Public Hearing Scheduled Thursday On Bond Issue Priority Selection

The Greenbelt city council has scheduled a public hearing for Thursday, June 4 at 8 p.m. to get the comments of the citizens on the proposed priority for spending the $6 million bond issue approved two years ago.

The priority list for the money was developed at a work session on Thursday, May 21. Members of the city council, five advisory board chairpersons and eight city staff members met with Fred Arends, a facilitator with the Maryland Department of Economic and Community Development to attempt to develop a plan for spending the bond issue money. Because the cost of all projects which might be funded by the bond issue exceed the available money by more than $2 million, it was necessary to establish which of the proposed projects have the highest priority.

City Manager James K. Giese reviewed the various projects and their estimated costs. Bad news was provided the group when he reported that construction costs were inflating faster than the rise in the cost-of-living. As a result, he advised that the latest cost estimate for the police station was $1,945,000 — up $221,000. Cost estimates for the North End School, which were last made two years ago, were increased by 50% to $45 a square foot, making the cost for renovating the entire building $2,000,000.

Giese also identified park areas which might be considered for improvements. The list included Attick Park, Braden Field, Northway Fields, Perimeter Trail Park, and Schrom Hills Park. He also noted the need for environmental improvements to Greenbelt Lake, such as dredging out silt and repairing the dam.

The participants were divided into five groups with each group having one council member, one advisory board chairperson and one or two staff members. Each subgroup was assigned the task of selecting the six projects which it felt should be given the top priority.

After the five groups completed their tasks, the results were posted on the wall of the council room. It became apparent that although there were differences between groups, there was general agreement as to which projects should be funded by a bond issue. The group quickly agreed that staff could consolidate the individual group results into a single priority plan.

Upon analyzing the group reports, the staff concluded that seven projects received general support. By weighting the rankings made by the individual groups on a point system basis, the following consolidated priority ranking was achieved:

Rank	Project	Estimated cost
1.	New police station	$1,875,000-$1,945,000
2.	Renovate outdoor swimming pool	375,000
3.	Acquire park land	750,000
4.	Construct indoor pool with combined bath house for both indoor and outdoor pools	2,800,000
5.	Addition to public works facility	500,000
6.	Improvements to Schrom Hills Park	180,000*
7.	Renovation of North End School	780,000*

* Note: Estimated cost is average of funds allocated by strategic planning sub-groups.

Of the seven projects, it is possible to fund the top five with the bond funds and a reserve for building construction. The sixth project, improvements to Schrom Hills Park, can be partially funded with the bond issue. These funds can be supplemented with Program Open Space Grant funds.

For the last project on the list, renovation of North End School for other uses, a $243,500 reserve

Small Turn-out at GHI Annual Meeting Okay Boiler Room Uses, Raises for Board

by Mavis Fletcher

At the annual meeting of Greenbelt Homes, Inc. on May 20, the membership, operating with barely a quorum, voted to increase the pay of members of the board of directors and the audit committee and to approve two motions recommended by the GHI board. A petition put on the agenda by a group of members without the recommendation of the board was defeated.

Operating at the beginning of the meeting with only 76 members (75 is a quorum), those present approved a motion which had been tabled a year ago to increase the compensation of members of the board of directors by $300 per year. Compensation of members of the audit committee will be increased by $150 per year. These increases bring the remuneration of the four GHI officers to $1,550 per year; the other five directors will receive $1300. The chairman of the audit committee will be paid $600 and the other two members of the committee will receive $500.

Loan to GDC

With no discussion, the membership authorized the board of directors to make a loan to the Greenbelt Development Corporation for the purpose of replacing the windows in the Parkway apartments. The motion authorized a loan of not more than $65,000 for a period not to exceed five years at an interest rate of 11.5%.

Small Boiler Rooms

For the third year, the membership was asked to authorize a use for the small, unused boiler rooms attached to the frame homes. In previous years, members had authorized the sale of these rooms to the member whose unit adjoins the boiler room and the conversion of the rooms into small efficiency apartments. Only two members have chosen to purchase the boiler rooms which abut their units. The apartment conversion plan has turned out to be infeasible because of the unresolved zoning status of GHI.

This year the board of directors put before the membership two new options for use of these boiler rooms: rental storage rooms and as offered for sale to members who do not have to live adjacent to them for non-disruptive uses such as artist studios or craft shops. No retail uses would be permitted.

A motion accepting the first option was passed with very little debate. Under the plan, members will be able to rent small storage cubicles in the boiler rooms considered suitable for conversion for storage. The authorizing motion stipulates that the rooms will not be converted until a sufficient number of members have indicated interest in renting storage space. Members wanted to be sure that renovation costs could be recovered in not more than seven years.

Sale for Other Uses

The other proposal, to sell the boiler room to GHI members for uses such as studios and crafts spaces, elicited much discussion. Under the option presented by the board, use rights to the boiler rooms could be sold to any GHI member for a specified use approved by the board. Members in the adjacent court would be given a chance to comment during the board's consideration of the proposed use. Controls would be included in the sale documents to ensure that no disruptive activities could be undertaken. When the GHI member sold his unit, he could either sell the boiler room rights to the buyer of his unit or to another GHI member.

Agatha Christie Mystery Pleases at Art Center

by Virginia Beauchamp

One fact we are certain about when we sit down among the audience for an Agatha Christie murder mystery. That is that, one after another, every character on stage except the police officers will look like suspects. It appeared for a time as though that pattern might be broken in "The Unexpected Guest," the play currently being performed at the Utopia Theater, since almost at once, one of the two living people in the room confessed to the crime of having done away with a third, whose unmoving body was in full view at the back of the stage. Good old Agatha was still herself, however; she didn't disappoint us.

The victim, a vicious, sadistic cripple, seemed to deserve killing as facet after facet of his life history began to come out. Everyone in his family—from mother, to somewhat retarded brother, to wife—would have had a motive. But so would a neighbor, household servants, and a total stranger from distant Norfolk. The only one apparently not implicated was the one man for whom the play is titled—a wayfarer who stumbled upon the place (and the crime) in a pea soup fog.

The large cast provides a good vehicle for a variety of actors to show what they can do—always a value in community theater; and the present group of performers have made the most of their opportunity. Particularly appealing as the long-suffering but generous wife was Cheryl Stepanek, whom Greenbelters saw earlier this year as Sister Helena in "The Prime of Miss Jean Brodie." Her vitality in the first act made credible the enterprising response of that uninvited guest.

This role was played by Leonard Cohen, who drew admiration here in his earlier Agatha Christie role as Inspector Poirot in "Black Coffee." But in Saturday night's performance, he seemed a bit slow to respond—at least in Act I, which he shared alone with Stepanek. One had the feeling he wasn't quite sure of his lines. Perhaps in later performances he will pick up the pace. As soon as all the other characters crowded on to the stage in the remaining acts, with their bits of business and crossings and retreats, the action accelerated.

