Tax Rate Up 2c

Council Approves $3,167,000 City Budget; Adds Two Police Officers

by Mary Lou Williamson

Council approved a $3.1 million budget for the City of Greenbelt on June 1 that will require a two-cent boost in the tax rate to $1.06 per $100 assessed valuation.

Council had been presented with a very lean budget in April in anticipation of paying out $115,000 in its accrued liability to the State Retirement Fund. Without that payment, the budget would have provided a tax decrease — much desired by council members in an election year. That original staff budget provided for no new programs or personnel.

Because of a compromise position on funding the city's $1.6 m. accrued liability for the State Retirement taken by a majority of council — Councilmen Charles Schwan, Tom White and Richard Castaldi—Council was able to make additions amounting to $58,500 while avoiding a higher tax boost. (See separate story.) The other two members—Mayor Gil Weidenfeld and Councilman Richard Pilski—strongly opposed any tax increase for this year, and for the second year in a row, Pilski voted against the entire budget as a protest against the higher tax rate.

In its only major addition to the budget, after listening to the pleas of citizens concerned about the increasing threat of crime within the city, council voted to add two new police officers for the full year.

No changes were made in the average seven % increase for classified employees to help compensate for an 11 percent rise in the area's cost of living.

Following approval of the entire package, council approved the appropriation ordinance — both first and second reading, after suspension of the rules — for the General Fund, Replacement Fund, Revenue Sharing Fund, Motor Equipment Fund and Unemployment Compensation Fund budgets. Only a handful of citizens were present to observe and, occasionally, to comment on the proceedings.

Revenues

While the city will realize an 8.4% growth in assessed valuation through new development, about half of that addition will be taxable for only a portion of the fiscal year, depending on completion dates. The second Capital Office Park building, several upper Ridge Road individual homes, Windsor Green, the Pepco substation on Greenbelt Road, and probably, the Prudential building should all be on the tax rolls by the end of the fiscal year. Others that could be completed by then include the Greenhorne and O'Mara headquarters building, the third Capital Office Park building and the Greenbelt Hilton. In addition, the Greenway Shopping Center will be allowed to phase in its property taxes over a three year period as part of the annexation agreement with the city, one-third each year. A portion of the shopping center, from Safeway to Dart, was recently assessed at $5.3 m. Property taxes on McDoogals (assessed at $295, 000) will be phased in over five years.

Additional revenues not figured into the original budget that will benefit the city are: $1500—adding interest to the penalty on delinquent city taxes thus raising the total charge from 12 to 13% to match a new state law; $2,500—added payment in lieu of taxes for Green Ridge House (original figure underestimated the assessment); $6,900 — added State highway money returned to the city; and, $1,000 in cable TV application fees. Unappropriated surplus funds available from previous years that will be required to balance this year's budget will be $34,000.

General Fund

The General Operating Fund Budget increases are almost entirely due to the higher costs of personnel and materials. Expenditures in the new budget total $3,167,350, up $401,000 over last year's or 14.5%. New equipment is financed through revenue sharing, replacement funds or the capital improvement budget.

(1) General Government Expenditures ($366,250): By a 4 to 1 vote the council increased the salary of the next council, to be effective following the September election. (Councilman Tom White voted no.) Each member of the council will receive $2,900 per year; the mayor, $3,400. Council set the salary of the city manager at $38,000, a $3,000 increase, and contributed $900 to the National Municipal League Defense Fund (NIMLO). Items already in the budget include $1000 for a new typewriter for the Finance Dept.; $5,000 to begin to make the city's public facilities and services more accessible to the handicapped; and $4,500 for additional work on the Municipal Building.

(2) Police Department ($887,550): Additions to the budget are: $43,000 for two additional officers and $3,000 to fund a community crime prevention program. Several items were already in the budget: $6,000 for an emergency generator for the Municipal Building, $4,000 for new radar units, $3,600 for new radios and three new squad cars ($24,300).

