City Council Reverses Direction And Approves New Police Garage

by Mavis Fletcher

At a special meeting on June 28, the Greenbelt city council voted 3 to 2 to authorize a garage for the new police station now under construction. The vote reversed a decision made at the regular city council meeting on June 13 when council voted to kill the garage. At that meeting only Mayor Gil Weidenfeld supported the garage. Other members voted to eliminate it because the cost, at almost $72,000 was $12,000 over the budgeted amount and the facility as a whole was over budget by about $67,000.

At the special meeting, Weidenfeld made a plea for the garage, saying that the city is building a police building which will cost over $2 million and that it should be complete and a facility the town can be proud of. At Weidenfeld's request, City Manager James K. Giese outlined the alternatives: either build the garage now using the current contractor, wait until the main building is complete and get new bids on the garage, or not build the garage at all. He reported that building costs appear to be still escalating (despite low inflation) and that waiting until after the police station is complete in the hope that bids would be nearer the estimated $60,000 level might be risky. He said, however, that he could not say which course would bring the lower price.

Giese said that the staff continues strongly to recommend construction of the garage. Police Chief James R. Craze also supported the garage, saying that officers use the garage while gathering evidence in, mostly, felony crimes. He pointed out that such evidence gathering now sometimes has to be done out in the weather with the subsequent risk that evidence may be obliterated by the weather. Councilmember Joseph Isaacs asked whether evidence ever had been lost for lack of proper facilities. Craze replied that it is impossible to know what may have been lost.

Anthony Pisano a resident of Lakewood, asked whether a garage is cost effective; that is, how many cars were impounded last year. Craze replied that 256 cars had been impounded in 1987 and potentially every impounded car has evidence in it of a crime.

New Cost

The contractor's June 13 bid to build the garage was almost $72,000. However, Giese said that the bid had gone up by $2,000 because the steel framework of the main building had been put up in the intervening weeks and that it would cost that much to get the steel crew back to do the additional work for the garage. The current cost is thus almost $74,000.

Councilmember Edward Putens finally made a motion to authorize construction of the garage for an amount not to exceed $74,000. Weidenfeld seconded the motion. Councilmember Antoinette M. Bram, who at the earlier meeting had said that the police had gotten along without a garage for 50 years and could continue to get along without one, moved to amend the motion to stipulate that the $14,000 by which the garage is over budget should be taken from the Police Department budget. Craze agreed to this stipulation. Weidenfeld seconded the motion to amend.

Putens, however, at first said he was unwilling to penalize the department by taking the money out of the operations budget. When it became evident that his motion would fail without Bram's vote, he accepted the amendment. The motion eventually carried with Putens, Weidenfeld, and Bram voting for it and Councilmembers Thomas X. White and Isaacs opposed.

Cost Overruns

White expressed strong opposition because the garage adds to the costs of a facility which has "already consumed all the construction funds" from the bond issue. He pointed to $100,000 in extra soil engineering costs and said he could get no satisfactory explanation for these costs. He said the garage had always been "an add-on" and added, that in his opinion, "we can't afford it."

Isaacs agreed with the points White had made and also mentioned a contractor's claim of undetermined size against the city for delays in getting the police building started. The garage, he said, is "a chance to cut down."

Isaacs and White received some support from residents who were present. Keith Chernikoff, after eliciting some cost figures from Giese, said, "It is safe to say that the police facility will be ten percent over budget." On that basis he supported the Isaacs-White position. He also objected to mixing the operations and capital improvement budgets, a process he called "Mickey Mouse games."

Fat in the Police Budget?

Bram took issue with this comment, saying, "It's all money and it all comes from the taxpayer." As for taking some from the operations budget, she said that she had never seen a budget in which there wasn't "a little bit of fat" which could yield the $14,000. White pounced on this statement, saying that if he had known there was any fat in it he would have voted differently on the budget. "What kind of a message does that send to other departments?" he asked. He deplored the "bartering and trading" being done with a budget on which "the ink is barely dry."

After the garage was approved, Weidenfeld suggested that council could meet with Craze to discuss where the money would be taken from the operations budget.