Bruce Miller as a male nurse-valet to the murder victim and Anthony Schiavone as the politician neighbor were sufficiently unattractive for their rather negative roles, but Colin Mendenhall as the younger half-brother to the victim did not seem as convincingly retarded as he had earlier been described to be. The strong voice of William Fedorshik, on the other hand, helped to create the commanding presence of the police inspector, and Virginia Zanner handled well the fragile, elderly mother of the household. One wished, however, that Ann Cashin's nurse figure to the younger boy had been a little more austere and dominating in her rather demanding role.

Special credit should go to Ron Tousignant, husband of the versatile director for this production, Marie Tousignant. He held his unmoving pose as murdered victim in full view throughout the entire first act of the play. Not a finger twitched; he did not seem to breathe.

The attractive set by Michael Stepowany, with its upholstered sofa and built-in bookcases, was a far cry from the primitive and barely furnished rooms the Greenbelt Players used to come up with in their early days. It seemed a good index of how far this troupe, which now draws on performers and technicians throughout the area, has progressed. Stepowany is shop supervisor for the University of Maryland's theater scene shop, and stage manager Kevin Kneisley and lighting designer Pam Simmons have college training in theater. Yet the dedication of old-timers like Marie Tousignant and Trix Whitehall reaffirm the group's continuing anchor in the community.

Performances will resume for three more weekends at 8 p.m. (May 29, 30 and June 5, 6, 12, and 13). A Sunday matinee is scheduled on May 31.

Quilters Give Their Art

To Ronald McDonald House

The Designing Women Chapter of the National Quilting Association has made a collection of six quilts which will be donated to the Ronald McDonald House in Baltimore. The presentation will be made on Thursday, June 4 at 10 a.m. in the Springhill Lake Fountain Lodge, where the women have met to design and stitch quilts and hand-made collectibles for over a decade. The quilts will be on display June 5 from 10 a.m. to 12 noon.

The Ronald McDonald House serves as a "second home" for parents and families when a child is under treatment at a nearby hospital. It has assisted hundreds of families during time of recovery.

"Our inspiration to do this came when a member of our group had a personal experience when her grandchild stayed in the Ronald McDonald House," said Virginia Williford, Chairman, and a quilter for 10 years.

Windsor Green Board Appointment Questioned

To the Editor:
Approximately one year ago the Windsor Green Homeowners Association held its annual election for Board of Directors. At that time, I as a concerned homeowner expressed considerable concern over the pre- and post-election process.

Now is again election time in Windsor Green, and I am still concerned.

This year, three of five homeowner member seats on the board are open to election at the official general membership annual meeting to be held June 25. A nominating committee has been established and notice sent to all homeowners of the three openings. Now a fourth position on the board has since been generated by the resignation of the incumbent board president, with one year remaining of a two year term as of the June meeting date. Officers are elected by the board.

This fourth seat could easily have been offered to the general membership for election of the remaining term, yet this seated board chose to appoint someone to fill it. Appointing successors is provided in the bylaws primarily to cover expiration of unfilled terms when a general or special election is not feasible nor practical.

In this case, election to this vacated position is both feasible and practical as well as fair. My concern is why this board seat is being appointed instead of elected? The resignation is known sufficiently in advance of the election to provide for the general membership's opportunity to run for and fill the one year term remaining.

The last election also had four open positions, with one board member remaining. Therefore, to contend there must be more than one member remaining for continuity should not be touted as essential to the process. Previous board members still remain available to the seated board as advisors.

It is my opinion that Windsor Green homeowners are capable, competent, deserving, and entitled to run for and seek election to all these "open" board positions so they may have equitable representation now and in the future!

Fee Increased for Copies Of Important Records

To avoid delays, persons applying by mail for copies of birth, death and marriage certificates from the State Division of Vital Records must send a fee of $3.

This fee has been in effect for over eight months, but the Division continues to receive 200 to 300 record applications weekly, by mail, with the wrong fee attached.

"Once the operations are automated, we will be able to retrieve copies in a few seconds, serve counter customers in less than 15 minutes and answer mailed requests in less than a week," said Julia Davidson-Randall, State Registrar, Department of Health and Mental Hygiene.

The current turn-around is 90 minutes to two hours at the counter and three to four weeks by mail.

For more information on the fee increase contact:

A Comfort Crisis

To the Editor:

This year is commemorative in many ways. For those of us who use Greenbelt Lake Park, a.k.a. Buddy Attick Park, it's been 50 years of either nonexistent or minimal toilet facilities. As a well attended park, especially in summer, this not only speaks poorly for Greenbelt city services, but is a source of real annoyance and derision as well. We treat our residents and our many visitors to a lovely lake park recreation area, but when they ask to use the john, we send them to the woods. Let's end 50 years of wee-wee in the woods and build a real comfort station, and while we are at it, upgrade the concession area to something a little more presentable.

Our lake park is a beautiful place, and having been built at the same time as old Greenbelt, a historic place. The park and those using it deserve facilities we can all be proud of. City government does much to make this park enjoyable, such as the summer concert series, the 4th of July festivities, grounds maintenance and so forth. They seem to have overlooked one of the basics, and I hope that this year the commitment can be made to correct this situation.

Condolences

To the Editor:

I would like to extend a few words of condolences to the family and all the friends of Mr. Julius Chieppa of Greenbelt, who recently passed away.

Mr. Chieppa carried the light of Life with him everywhere he went. Even though in pain, he always cared more for others than he did for himself. A man of strong faith and values, he was a mentor to those who worked with him at St. Hugh's and in Right to Life. He kept a special part of his life to fight battles for the Unborn Child.

Every year many of us worked beside him in the Right to Life booth at the carnival to raise money for Life. He was a dedicated and energetic worker, radiant with the purpose of carrying out his Christian beliefs. This man will be very much missed.

Summary of Bond Issue Responses

To Greenbelt Citizens:

I received 131 responses to the questionnaire regarding priorities for projects to be funded by Bond proceeds. A summary of the responses indicating preferences within each of the bond issue categories is as follows:

	1st Choice	2nd Choice	3rd Choice	4th Choice
I Acquisition of Parcel 1	71	7	5	4
Northway Fields Expansion	2	34	27	16
Perimeter Trail Development	13	26	20	14
Schrom Hills Park Expansion and Development	5	12	21	37
II New Indoor Pool	33	18	30	-
Renovate Outdoor Pool	58	33	5	-
Rehabilitate Bath House	10	39	39	-
III New Police Station	72	10	8	8
North End Center	20	34	8	16
Youth Center Addition	3	16	32	31

IV Favor Taking Funds from One Category to Pay for Projects in Another Category:			YES	NO
			55	63
V Consider Additional Bond Authorizations:			YES	NO
			61	57

30 respondents provided an overall priority among all of the listed items. A breakdown of the overall ratings show that the Police Station received the most 1st choice preferences (9) followed by the indoor pool and the acquisition of Parcel 1 with 8 preferences each. The outdoor pool was chosen first by 3 people and North End Center and rehabilitation of the bath house received 1 first choice each. Second choices were: indoor pool (7), renovate outdoor pool (5), North End Center (5), and (3) each for the Police Station and acquisition of Parcel 1.