(3) Public Works Department ($578,300): Council added $6,000 to move a wall in the public works garage to provide space for a third vehicle in the mechanic's shop. Items already in the budget are $5,700 for a mobile radio system; $1,000 for a new typewriter; $5700 for a salt spreader; and $44,900

See BUDGET, on page 9, col. 2

Accrued Liability

Toward the end of the budget the account for Retirement Contributions contains one of the largest dollar amounts for a single line item—employee benefits: $265,000 including contributions to Social Security and the State Retirement Fund. Even the figure of a year ago, $182,300, is larger than any other single item except the salaries of the police department (upwards of a half-million dollars).

It is not surprising, then, that the additional expense of $115,000 per year to fund the city's accrued liability presented council's most difficult decision. The city must either begin paying $115,000 a year in 1981 for 40 years or delay up to four years and pay $153,222 a year beginning with 1985 for 36 years. In either case, by financing the $1.6 m. owed, the city could end up paying $5.5 m.

Staff offered several routes the city could take, emphasizing the most cost-effective method — contributing $115,000 per year beginning with fiscal year 1981 into a sinking fund at 10% interest; delaying for four years and then paying back $153,222 per year. By this method which used 10% interest on savings as an average for computational purposes, the city could, in effect, pay back the amount owed in half the time thereby saving $2 m. Attractive as the concept was, council found a number of reasons for not buying all of it. The accrued liability for the State Retirement Fund is money the city will owe to its own employees in the future. Each member of council made clear his support for financing this amount.

Three members of council, Schwan, Castaldi and White, voted to fund half of this year's contribution from the unappropriated surplus and half from an amount equal to 2c on the tax rate. The $50,000 would go into a sinking fund and be earning interest while the city determines what method of payback it will use.

Knowing that other municipalities, counties and agencies around the state are also affected, some more adversely than Greenbelt, Mayor Gil Weidenfeld would have preferred to take a wait and see attitude for one year. He feels certain that the state legislature will "ease the burden" on the city and therefore the taxpayer, perhaps by delaying the start of payments and still allowing a forty year pay back.

Castaldi saw the picture differently. "This is an election year and politicians like to keep the taxes down." He was impressed, he said, by staff recommendations that (1.) there is an "accrued liability" in street repair that must be done and (2.) in the event that the city should go to the bond

Greenbelt Players Sing, Dance Into 30's with Current Show

by Virginia Beauchamp

One measure of how far the Greenbelt Players have come in the last year is the appealing elegance of the vaguely Spanish style set of their current production, "As Time Goes By," when compared with the rather slapdash and jerry-built look of their first stagings. Another measure is the brisk pace of this varied musical evening, subtitled "a Thirties musical revue."

The program was conceived as a way for the Greenbelt Cultural Arts Center to recognize the recent designation of the original portions of Greenbelt as a historical district and to celebrate the period of its founding with a nostalgic look into the past. The succession of songs and dances of which the production is composed are loosely grouped around the ideas of the Depression, celebrities of the time, and the Roosevelts' interest in the founding of Greenbelt. All of the numbers are period pieces except for the "Little Orphan Annie" sequence, which of course looks back to the same era.

Directors Graceanne Adamo and Angela Schreiber are to be commended for the fine collection of talent they have drawn into this diverting and entertaining production. It would be impossible to name every participant whose energy and talent afforded so much pleasure to an appreciative audience, but a few numbers certainly deserve special mention.

One of these was Judy Marshall's pert, clear-as-a-bell boop-a-doop style in "I Wanna Be Loved by You." Kuk Kim, who appeared in both song and dance numbers—most notably "Flirtation Walk" and "Pennies from Heaven"—had a winning sparkle and charm. And in another vein, Mary Nieter's rendition of the old Kate Smith number, "When the Moon Comes Over the Mountain," won prolonged applause.

The chorus of children, many of whom we have seen in earlier productions, showed by the discipline they have been able to achieve the value of such opportunities for training and perfor-

Rabbi Berger Leaving City

by Jordan Choper

Rabbi Kenneth Berger has announced that he has accepted the position of Rabbi at Congregation Rodolf Shalom in Tampa, Florida, as of August 1.

