LEGISLATORS FIELD QUESTIONS ON PLANS TO USE TAX WINDFALL

by Peter Durantine

Concern over the tax windfall to the state and how it would be used underscored the Senator and Delegates' "Open Door" meeting for constituents held in the Council Chambers of the Municipal Building on Saturday, January 31.

Hosted by state Sen. Leo Green (D) and Delegates of the 23rd District — Charles J. "Buzz" Ryan, Joan B. Pitkin and Mary Conroy — the turn-out for the annual meeting was better than expected, with approximately twenty citizens appearing to question the four state capital representatives about state legislation. For most of the citizens attending the morning meeting, the tax windfall, an expected $179.6 million to be given the state by changes in the federal income tax law, was their biggest worry.

"It's nothing but a tax increase," complained Eunice Coxon of the tax windfall, of which Gov. William Donald Schaefer proposes returning only $62.4 million to taxpayers. Other citizens agreed with Coxon, who passed around a petition, sponsored by the Montgomery County Taxpayers Federation, which protests the tax windfall as a tax increase and urges lawmakers to return the money to the taxpayers.

Responding to these complaints, Del. Conroy explained, "we didn't know what we would get from the federal government" to determine how the money should be used.

Del. Ryan, in responding to questions about the tax windfall's being used for the new stadium proposed for Baltimore, assured the group that it will "not (be) financed by the tax windfall."

Other assurances came from Sen. Leo Green, who said, "we're not locked into the governor's plan . . . the general assembly (also) has a plan."

What seemed more important to those concerned about the tax windfall, was the "lack of communication," as one citizen remarked, about what the tax windfall was all about.

"The problem with the windfall," said City Council member Joe Isaacs, "is that it's not clear how it will be used."

Isaacs added, "The perception is that all the money is going to Baltimore."

Sen. Green and the three Delegates agreed that communication about the tax windfall had not been clear, but that Baltimore would not be the only recipient of the tax windfall monies.

"Baltimore is not the state of Maryland," emphasized Del. Ryan.

The group also expressed misgivings about Gov. Schaefer's plans and the general assembly's reluctance to contend his proposals.

Ryan reassured the group that this was not the case, saying, "Each time we come up against him, we let him know there are two branches of government." In defending Schaefer, Ryan stressed that "He's not only for Baltimore" and that there is hope among assembly members that they can produce a working relationship with the governor.

Citizens also demanded to know what was being done about the covered truck bill, which requires dump trucks and other open-loaded trucks to cover their load to prevent debris from falling out and damaging roads and vehicles. The bill, introduced over 25 years ago by Del. Conroy's late husband, Sen. Edward Conroy, has been voted down each time it has come before the state legislature.

Explaining that it isn't just the trucking lobby that works to kill the bill each time it is brought to a vote, Del. Pitkin remarked, "I think there's a silent opposition to that bill."

Agreeing with Pitkin, Conroy added, "The insurance industry is part of that silent opposition." The Delegates also mentioned that the sand and gravel companies and the Prince Georges County government are also against the bill. However, said Sen. Green, citing a poll taken by the American Automobile Association, "99% of the people want a covered truck law."

Other issues of concern included: the check floating bill which passed the House last year; changes in the campaign laws, which Ryan anticipates; and the state's budget, which some citizens worried was headed toward a deficit. Ryan calmed these fears: "There can't be a deficit because we have a balanced budget amendment." He further explained that there are "ceiling rates" on state spending projects. Another issue talked about involved legislation for use of dominant public facilities. Facilities, such as North End School, could be used to house the elderly, remarked one citizen.

Following this line, Tony Pisano asked if there are state funds to cover renovation of North End School, if the City Council agreed upon it. Councilman Isaacs responded that "at present, there are no funds."

Seminar to Feature Greenbelt's History

by Sandra Barnes

On two Wednesdays, February 18 and 25, Prince Georges Community College and the Prince Georges County Library are co-sponsoring a seminar on Greenbelt's history. The seminars will be held at the Greenbelt Library, 7-9 p.m.