The Questionnaire provided a space for comments and 57 respondents made remarks in the following categories:

- 17 emphasized Parkland Acquisition
- 11 indicated no Indoor Pool
- 10 indicated no North End Center
- 9 emphasized the Indoor Pool
- 5 expressed concern about an increase in taxes
- 4 commented on the perceived excess expenditures for the police facility
- 1 emphasized the North End Center

I express my appreciation to the Greenbelt citizens who took the time to respond. I also urge interested citizens to further present their viewpoint on Bond Issue priorities at the scheduled hearing on Thursday, June 4.

Hogensen Represents GHI At National Conference

Margaret Hogensen, president of Greenbelt Homes, Inc., represented GHI at the National Cooperative Business Association's (NCBA) annual meeting in Washington, D.C., April 27 to 30. The theme of the meeting was "Reinventing the Cooperative".

Hogensen and other key cooperative leaders along with government and private industry leaders had the opportunity to discuss the new and vital role cooperatives are playing in the American economy.

Founded in 1916 as the Cooperative League of the USA, NCBA is a national membership and trade association representing America's cooperative business community.

Green Towns Honored As Historical Landmarks

The American Institute of Certified Planners' (AICP) 1987 National Historical Landmarks program is honoring the "greenbelt towns" whose design principles have been influential throughout the world.

Based on the garden city concept introduced in England in the late 1800's, the "greenbelt towns" of Greenbelt, Maryland; Greenhills, Ohio; and Greendale, Wisconsin which incorporate integrated residential development, cooperative ownership, and agricultural green areas will celebrate their 50th anniversaries this year.

The towns separate homes, schools, and businesses from major roads using interior walkways and public open space. These three projects are considered to be one of the most innovative Roosevelt New Deal initiatives of the 1930's.

AICP's National Historical Landmarks awards program makes planners and related professionals aware of their professional heritage by recognizing projects that are 25 or more years old and that have contributed significantly to American communities.

The 1987 National Historical Landmarks awards will be presented during the American Planning Association's (APA) National Conference in New York City on Tuesday, April 28.

AICP is the professional and educational institute of the APA. APA is a public interest and research organization representing 21,000 persons involved with urban and rural development issues.

City Bus Users Have Increased

Ridership on the Greenbelt Connection is up from the same period last year. According to a report from the city manager's office, 786 rides were provided in the first three months of 1987 compared to 558 rides in the same period of 1986 — an increase of 40%. The report explains that these figures are somewhat misleading since the 1986 period is one week shorter than the 1987 period. Correcting this by adding an average week's ridership to the 1986 figure still results in a 30% increase.

American Cancer Society Seeks Volunteer Group

Did You Know?

That Jerry Goodin, the porter for the town center buildings for most of Greenbelt's history, had a frightening experience one day in 1945 when a black widow spider crawled into his empty glove while he was working? When he later inserted his hand, he got an ugly bite that left him ill for a week. The local physician treated him with a special serum and The Cooperator, predecessor of the News Review, ran an article on what to do. While Goodin was away from work, several local women volunteered to help clean and mop the beauty shop.

The Greenbelt Vision in Retrospective

Review of "News Towns" Conference

by Keith A. Winsell

The potential impact of the recent Greenbelt Conference on New Towns in stimulating further attention to community planning was suggested by the concluding challenge to the assembled audience by David Graham Hall, President of the Habitat International Council, a United Nations subcommittee, to issue a "Greenbelt Declaration." The purpose of such a declaration, similar to previous U.N. and Vancouver documents, would be to initiate a "new awakening of urban development in America." Hall, who also serves as director of a national planning pressure group in England, was one of several foreign participants in the program.

Because of the uniqueness of the eleven sessions of the three-day conference on May 1-3 at the Greenbelt Hilton and the wide range of information offered, the News Review here begins a series of articles summarizing the events that led to Hall's challenge. The present article reviews the events on Friday night and the Saturday morning keynote address on the "The Vision of the New Deal." Other events of the conference will be reviewed in later articles.

Friday Evening

Following a large reception at the Greenbelt Hilton, hosted by County Executive Parris Glendening, many of the guests gathered at the home of Mayor Gil Weidenfeld to honor Grace Tugwell, widow of Rexford Guy Tugwell. Her husband had been the major force in the creation of Greenbelt and the two other greenbelt communities in Wisconsin and Ohio. The Tugwells returned to Greenbelt after his retirement from the University of Chicago, living here from 1957 to 1961.

A third event on Friday evening, which had been stimulated by Greenbelt's 50th anniversary, was the first telecast of "New Towns," an hour-long WETA (PBS) documentary about Greenbelt and Columbia, Maryland and Reston, Virginia. Among Greenbelters appearing on the program were Mary Lou Williamson, current editor of the Greenbelt News Review; Harry Zubkoff, a former editor; city librarian Betty Allen; long-time resident Bruce Bowman. Architect Sibley Jennings, who took a leadership role in the generation and carrying out of the Greenbelt charette, also appeared in the film.

At the beginning of the first formal session of the conference itself on Saturday morning, Mayor Weidenfeld referred to Greenbelt as "a way of life." He applauded the committee established three years ago to promote the 50-year celebration.

Sandra Barnes, chair of that planning committee, reminded the audience of the continued growth of cities, the legacy of Greenbelt and the "need for planned communities — today."

Appropriately Tilford Dudley, the man responsible for land acquisition by the federal government which made the greenbelt towns possible, introduced the keynote speaker. Dudley, reviewing his 1935 diary regarding the "Beltsville project," gave credit to other New Deal figures, Harold Ickes, Harry Hopkins and Henry Wallace. He noted that 70 per cent of the workers who completed the initial Greenbelt housing were unskilled laborers taken off the relief rolls.

Keynote Address

The featured speaker was Dr. William E. Leuchtenburg, a prominent scholar in the field of American history, who holds an endowed chair at the University of North Carolina and who is a past president of the American Historical Association.

His numerous books include Perils of Prosperity, 1914-1932 (1958), Roosevelt and the New Deal, 1932-1940 (1963) and The New Deal and Global War (1964).