Rabbi Berger came to Greenbelt and Mishkan Torah seven years ago as a recent graduate of the first class to graduate from the Reconstruction Rabbinical College in Philadelphia. During his tenure at Mishkan Torah he was influential in shaping Mishkan Torah into a creative and innovative congregation. He helped form two Chavurot within the congregation, helped to establish a full affiliation between the religious school of Mishkan Torah and the Board of Jewish Education of Greater Washington. (Mishkan Torah is the only congregation in Prince Georges County to be so affiliated), and helped create the Prince Georges County Jewish Alliance within the Jewish Community Council of Greater Washington, among many other things. It was partly because of Rabbi Berger's example and teachings that the membership of Mishkan Torah agreed to become dual affiliated with the Reconstruction Movement while maintaining its relationship with the Conservative Movement.

While Rabbi Berger lived in Greenbelt, he was active in the Greenbelt Clergy Association, which he has inferred was a learning experience for all who are involved in that Association. Rev. Sherry Taylor mentioned that she and her husband considered Rabbi Berger as an ally whenever there was a controversial issue facing the Association. Monseignor William O'Donnell of St. Hugh's and Mr. Jim Fisher, representing the Baha'i faith said that Rabbi Berger played an influential role in the Clergy Association.

Rabbi Berger will be succeeded at Mishkan Torah by Rabbi Stephen Baeyer, who has graduated from the Reconstruction Rabbinical College this year. While a student at the College, Rabbi Baeyer was the religious leader of Congregation Beth Israel in Burlington, New Jersey.

A farewell party for Rabbi Berger, his wife Aviva, and children Avigail Ilona, and Jonathan was held at Mishkan Torah. At the party the Berger family received many gifts relating to all of the holidays in the Jewish calendar so that at every holiday the Berger family will have something tangible to make them remember their stay in Greenbelt at Mishkan Torah.

THANKS

To the Editor:

I want to thank everyone who voted for me and the many who worked hard to make it possible. I am very grateful to all of you.

You have my pledge that I will do everything possible to accomplish the successful completion of the rehab program. And, I hope and believe that the whole Board will do the same.

Last year's Board, while divided on some serious issues, did work together on the rehab program and I think that the new Board will do the same.

Where Were the Other 958

To the Editor:

Forty percent of GHI's 1,600 homeowners voted in the 1981 election for Board of Directors, an encouraging increase over last year's 31%, but not overwhelmingly encouraging. So, approximately 150 more members sat up and took notice — where were the other 958?

More to the point, WHO are the other 958? Are they the members who are (1) unsatisfied with the status quo, (2) confused as to how to change it, (3) apathetic, (4) resigned or (5) benighted? (Check one or more.)

Complacent statements have been made in recent Board meetings, drawing comparisons between the percentages of voters participating in our national elections and the percentage of GHI members voting on issues. The thrust of the message is, "That's par for the course in a Democracy (to have a small percentage determine the outcome for all). Everyone has a right to vote; if they don't exercise that vote, tough!" The statements are true, but the analogy is faulty. Most of us did not, on a specific day, consciously move to become members of our national democracy and accept the rights, privileges and obligations of that membership as we did on the day we became GHI members. And most of us, most certainly did not voluntarily decide to plunk down thousands of dollars to join the U.S.A., as we did to join GHI. Presumably we joined GHI because it fit our pocketbooks. Now, 60% of the membership has in effect left its pocketbook on the counter and said, "Take what you will, it's of no concern to me."

Jim Smith Returns As President of GHI; Board Votes to Speed Siding Installation

by Sid Kastner

New officers of the GHI board of directors were chosen at the organizational meeting held Tuesday evening. Before the proceedings started, Donald Volk - president of the last board - noted that the former officers had been consulted and had indicated they did not wish to serve, except for the secretary.

On a nomination by director Wayne Williams, James Smith was elected president by a vote of five to three. Williams then was nominated for vice-president by Volk, and took office on a vote of seven to one. The election of new director Frank Gervasi as treasurer, and Margaret Hogenesen as secretary, rounded out the new slate of officers after John Lewis and Steve Curtis declined nominations for these two posts.

Smith opened the proceedings by reminding the audience that GHI is engaged in one of the largest rehabilitation projects in any cooperative in the U.S. and "we . . . have really one problem - to get rehabilitation done and bring long-term costs down."

Rehabilitation Items

As if to underline these remarks, the main topics in the evening's agenda were a question of how to handle electrical improvements to the frame homes, in preparation for siding, and whether wall insulation of the block homes would be cost-effective.