Citizens at Hearing on City's Goals Stress Land Use and Park Acquisition

by Dan Kulpinski

Discussion on the topics of park acquisition and land use dominated the June 27 public hearing by the Greenbelt city council on Strategic Planning Goals and Objectives, which took place in the councilroom of the Municipal Building. The hearing was an opportunity for the public to state their views on the planning goals and objectives committees have worked out over the last year.

The planning goals and objectives fall into eight categories: Financial Stability and Five Year Budget, Park Acquisition, Recreation Facilities, Programs and Parkland Development, Land Use and Zoning, Public Safety, Facilities Construction and Renovation, Unification of the City, Transportation and Intergovernmental Relations. Since 1986 council has been engaged in long-range planning designed to prepare the city for the next 5 to 15 years. The issues above were identified, and a Sub-Committee formed for each one. Each committee set goals to be achieved, and will define strategies to meet those goals.

Mayor Gil Weidenfeld stressed that Strategic Planning was new to Greenbelt, and that the city was the only one in Prince Georges County to have it. Weidenfeld described the city as a "novice" in the Strategic Planning realm. He suggested that the city could fine tune any planning goals in the future. For now, however, the next step, after council reviews what was said at the public hearing, is to have a work session later to see how council will handle the situation.

Planning of Schrom Hills Park Begins as Citizens State Wishes

by Betsy Likowski

Planning the new Schrom Hills Park has begun and citizen input in the process is requested. At a public hearing on Wednesday, June 15 at the Hunting Ridge Community Center, a park planning consultant hired by the city elicited ideas from citizens about recreational amenities for the new park.

Schrom Hills Park is in the eastern part of Greenbelt, just south of Greenbrook and east and north of Hanover Parkway. It is approximately 43 acres in size and a six acre pond will be constructed in the northern end of the park.

Grace Fielder of Greenman and Pederson has been hired by the city of Greenbelt to plan the park. She was formerly principal planner at the Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

She said she was "here to be your ears and facilitator," to see what ideas citizens had for the park. She promised she and her assistants would be back in six to eight weeks to discuss the exact details of the park site and to have citizens work in small groups and hash out specific ideas for the park.

Fielder stated that many things could be done in a 43 acre park. It all depends on whether citizens want a passive or active park, walking trails or ball fields, and how much of the existing ecology citizens would want to destroy in creating the park, she said.

Bob Titman said he would like to see a park that rivals anything in the city. Several subdivisions in the eastern part of city have little or no recreational facilities, he said.

Several people were concerned with parking; either needing more or the location. Jim Foy stated that Hunting Ridge residents wanted parking for the park away from their area.

Councilmember Antoinette Bram asked how the park could be designed so that it is a neighborhood park. Fielder replied that the type of facilities determine how the park is used; some facilities people walk to and to others, people drive.

Many of the dozen or so citizens present felt land use, especially acquisition and maintenance of park land, was the important issue at hand. Jim Drake noted that when designers put together the city, park land was not separate from the city. "The way we've been going recently is more . . . houses here and park there" stated Drake.

Drake proposed a "rambling park," which would incorporate the park with the community, so that the park was not a separate piece of land unto itself. Councilmember Antoinette Bram mentioned that smaller parcels of land are not adequate for flora and fauna and would benefit only man.

Keith Chernikoff, chairman of the Parks and Recreation Advisory Board, suggested that a uni-

Among the suggestions citizens made for the park were: playground, basketball courts, paths connecting with existing paths, restrooms, picnic areas, grills, putting green, horseshoe pits, volleyball nets.

Dorothy Pyles said that she believed a consensus had been reached earlier to have the ball fields away from Hunting Ridge. Another person wanted them at the southern end of the park. A suggestion was made to extend the usage time of ball fields.

One problem with ball fields was lights. Foy said residents are already looking at lights on existing fields. Fielder assured him that elevation, noise, security, ways to cut costs and many other nuances will be examined.

One man supported passive activities because he believed team sports attract more people from outside the neighborhood.

Keith Chernikoff, chairman of the Parks and Recreation Advisory Board, said that an area to have solitude was a need frequently mentioned in their survey of possible uses of the park. City Council member Thomas White mentioned there should be limited access points to the park.