The first session on February 18 will deal with the early years. Joseph Arnold, associate professor of history at the University of Maryland, Baltimore campus, will discuss the events in the New Deal administration of Franklin Delano Roosevelt that preceded the building of Greenbelt. David Fogle, associate professor of architecture at the University of Maryland, will trace Greenbelt's roots to the English garden cities and will comment through a series of slides on the many planning features unique to Greenbelt. Bruce Bowman, long-time resident and instrumental in the forming of two key Greenbelt cooperatives, Greenbelt Homes, Inc. (first known as Greenbelt Veterans Housing Cooperative, Inc.) and Twin Pines Savings and Loan (now Mellon Bank) will focus on the development of coops and their importance to Greenbelt.

The program for the second session will focus on community life during the early days and the development years.

Betty Allen, librarian and unofficial Greenbelt historian, and City Manager Jim Giese will be speakers.

The course is free and registration can be accomplished at the door.

Part I

Year of Celebration Begins With Smiles

by Eileen Peterson

With smiles, laughter and sometimes a few tears, past and present Greenbelt residents and friends gathered in the Utopia Theater on Sunday, Jan. 18, to begin the year-long celebration of Greenbelt's 50th anniversary.

Planned by hostess Sandra Smith, the over-two-hours of reminiscences, music, and ceremony created a picture of the birth and growth of a community unique in its inception and populated by people with vision: "A dream come true," as "Peg" Loftus called her family's move into the New Town.

In one of the most dramatic moments of the afternoon, Mrs. Loftus called this anniversary a symbol to her of "a dream fulfilled." She and husband Joseph raised eight children here and both continue to serve the community in various ways, as they did in the early days. Coming out of the Depression, she explained, many young people were uncertain of their futures. In Greenbelt, "everybody was open-handed, shared skills and knowledge" and took classes in everything from nutrition to gardening. "Everyone participated — everything was accepted and used."

Joe Loftus, Bruce Bowman, Mary Moien, Dorothy Lauber and Leta Mach described early Greenbelt life from their experiences and through letters and oral histories from residents gathered by the city and by 50th anniversary committee. Kathleen McFarland described the first Greenbelt Community Band.

The Disabled American Veterans, led by Austin Green, had a 50th anniversary flag made and presented it to the City. In opening remarks, Mayor Gil Weidenfeld spoke of the City's "greatest assets—its citizens," and the 250 people nodded and smiled as speaker after speaker stressed the way early as well as later citizens gave time and talents of whatever strength to the myriad needs of a growing community.

Directed by Jean Cook, a choir drawn from many groups sang a medley of 1930's songs—"Dancing in the Dark" and "Forget Your Troubles and Just get Happy" among them.

A slide-and-sound-track show put together by Joe Polanin brought excited comments from the audience which included many state and local officials.

That Sunday was a nasty, wet day, commented Smith, and she was delighted that so many came. Refreshments were served in the lobby afterward (including cookies from Sandy's mom), and many people seemed to want to give more information about early Greenbelt. Reminiscences can be directed to Sandra Smith, 14-W Laurel Hill Road, or Mary Moien at 6 Woodland Way. Moien gave an account during the program of what was happening in Washington in 1937, and she hopes to present reminiscences in News Review articles.

"Every person I asked to do something, did it," praised Smith, who mentioned how moved she was by the earnest presentations and the help of Greenbelt Arts Center volunteers with lighting and staging.

A member of the 50th Anniversary sub-committee on sales, promotion and publicity, Smith has been active in city and Greenbelt Homes, Inc. committees, at the Labor Day Festival, and she writes for the News Review. The 10-year resident now turns to her next big project: the 50th Anniversary House & Garden Tour and May 16 and 17.

LETTERS

So Long

To the Editor:

I am moving to Silver Spring in March. I don't feel sad since I will be only 20 minutes from Greenbelt. Having lived here only two and a half years I was most fortunate in having made so many friends. Greenbelt, for me, had the typical feel of a small town, especially since I came from New York. Nowhere have I ever known such warmth in a community. I expect to spend as much time here as in Silver Spring, so I don't have to say Goodbye, just so long.

