Many GHI Members Question Board On Rehab Charges and Fairness

by Mavis Fletcher

Member reaction to final rehab charges occupied much of the attention of the Greenbelt Homes, Inc. Board of Directors at its meeting on July 14. The subject took so much time that a considerable portion of the agenda had to be held over to a special board meeting on July 28. Members' statements, which contained a list of rehab charges, were mailed out on July 1. According to the manager's memo on the subject, about 200 members had contacted management in writing and by telephone by July 8. The manager also noted that a very high percentage of members are already paying their correct charges.

Members who spoke on this issue at the July 14 meeting appeared to be questioning the basic fairness of the allocation of "shared costs," which include among other things stock purchase, interest on the HUD and bank loans and administration costs. Member Stanley Robinson of 9-H Ridge Rd. led off the complaints about shared costs. He said that he had done all rehab work in his home himself except for crawl space insulation and steel crawl space access doors. Robinson cited exact amounts of the charges imposed on him by GHI and those charged for a house which he said was identical, where GHI did the total rehab. According to Robinson's figures, the amount GHI is charging him for shared costs works out to almost 60% of what it would have cost him to have GHI do the total rehab. Moreover, Robinson's rehab job ended up costing him 25% more than

MITTER RESIGNS

Greenbelt Homes, Inc. General Manager, Timothy Mitter, has informed the board that he has accepted a position with Ferris & Co. in their public finance division. Mitter joined GHI in spring of 1980 as assistant manager. In April 1981, he became general manager. His resignation becomes effective September 5.

it would have cost him to have GHI do the work. His repeated question to the board was "is this fair?"

The members of the board who answered Robinson and other members with similar concerns pointed out that although Robinson had not directly borrowed any of the rehab loan money, he had benefited from it indirectly, in the row 'heavy-up' electrical work, for example. It was pointed out that members who did their own rehab got certain benefits not enjoyed by those who had GHI do it—choice of materials, the opportunity to upgrade materials and earlier completion of the work. Director Janet Cantwell emphasized that the membership had voted to share overhead costs and that the board cannot overrule that decision.

The charges attributable to structural repair of block home roofs, which must be shared by block and brick home owners, appeared to be another source of dissatisfaction for brick home owners. However, Director Frank Gervasi pointed out that when the time comes to replace slate roofs on the brick homes, the block home owners will then have to share those costs, just as the brick home owners are now sharing the costs of block roof repair.

Member Joseph Comproni questioned another aspect of the charges. According to his statements, the monthly charges include repayment installments for loan money not yet drawn or expended. He complained that the membership has not yet received a report on how much was spent and how much of the loan was not used. GHI Comptroller Don McGinn explained that the monthly principal and interest payments on the bank loan are based on an estimate of the amount of money which will be drawn in the course of the year. He further noted that principal payments began in July 1983.

In the end, a motion by Director John Lewis to refer the matter of allocation of charges to the corporation council was passed 6-1 with Director Joe Jenkins opposed. (Director Don Volk was absent.)

Painting Policy

The board also enlarged upon the painting policy for masonry homes. In March the board had decided that GHI would waterblast, repair and offer members the option to paint those units in need of repair; in units not in need of repair members would be offered the option to waterblast and/or paint their units. As a follow-on to this policy, the board passed unanimously a motion which provided that management is to conduct a survey of brick and block homeowners to determine which members wish GHI to do the waterblasting and/or

No Charges

According to the Greenbelt Police Department, the State's Attorney's office has made a determination that no charges will be filed against the driver of the car involved in the recent fatal pedestrian accident. Bob Zugby Files For Council

Robert C. (Bob) Zugby has become the fifth candidate to file for the September 20 city council election. Other candidates who have filed are Mayor Gil Weidenfeld, Councilman Thomas X. White, Antoinette Bram and Francis White.

Zugby has been a member of the Greenbelt City Council since last February, when he was appointed to fill the vacancy created by Richard Castaldi's election to higher office. As a councilman, Zugby serves as liaison to the Advisory Planning Board and represents Greenbelt on the Land Use Policy Committee of the Metropolitan Washington Council of Governments.

In addition to his City Council responsibilities, Zugby is president of the Greenbriar Community Association, a position he has held since 1977, when control of the association passed from the developer to the homeowners of Greenbriar. He is also a past vice president of Greenbriar Condominiums Phase III, which he still serves as chairman of its Security Committee. As a member of the Board of Directors of the Greenbelt Arts Trust Corporation, Zugby is a contributor to that organization's program for rallying the support of the business community for the Greenbelt Cultural Arts Center.

Before his appointment to Council, Zugby had served on the city's Community Relations Advisory Board and was CRAB's liaison to the Greenbelt Crime Prevention Committee. He was also active in the successful campaign to elect then-Mayor Castaldi to the Prince Georges County Council.

A graduate of the Catholic University of America, Zugby currently manages his own audiovisual production and sales firm. He has also been a teacher and a writer.

