Hogan noted that this is an example of how the County and private enterprise can work together to solve a problem.

The satellite lot will operate between 6 a.m. and 8 p.m., Monday through Friday, with shuttle bus service provided every 10 minutes during the peak hours of 6 a.m. to 8 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. to 6:30 p.m. During the off-peak hours, shuttle bus service will be operated on demand. Attendants will be on duty at the lot at all times during operating hours.

Commuter costs will be 75c per day for parking and 50c per day for roundtrip bus service. Monthly passes will be available on-site at a rate of $11 per month for parking and $10 per month for bus service.

The Palmer Drive-In is owned and will be operated by Colonial Parking.

Local Dynamo Director of OEP Coordinates Energy in PG County

by Linda Orenstein

County Energy Coordinator and Director of Emergency Preparedness (OEP), R. Hal Silvers, describes the OEP as "an ongoing public safety vehicle which responds to the call in an emergency." The OEP, he explains, will respond for a hurricane, tornado, flood or other situations that require emergency help.

The OEP was originally the county Civil Defense Agency. Since large scale disasters do not frequently occur, OEP personnel were called upon to apply their specialized training to other incidents. The OEP is organized into a staff with three divisions - the Operations Division, the Military Reservist Division, and the Energy Division.

The energy arm of the OEP has been in the spotlight recently due to the energy crisis. The gas "hot line" that operated in Prince Georges County during the current gas shortage, noted Silvers, was a re-creation of the "round the clock" system set up during the 1973 oil embargo. The OEP was well-prepared for the situation and its operation went smoothly. "Project Oasis," the effort of private entrepreneurs and the county government, labored to lead "fuel thirsty citizens to the gas oases." Silvers proudly noted that the OEP has received recognition from the National Association of County Officials for the work done by "Project Oasis." It has received other tributes, as well, for its activity as a 24-hour a day public safety operation.

As vice-chairman of the state

Energy Policy Office's Local Government Steering Committee, Silvers strived to alleviate the problems of the gas crisis at its height, and succeeded. He was instrumental in gaining greater local control over fuel distribution for Prince Georges County and obtained 8,000 gallons of gas more per week for the area. He feels that mass transit will eventually ease this continuing problem and the work on energy substitutes will help.

Silvers and the Energy Division have most recently been made responsible for establishing an energy monitoring system for PG County. The goal of this project is to reduce energy consumption, including electricity, natural gas, oil, and gasoline, by ten percent within twelve months, the period ending this December. To arrive at this percentage, a base figure of the amount of energy used in a year was fed into a computer to determine the extent of the necessary cutbacks. Safety factors were considered in this estimate, and certain exemptions, such as hospital usage, were weighed in the calculations. Usage reports will be submitted monthly to Silvers' office by an energy compliance officer from each department in the county. Silvers meets with the energy compliance officers each month and discusses problems that arise.

Silvers established energy conservation guidelines, copies of which were sent to all county agencies. He philosophizes that "as a pragmatist, to have an energy conservation in these United States, the government must exemplify." He says that two things must happen simultaneously: the county government must adopt a comprehensive program; and an outreach program should work to educate the public and guide the individual to energy conservation.

Silvers also serves on the Energy Conservation Advisory Council, a group of representatives of government, business, industry, and the league of voters, which meets to discuss the energy dilemma and the ways to combat it effectively. "Every department in Prince Georges County has cooperated to the fullest extent," he notes.

A native of Lakewood, Ohio, Silvers later moved to New York City. He studied journalism at Columbia University and, following World War II, completed a Bachelor's degree in Business Administration at Sampson College, a division of Syracuse University. Silvers was one of the founders of the American Veterans Committee and served as its National Secretary. When the Committee, which subsequently expanded to a membership of 180,000 moved its offices to the Washington area, Silvers moved with it. He later worked for the American Cancer Society's Maryland Division, which included Montgomery and Prince Georges Counties, and became the Assistant Executive Director for the Maryland Division, statewide.

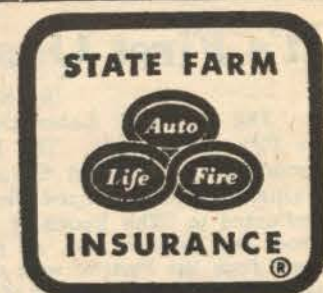

Silvers has been a Greenbelter since approximately 1954. He is more accurate in his memory of precisely when he became the Civil Defense Director in Prince Georges County on a part-time basis - June 3, 1955 at 10:30 a.m. He worked with the late Francis J. Lastner, then County Commissioner and a long time resident of Greenbelt, who introduced him to Prince Georges County government.

Consciousness Raising Demonstration Set

RICHARD CASTALDI

RE-ELECT for RE-ELECT

"Unity Through Community Participation"

Richard is a lifetime resident of Greenbelt and has served his community by being responsive to citizen and community needs. He has worked hard for developing and planning the Green Ridge House for senior and physically handicapped citizens.

To more adequately address the ever increasing crime problem and deter the rate of increase within the city, Richard supports additional manpower allocations and the rescheduling of patrols to coincide with criminal activity. He has been a strong supporter of bikeways, parkland acquisition, and development for the City.

The current highway proposals are of real concern to Greenbelt, with new major changes affecting both residential and commercial projects. Richard's position as 1979-1980 Chairman of the National Regional Transportation Planning Board will guarantee that Greenbelt's views are given proper consideration.

Richard has seventeen (17) years of Zoning and Planning experience and is an active member of the Council of Governments, with six (6) years on the Transportation Planning Board and Human Resource Policy Board. He was elected outstanding young American in 1977 by the National Jaycees of America, and was Greenbelt's 1978-1979 State Director.

As Councilman, Richard will continue to use good financial judgment in implementing programs of service for the City.