Foy summed it all up by saying the biggest challenge to the designers will be to create enough active facilities to satisfy the people who live in the neighborhood.

Although Fielder wanted to stick to creating a wish list, that

Park maintenance also came up in the discussion. Drake mentioned the erosion around the lake and the scum on top of the water. "The lake is a valuable part of this community," stressed Drake, "and it needs a lot (of work)."

In response to the land problem, Weidenfeld said that the city is trying to purchase some land, but that land which is now zoned for commercial use is expensive. Currently developers

Work on Pipes Continues

Temporary bypass pipes to carry water to Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission (WSSC) customers can be seen in many areas around the community. These bypass pipes will be used while the existing in ground pipes are being cleaned and lined. This is all part of the WSSC Water System Modernization Project that will continue through the end of October.

Throughout the duration of the project, customers may experience discolored (rusty) water. If laundry gets soiled, the WSSC provides a "Discolored Water Packet" for customers to rewash their soiled articles to remove the rust stains. The packet may be obtained by calling the WSSC at 699-4173. If the discolored water persists for more than a couple of hours, call the WSSC during the day at 495-9386. WSSC will come out and open a nearby fire hydrant to flush the rusty water out of the system.

If a serious problem occurs in the evening or over a weekend, such as a broken temporary water line, a loose steel plate or no water to a home, call the WSSC's 24-hour maintenance emergency number at 699-4555.

Stay tuned to the Greenbelt Municipal Access Channel B-10 for up to date information on the progress of this WSSC project.

Hearing on City's Goals

(Continued from page one) must leave ten percent of their land for green space, according to the law. One of the objectives listed under "Park Acquisition" states that the city should "require developers to increase land for recreation and park uses at a higher ratio than presently mandated . . ."

Zoning

Land Use and Zoning was also discussed at length. Marsha Barrett commended the council on the idea of having a public hearing for Strategic Planning. She recommended that the city try to gain control of zoning in a way similar to that which Laurel has over its zoning. The major sticking point, said Bram, was that "we don't have the land. It belongs to people in a private way so we don't have control."

Jean Lombardo noted that the city always seemed to be reacting to what developers or the Park and Planning Commission did, and proposed the city draft a Master Plan of its own. Councilmember Joe Isaacs said that the Advisory Planning Board (APB) recently added an extra meeting per month to assess future needs of the city. Part of the APB agenda is to develop a Master Plan for Greenbelt. As far as changing existing zoning restraints, Weidenfeld felt "the county board and district council must be won over . . . (it is) out of the city's hands."

"We're doing our best to get the best we can in the (Langley Park-College Park-Greenbelt) Master Plan," assured Weidenfeld.

City Manager James K. Giese added: "We are not masters of our own planning." He said that Greenbelt plays only an advisory role in county planning. Greenbelt has told the Park and Planning Commission that it favors RPC zoning (for the GHI part of the city) but Giese noted that "planning does not control development as much as economics and private owners (do)."

Land Use

Parcels of land were not the only land use concerns however. "We as a community have an obligation to preserve and possibly perpetuate . . . the planning concept that was established with the original town," said Neupert. "We have a certain architectural style and we should build in keeping with it."

Neupert felt sidewalks along the roadsides violate the concept of never having to cross roads, and stressed the need for architectural compatibility in the historical section. He proposed a kind of architectural guidance committee to check designs before they are constructed.

"We are now modifying the concept of the city into something that is more modern," he said.

Unification

Other issues raised included that of city unification, which Bram felt was "a very important issue. The future of the unification of the city can make or break Greenbelt." She cited the differences between east and west Greenbelt as things which needed to be smoothed over. "You have to all work together to achieve your goals," Bram warned.

Councilmember Thomas X. White saw unification "more as political cohesiveness from the standpoint of a sense of community" in addition to the physical aspect of continuity in trails and communication. Both "communication between citizens and physical communication between the city" were important to White.

Citizens were quick to demand specifics from the vague planning outline the committees had put together. Doug Love said there is a need for bridges over Greenbelt Road as well as over Kenilworth Avenue. He suggested that if in the future, developers want to build roads, they should be made to provide bridges where necessary.