Lovely Performances

I almost missed the last performance (this past Saturday night) of "The Prime of Miss Jean Brodie" at Utopia Theater. Was I glad I was there!

It was a lovely performance of an interesting play. The players did a fine job. It was not only well acted, but the handling of the different scenes was extremely well done.

We are very fortunate to have such a professional group. I hope people will be sure to support the coming plays.

Police Offer More Info On Attack and Robbery

by Jack Brickman

Greenbelt police this week provided additional information and a somewhat clearer Identikit sketch of the assailant in a robbery at the Glen Oaks apartment complex in which a woman was beaten, knocked unconscious and robbed of her purse. The event, which occurred about 7:30 p.m., January 28 in a parking area on Mandan Road, was reported in last week's News Review. In that report, Greenbelt police Sgt. John A. Lann was quoted as refusing to comment on the promptness of the police response to this robbery, stating it might jeopardize their investigation.

This week, feeling the need to clarify their comment of last week, which the police felt left some question as to the promptness of their response to calls from the crime scene, police spokesman Patrick McAndrew provided specific details of the circumstances. According to McAndrew, the first call notifying them of this robbery was received from a citizen living in a nearby apartment. He had heard the victim's cries for help as he was leaving his building, had gone to her assistance and had helped her to his apartment, where he had then called police. McAndrew reports that the call came in at 7:34 p.m. and that the first police unit arrived on the scene at 7:37 p.m., an elapsed time of three minutes. A rescue squad ambulance also responded and transported the victim to AMI Doctors' Hospital in Lanham, where she was treated and released.

The assailant depicted in the accompanying Identikit sketch is described as a black male, 24 to 25 years, 5'10", medium build, close-cropped hair, brown eyes, medium complexion, no facial hair, wearing a tan or rust-colored hip-length ski-type coat with a snap-on hood. He wore thick black ski gloves.

State Warns of Errors On Income Tax Returns

Maryland State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein warns that many taxpayers are reporting lower deductions than they are allowed on their state income tax returns. As a result, some are overpaying their state tax bills by as much as $275, and others by even larger amounts.

Taxpayers itemizing deductions should use the amount reported on line 24 of the federal Schedule A as their total itemized deductions and report that number on their Maryland return. Many taxpayers are instead erroneously using the number on line 26 of federal Schedule A. This is a much lower number because it represents itemized deductions after the federal zero bracket (or standard deduction) amount has been subtracted. The result is additional unnecessary state tax.

Goldstein also notes that, for the first time, state income taxpayers are being required to send a copy of their federal Schedule A along with their Maryland return. Some taxpayers are trying to avoid making an extra copy of the federal Schedule A and instead are sending in a copy of the Maryland Form 502A. This results in an even larger overpayment, because Form 502A does not allow a deduction for state and local income taxes.

Erroneous returns are being corrected by the state whenever possible. Goldstein advises that taxpayers who have made either of these errors should wait for a refund check or a notice from the state income tax division before filing an amended return. If the refund amount has not been corrected by the state, the taxpayer should then contact the income tax division about filing an amended return.

State tax offices have a free brochure that explains what deduction itemizers should do line by line on their Maryland return. Questions may be directed to any office of the income tax division listed on the back of the state tax packet and in the Suburban Maryland phone book.

St. Hugh's School was very honored by the visit, on February 9, of Dr. Grace Hopper. Creator of the computer language COBOL, she recently retired from the Navy as a Rear Admiral after 43 years of service. She is currently employed at Digital Equipment Corporation and travels everywhere, speaking on her role in the development of computers.

Congratulations to Joyce Yakupkovic of Lastner Lane, who made the Dean's List at the University of Maryland at College Park with a GPA of 3.9. Joyce is the daughter of John Yakupkovic and the late Josie Yakupkovic.