A member of his Parish Council as well as choir director, Zugby resides in Greenbriar with his wife, Dea, and 3½-year-old daughter, Kristina. Dea Zugby is a Freedom of Information specialist with the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration.

Unappreciated at Home To the Editor:

This noon I was sitting in a restaurant in Greenway Shopping Center and looking down over the stores at the southeast corner of it and noting how pretty that particular section is against a background of green trees. I commented to the waitress that if that scene were in England, we would be taking pictures of it and sending them home.

That reminded me of Center School. If our Center School were in Brescia, Italy, or the Loire Valley in France or Wellingborough, England or a Swiss village, our school board members would be paying tour money to go see it, but because it is right here at home, they want to tear it down. FOR SHAME!

One might paraphrase a well-known bit of scripture and say, "A building is not without honor save in its own county."

Singer's Performance An Act of Courage

by Virginia Beauchamp

Until you saw the pair of crutches on the floor behind her chair and the orthopedic "boot" on her right foot, you might have wondered why last weekend's performer at the Utopia Theater—singer Kay Carpentre—sat so still in a chair at center stage. But an after-the-show chat with the artist revealed what an act of courage it was for her to have been there at all.

Two weeks earlier Carpentre was injured in a freak accident, when a car wheel passed over her foot, crushing it and breaking her little toe. And although, on doctor's orders, she has stayed away from her job as a senior developmental researcher for an Alexandria electronics firm, she is keeping her commitment to meet the four engagements for what is obviously her life's passion—singing and playing her guitar to share her music with others.

Although Carpentre confessed to having felt a good deal of pain during the concert, it did not show either in her manner or in her singing. But her immobility was visible, of course, in that static pose in the center-stage chair. Usually she performs standing, and she moves around a good deal, she said. And of course there were only seated bows to the applause of the small group in Friday night's audience.

Carpentre does a variety of song styles—folk music, country, 60's rock music, and other popular numbers. She sang the folk tune "Baby O" without accompaniment and varied her program with two instrumental solos. She is also a composer and did two of her own works, "Sunsira" and "The Door to Your Heart." Friday's program was a little static—no doubt because of her physical circumstances, but she planned to bring her synthesizer for the other performances. That should provide plenty of instrumental color. She has an engaging conversational manner, talking directly to her audience to fill in the moments for tuning the guitar. And she can really belt out a number like "Honky Tonk Man." Other memorable numbers were "Calypso," about the oceanographic vessel, and "The Court of King K," a patter song that picks up speed like an accelerating train but that also adds more syllables to be articulated with each succeeding stanza.

She will perform again both Friday and Saturday, August 5 and 6, at 8:15 p.m. For ticket information call 474-7763 or 345-4487.

Church Group Sponsors Celebration at Lake Park

A "Come Alive" celebration, sponsored by the New Covenant Christian Community (NCCC), will be held at the "Buddy" Attick Park bandstand on Sunday, August 14 at 10 a.m. There will be live music, dramatic skits, personal testimonies and a message on "The Battle for the Family" by Barry Wood. The public is invited to attend.

Wood has been pastor at NCCC since it began eight years ago. He will speak on the critical problems facing the family and will share a simple time-tested formula for keeping the family together.

An interdenominational gathering of Bible-centered believers, NCCC usually meets each Sunday morning at 10 a.m. at Eleanor Roosevelt High School. During the week smaller gatherings called "home groups" meet in individual homes scattered across Prince Georges County.

GHI Board Enlarges on Paint Policy for Masonry Homes

 or painting. The motion provided that brick units where structural repair is not required may be left in their present condition; that all color selections will be for oil-based paint, which must be purchased from GHI; that a detailed inspection procedure will be followed and that the waterblasting/painting contract will be in effect, if possible, by October. Work will be finished by June 1984. In addition, the board passed a motion which provided that when brick homes are waterblasted, the owner may choose to leave the exterior unpainted, paint it himself or have it painted by GHI.

The board granted permission to members Douglas and Diana Vogt for a garden-side addition to their home at 2-C Plateau Place over the objections of their neighbors on either side. The neighbors expressed concern that the addition might affect the roots of a large tree and that it would cut off light and air, giving their homes a 'boxed in' feeling. The board granted the exception 5-2 over the opposition of Directors Jenkins and Lewis. Jenkins pointed out that additions were usually approved only when at least two of the three parties involved agree to it; in this case, two of the three objected to the addition. However, Director Hartwick expressed the opinion that owners should have the right to improve their property, and that view prevailed.

The board also voted to authorize payment of one-half of the 3% commitment fee to obtain $3 million in additional county bond financing. The financing will be obtained by Community Savings and Loan for lending to qualified GHI home purchasers at a projected interest rate of 10.25%. The purchasers will repay the commitment fee to GHI at settlement.