As for reducing the impact of future growth, Chernikoff felt there were two ways it could be done. "One is to build roads, the other is to try to control Officers responding to a complaint of an indecent exposure about 2:30 p.m., June 28 in the 9300 block of Edmonston Road chased a suspect on foot but lost him. Two young boys reported that the man had pulled down his pants and exposed himself to them. One of the victims ran home and reported the incident to his baby sitter, who called police. The suspect was white, 18 to 25 years, 150 lbs. He wore yellow shorts and a gray T-shirt.

A male non-resident driving to Greenbelt about 9:45 p.m., June 29 reported he was followed from Route 50 to the 400 block of Ridge Road by a man in a second car who then got out, completely nude, and exposed himself to the victim. The suspect was a white male about 35 years of age. He was last seen driving a small white car.

Officer George Mathews arrested a 20-year-old Camp Springs man who committed an indecent exposure about 12:45 p.m., June 24 in the 9200 block of Edmonston Road while watching swimmers in a pool. He was charged with indecent exposure and released pending trial.

He pointed out that it only discussed automobiles, and that "no goals or objectives addressing public transportation" were present. Schlesinger also mentioned that the word "adequate" was used frequently in this section, and should be defined.

Also mentioned were the lack of county transportation in Greenbelt and the suggestion that Metro traffic not go through the city.

was estimated at about $250. On June 23 someone removed the brass covers from a stand-pipe system and threw them through a plate glass door in the parking garage in the 7800 block of Walker Drive. Damage was estimated at $500.

An apartment in the 5800 block of Cherrywood Lane was entered during the morning of June 28 by forcing the front door. Money and jewelry were stolen. On June 30 furnishings were stolen from an apartment in the 6200 block of Breezewood Drive. There were no signs of forced entry.

After stopping a car for a traffic violation about 1 a.m., July 1 in the 5900 block of Cherrywood Lane, Officer Mark Lagerwerff saw a hypodermic syringe next to the driver. He then found another syringe tucked between the seats. A Suitland man was arrested and charged with possession of controlled dangerous substance paraphernalia. He was held on $2000 bond.

Cpl. Thomas Miskell arrested a 26-year-old D. C. man about 7:45 p.m. June 30 in the 7400 block of Greenbelt Road after he saw the man about to get into a stolen car. The car, which had been stolen in Silver Spring on June 2, displayed a registration plate which had been stolen on April 11. The suspect, charged with thefts of the plate and the car, was held on $5000 bond before a District Court commissioner.

Pfc. Michael Jeffreys arrested a 28-year-old Beltsville man about 11:35 p.m., June 27 for possession of an open alcoholic beverage in Candy Cane City, behind the 100 block of Centerway. He was released on a citation pending trial.

Sgt. John Lann arrested a 17-year-old male non-resident about 1:15 a.m., July 1 after he saw Officer Mark Lagerwerff arrested a 37-year-old D.C. woman for shoplifting about 4:55 p.m., June 26 at Marshall's Department store at Beltway Plaza. She was charged with theft of over $300 and held on $5000 bond. The next day Officer Lagerwerff arrested a 15-year-old non-resident female for theft at the same store. She was held at Cheltenham juvenile facility pending action by juvenile services. On June 29 Officer Thomas Keifline arrested a 27-year-old D. C. woman for theft at Marshall's. She was released pending trial.

night and discussing details of the park site at a later date, there were some questions asked about the pond that will be located in the northern end of the park. The pond will serve as a storm water management facility for Greenbrook and that developer's required parkland dedication to the city.

Because its main function is to manage storm water, there must be a path around it for maintenance and the area between the water and the path will be grassy.

The City's Advisory Planning Board had worked with the developer and the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission to design a pond that will be somewhat natural in appearance. The developer will pay for the landscaping. City Manager James Giese pointed out that despite these functional requirements citizens can still decide which recreation facilities they want near the pond.

Money

Giese said that $250,000 has been allocated from the May 1985 bond issue to build recreation facilities in Schrom Hills Park. Some additional city funds have been earmarked; $40,000 was the sum mentioned.

