Greenbelters and Other Neighbors Turn Out to Speak on Master Plan

by Mavis Fletcher

About 450 people crowded the auditorium of Eleanor Roosevelt High School on June 7 to express or hear opinions on the proposed master plan for the Langley Park, College Park, and Greenbelt areas. Some 80 of them spoke during a meeting which lasted almost five hours.

The District Council (which is the County Council sitting as the zoning authority body) held the public hearing jointly with the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission (MNCPPC) which produced the plan. When approved, the plan will replace a 1970 master plan for the College Park-Greenbelt area.

The meeting was conducted by County Council Chairman Frank P. Casula. Other members of the County Council who attended were Richard J. Castaldi of the council district which includes Greenbelt; James Herl, who represents College Park; Jo Ann T. Bell, Anthony Cicoria, Floyd E. Wilson, Jr., F. Kirwin Wineland, and Hilda R. Pemberton. Among other officials present was John W. Rhoads, Chairman of the County Planning Board. Paul Aggarwal, staff director of the project, gave a preliminary briefing on the main features of the proposed plan.

City Presentation

Greenbelt Mayor Gil Weidenfeld presented the official city position on the provisions of the plan which affect Greenbelt. In reviewing the city's concerns, he first pointed to the "dramatically short period of time" allowed for public review and comment. He

Record Open

The county council will keep the record open for 90 days for comments on the proposed Master Plan. Statements and exhibits may be sent until Sept. 7 to John W. Rhoads, Chairman, Prince Georges County Planning Board, County Administration Building, Room 4134, Upper Marlboro, MD 20772.

noted that the plan, which was four years in preparation, has been available for only 30 days and that the schedule provided for only another 30 days for its review after the hearing. He called for the record to remain open for another 60 days for written comment (90 days in all from the time of the public hearing).

Before the evening was over, Weidenfeld (and several other speakers who requested additional time for consideration of the plan) prevailed on the issue. Casula announced that the council had decided that the record would be left open for 90 days after the June 7 hearing. This decision was the only action taken during the hearing by the members of the District Council.

Weidenfeld elaborated on five major proposals in the plan which are of major concern to the city. He said that, despite Greenbelt's worldwide recognition as a planned community and its place on the National Register of Historic Places, the MNCPPC — the planning agency now responsible for the planning of Greenbelt — appears "to give minimal recognition and little interest to this landmark community."

He protested the plan's recommendation to remove the Residential Planned Community (RPC) zone from the original part of the city and to replace it with specific (euclidian) zones. He described the euclidian zones as tools which are "not sensitive enough" to guide development of a planned community. "We are concerned that the original city cannot be adequately protected from the pressures of in-fill development and redevelopment" by the euclidian zones. He recommended that the RPC zoning with an appropriate plan be retained or that a new planned community zone be adopted which will provide the protection the city needs.

Other Concerns

As for other city concerns, Weidenfeld emphasized the lack of any suggested remedy for the design deficiencies of the Greenbelt Road/Beltway Plaza corridor. Although the deficiencies are pointed out in the plan, he noted, no mechanism is proposed to deal with the problems. "The problems identified in the plan will never be addressed."

Public Hearing to Discuss Changes to Center School

The Prince Georges County Board of Education will hold a public hearing regarding the proposed renovation of Greenbelt Center School. The hearing is scheduled for Wednesday, June 29 at 7:30 p.m. in the Greenbelt Center School auditorium.

The renovation of the 50 year old school presents several problems such as the fact that the school is built on several levels, the classrooms and playgrounds are too small, there are some building code violations, and handicapped access is difficult. Because of the Art Deco styling on the outside front wall, the building is listed on both the County and National Historic Register. There has been some indecision about whether just that wall or all the walls need to be preserved.

A work session with city council brought forth feelings of the importance of the school to the

by Mary Lou Williamson

At the Monday, June 6 meeting to adopt the operating budget for the coming year, several persons again spoke to council on issues relating to capital improvements planned under the $6 million bond issue. (Full budget story will appear in a future issue.)

In his introductory remarks City Manager James K. Giese noted that he would be presenting a five-year capital improvements plan at the June 13 city council meeting. He also mentioned the dozen or so form letters received at the city offices from people residing mostly in the core of Greenbelt. The letters requested council to defer action on the indoor pool until decisions are made on parkland. Giese explained that action on specific capital improvements are not part of the budget adoption process and thus neither action on the indoor pool, nor deferral, was on the agenda.