Manager Tim Mitter and staff had prepared a memorandum on possible procedures for readying 55 frame homes for siding, by installing required new electrical services; their own expressed preference was to remove the existing equipment completely and install a new exterior stack modular unit which would avoid difficulties with siding installation that would be encountered if the older service was left in. However this approach would require a delay in installing complete siding on those particular homes, they noted, at the same time reporting that 48 other homes could have siding installation completed on them now if the board wished to proceed.

The complexities of the choices so posed proved quite confusing to the board and the audience in general, and staff architect Stanley Sersen was questioned on several aspects. In response to director John Lewis, he explained that a new 1981 electrical code has made the present grounding systems obsolete, necessitating the new work. Director Steve Curtis suggested that the electrical renewal project was "premature," with Smith agreeing that it could probably not be carried out properly with available Phase I funds. Director Volk went further and stated that if securing of Phase II financing was not too near "I'd favor paying the extra 15%" required to go ahead with most of the siding now and complete the fourth (service) wall at a later date.

Directors Gervasi and Hogenesen came down on the side of expediting siding installation as rapidly as possible, with the former moving to direct the staff to "come back to the board within 2-3 weeks with a preliminary set of specifications for frame home siding," excluding the electrical work. Smith urged, on the other hand, that management be given more time to set up a comprehensive plan - i.e. including the electrical work - which the board could consider at a special meeting; Mitter expressed his agreement with this approach "rather than doing the work piecemeal."

During this lengthy discussion and interpreting of the staff memorandum, members Ben Abramowitz and Sylvia Rosen made critical remarks from the floor; the former said "I'm appalled at the confusion (and) delays" and asked "how can anybody start projects without having money to pay?" while Rosen asked "When (the board) started Phase I, for $6.4 million, didn't you have plans?" Smith responded that "We do have a plan (but) we've had to change financing plans; there are some good things accomplished - we need to all work together."

When Gervasi's motion to proceed with plans for siding came to a vote, it passed. At the same time, Smith set up a special board meeting for July 1, to deal with the overall picture, including financing and electrical work. Thus both approaches appear to have been taken together.

The staff also asked the board for authorization to carry out a professional study of the cost-effectiveness of exterior insulation for the block homes, giving its opinion that other options (window insulation, passive solar devices) might be more applicable. When Curtis argued that such a step could be made by staff itself, Mitter and Sersen noted that available time was limited and also an objective estimate was required by GHI's financing institutions. However, Smith appointed Curtis, Gervasi and Ray McCawley (of the audit committee) to an ad-hoc committee to investigate the matter; joining these three on the committee will be Ms. Ging, who volunteered her help. Ed James, from the floor, urged that one block home test case be carried out before further commitments are made.

Member Comments

At the beginning of the meeting, just before the new board undertook its main agenda, member Abramowitz read a statement challenging the "legality of the whole affair" and arguing that "the authority of the board to impose liens on our homes is illegal;" he concluded with "We express dismay, and urge the board and management to cease and desist tampering with our homes." James, on a separate matter, questioned where funds to pay for costs of a recent lawsuit will come from. When Ms. Rosen attempted to speak also during the visitor's part of the meeting's agenda, though not having listed her name with the chair as wishing to speak, Smith cut off discussion, explaining later in the meeting that "judgment needs to be exercised on the time taken for member participation in board meetings." This action was criticized by James who complained that "You're not answering our questions," but was supported by former president Volk who commented that "People should realize that the board meeting is a place to discuss board policy."

Status of Committees

Curtis brought up the question of what role board members should assume in participation in committees. He stressed his own feeling that committees should be providing independent input, "to follow up on the various policies espoused by the different groups running for election," and therefore would resign from chairmanships he has held on several committees; he emphasized that this was put forth as a constructive suggestion. Smith noted "Yes, we were all elected by the same membership and don't want a "we" and "they" split." From the

Greenbelters on The Run

A most unusual triathlon (3 events) was completed by Greenbelt Al Morris, a marathon runner, on Sunday, June 7, at Oxford, Md. The triathlon was a combined swim, run and bike ride, totalling 72 miles. Morris finished about 40th in a field of 115 starters. The winning time was 6 hours 2 minutes. Al's 2 mile swim was 1:35, 20 mile run 2:20 and 50 mile bike ride 3:42, for a total of 7 hours 37 minutes.