Mayor Re-elected To Post on COG

Gil Weidenfeld, Mayor of the City of Greenbelt, has been re-elected as chairman of the Board of Directors of the Metropolitan Washington Council of Governments. After receiving the unanimous support of the Board, Chairman Weidenfeld said, "Your vote of confidence was, I hope a recognition of what COG achieved in 1986, and a statement of your belief that the coming year will be equally productive . . ."

Weidenfeld proposed new goals for the coming year. "I would like to see us concentrate this year on developing a model senior citizens' housing program. Our region is greying and the present and future needs of our citizens must be addressed. We must find alternatives to federal subsidies to build affordable senior citizen housing."

"We must also find ways to increase community involvement in the prevention and reduction of crime, rather than just adding more police. We will develop our relations with the new airport authority. And, we will work hard to stabilize COG's financial base."

Weidenfeld also praised the prior achievements of COG. "In 1986, we cosponsored a conference on Beltway safety and congestion with the Board of Trade. We launched a campaign to recruit family day care providers. We coordinated the effort to rid the Potomac of hydrilla, and we provided the region with essential information about recent development and its implications for our local governments. These are certainly achievements to be proud of."

COG will celebrate its 30th anniversary this spring.

10 and 20 Mile Races Were Run on Dec. 27

by Larry Noel

The 24th annual running of the D.C. Road Runners 10 and 20 mile races on December 27, attracted 121 finishers including some nationally ranked runners. Runners came from Colorado, Michigan, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, New York and New Jersey as well as nearby states. Four runners who are well known on the newly popular partners race circuit, as well as highly ranked individual runners, did well this day.

Craig Holm, 32, of LeRoy, N.Y., running for Team Champion, easily won the 20 mile in 1:52:15 and his wife, Kare Cossaboon Holm, 31, was second in the women's section of the same race in 2:16:35.

Laura DeWald Albers, 29, of Grand Rapids, MI, running for the Brooks Racing Team, won the women's 20 mile in 2:07:48. Albers had set the U.S. women's record for 20 miles of 2:00:39 in 1982 here-since broken by Joan Benoit, the 1984 Olympic champion in the marathon.

Will Albers, former prominent D.C. area runner, finished 8th in the 10-mile. The Holms won over the Albers in a very close Foot Lockers Partners 8 kilometer (4.96 mile) race in Washington, D.C., in 1984.

Al Naylor, former Northwestern High School and University of Maryland runner, was 6th in the 10 mile in 59:06 to lead nine other Greenbelters. Dick Good, 57, was the only Greenbelt finisher in the 20 mile for 34th place in 2:32:52. Former Greenbelter Marty Greenbaum, 41, finished 37th in the 20 mile in 2:44:09.

The 10 mile was won by Jim Eastman, 30, Woodbridge, Va. in 54:34. He was only 29 seconds ahead of Robbie Raisbeck, former area high school and Clemson University runner, in 55:03. Greenbelt finishers in the 10 mile were: Steve Daniels 9th in 1:01:06. Jonathan Boneau 11th in 1:01:41, Nelson Oertell 33rd in 1:12:14, Didier Lemoine 36th in 1:12:31, Bob Mongelli 39th in 1:14:44, Dave Chitwood 40th in 1:14:58, Joe Broderick 46th in 1:17:55, Sid Conger 50th in 1:18:31, and Jim Shaffer 57th in 1:24:17. Former Greenbelter Tom Downs was 51st in 1:19:50. Dave Enders, son of Greenbelter Art Enders, was 43rd in 1:17:24.

Patricia Bullinger, 25, Arlington, Va. won the women's section of the 10 mile in 1:02:20, 12th overall over Leslie Maerki, 30, Alexandria, Va. in 1:03:32. In the 1.75 mile run around the lake Jenny Logsdon, 11, the only Greenbelter was 3rd in 16:05.

In the 20 mile, Craig Holm won in 1:52:15 over Ben Beach, 37, Bethesda, Md. who did 1:57:55. There were 44 finishers, the last runner finishing in 3:28:47.