Mayor Gil Weidenfeld added an update. He had spoken that day with County Executive Parris Glendening concerning the county's efforts on behalf of Greenbelt to obtain state aid in purchasing all or part of Parcels 1 and 2 for parkland. Glendening promised to contact the Secretary of the Maryland Department of Natural Resources, Torey Brown, to obtain an answer or at least to establish a time by which an answer would be forthcoming.

Ruth Kastner, Crescent Road, asked whether action would be taken on capital projects at the June 13 meeting. She was assured by both Giese and Weidenfeld that not only would no action be taken at that meeting, but that there would be plenty of opportunity for the public to express its views prior to any action by council. Giese's presentation, he said, would include staff comments on the proposed design for an indoor pool.

While acknowledging council's decision last summer to go ahead with both parkland purchase and pool construction, Weidenfeld promised, for himself, that he would need to have a definite answer from the State and County on Parcels 1 and 2 and related matters before going ahead with any other major commitment.

Sheldon Goldberg, vice president of the Windsor Green Homeowners Association, warned council against "buying Parcels

1 and 2 at any cost . . . (while you) defer the indoor pool." A blank check, he challenged, just raises the price "The large outdoor pool at Windsor Green has attracted many people to buy homes in our development," he explained. "Our people are asking when is the indoor pool going to get done. They are against deferral of the indoor pool."

"I think we can work together to do it all," responded Weidenfeld. "It is time to make a decision," he added, assuring Goldberg that he had related that sense of urgency to Glendening.

Leonie Penney, a Parkland advocate who has encouraged deferral of the pool, offered what she termed a win-win situation. Buy the parkland and swim at the nearby indoor pool now being planned north of Beltsville at Fairland, 14 minutes by car from her house on Northway. We'll "be able to swim and not have to pay high taxes," she said.

Goldberg was not impressed with driving to Fairland through slush and ice during the winter months. He said it would be a good many more than 14 minutes from his house. "It will make a significant difference to have the pool right here," he insisted.

Another Windsor Green board member, David Lychenheim, went a step further. He warned council against bending under pressure from the parks special interest group, which seemed to be laced with anti-pool people. He could produce an equal pressure from those in his neighborhood who are anxious to have the indoor pool. He noted for council that "Greenbelt East, although new, now has the largest (residential) tax base . . ." Council might begin to hear from the 3000 homeowners that up to now have been pretty quiet, he said.

Councilmember Antoinette M. Bram pointed out to Lychenheim the value of resolving city problems from a broad, city-wide perspective. Speaking of her colleagues on council, she told Lychenheim: "I hope everyone here would consider all 18,000 (Greenbelt) citizens, whether they vote or not"

Kastner, the mother of two young children, spoke again, wondering why people were quibbling over the minutes it takes to drive to Fairland. What takes time and effort, she suggested, is getting into the car. She also objected to Goldberg's assertion that the interest of large numbers of people could raise the price of the parkland. Encouraging the parks people to exert pressure had been "necessary because council didn't do anything," she said.

P. G. County to Finance Increased Bus Service

Greenbelt will benefit from Metrobus changes funded by Prince Georges County that will begin during the next fiscal year. These changes are intended to encourage increased bus ridership.

The T routes will be realigned and improved. The county hopes to attract riders who are currently driving alone to the Metro stations by reducing the length of the bus routes. Rates on the T-16, "The Greenbelt Line," running between Beltway Plaza and the New Carrollton Metro station have been reduced by the Ridership Incentive Program. This program, first introduced in November 1987 has helped boost ridership on the T lines and also the R-11 and R-15 (which also serve Greenbelt), by reducing fees to fifty cents. Parking fees were increased from $1. to $1.50. These lines formerly were the least used route in the county.

Greenbelters will also find it easier to get to Upper Marlboro by bus. The county plans to add a second route to its Upper Marlboro Shuttle Service which will leave from the New Carrollton Metro station. At present the Upper Marlboro bus operates from the Addison Road Metro station. The routes will operate as frequently as every 60 minutes rather than the current every 2 hours.

The county will revise its "Call-A-Bus" service in August to include Greenbelt, Laurel, Beltsville and other municipalities.