Not to be outdone, former Greenbelt Bob Harper is running in a 100 mile race June 20 and 21 at Front Royal, Va. Harper has run this distance before and is rated among that growing group that considers a marathon too short, not challenging.

Some Greenbelters who run a mile will again enter the D.C. Road Runners Meet of Miles, a series of age group one mile races, held for several years at Roosevelt High School. This year the meet is being held at George Mason University in Fairfax, Va. The date is Sunday, June 28 and entries and other information on running can be obtained from Larry Noel, 474-9362.

floor, James commented critically on the length of time between the Legislative committee's meetings and urged a new chairman be appointed. Volk agreed with the need for more regularly held committee meetings, and suggested that chairmen be required to hold meetings at least once every two months even if no urgent items were assigned. Later in the meeting, Gervasi urged that the people who had run for election to the board should volunteer as chairmen of committees "where work can be done."

Burglary Prevention Tips

In connection with Burglary Prevention Month, proclaimed in Greenbelt by Mayor Gil Weidenfeld at the last regular city council meeting, Police Chief William T. Lane reminds city residents that home burglaries rose 15 percent in 1980 throughout the country and that the situation is the same in Greenbelt.

"As a rule burglaries increase when the economy levels out, and this is aggravated by the high cost of gold and silver that is stimulating home break-ins," said Chief Lane.

"The increase in working wives has made empty homes and apartments on workdays easy targets for burglars. Even mild weather has an impact."

We're reminding citizens to keep garage doors closed at all times.

Failure to practice the fundamental techniques of home protection was largely responsible for the 160 burglaries committed in our city last year. Most people didn't intentionally invite intruders to ransack their homes, but they might as well have hung up a sign saying, "No one's home, burglars welcome!"

In a timely reminder, Chief Lane lists precautions for vacationing residents:

1. Close and lock all doors, including porch, basement and garage. Use pin-tumbler cylinder locks on outside entrances and safety latches on the windows.
2. Connect a lamp to an automatic timer to turn lights in the home on and off each evening. Since sound is a deterrent, connect radio or television to timer.
3. Protect all doors and windows with an inexpensive, portable burglary alarm which sounds whenever someone attempts to break in.
4. Light up your porch and yard with outdoor lights to increase the likelihood that an attempted burglary would be seen. These lights can also be timer-controlled, if desired.
5. Be sure all screens are fastened from the inside.
6. Never leave valuables lying around, keep them in a safety deposit box.
7. Notify your police department when you will be leaving and how long you expect to be away.
8. Cancel all deliveries, such as the milk, laundry, cleaning, etc. Also, be sure to discontinue the newspaper or arrange to have it sent your vacation address.
9. Have a neighbor, or your post office, hold all mail until your return.
10. Arrange with a friend to mow the lawn and sweep your sidewalk once a week. Also ask him if he will pick up any circulars or handbills that may be left on your porch.
11. Leave your shades and blinds as you normally do. Closed blinds keep the sun out but also make an effective screen for the burglar.
12. Never advertise your departure with an item in the local paper. Give the story about your vacation to the newspaper after you have returned.

CRAB Members Address Crime Prevention, Study Programs

by Mavis Fletcher

At its June 2 meeting, the Community Relations Advisory Board (CRAB) continued to seek information needed to formulate its position on ways to improve crime prevention in Greenbelt. CRAB Chairman Ed Putens explained that the Board intends to look at a wide range of programs which have been tried in other cities to determine why some work and some don't and why some work in some circumstances but not in others.

In response to the Board's invitation, Officer Michael Knapp, Crime Prevention Officer of Prince Georges Police, Hyattsville, shared his experience with crime prevention programs in various areas. He stressed that reducing the opportunity for commission of crimes is the key to crime prevention. If crime is made easy—for instance, by bicycles left in the yard, cars with the keys left in them, open garages, unlocked houses, poor locks on residences—the incidence of crime will rise and there could never be enough police to prevent it.