Leuchtenburg described the period after the 1929 stock market crash as the "greatest ecoomic crisis" and the New Deal, starting with the election of Franklin D. Roosevelt, as the "most imaginative government response." At the end of the administration of Herbert Hoover over 15 million Americans, 31% of the labor force, were unemployed. Many 1929 college graduates, he pointed out, were not able to achieve personal prosperity until 1946. Leuchtenburg quoted John Maynard Keynes as comparing Depression conditions with the Dark Ages.

Shortly after the election Roosevelt launched a massive legislative ("100 days") program in 15 major areas. The National Youth Administration provided work for young hopefuls of the future, including Lyndon Johnson, Arthur Miller, Richard Nixon and William Leuchtenburg. Social Security would eventually offer financial assurance to millions of Americans as they approached old age.

Harry Hopkins ("privy builder without peer") managed the enormous Works Projects Administration and Rexford Tugwell was in charge of the Resettlement Administration. When the Greenbelt site was selected in 1935 and work began, it "had more visitors than any project in American history." Eleanor Roosevelt, "cabinet minister without portfolio" and "voice of the underprivileged," was one of the chief supporters of the experiment. But it was the personality of FDR that "pervaded" the 1930s.

Many did not believe that Roosevelt would be reelected. Eighty percent of the newspapers were against him. As Leuchtenburg observed, "You don't embark on projects like Greenbelt without making enemies." But he won "the greatest victory in the electoral college since James Monroe won, without opposition, in 1820." One of his post-election activities was a visit to the construction area in Greenbelt in 1936. Tugwell's deputy, Will Alexander, said Roosevelt "had the time of his life that afternoon." (The news coverage at the time indicates that the Chief Executive had an intense interest in the smallest details.) The President was quoted: "the actual sight . . . exceeds anything I dreamed of. . . . It is an experiment that ought to be copied by every com-community in the United States."

Professor Leuchtenburg seemed to have that same enthusiasm about the Greenbelt experiment and its half-century of success. The experience of the community, he concluded, "relates to an agenda for today and tomorrow."

White Prepares Report On Hazardous Waste

Representing the Energy, Environment and Natural Resources Steering Committee of the National League of Cities (NLC), Greenbelt mayor pro-tem Thomas X. White presented a report on April 24 on the transportation of hazardous materials to the Subcommittee on Surface Transportation of the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation of the U.S. Senate.

White's report defined the issue of hazardous materials transport, citing problems such as the burden on local financial and personal resources imposed by emergency situations. The report also refers to the inconsistency and inadequacy of regulations caused by the de-centralized nature of the present system. White also outlined the NLC's position on the issue, including recommendations that the federal government assist and provide leadership in emergency response training, in promulgating regulations, and in funding.

City Finance Office Wins Fourth Award

The City of Greenbelt has been awarded, for the fourth year in a row, the Certificate of Achievement for Excellence in Financial Reporting for its comprehensive annual financial report (CAFR) by the Governmental Finance Officers Association of the United States and Canada (GFOA). The Certificate of Achievement is the highest form of recognition in the area of governmental accounting and financial reporting, and its attainment represents a significant accomplishment.

When a Certificate of Achievement is awarded to a government, an Award of Financial Reporting Achievement is given to the individual designated as primarily responsible for its having earned the certificate. This award has been presented to C. R. Prybyl, Director of Administrative Services.

The CAFR has been judged by an impartial panel to meet the high standards of the program, including demonstrating a constructive "spirit of full disclosure" effort to clearly communicate its financial story and motivate persons and user groups to read the CAFR.

GHI Members Debate Boiler Rooms, Again

ed what happens if the member is unable to sell the boiler room. GHI Manager Ron Colton answered that the rights would then revert to the corporation and that GHI would then have a renovated boiler room rather than an unrenovated one.

Some members were strongly opposed to the proposal. Member Keith Chernikoff moved to table the motion as soon as debate started. This motion failed. Member Steve Curtis moved to amend the motion to require the consent of the member whose unit adjoins the boiler room before the board could sell the use rights. President Margaret Hogensen pointed out that the adjacent member might refuse to agree to any use, however innocuous, and thus prevent the board from ever selling the boiler room.

Members agreed with Curtis, however, that the adjacent member should have a veto over any proposed use. The amended motion passed on a show of voting cards.

Museum Membership

A motion put on the agenda by petition would have denied the board the right to make a $500 contribution to the Greenbelt Museum in the form of a charter corporate membership. Curtis, who made the motion, outlined his reasons for opposing the contribution.

A long line of speakers queued at the microphone to speak in opposition to the motion. When the vote came, the motion was defeated on a show of voting cards.

Meeting Notification Problems

According to Hogensen, it was estimated that only about half the members received the packets sent out by third class mail on May 7. The postal service failed to deliver the packets which contained notification of the meeting, the agenda and related materials in time for the meeting. Member Eunice Coxon suggested that the official notification and agenda should be sent out next year by first class mail; bulky items such as the annual report could then be delivered by hand to the members.

President's Report

Hogensen selected the newly approved Replacement Reserve as one of the outstanding achievements of the past year; this fund, which will serve to finance what she called "a continuous rehab" program, will avoid the necessity for any massive program of repairs like that completed last year.

She also singled out the new parking policy as another program which was undertaken in the last year. She noted that the Eastern Cooperative Housing Organization would be holding their annual conference in Greenbelt this anniversary year. She made the point that GHI has made "affordable housing available to 1600 families" for all those years and that this is what the 50th anniversary is all about.

Janet James Honored

Janet James, retiring chairperson of the Audit Committee, was given a silver tray suitably inscribed to commemorate her 19 years of service to GHI in various capacities. James is leaving Greenbelt to enter a retirement community.

Also honored was Bruce Bowman, who is stepping down from the board of the Share Loan Service Corporation. Bowman was one of the original directors of that corporation.

Robert Tucker of the GHI Maintenance Department was honored as Employee of the Year. In announcing the award, Hogensen pointed to Tucker's record in supervising the asbestos removal program, as well as his contribution in developing and training outstanding employees for GHI.

N & E Committee

After candidates for the board of directors and the audit committee (see box) were introduced, Mary Moien, Chairperson of the Nominations and Elections Committee, introduced four candidates for that committee and solicited nominations from the floor for the fifth slot on the committee.

The four announced candidates were Solange Hess, John Taylor, Martha Sinden, and Helen White. Chernikoff and Amberg were nominated from the floor. Amberg, who had spent some time commenting on the duties of the committee as outlined in the by-laws, strenuously resisted the

The crew also worked at the swimming pool one day preparing it for final inspection and assisted the carpenter with the remodeling at the municipal building. The general crew worked on leaf and brush clean up and on major equipment repair on the crawler/loader.