Jack Davis thought $250,000 would not go far, and mentioned that a friend in Potomac spent that amount building a tennis court and pool. Foy asked, is this the total amount that will ever be spent on the park? Giese's reply, that the amount is dependent upon council and they are elected every two years, was greeted with much laughter. Also, he mentioned that not everything had to be built now.

Miscellaneous

Giese stated that the Schrom Hills Park will be a neighborhood park and because of its size will be capable of helping to serve the overall recreation needs of the city. He said it is now the second largest park in the city and will be third largest park.

In answering Titman's query for clarification on this, Giese said that the county is committed to giving the 72 acres of land between Parcels 1 and 2 to the city. He also said council has committed itself to buy all or parts of Parcel 1.

Giese said the Shimmel Tract next to the park had recently been acquired by the city.

Council members and city staff members were present at the meeting mostly to listen to citizen comments. Giese said questions and additional comments should be directed to the city's planning coordinator, Celia Wilson or Anne Herink of the Recreation Department.

Our Neighbors

Dorrie Bates 345-5961

As always, there are some new little firecrackers to report. Jim and Sharon Saunders of Mandan Road are celebrating the birth of their second child, Kimberly Lynn Saunders. She was born at Holy Cross Hospital on June 28 and weighed 6 lbs., 8½ oz. Big sister Michelle, 4½ likes taking care of "her baby." (and we're sure she does a great job!)

William E. Sheperd, Jr. arrived at Holy Cross on June 24. The first born of Mary and William Sr., he weighed in at 9 lbs. 6 oz. The new family lives at 22 Court Hillside.

Janet and Joseph Foots are the proud parents of Lacolet Patricia Foots who was born on June 21 at Holy Cross. She weighed 8 lbs. 3 oz. The Foots live in University Square Apartments.

And Paul Andrew Rundquist was born at Holy Cross Hospital on June 23. Son of Marie and Edward Rundquist, he weighed 8 lbs. 13 oz. Welcome all!

From the school file, Susan Gibson received High Honors during the fourth quarter at St. Vincent Pallotti High School in Laurel. A freshman, Susan maintained an average of 3.75 or better.

Lisa Smith, another Pallotti freshman, received honorable mention on the Honor Roll. She maintained an average of at least 3.25 during the term. Well done, ladies.

Heard from Pearl Ellerin of Lakeside the other day. Seems she's joined the growing list of Greenbelt's authors, having just edited a cook book on ethnic food. Pearl, a retired art teacher, said she felt like she had given birth—it was 9 months from the beginning of the project to publication. A project of the Mishkan Torah Sisterhood, the book is dedicated to Adele Mund.

Let's hear a big roar for Suzanne Plogman, our Prince Georges School Board member, who is the first female to be accepted as a member of the Greenbelt Lions Club. She was unanimously endorsed by the Lions Club Board of Directors.

From the military world comes news that Airman Christopher W. Harvey, son of Janet Harvey on Ridge Road, has graduated from Air Force basic training at Lackland Air Force Base in Texas.

Pvt. Richard E. Blackmon has completed basic training at Ft. Bragg in North Carolina. A 1983 graduate of Eleanor Roosevelt High School, he is the son of Patricia Blackmon in Springhill Lake.

Pvt. Tammy C. Cassidy, daughter of Joan Cassidy, has completed basic training at Ft. Dix, New Jersey.

Navy Lt. j.g. Valerie Ormond has completed the Public Affairs Officer Course offered at the Defense Information School at Fort Benjamin Harrison in Indianapolis. She is the daughter of Florence Ormond, Hanover Parkway.

And finally, something important slipped through the cracks. Andrew Joseph Olek has received an appointment to the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis. The son of Sandra and Gerald Olek of Lastner Lane, Andrew was ranked in the top fourth of his class at Eleanor Roosevelt and is currently attending Preparatory School at the Admiral Farragut Academy in Pine Beach, New Jersey. While at ERHS he was a 2-year Varsity letterman in football and received an All-County honorable mention for his skills. He is a member of the Boy Scouts of America and a National Merit Commended Scholar. He was nominated for the position by Senator Mikulski. Congratulations!