Officer Knapp said that relatively few crimes are committed by professionals; most are committed by juveniles between the ages of 13 and 18 years. Therefore, the solution is removing the incentive and opportunity. He stressed that if a community refuses to tolerate a high crime situation and takes steps to make crime difficult, the perpetrators will move to another and easier area.

To assist with crime prevention, the Prince Georges Police Department maintains a three-part crime prevention program which concentrates on residential, commercial and personal security. Officer Knapp explained that a neighborhood watch program can be successful in reducing crime in residential areas if the residents are properly organized and educated. He stated that a program which breaks the area down into blocks in which neighbor watch meetings are held is a good initial approach, particularly since such a meeting provides an opportunity for neighbors to get to know each other and set a common objective. The County Police Crime Prevention Officers speak at these meetings and participants can sign up to have a security survey of their homes made by the police.

Officer Knapp stressed that the physical aspects of residential security are very important, citing the fact that 40% of burglaries are through unlocked doors and windows. He also strongly recommended marking valuables with an identification number, preferably the Maryland driver's license number. Pens for marking personal possessions can be borrowed from the Greenbelt Police Department. Officer Knapp said that various educational materials, including a film on personal security, are available from the County Police.

CRAB Chairman Ed Putens expressed the Board's appreciation for Officer Knapp's presentation. He also stressed that additional input, particularly in the area of publicity and public education, was needed. The Board decided to hold another meeting with a representative of the Greenbelt News Review, followed by a work session of the Board members to begin to formulate a plan of crime prevention for presentation to the city council.

mance as are offered by a community drama society. Lori Weiner as Annie and Efrat Levi, whose brunette vitality was quite as appealing as the dimples and ringlets of the original singer for her song, "The Good Ship Lollipop," both showed great poise and not a little talent. Their performances were both strengthened by the consistent stage movement and well-rehearsed singing of the other children.

In Sandy Duval the directors found a perfect torch singer. Her rendition of "Birth of the Blues" was notable in her effective use of voice, facial expression, and body language; but a later number, "I'm No Angel," stole the show when she proved herself also an able comedian doing first a parody version with an ill-fitting blond wig that she kept blowing out of her eyes, and then coming back for a convincing "straight" version of the same song.

Other numbers we especially enjoyed were Michaelle Rios singing "La Cucaracha," Graceanne Adamo and Robert Caraballo tangoing to "Jealousy," and the younger Angela Schreiber's shimmy routine.

Costumes throughout were well chosen, attractive and effective. But the tour de force in that line were the Scarecrow, Tin Man and Lion in the "Somewhere Over the Rainbow" number, all of whom looked just as they should have.

In short, the evening was a delight, offering a wide range of numbers whose variety held the interest of the audience. The quality of the performances showed that there is much talent in and around Greenbelt. The price of admission is a bargain.

Comedy at Petrucci's

Petrucci's Main Street Dinner Theatre announces the opening of the comedy "Bell, Book and Candle" on June 19. As the final show of Petrucci's season, "Bell, Book and Candle" brings to the stage the story of a beautiful witch who longs for a little romance in her life . . . something it has been long thought that witches must do without.

The show, scheduled to run Thursday through Sunday evenings through August 30, is preceded by Angie Petrucci's Antipasto Bar and International Buffet. Season subscription booklets are also now on sale. For reservations and additional information, call 725-5226 or 792-7499.

market during the next 4 years, having no plan for payment of a large sum owed could be looked on unfavorably. "If we get relief (from the legislature) there are plenty of uses for those funds," he said.

Pilski, also in the minority, took another tack. He urged use of surplus funds for the entire $50,000. The city has about $140,000 in reserves that the staff recommends retaining—about 5% of the operating budget. In addition there is another $90,000. It is the number of potential expenditures that may need to come from this source that discouraged the majority of council from agreeing with Pilski. Giese listed some of those expenditures which he is most concerned about: street repair, and Community Development Block Grant projects which may be under funded. Again Pilski differed. "I have more faith in next year," he said, "... at the end of the year we'll have enough money left to put in the sinking fund."

Greenbriar resident Donald Shell agreed with Weidenfeld, saying "... pressures brought on throughout the state will cause the legislature to make adjustments and I agree with Pilski, there is enough in the reserve fund."