The parks crew worked on the golf course, ball fields, street landscaping, cutting grass, playground maintenance and prepared the park on Centerway for the Memorial Day ceremony.

The horticulturist removed the spring bulbs: tulips, hyacinth and daffodil, and replaced them with the annual plants in the beds throughout the city. Due to the heavy rains some areas that needed grass cutting were unable to be mowed because the tractor sank into the turf.

The combined crew of special details, general crew and parks crews worked on rebuilding the areas behind the sidewalks behind Plateau and the area north of Westway.

Why do teeth have different shapes?

Our teeth are shaped according to the role they play in chewing. The front teeth (incisors) are chisel-shaped to cut food. Next to them are the canines (cuspids) which can tear food with their sharp point.

Just behind the canines are the premolars (ibcuspids) which have two cusps to crush and tear. In the back of the mouth are the molars. With many pointed cusps, molars are uniquely suited for their task of grinding our food. When we chew, the cusps normally fit into depressions in the teeth they contact, working as a mortar and pestle.

Since each tooth has a specific function, loss of even just one can greatly alter our ability to chew. Loss of several teeth can lead to problems with digestion and nutrition.

Greenbelt Arts Center Asks City Council for Support

by Mary Lou Williamson

"Help us to continue our role in bringing cultural events to the center," the president of the Greenbelt Arts Center, John Ward, asked the city council at a public work session on the budget May 13. He invited the city to "play a more active role in the arts."

In asking the city for a $30,000 grant for the coming year the arts center is offering to join hands with the city. Cultural activities are a traditional part of the recreation in many cities and towns, he said.

"We need the stability, and therefore, city support," Ward told council. In the planning of Greenbelt, the Center was the heart of the town—the location for government, civic, cultural, and recreational activity. In the past few years, he reminded council, we have been Greenbelt's playhouse, but also we have provided for social, religious, veteran and other community activities. "The arts center is needed to maintain the center," he said. "It is essential to keep the theater."

In the recent questionnaire put out by the city's Parks and Recreation Advisory Board (PRAB), the activity receiving the greatest interest by the public was for cultural activities, said Ward. "Our job is to provide those activities."

The funds this year would be invested in the building—making the theater more attractive inside. While the specifics have not yet been worked out, a number of projects of widely varying scope were discussed. Estimates of cost included: wall-scaping the lobby and theater—$20,000; immediate patch-up work—$38,000; new seats—$11,400; reroof building $25,000 to $45,000. An entire renovation program, according to Mary Jo Ford, arts center manager, could run $200,000 to $250,000.

Council member Toni Bram, while pointing out her support for the arts center, called the "dark and dank" atmosphere of the theater, "offensive. Renovation is greatly needed," she agreed. But council also told the arts center group that more money would come with strings attached. Bram sympathized with the problems the group has over the last of a long-term lease and lack of badly needed repair to the leaking roof.

"How much money has been put into improvements during the time you have been here?" asked council member Tom White.

"Not very much," Ford responded. Some clean-up has been done. The landlord, George Christacos, purchased a $9,000 warehouse heating system. The kinds of improvements the arts center organization has been making has involved things—curtains, seats, lighting, sound equipment, etc. "We have always had a tight budget," Ford explained. "We have spent money to attract an audience—advertising, flyers."

Ford's salary and funds for audience development ($8,000) and some for programming ($9,000) have been provided by the county over the past two years. Such funding may continue she said, but may involve a 2 to 1 matching requirement. The county's funds are now matched 1 to 1, but the arts center is allowed to include admissions paid. She indicated that the county would like to see a long term lease and greater support by the city. Council member Ed Putens took exception, saying the city, through its volunteers and the council through its grants had been making a significant contribution to the arts center for seven years.

PRAB chairman Keith Chernikoff expressed concern that the program under which the city gives grants to various recreation and other groups is designed to aid organizations and not facilities. The city's role in cultural activities, he added, has never been defined. PRAB, he suggested, would like to see the city develop a policy first and that council ought to look at alternatives for facilities, particularly, the North End Center.

Mayor Gil Weidenfeld agreed with the need to set policy first. City manager Jim Giese acknowledged that many cities do support cultural programs and that Greenbelt could do so if council chooses. He did comment that Greenbelt taxpayers do pay taxes to the county's Parks and Recreation agency, and that an annual contribution of $50,000 to the arts center is not an unfair expectation based on the amount of taxes paid.

Ford is pleased that the funds the county has given have had some positive results: larger audiences and better quality productions. She emphasized that the theater is a well-equipped facility which theater groups enjoy using.

Konrad Herling reminded council of the broader issue in making the arts center a successful operation. "Our interest has been to act as a catalyst for the general improvement of the Roosevelt Center."

"The time is coming to see what the city's role is," said Weidenfeld.

Greenbriar Crime Watch Marks First Anniversary

It has been a year since the first Greenbriar Phase I Crime Watch Program meeting and mobile crime watch session took place. The program has seen an increase in participation during recent months.

Officer Pat McAndrew of the Greenbelt Police Department has run several training sessions for the group throughout the year. He also arranged for the new Neighborhood Watch signs which are posted at the two major entrances into Phase I.

Anyone who would like to volunteer time on the Security Committee, particularly the Mobile Crime Watch, is asked to call Bob Baer at 345-2874.

CITY COUNCIL ROOM

GREENBELT MUNICIPAL BUILDING

25 CRESCENT ROAD

The City Council of Greenbelt, Maryland will hold a public hearing on priorities for projects to be funded by the authorized $6,000,000 bond issue and supplemental reserve funds. The priority listing was developed in a strategic planning session in which Council member, advisory board chairpersons and city staff members participated. The priority listing represented a composite from five individual small sub-group sessions, and does not necessarily represent the views of any individual participating or the views of the City Council.

The listings are as follows:

Rank	Project	Estimated Cost
1.	New police station	$1,875,000—$1,945,000
2.	Renovate outdoor swimming pool	375,000
3.	Acquire park land	750,000
4.	Construct indoor pool with combined bath house for both indoor and outdoor pools	2,800,000
5.	Addition to public works facility	500,000
6.	Improvements to Schrom Hills Park	180,000*
7.	Renovation of North End School	780,000*

* Note: Estimated cost is average of funds allocated by strategic planning group sub-groups.

If the proposed priority listing were to be adopted by the Council, the first four items in the priority listing could be funded solely from the bond issue. The fifth item could be funded as well if the established Reserve for Building Construction is applied. However, these funds can be supplemented with Program Open Space grant funds and possibly other city funds.

The last item, the North End School, has an allocated reserve of $243,500. In order to undertake this project, other sources of funds would need to be derived. The $780,000 average funds allocated would be sufficient to renovate only a portion of the entire school building.