A county "taxi subsidy" program will be implemented in January 1989, targeted primarily at the elderly and handicapped. The program will be initiated as a demonstration project available to county residents desiring transportation services in the "Call-A-Bus" area when the "Call-A-Bus" is not operating or during times of peak demand.

The Upper Marlboro Shuttle "Call-A-Bus" and "taxi subsidy" will run Monday through Friday except for county and state holidays. The fare will be $1. for a one-way trip.

For information call 952-3636.

Gray Panthers Will Hold Picnic June 18

Gray Panthers will have a picnic Saturday June 18 from 2-6 p.m. in the shaded picnic area on the hill overlooking Greenbelt Lake.

Hot dogs, hamburgers, and cold drinks will be provided. Bring a friend and a dessert or salad. For transportation call 474-7841 or 441-1323 or 474-6890.

CARES OFFERS FREE BABYSITTING COURSE

Students will receive a certificate for completing the course, and will be placed in CARES' job bank as available sitters when requests come in from the community.

Follow-up courses are tentatively being planned for July and August pending the response to the June course.

Not Reasonable Distance

This is to correct numerous factual errors in a recent letter in favor of eliminating the indoor pool. This article declared the pool to be unnecessary because of competing nearby indoor pools "within reasonable distance."

Currently the two nearest indoor pools are 10 and 12 miles round trip from Greenbelt over high speed traffic clogged highways. In the many trips I have made to both of these pools I have been unable to go and return and take a 1/2 to 3/4 hour swim in less than two hours. The planned new pool at Fairland will be 11 miles round trip from Greenbelt, worse than our present situation. A planned pool at the Prince Georges Community College is located even farther, 11 1/2 miles round trip.

Commuting to work is bad enough without also having to fight traffic in order to have access to a little recreation. What about the young and many old who do not have cars!

A private pool located in Greenway has become so crowded that it is extremely difficult to find a spot to swim. The fact that people are willing to pay such high prices to use this facility attests to the severe need that exists for an indoor pool in this immediate area.

A further incorrect statement was made that "Rockville is the only area city that has its own indoor pool." Our neighbor planned city, Columbia, has a beautiful indoor pool in its center. One has only to visit there to see what an outstanding centerpiece this is for their excellent recreational program. The need for an indoor pool here is no less than when our citizens testified in favor of it and voted for it.

Esther Webb

The Cost Is the Point

In a letter to the News Review (June 9) I suggested eliminating the indoor pool project because of the great expense to the taxpayers of Greenbelt, especially since there are existing indoor pools nearby, and more planned to be built in the surrounding area. The following week, two letters were written in support of the indoor pool. One writer voiced the opinion that no one has come up with any "real negatives" for the pool saying "cost is not one."

Cost was the main point of my original letter. The indoor pool is projected to cost $2,525,000. Yearly maintenance on the indoor pool is projected to cost $133,000. That means that in the next 10 years our city will spend a total of $3,855,000 on the indoor pool, not counting inflation and cost overruns. (Note: the actual price for remodeling the outdoor pool was 29 percent higher than the projected price.) To me, millions of dollars makes cost an issue.

How can a discussion on figures like these be characterized as "spiteful," "counterproductive" and "inappropriate?" Why is the indoor pool "still an issue?" Because it's our tax dollars.

Katie Pugliese

Responsible to Wait

I would like to respond to the letters of Mac Wirick and Douglas Sutherland which addressed the bond issue priorities.

Mr. Wirick asks, "Can parkland divert drugs from reaching our children?" As urban crowding and congestion, caused by uncontrolled development, spread out into the suburbs, drugs follow, as does crime in general. That's why it's so important, to keep the last of our green space from being developed. In fact, very recently a Greenbelt police officer told me he hoped we'd be successful in saving parcels 1 and 2, because our police force is already stretched to its limit. He wasn't looking forward to having a whole new subdivision to patrol.

I regret that Mr. Sutherland feels we are "alienating" the people who favor the indoor pool. However, all my committee was asking for at the May 26 public hearing was some assurance that no more bond money will be committed until substantive progress has been made on parcels 1 and 2. If the city were to commit itself to another major construction project, any cost overruns would have to be paid for out of parkland money. I believe in optimism, but I also believe in preparing for the possibility that we aren't able to get State assistance for parkland. Therefore, the responsible thing to do is wait, as council is doing, until we know how much money we have to work with.