Any Greenbelt runner who did not get an award may obtain one by contacting 474-9362. The D.C. Road Runners Club, many Greenbelt volunteers, the Greenbelt Police and Recreation Departments had combined efforts to make this a safe and successful holiday event.

The band just recorded some of its most popular songs at Ambient recording studio and video cassettes will be released soon. They have headlined at the Paragon and recently appeared with Blackfoot at Network. They plan future frequent appearances at the Utopia Theater.

Road Runners Host Race In Greenbelt on Feb. 15

The 26th running of the D.C. Road Runners Washington's Birthday Marathon (26.2 mile) will start at NASA Recreation Center off Soil Conservation Rd., near Greenbelt Road, at 10:30 a.m. Sunday, February 15. The T-shirts given to all runners will carry the Greenbelt 50th Anniversary logo. Runners from Canada, upper New York state, Michigan and Ohio will again compete. Both Charlie Troyer from Reading, Pa., who won in 2:30:52 last year (the course record is 2:22:45, set in 1967 by Lou Castagnola) and Margaret Horivka from Williamsport, Md., who won last year in 3:14:12 for the second time, will be back.

Runners may obtain race fliers and entry forms at the Greenbelt Youth Center or by calling 474-9362. This course is certified and can be used to qualify for the Boston marathon. It is by far the oldest marathon in the Washington-Baltimore area.

Hearing on Pepco Rates

Greenbelt citizens are invited to a Maryland Public Service Commission hearing on Pepco's current electric rates, to be held February 18 at 7:30 p.m. at the Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission, 6600 Kenilworth Avenue, Riverdale. This investigation is being held as a result of a request by the Maryland People's Counsel that the Commission issue an order requiring Pepco to "show cause why its rates and charges should not be reduced." Recent utility tax changes and other cost reductions indicate that Pepco's current rates may be excessive.

Persons wishing to speak should register at the hearing between 7 and 7:30 p.m.

For transportation, telephone Esther Webb at 474-6890.

Doctors' Price Lists Are Made Available to Public

Maryland Attorney General Stephen H. Sachs has released the nation's first comprehensive, statewide list of physician fees, plus a 36-page "Health Care Shopper's Guide," providing 59 tips on how to save money on health care.

The unique Price Lists, which divide Maryland into nine geographic regions, give the prices charged by some 4,225 individually named doctors for commonly performed procedures in each of 16 medical specialties. The prices shown are the "customary charges" that each doctor charged to Medicare patients during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1985, the most recent year for which figures are available. The doctors named in the Price Lists include not only physicians, but also non-physician practitioners, representing the broadest range of primary care providers used by the public.

Consumers may obtain a free copy of the Price List for their area, as well as a pamphlet describing how to use it and the "Health Care Shopper's Guide," by telephoning the Consumer Protection Division at 301-576-6500 or by writing to Doctor Fees, 300 Munsey Building, Baltimore, Md. 21202. It takes eight to 10 weeks to fill the orders. Copies of the lists and guide are being sent to every public library in the state and should be available shortly.

Special School Programs Described in Brochure

The "School System of Choices" programs for the 1987-88 school year in the Prince Georges County School System will be on display during special open house receptions for each program beginning Saturday, February 21, and continuing through March 19.

Applications for the programs will then be accepted in person on Saturday, March 21, from 1 to 4 p.m. at Largo High School, 605 Largo Road, Largo. Applications will be accepted on a "first come, first served" basis within desegregation guidelines.

A description of each program is featured in a special brochure being mailed to all households in Prince Georges County on February 12. For more information, call 952-6044.

Available Cable Service In Greenbelt

With the recent changes in Prime Cable TV rates and service content within the City of Greenbelt system, city council wants all residents made fully aware of the cable service options now available to them.

Prime Cable, the cable television franchisee in the city, raised its rates effective January 1 on both of its service tiers. As a result, the Universal tier, which was previously FREE, now costs $7.95, and the Cable Plus tier, previously called Basic tier and costing $11.95, now costs $13.95.