The public is invited to attend this hearing and offer comments on the proposed priority listing. For further information, contact the City Offices at 474-8000.

Trees -- 260 and Counting

Bryan Smith

Adopt-a-Tree committee Chairperson Mike Burchick said Tuesday he is pleased with the progress of the program he hopes will keep the "green" in Greenbelt for a long time.

The response, he said, has been "very good . . . We've planted about 260 trees so far, with the City Council, County Council and federal government also donating trees."

"We've put in 65 trees for the spring planting with more requests coming in," he said. Burchick added that although the spring planting deadline was May 1 "as long as the weather is right we will hopefully keep planting through the summer."

The program, which began in 1985 has been a monumental undertaking, Burchick said.

The hiring last May of Greenbelt's new horticulturist, Bill Phelan, was "a tremendous shot in the arm in the planting, care and selection of the trees. Before Bill came along," Burchick said, "the attention needed just wasn't there."

Although the program officially ends on Labor Day, both Burchick and Phelan said they have other long-range plans for the beautification project. According to Burchick, Boy Scouts will continue the program by planting trees every Arbor Day. "We would like to stimulate the younger generation to be tree conscious." He also said that one of the program's downrange goals is to have Greenbelt officially recognized as "Tree City" by the county and state.

Phelan added that he would like more landscaping in and around the city like that planted for the anniversary "I would like to do more landscaping around the city buildings especially," he said. "Some of the buildings, like the recreation building, are particularly blah. It could certainly be spruced up."

Phelan, in charge of both tree and site selection for the beautification project, said he had been careful to use plants native to the area.

"Aesthetically it just wouldn't be right to come walking through the woods and find a patch of petunias," he said.

In addition to planting new trees, Phelan said he has been busy doing work on existing trees, touching up bare spots in the grass, removing hedges and improving a number of rock gardens.

A native of Wash. State, Phelan moved to the D.C. area where he attended and received his degree from the University of Maryland. He then traveled back west, this time to Oregon where he worked in the Hood Valley Orchard for 12 years.

When Phelan heard about the opportunity to work with public gardens as a horticulturist in Greenbelt, he jumped at the chance. "My wife has family in the Greenbelt area and this job is exactly what I wanted to do," he said.

Hugh Jascourt Inducted In Runners Hall of Fame

by Eileen Peterson

Walkers who meet Hugh Jascourt running on the Greenbelt Lake path often remark that he moves with such purpose. Because of that dedication, he was recently inducted into the Road Runners of America Hall of Fame.

His commitment to running goes a long way back. While in law school in Detroit, he began a Road Runners Club. He helped with the first Road Runners race in Greenbelt and later became National President of the Road Runners Club, serving four terms. Founder of the Washington, D.C. Road Runners chapter, Jascourt initiated the "Run-for-your life" race which became part of the national program. Jascourt encouraged racing by young people (not competitively, but for health), and he developed the Master's race, for those over 40.

The "Bunion Derby" is a series of races for high school students begun by Jascourt. The first race starts at Hains Point in Washington and is now called "The Hugh Jascourt Race" by the National Road Runners.

In 1966, Morocco was the host for the International Cross Country Races, games planned for European and North African countries by invitation only. For the first time, the United States was recognized and invited, and Hugh Jascourt was the Coach/Manager of the nine-member team. He offered to set up a woman's race in 1967, and in that year an American woman won that first-ever competition.

The Maplewood Court resident spent 40-60 hours a month in those early days on promoting races — getting sponsors, picking out trophies, measuring courses. He helped build up racing programs for black youths in the city and among high school students in general. The goal was to run a short or long course, but to run to become and stay healthy.

He has been on the Board of Directors of the National Joggers Association and was its first vice-president, and he is a long-time member of the American Running & Fitness Association.

Receiving recognition at the Road Runners banquet at Crown Plaza in Rockville last Saturday evening was the highlight of many satisfactions of running for Jascourt, who spends his weekdays as a Labor Law Counsel at the Department of Commerce. It was a source of much pride for his wife Resa and sons Stephen and Leigh.

GIESE REQUESTS MORE POSITIONS FOR CITY ADMINISTRATIVE NEEDS

by Mary Lou Williamson

The Greenbelt City Council reviewed details of the 1987-88 budget for administration, CARES, revenues and some miscellaneous funds in a work session on May 13. Few questions were asked and no controversies erupted.

The increase for expenditures proposed for 1987-88 for general government is 16.5%, well above the 9% increase for the budget as a whole. City Manager James K. Giese is proposing to hire a new administrative assistant to "handle a wide variety of tasks." Giese hopes to attract a graduate school intern in public administration. He also wants part-time staff help. In his remarks to council Giese said, "There are a great many things I don't ask staff to do because they are too busy."

The other new position is for an engineer. The person's time would be shared by the Public Works Department for city projects and by the city manager's office, which handles the permit and inspection work on streets created by the new development that will be occurring around the city over the next several years. Permit fees for street construction will pay for the position.

Council made no effort to increase the pay for the next council. By city regulation they may not raise their own pay.

No new positions are proposed for the finance office. Additional training is planned, as the office continues to computerize city records. A program to microfilm the city's permanent records included a request for a microfilm reader. The State will copy the original records, after review by the State Archivist. Much will later be destroyed. After 50 years, the city is running out of storage space. Special goals for the coming year focus on strengthening the affirmative action program and setting up a city accident avoidance and employee safety program.

Greenbelt CARES

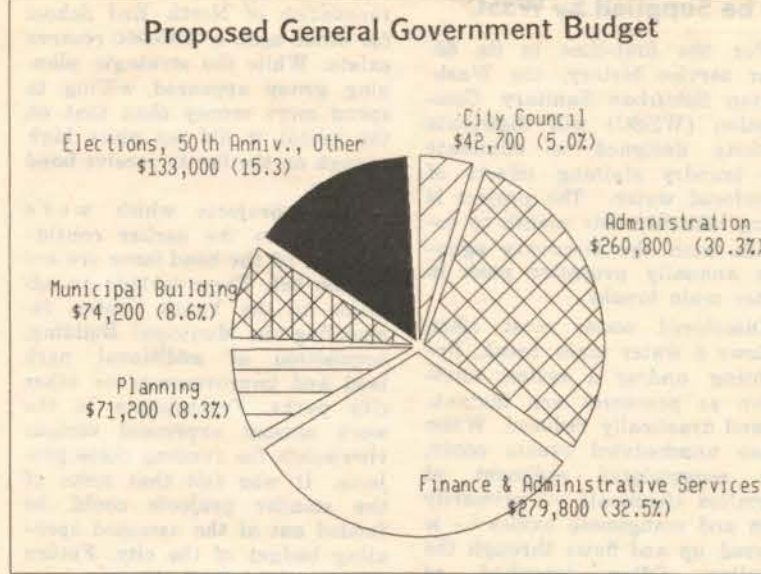

In reviewing the CARES budget, director Carol Leventhal commented that she is encouraged that Governor Shaeffer "is a strong advocate of children and youth." She spoke favorably about his appointment of a new head for her agency, Juvenile Services. Leventhal is also pleased with greater interest being shown by the school system and by Greenbelt's new Police Chief, James Craze, in working with CARES.