I'm afraid Mr. Sutherland is mistaken if he thinks that the effort to acquire parcels 1 and 2 is "moving along well." On the contrary, as yet no concrete progress has been made. And as long as the land is privately owned, it is in jeopardy. The developers could come back at any time.

Understandably, pool advocates feel that when they voted for the bond issue, they were voting for an indoor pool. Likewise, parkland advocates thought that when they voted for the bond issue, they were voting for parkland. The conflict we now see is not the fault of advocates on either side, but rather results from the fact that there isn't enough money to pay for all the things that were promised us.

Ruth Kastner

Indoor Pools Potential

Katie Pugliese talks about the need for "incentives" to get use out of the indoor pool in her June 2 letter to the editor. On the contrary, the question is going to be how to schedule all the aquatic activities into seven day weeks. Indoor pools in this area have never had enough time to schedule all of the (desired) activities and the Greenbelt indoor pool won't either. Greenbelt has members of at least eight indoor pools and others nearby will want to share the indoor pool.

(Typical pool activities include) open time swim, therapeutic aquatic activities, water aerobics, swim teams, safety courses, and swim lessons.

Swimming is second to walking as the chosen form of exercise, even though pools are not available everywhere. It is also the most desirable common form of exercise known, particularly for older folks.

This should give readers some idea of the indoor pool's potential. Hopefully, it will put some doubters' minds to rest and stimulate the thoughts of others who may not have considered the opportunities of aquatics as an important form of exercise, therapy, relaxation, and enjoyment.

THANKS

The members of The Blacksmiths' Guild of the Potomac, Inc. express their sincere thanks and appreciation to the Greenbelt Arts Center and the City of Greenbelt for being our host for another successful "Blacksmithing Days." Without your support and understanding, it would not be possible for the Guild to demonstrate the art and craft of blacksmithing to the public. Eileen Peterson was most helpful as usual.

Visitors were noted at the demonstration site from St. Mary's county, Annapolis, Pennsylvania, Ohio, and West Virginia. There were probably others that could have traveled greater distances. And the Greenbelt folks were great!

We also appreciate your publicity efforts on behalf of Blacksmithing Days and your success in getting our event announced in the Greenbelt News Review.

How the Group Works

Lest the readers of the News Review get a wrong view of the way the Committee to Save the Green Belt functions (after reading Mr. Sutherland's letter in the June 9 issue of your paper), I should like to present these facts:

1. The Committee to Save the Green Belt is a democratic organization. Its members collect all available facts on a subject. Then, after a thorough and often lively discussion, a vote is taken to determine the Committee's stand on a position.

2. A member of the Committee can, as an individual, have and voice an opinion which differs from the position taken by the group.

3. The Save the Green Belters are actively engaged in encouraging County and State support for the acquisition of Parcels 1 and 2. Witness, among others, their presence at the recent hearings for the College Park/Langley Park/Greenbelt Master Plan. Half of the testifying Greenbelters belonged to the Committee to Save the Green Belt, several pleading for zero density zoning for the Parcels.

4. The meetings of the Committee are open to every person concerned with the preservation of Parcels 1 and 2. The more points of view and the more facts available to us, the better we can function. For time and place of the next meeting contact Ruth Kastner at 474-5605.

Leonie Penney

THANKS

I would like to thank you for the excellent presentation of the Master Plan and to the coverage given the CFG Board activities.

Due to time limitations, we were unable to reach all of the various citizen groups. Thanks to your coverage and reporting of our proposal for a United Front, we received positive comments and noted an excellent attendance at the Public Hearing.

Your help, planned or unplanned, is greatly appreciated.

Oakcrest News

The students attending Oakcrest Elementary have been participating in a variety of exciting learning experiences.

The fourth and fifth grade students attended Gallaudet College for a day. During their visit they learned first hand that the only thing deaf people can't do is hear. The students participated in role-playing activities, discovering the ways people become deaf by exploring the different parts of the ear, and the various types of equipment available to hearing impaired citizens.

The second and third graders are learning the importance of conservation and the effects of pollution. During their tour of the Clearwater Nature Center in Clinton, they used their senses to discover the necessity of a safe clean environment.

Each morning the dynamic television news team of WOAK keeps the student body and faculty abreast of the important events in the news, weather and sports.