Both the Universal tier and the Cable Plus tier are available to Greenbelt residents, and either tier must be provided if requested. The Universal tier has fewer channels than the Cable Plus tier and does not allow access to the premium channels such as HBO, Disney, and Showtime.

The Universal tier provides all the national channels from Washington and Baltimore (channels 2, 4, 7, 9, 11, and 13), many area independent and Public Broadcasting channels (such as 5, 20, 22, 26, 50, 53 and 56), as well as a variety of local or public access channels, such as local origination, public access, the city's municipal access channel A-10, county government access, educational access, job bank and Prime Cable updates.

The Cable Plus tier provides all the above channels and many others, such as the Weather channel, ESPN, Home Team Sports (HTS), WTBS (Atlanta), WOR (New York), Music Television (MTV), Christian Broadcasting Network, Cable News Network (CNN) and PTL Satellite Network.

Again, both service levels are available in Greenbelt. If there are any questions, please contact either Renee Bryan or Michael McLaughlin at the city offices, 474-8000.

Greenbelt Soccer

by Kevin Wheatley

Recently Greenbelt took on the Bowie Thunder Hawks at the White Marsh Indoor Soccer Arena.

The match started off with sweeper Daniel Gomez stealing the ball and passing it off to forward Jason Harbin for a goal. However, the Thunder Hawks came right back and tied it within a few minutes.

In the second quarter both teams worked at scoring but without success. T. J. Lubey made a cameo appearance and performed rather well.

The third-quarter was also a tough defensive struggle. The Bowie team managed to take the lead with 35 seconds left in the period.

During the fourth quarter, the dam broke for Greenbelt. With 11 minutes left, Kevin Lynch passed the ball to Miguel Pereira. He broke away and scored to tie the game.

One minute later Jason Harbin stole the ball, drove down court and scored unassisted to take the lead.

Four minutes later Miguel scored his second goal on a corner kick. It was an incredible shot!

At the three minute mark Tommy Bradley made a nice center pass to forward Adam Wheatley, making the final score 5-2 Greenbelt.

Sweeper Jason Everhart did a very good job backing up the offense by hanging back and stopping any Bowie offensive threats. Goal Keepers Chris Todd, Shawn Wilson and Adam Wheatley all did a real nice job as usual. They owe their success to Goalie Coach Matt Webb. The time he gives the players really pays off.

Shadow Puppet Show Enthralls Audience

by Leta Mach

The answer to the parent's dilemma — how to expose a child to the arts without frustration— appeared at the Utopia Theater over the holidays. The answer is the ancient art form of shadow puppetry as performed by Clarion Shadow Theater.

True, puppet plays are not the first thing that come to mind when thinking of the arts. But the performance by the Clarion troop was an artistic experience. The nationally known Clarion Shadow Theater headed by David and Donna Wisniewski, is one of the few, if not the only, groups specializing in shadow puppetry.

This particular performance told the familiar story of Peter and the Wolf. As is traditional, the show began with a review of the characters and their associated music. Soon the audience was in a very unfamiliar world of light and shadow. Dark shadows representing animals and people moved upon a large screen, while colorful scenery changed around them. No narration was necessary as the puppets acted out the Prokofiev music. The young audience sat enthralled.

After the short performance, David Wisniewski talked about the shadow puppetry art form. The Wisniewskis have updated the art by replacing the oil lamp and sheet with a screen and overhead projector in order to make shadows. But they are old-fashioned enough to need long umbrella rods (hard to find since the collapsible kind are more popular) to manipulate the poster board characters. After a joke about collecting all the dead umbrellas after a rainstorm, one could almost hear the audience resolving to find old umbrellas and send them to the Wisniewskis.

The two performances and a shadow puppetry workshop were among Utopia's special offerings for children during the holidays. The children's offerings were in response to requests for more programming for the younger age group. Unfortunately, the theater was not packed. Just as the theater has a responsibility to the community, so too does the community to the theater. Those who did not attend missed a rare experience that could please all.