No new positions are proposed. Leventhal expects some growth in the number of families that CARES works with and she pointed out to council that the significant number is not how many new families come to CARES, but how many stay. The proposed budget of $174,700 shows a 6.7% increase over last year. Half of the budget is funded by the State Department of Juvenile Services and an additional $10,000 is granted by the county. Greenbelt pays $29,000 in required matching funds and another $48,700 to fund additional work beyond what the State is willing to pay for.

Revenues

The budget anticipates an increase of 9.7% accessible tax base over last year, which will provide an additional $2,770,000 in property taxes for the city. Only a 3.7% increase is anticipated for personal property. City staff is uncertain how much of an increase in income tax the city will receive from the State this year since those figures have not yet been received. The city estimates a figure something over $800,000. The admissions and amusement tax has continued its growth over the past years—with the expectation that the city will collect $500,000 next year. Highway funds should bring in about $320,000. State grants for police protection will bring $270,000. The rebate from landfill disposal fees will be up significantly this year. (The landfill county's fee includes the use of pickup of special trash which it does not do in the city, thus the rebate.)

Citizen Assistance Leads To Robbery Arrest

With the timely assistance of two alert citizens, Cpl. Timothy Hahn and Det./Cpl. Thomas Justin, who were responding to the Greenway Shopping Center parking lot about 10 a.m., May 15, were able to arrest a man who, police said, had snatched a purse containing over $700 from a 73-year-old woman. The two citizens who witnessed the robbery and came to the victim's assistance gave the officers an excellent description of the suspect and the car in which he had escaped, including the tag number.

A short time later Cpl. Hahn spotted the car in the 7500 block of Hanover Parkway, driven by a man who met the description of the suspect. Officers Hahn and Justin stopped and arrested the suspect in the 6900 block of Hanover Parkway. He was identified as a 35-year-old Greenbelt resident. Found in his possession at the time of the arrest were four packets of suspected heroin and a quantity of cash believed by police to be some of the stolen money. Police report that the man was identified by the victim as the man who had snatched her purse. He was charged with robbery and possession of a controlled dangerous substance (heroin) and released on personal recognizance pending trial.

Police Blotter

Based on Information Released by the Greenbelt Police Department

A 23-year-old female Greenbelt resident was arrested about 6:20 p.m., May 19 after she snatched a purse from a woman who was pumping gas into her car at the Shell Food Mart in the 8000 block of Breezewood Drive. The suspect fled on foot and was spotted by responding officers in the 6100 block of Breezewood Court where she was arrested after running into the hallway of a building. She was released on personal recognizance pending trial. The purse and contents were recovered.

While the occupant was in an upstairs bedroom an intruder broke into a home in the 44 Court of Ridge Road during the night of May 16 by forcing a locked screen door. The solid wooden inner door had been left open. A purse and a bottle of liquor were stolen.

Responding to a reported drug overdose about 12:05 p.m., May 21 in the 24 Court of Ridge Road, Sgt. John Lann arrested a 37-year-old woman of no fixed address for possession of a hypodermic syringe. She was released on personal recognizance and admitted to Prince Georges General Hospital for treatment stemming from heroin usage.

A substantial amount of money was stolen on May 15 from an apartment in the 9200 block of Springhill Lake. The apartment was entered by unknown means.

Plywood and other lumber valued at $500 was reported stolen May 15 from a construction site in the 7300 block of Frankfort Drive.

Thefts from and vandalism to autos were reported at the 8 Court of Laurel Hill Road, the 14 Court of Hillside, the 16 Court of Ridge Road, the 400 block of Lakeside Drive, the 9000 block of Breezewood Terrace, the 9100 block of Springhill Lane and the parking lot of American Legion Post No. 136 in the 6900 block of Greenbelt Road.

Soccer News

by Manuel Pereira

On May 10 the Greenbelt National Capital Soccer League team travelled to Waldorf to beat the local Hurricanes 3-1 in an exciting game. The Hurricanes were stunned not only by the final score they had beaten Greenbelt before 4-0! but also by the team play and superb goals scored against them by an improved team that came out hotter than the 80-degree temperature.

The first goal came after a beautiful shot by left halfback Adam Wheatley hit the left pole of the Waldorf goal. Center forward Etim Edim got the ball, dribbled past an opponent and sent one soaring over the goalie's head. After Waldorf tied 1-1, Greenbelt reacted by obliging the opposite defense to play well, while its own defense, led by excellent goalie Jason Harbin, neutralized some dangerous attacks.

Halfway through the second half, center halfback Miguel Pereira got a loose ball well outside the 18-yard line and with a booming kick scored an impressive goal, despite the desperate attempt to stop it by the goalie. Later Etim, assisted by Miguel, scored another excellent goal, beating a couple of Waldorf players and drilling one high into the upper left-hand corner of the net. Special mention should go to Jason Everhart and J. Trimble for their contribution to the game.

On May 17, playing on their home turf and being supported by a small enthusiastic crowd including all the players' families, the Greenbelt team put on another excellent exhibition in a match against the tough and physical Laurel Wildcasts. The first place in the division was at stake.

The Greenbelters clearly outplayed and dominated the Wildcasts most of the game with a combination of technique and hustle, but failed to capitalize on the numerous scoring opportunities that could have given them a lead and paid a price for that, losing the game 1-2. While Greenbelt was dominating and on the verge of scoring, Laurel scored a fluke goal in its first attack. Later Greenbelt tied with Etim Edim kicking to the empty net after a superb corner kick by Miguel Pereira passed over the goalie. Still in the first half, the

Discolored Water Packets

To be Supplied by WSSC

For the first-time in its 69-year service history, the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission (WSSC) will distribute packets designed to eliminate the laundry staining effects of discolored water. The project is being launched this month to coincide with the bi-county agency's annually projected peak in water main breaks.

Discolored water most often follows a water main break, fire fighting and/or a system shutdown as pressures are instantly and drastically reduced. When these unscheduled events occur, the accumulated sediment of harmless chemicals — primarily iron and manganese oxides — is stirred up and flows through the pipeline. Often described as "rusty" or "muddy" water by customers calling the WSSC, the water is nonetheless bacteria-free.