Some Greenbelt children attend Oakcrest.

Master Plan Draws Citizen Comment

sed, given the controls now available," he said.

As a third problem with the plan's recommendations, Weidenfeld characterized the proposed rezoning of the land around the Greenbelt Metro station as an M-X-T (Mixed Use-Transportation Oriented) zone as "premature." He said city officials question the appropriateness of the M-X-T zone for a transit stop which will not be operational for five years. They are particularly concerned that the M-X-T zone is proposed to be designated without new roads also proposed to service the area.

Turning to the undeveloped remnants of the city's green belt, Weidenfeld objected to the plan's recommendation that the tracts known as Parcels 1 and 2 should be developed at the "Suburban" density (2.7 to 3.5 units per acre.) Weidenfeld acknowledged that no guarantee exists that these parcels will remain undeveloped unless the city acquires them. However, he urged that the plan give some protection to these parcels, if development should ever occur, by placing them in the lowest density recognized in the plan (Low Suburban—1.6 to 2.6 units per acre) and by including them in the planned community zoning.

As his last point, Weidenfeld reiterated the city's strong stand against extension and widening of Kenilworth Avenue. "We believe that Kenilworth Avenue, if extended as proposed, will become a link to the Intercounty Connector to the north and will funnel significant amounts of traffic through Greenbelt," he said. Emphasizing that the city is already crisscrossed by the Beltway, the B-W Parkway, Kenilworth Avenue, and Greenbelt Road, he said, "We have our own traffic problems. We don't need and don't want Montgomery County's, South Laurel's and Beltsville's traffic problems added to ours."

Kastner Speaks for CFG

Ruth Kastner represented both the Citizens for Greenbelt and the Committee to Save the Green Belt at the hearing. She said that CFG strongly opposes the proposal to delete the RPC zone in central Greenbelt. She disputed the only reason advanced by the planning staff for deleting this zoning—that it had been compromised by piecemeal exceptions—by pointing out that the present density is almost exactly that planned for in the original concept—3.335 units. "It is clear that, far from being compromised, the original Greenbelt plan is still intact from a density and planning point of view . . ." she said.

In regard to Parcels 1 and 2 Kastner spoke for CFG and The Committee to Save the Green Belt. She quoted from a letter to the city from Royal Hart, legislative liaison to County Executive Parris Glendening, which said: "We believe . . . that the acquisition of those two parcels is the most significant task to be accomplished at this time." Kastner pressed for rezoning of these tracts to the Open Space (O-S) category "to properly reflect the county's expressed support for the preservation of the last of Greenbelt's green space."

Kastner also expressed CFG's concern about the impact of extension and widening Kenilworth Avenue and the lack of a plan to correct the problems identified in the Beltway Plaza/Greenbelt Road corridor. Kastner also took issue with the proposal to use Rural Residential (R-R) zoning as a 'conservation category' for all the city park land. ". . . As the R-R zone allows up to 2.17 units per acre, I see no reason why parkland should not be zoned in the O-S zone," she said.

GHI Position

Greenbelt Homes, Inc. Manager Ron Colton expressed strong opposition to deletion of the RPC zone for the multi-million dollar housing cooperative which owns the original dwelling units and the land surrounding them in the original city. He pointed out that the design of the central city embodies the very concepts that the MNCPPC staff say they want to promote: neighborhood activity centers and comprehensive design zones to promote better housing layouts. "Unfortunately," he continued, "when they get done with the theory, the plan's authors propose a series of rezonings . . . which produce effects directly opposite to the goals which they have espoused." He noted that the plan identifies no housing problems within old Greenbelt, but that the planners propose to rezone it anyway into euclidian zones, which they admit in their own text have failed to produce good design. Colton remarked that the master plan gives no rationale for this rezoning and cites no benefits to be derived from it by the community.

The plan proposes to rezone GHI land to the Residential Townhouse (R-T) category. Colton said that this rezoning would make GHI homes a non-conforming use, severely limiting the options which the members would have in improving their dwelling units or even replacing them after accidental damage.

Colton proposed that the RPC zoning be retained and that the MNCPPC staff work with the residents and the city government to adopt a plan for the community within the legal statutes defining the RPC zone.

Other Greenbelt Views

Several Greenbelt residents spoke on their own behalf. Leonie Penney objected to the proposed land use of Parcels 1 and 2, calling on the council to keep them undeveloped. She supported rezoning these tracts to O-S. She underscored the importance of green space by pointing to the popularity of the Lake Park.