Test Venting System

Items carried over to the special meeting on July 28 included a management recommendation for a test of a mechanical venting system to be installed in one building. A recent report prepared by the Vitro Co. recommended that air-to-air heat exchangers be made mandatory for the block units. The fans and other equipment can be installed at an estimated cost of $250 per unit. The mechanical system must be installed in a whole row and therefore a suitable row will have to be identified and the owners must agree to install the equipment. Lois Gorman, who has been monitoring humidity levels in brick home attics, said that the passive system (bullet vents), which was installed in some brick homes, was "doing great" but that no definite conclusion can be drawn during the summer months. She recommended that the insulation be pulled back from the frieze board at the attic eaves to allow natural ventilating to work.

Director Don Volk moved to test the mechanical system in one row. The motion squeaked by 4-3 with Directors Gervasi, Cantwell and Dombrowski opposed. A subsequent motion by Wayne Williams to require GHI maintenance personnel to clear the frieze board vent from insulation in each attic failed 5-2, with only Williams and Dombrowski supporting it. In the end, a director's committee consisting of Williams, Gervasi and Dombrowski was appointed to work with management on the whole humidity/ventilation question, including the choice of standard methods and equipment for measuring humidity levels. Lois Gorman and Engineering and Maintenance Committee Chairman Mike Prosis will be invited to work with the committee.

Townhouse Exteriors

In response to a member petition presented by Steve Polaschik for action to prevent further deterioration of the exteriors of the larger townhomes, the board passed unanimously a motion to get prices for painting these townhouses and to make a survey of structural repairs—cost of the survey not to exceed $1500. According to statements by the members, the plywood is peeling and the brick veneer has begun to separate from the frame of some units. All costs will be paid out of contingency reserves for this group of homes. The manager warned, however, that over $10,000 has been spent in the last few months on emergency waterproofing of basements in these houses and less than $30,000 is left for additional work. These reserves would be inadequate for vinyl siding, one of the suggested remedies. However, the board passed a motion by Gervasi that an in-house engineer's estimate be made for vinyl siding and windows.

The board also dealt with the question of vinyl siding for the block homes. A letter had previously been received from the Maryland Historic Trust refusing approval for installation of exterior siding/insulation on the block homes. Nevertheless, the board passed a motion to give management authority to grant exemptions to members who wish to install siding/insulation at their own expense. Such an exemption must be requested before August 31 or the units will be included in the painting contract. The exemption can be granted by management only if the neighbors agree to the installation of siding on a member's unit.

After the imposition of numerous conditions suggested by the Engineering and Maintenance and the Aesthetics and Environment Committees and the corporation counsel, the board granted permission to Barry Moien of 6 Woodland Way to build a swimming pool. The motion passed unanimously; however, before the vote President Margaret Hogenesen went on record as opposing the motion.

Tennis News

by Jim Harbaugh

This is the weekend we've been waiting for! The first annual GTA Doubles Tournament. It will be a tournament squeezed into one fun-filled weekend. It's been well-planned by your officers and we hope will be a big success. A canopy is being erected court side for shade, and extra chairs provided along with the ever-present stands for all those spectators we expect to be watching the matches. Some of the attractions will be cold sodas, sold at cost, iced water at court side, and besides the normal trophies for all finalists, the winners will win a free dinner provided by McDougal's Restaurant in Greenway Plaza, here in Greenbelt. Also a dinner for two on the cruise ship "Dandy," the one that sails the Potomac River, will be given away to a lucky tournament participant.

The events will be Men's Doubles, Women's Doubles and Mixed Doubles. Of course, by the time you read this it will be too late to enter the draw, but come on down Saturday and Sunday (6 & 7) to meet the members, watch some good tennis, and if you decide you'd like to join the ranks of the Greenbelt Tennis Association, you may join right there. Our next tournament and "picnic" are not far off. What a racket!

Fall Soccer

by Sue Corneliu

Greenbelt Boys and Girls Club held their third and final registration for Fall Soccer last Saturday at the Youth Center. Many new members were signed up in every age group, and many old familiar faces from seasons past were also seen. While team rosters are being formed at this time there are still some openings on several teams.

The most desperate situation at this point is Greenbelt's Teen Team and boys and girls born in 1966, 1967, 1968 and 1969 are needed to fill in the roster in order to field a team this September. Without several more players, those who have already registered will not be able to play. There are already several girls on the team, and more are encouraged to sign up. Please call 345-4628 or 345-6081 to register. It's still not too late, but time is running out.

Due to the large number of players presently registered, there will be at least nine teams playing soccer this fall either in the County or Interleague, and perhaps more. Assistant coaches are needed, and parents are urged to help the coach with carpooling and administrative work. Greenbelt soccer has thrived because of the parental involvement and encouragement. It helps the coach with the difficult job ahead of him or her, and brings the team closer together as a unit when coaches, players and parents work toward the same goal: a fun and educational season for Greenbelt's boys and girls.