Since it is virtually impossible to predict most occurrences of discolored water, discoloration may occur while a family is in the process of laundering clothes, and clothing may become stained. The WSSC has tested and authorized distribution of a product intended to produce dramatic results in reversing stained laundry. WSSC customers experiencing stained laundry may request a "Discolored Water Packet," free of charge by writing or calling the WSSC's Public Affairs Office, 4017 Hamilton St., Hyattsville, Maryland, 20781 — 699-4172.

Wildcats scored the winning goal with a well-placed high kick.

All the team played very well. It is difficult to mention players, but the performances of sweeper Daniel Gomez and midfielder Petem Timer cannot be forgotten. The team is now 2-3 in the league and is being sponsored by Springhill Lake.

The Memorial Day weekend will provide a break from regular season play as the Greenbelt team travels to Fairfax in their first Al Dougherty Memorial International Soccer Tournament. The Greenbelt Hilton is paying the fees for the team to participate and it is sure to be an exciting and challenging weekend for all.

renovation of North End School for other uses, a $243,000 reserve exists. While the strategic planning group appeared willing to spend more money than that on the school, it did not place high enough on the list to receive bond moneys.

Other projects which were identified in the earlier considerations of the bond issue are not on the list. These include an addition to the Youth Center, remodeling the Municipal Building, acquisition of additional park land and improvements to other city parks. Participants in the work session expressed various viewpoints for funding these projects. It was felt that some of the smaller projects could be funded out of the assessed operating budget of the city. Future grants might fund others.

When the voters authorized the bond issue, city council made a commitment that the money would be divided equally among three categories: $2 million for the indoor pool, $2 million for parkland acquisition and development, and $2 million for "brick and mortar" projects. The priority listing which came out of the work session allocates $3.2 million for the indoor and outdoor pools and $2.5 million for other construction projects among the first seven categories. The parkland category, in contrast, would receive only $700,000; less than half the money originally slated for this purpose. Moreover, all of this sum would be spent for parkland acquisition, leaving none at all for parkland development.

Mary Lou Oster-Granite Is Named To Board of Greenbelt Co-op

by Allison Russell

The Greenbelt Cooperative has asked MaryLou Oster-Granite of Lakeside Drive to serve as a member on its board, replacing Margaret Hogensen who stepped down due to other commitments.

"I serve on the board of the National Cooperative Bank, the board of the National Cooperative Business Association and currently am president of Greenbelt Homes. I really don't have time to serve on all of the boards and continue to do other things I enjoy," said Hogensen.

Oster-Granite, who currently studies brain development at Johns Hopkins School of Medicine, explained that the board primarily monitors the activities of the cooperative grocery store and service station, and sees to it that they are run efficiently.

"The board likes to make sure the employees are happy and taken care of, and that managerial problems are brought to the front, so if the board can do something, they do it. I suppose you could say the board serves as a governing body for the co-op," said Oster-Granite.

She went on to explain that the idea of Greenbelt being a cooperative community has existed since its inception in 1937. "Historically the co-op has always run the grocery store and service station. A few years ago those in charge of the cooperative saw the grocery store and service station as money-losing operations, and decided to close them down. This led to the community coming together and forming its own cooperative, which eventually bought the grocery store and service station," said Oster-Granite.

According to Oster-Granite, the grocery store has turned into a reasonably profitable store with the service station also holding its own.

Today the co-op board is essentially run for the community by members of the community. One of its purposes, Oster-Granite said, is to give back to the members what would be viewed as excess profit.

"Money that doesn't go back into the capital fund is reditributed at the end of the year based on the amount of an individual's purchases," she said.

Oster-Granite has lived in Greenbelt since 1975. Originally from Oklahoma, she received her undergraduate degree from the University of Rochester, then continued on to graduate school, receiving a Ph.D. in anatomy at Johns Hopkins University in the late 60's.

For the past 20 years she has concentrated on studying different aspects of the development of the central nervous system in mammals.

She served on the faculty at the University of Maryland Baltimore campus for eight years, starting in 1976, then moved back to Johns Hopkins in 1984.

Oster-Granite's husband David is also in the medical field. He serves as a family practitioner in Greenbelt at the offices of Bergemann and Granite located in Roosevelt Center.

They have two children, Steven 11, and Guenivere who is three.

Host Family Needed

Approximately 60 French teenagers are planning to experience American life in Maryland and Washington, D.C. from July 15 through August 12 as part of the Annual Nacel Exchange Program. So far only about half of the students can be assured housing.

The students speak English, bring their own spending money and are eager to share American life for one month. Priority for French homestay exchange is given to children of former hosts.

Families interested in hosting a French student should contact the Nacel Area Coordinator for additional information and application materials: Ruth L. Jamison, 416 North St., Elkton, Md. 21921 (301) 398-8486.

Greenbelt Seniors' Softball

by Jerry Conway

On May 13 at 10 a.m. the Greenbelt Senior Citizens Co-Ed Slow Pitch Softball Team scored a five inning victory over Olney-Sandy Spring Seniors at Layhill Park by a score of 5-1. No home-runs were scored during this game, but the Greenbelt Seniors batted around in the fifth inning, leaving two on base with only one out. This was the second game of the eight-game series.

For added sportsmanship and practice, the Greenbelt Seniors agreed to play two additional innings and were startled by the fact that the Olney-Sandy Spring Seniors scored enough runs in those two innings to defeat the Greenbelt Seniors by a score of 7-6.

The Olney Seniors scored three homeruns in those innings because the Greenbelt Seniors let down their defenses and limited their own hitting. They also permitted the Olney Seniors to use only one woman during the game while the Greenbelt Seniors used three. It was an exciting game and a good experience in sportsmanship.

Greenbelt Citizens Honored by County

On Thursday, April 23, 29 Greenbelt citizens were honored at a reception at White Mansion, Mitchellville, by County Executive Parris Glendening for their participation in the surplus food distribution program. These volunteers, along with nearly 1,000 other Prince Georges County residents, were presented certificates of appreciation for their many hours of volunteer service in distributing surplus foods to low income families. Mr. Glendening noted that this program would not be possible without the support of volunteers, since no county funds are budgeted for the actual distribution of food.

The City of Greenbelt's participation in the Surplus Food Program began in 1981. During the seven years of this program, it has evolved into an almost totally volunteer distribution, with most of the volunteers being retired city residents.

Those presented with certificates by Glendening were:

On Friday, May 29, the Greenbelt Seniors will play the Baltimore Champions in a practice game at Highlandtown in Baltimore. This is an opportunity for the Greenbelt Seniors to develop their hitting and fielding skills in a competitive game with a team which plays in national softball tournaments. They hope to have at least 12 seniors from Greenbelt to participate in this game. And soon they hope to play Baltimore on Braden Field in Greenbelt.