Eunice Coxon cited recent articles in the press to support her apprehensions about traffic congestion that will result from the widening and extension of Kenilworth Avenue. She said she supports the position of the city of Greenbelt which Weidenfeld had presented.

Larry Seeborg opposed the proposed rezoning of a board of education school site near Windsor Green from R-R to R55. The site is currently used as green space and an active recreation area and he supported maintaining it at the conservation density.

Marsha Barrett said that she fully supported the concerns expressed by Weidenfeld. She pointed to the rezoning of much of the green space to a higher density as a cause for alarm. She said the "single-mindedness of the changes" seem to be aimed at "maximizing of the value of the land around the coming Metro station" to increase the tax base. "As you increase the density you do increase the value of the land but you do not increase the quality of life on it," she said. She challenged the council to "rethink" the green space concept and the conservation of single-family homes" and to "make Prince Georges county one of the ten best places to live."

Many of the speakers got caught by the three-minute buzzer which signaled the end of their allotted time to speak. No presentation suffered more from this curtailment than that of Greenbelter Doug Love. Love brought a number of props to illustrate his points; these included a chest containing "ancient books about our legacy," as he put it. He attacked the proposal to "reclassify our town as not planned," saying that that "denies our heritage." He also deplored the plan's road recommendations and attempted to outline some alternative but was interrupted by the buzzer before he made his plan clear.

U.S. Park Service

Bob Hickman, Site Manager of the National Park Service's Greenbelt Park and Baltimore-Washington Parkway, spoke of the park's role in the life of the community, where citizens "can escape the hurried pace of urban life and hike or camp in a relatively undeveloped area only fifteen minutes from Washington, D.C." He urged that the lowest possible densities be assigned to the DiCamillo property (an 8-acre enclave in the park off Good Luck Road) and the Jaeger property (undeveloped land adjoining Westchester Park).

Hickman opposed the proposed rezoning of the DiCamillo property from R-R to R-55 because of the increased density allowed under the latter category. He welcomed the proposed down-zoning of one of the tracts on the Jaeger property from Residential High Rise to a lower mixed use density. He noted that a designation of open space or single-family home use would be still preferable.

A member of the DiCamillo family earlier in the hearing asked that the site be considered for a Comprehensive Design Zone designation with an underlying Residential-Medium (R-M) zone. (The R-M zoning allows a mix of residential types, with densities from 3.6 to 7.9 units per acre and a limited amount of convenience-retail space.)

Westchester Park

A sizeable bloc of residents of Westchester Park appeared carrying signs exhorting the council to retain the green space and to provide more single family housing. At least seven speakers urged keeping the density of two undeveloped parcels south of the Westchester Park apartments to a minimum. Most supported R-55 zoning but at least one recommended O-S. All were opposed to the concept of allowing commercial development.

M-X-T Opposed

Weidenfeld was not the only speaker to express scepticism about the blessings of M-X-T zoning. Several speakers voiced doubts about the benefits of this zoning for the College Park station as well as for the land surrounding the Greenbelt station.

College Park Mayor Anne Owens supported an overlay zone to guide development of the area around the two Metro stations. Another speaker warned that the M-X-T zoning allows extremely high density and complained that the master plan does not adequately explain this zoning.

Other Municipalities

College Park officials and residents packed the speakers list. The mayor and each council member had signed up to speak separately, although at the end two of the council members yielded their time. One remarked that everyone but the janitor had already spoken.

Officials of Berwyn Heights and University Park spoke at the beginning of the meeting. Of the 67 citizens who signed up to speak, the overwhelming majority listed College Park as an address. Many of these, however, were from smaller political units. Among citizens who spoke were representatives of civic associations from Berwyn, Calvert Hills, College Lawn, Oakview, White Oak Manor, and West College Park. Citizens of Adelphi and a few from other areas also spoke.

Of primary concern to residents of Berwyn Heights and from some areas of College Park was the master plan's recommendation for rezoning of land now occupied by single family homes or land adjacent to single family homes to commercial uses. Perhaps Mary Armstrong of College Park said it best when she pleaded 'with the council to "consider the human element." "You people (shouldn't) allow the developers to move in and destroy what we have spent years to build up," she said. Tom McGonigle of College Park also called it "a fundamental error" to put commercial zoning right next to single-family homes with no buffer.