"... the $1.6 m. liability for Greenbelt's employees is our responsibility," said White, "and we're going to have to face it ... There is an inventory of unmet needs this budget does not address ... Three members of council want to meet this unfunded liability equally between taxes and surplus. It is responsible and prudent and can be supported all the way down the line."

will go for a new refuse truck. Five cents of the tax rate will go to Reserves for Capital Improvements, in addition, $68,300, last year's reserve, was reappropriated. This money is traditionally spent on street repair and reconstruction. Council will determine how these funds will be spent at a later date.

(4) Social Services - CARES ($91,200): No changes were suggested.

(5) Recreation Department ($626,350): No additions were made to the department, although the total contributions the city makes to other recreation organizations was increased by $600.

Organization	Contribution
Boys and Girls Club	$8,300
Aquatic Boosters	1,800
Winter Swim Coach	450
Greenbelt Concert Band	500
Band Director	1,150
Greenbelt Little League	2,500
Greenbelt Running Club	200
S.H.L. Baseball	1,400
Greenbelt Tennis Assn.	375
Greenbelt Cultural Arts	3,500
Golden Age Club	1,525

Items already in the budget include $3,000 for new flooring for the Youth Center Game Room, $2,000 to the S.H.L. Rec Center for new doors and windows for the club house, $2500 for an aerial work platform needed for a variety of tasks; and $400 for CPR equipment

Parks - No new items were added to those already in the budget: $2,500 for equipment (physical fitness course) for Greenbriar Park; $7,000 - control with scorers, shelter for Braden Field; $5,200—2 bleachers each for the ball fields at Northway and Windsor Green; $12,500 for two tractors with mowers, and $5,500 for a riding mower.

Under "Grants and Contributions" in another spot in the budget Council agreed to contribute $1,000 to the new alcohol and drug abuse intervention-prevention program "Stayin' Alive," a joint school-community venture with Roosevelt High School.

Roosevelt Orchestra Asked To Vienna Music Festival

The Eleanor Roosevelt High School orchestra has been invited to participate in the International Youth and Music Festival in Vienna, Austria in July, 1982. The announcement was made by orchestra director Dorothy Pickard to parents of orchestra members at a special meeting in May.

The orchestra is one of 13 youth orchestras in the world and the only orchestra in North America to receive an invitation to participate in the festival. Pickard received the invitation from Dr. A. Giese, President of the Association for International Cultural Exchange located in Vienna in the names of the Lord Mayor of Vienna, Leopold Gratz and the Vice-Chancellor of the Austrian Ministry of Education and Arts, Dr. Fred Sinowatz.

If the orchestra accepts the invitation, they will spend two weeks and participate in the opening and closing ceremonies, give an adjudication concert and go on tour, giving concerts throughout Austria and Germany.

Students are to let Pickard know by June 15 if they intend to participate so that she can respond to the invitation.

Fun Runs

Members of the Greenbelt Running Club will meet this Saturday, June 13, at Greenbelt Lake for 3 distance runs: ½, 1 mile, and 10 kilometers (6.2 miles). All non-members interested in running may join the club promptly at 9 a.m. at the Gunner's Mate Concession Stand. There are no entry fees or pre-signups required. For further information, call Larry Noel at 474-9362.

Correction

The News Review regrets an inadvertent magnification of the height of the proposed Greenbelt Hilton Hotel described on page 7 of the June 4 issue. The 13 story tower of the hotel may reach a height of 175 feet, but not 715 feet, as stated. At 715 feet, each of the 13 stories would be 52 feet high.

JUMBURRITO. JUST $1.39*

Jumburrito is our zesty, chunky-beef burrito. It's packed with tasty chunks of beef, simmered in a mildly spiced sauce, and wrapped neatly in a flour tortilla. At 10 ounces, it's so big, it's a meal in itself.

A BEEFY MEAL FOR $1.39?

Not only that, but it's a meal you can have anytime. Because most of our stores are open 24 hours. And you won't have to wait in a long line, or at a slow table.

SO WHY WAIT?

Drive right up to your am/pm mini market and grab a big, beefy Jumburrito. It's like a taste of Mexico—waiting just around the corner. All around the clock.

*Available at participating stores. Price may vary.