And so it went for the entire evening. Aside from a handful of landowners or lawyers representing them, who were asking for changes which would enhance the value of their property, most of the speakers protested against widening roads (Adelphi Road, Powder Mill Road, Kenilworth Avenue) to invite more traffic and development, opposed destruction of green space, and expressed alarm at the encroachment of commercial development into single-family home neighborhoods. For these speakers there was little comfort in the words of Walter Green, an attorney, who said he started work in College Park in 1927. He said, "If changes had been prohibited from that day on . . . I wouldn't have seen one single person here that I have seen here tonight. We must have changes."

Host a Foreign Student

If you would like to experience a foreign country first hand without leaving home, host a student for a month this summer.

Two programs coordinate placing of foreign teenagers with American families or single people who need not have a spare private room or even children the same age in the home. Students come with spending money and insurance, and need only the chance to learn about our country and its people. They are interested in international friendship, comments Wendy Becker, a coordinator for World Exchange.

For information on hosting a teen or about travelling abroad, call Becker (in Lanham) at 794-7184 or Ruth Jamison (in Elkton) (301) 398-8486, of Nacel Cultural Exchanges, which arranges stays for French students from July 13 to August 10 in this area.

GHI NOTES

The Member and Community Relations Committee will meet on Tuesday June 21, at 7:30 p.m. in the Board Room.

The Board of Directors will meet on June 23, at 8 p.m. Members are encouraged to attend board meetings.

MLSMULTIPLE LISTING SERVICE

Our Neighbors

by Dorrie Bates 345-5961

There are many new members of the baby brigade to report this week. Katherine Alexis Engel entered the world at Walter Reed Hospital on June 3, weighing 8 lbs. She is the first child of Theresa and Randy Engel who live in Chelsea Woods. New grandparents Bob and Sharon Alfaro of Northway are bursting with pride. (Yes, they have pictures.) Greenbelter Aunt Gina joins with all the other relatives in saying welcome.

Kenneth and Christene Rager of Crescent Road are celebrating the birth of their first born. Duwane Paul Rager was born on May 30 at Holy Cross Hospital, weighing 7 lbs. 15 oz.

It was a boy for Suzanne Strovel and Roderick Lopez. Joshua Roderick Lopez arrived on June 4 at Holy Cross. He weighed 7 lbs 8½ ozs. The family lives on Edmonston Terrace.

Zachary Leonard Marshall was born on June 4 at Holy Cross to Wanda and Michael Wayne Marshall of Springhill Drive. He was 6 lbs 1 oz. at birth.

Brenda and David Peyton of Cherrywood Lane are the proud parents of David Hassan Peyton Jr. Young David was born at Holy Cross on June 4, weighing 9 lbs 3 ozs.

It's a boy for Marty and Patty Rousseau. Timothy Lee was born on May 17 at Holy Cross Hospital weighing 9 lbs. 5 oz. He joins big brother Marty and big sister Leslie. Proud grandparents are Lee and Jane Fendly and Paul and June Rousseau.

OFFICIAL NOTICE Public Hearing

STRATEGIC PLANNING GOALS AND OBJECTIVES

MONDAY, JUNE 27, 1988 - 8 P.M.

COUNCIL ROOM, MUNICIPAL BUILDING, 25 CRESCENT ROAD

The City Council has scheduled a public hearing on the STRATEGIC PLANNING GOALS AND OBJECTIVES as developed by the city's Strategic Planning Subcommittees. These Goals and Objectives are the result of an effort to better plan for Greenbelt's future by identifying areas expected to be the leading issues in the years ahead.

The effort began in late 1986 when the City Council identified the issue areas to be addressed in this process. In early 1987, City Council, members of city advisory boards, city department heads and support staff participated in an all-day session and discussed the issue areas and drafted goals to address these issues. Strategic Planning Subcommittees were established for each of the issue areas, and the subcommittees subsequently refined the goal statements and drafted objectives, which were then reviewed by the city's advisory boards.

The purpose of this hearing is to receive comments from the general public as to the Goals and Objectives listed in the attachment to this notice before proceeding further in the process with the drafting of actions steps to achieve these goals.

For further information, please contact Michael P. McLaughlin at 474-8000.
