Council Hears FOP Request For Collective Bargaining

by Diane Oberg

The Greenbelt City Council met with representatives of the Greenbelt lodge of the Fraternal Order of Police (FOP) on October 12 to discuss the latter's request for collective bargaining. The proposal, described by FOP President John Lann, would not permit strikes or other work stoppages or slowdowns.

The ordinance proposed by the FOP limits collective bargaining to police officers. Lann said that this limitation would prevent conflicts of interest for the police such as have occurred in Buffalo, New York. Lann said that officers there were ordered to take action against other striking city employees represented by the officers' union. The union ordered the police to respect the picket line, forcing them to choose between obeying the city or their union.

For the same reason, the draft ordinance specifies that only unions that primarily represent law enforcement officers could represent the Greenbelt police. Broad-based unions would not be eligible. Lann added that the ordinance could be amended if and when other city employees petitioned for collective bargaining.

City Manager James K. Giese objected, "strongly" recommending that any city labor law should apply to all city employees. He said that other employees would organize to protect their interests if the FOP were granted collective bargaining rights.

Under the FOP proposal, a contract negotiated by the city and the union would determine wages, hours and the terms and conditions of employment. Hiring practices would not be subject to negotiation; however promotion procedures would.

In case of an impasse in negotiations, the proposal provides for fact-finding or mediation but not for compulsory arbitration. Giese said that generally employees have either the right to strike or to resort to compulsory arbitration. In Giese's opinion strikes remain the ultimate union weapon, even where arbitration is mandated.

After negotiators for the city and the union agree on a contract, council would have to provide funds in the budget to cover the costs of the agreed upon wages and benefits. If council fails to do so, negotiations could be reopened at the request of either party.

Communication Good

Lann said that collective bargaining is needed to allow adequate time for the FOP to present its needs and concerns. He praised the council for meeting collectively and individually with the FOP during the preparation of the 1988/89 budget but said that despite the record amount of council-FOP communication there was still not enough time to present all their concerns.

The councilmembers were also proud of the communication and cooperation between council and the FOP this year. However, each expressed disappointment that the FOP chose to respond to this cooperation by seeking collective bargaining rather than by attempting to build upon the progress made.

The councilmembers also questioned whether collective bargaining would really benefit the FOP. Mayor Gil Weidenfeld said that compared with professional labor negotiators, "This council is a bunch of pussycats . . ." All the councilmembers feared that the introduction of collective bargaining would transform the relationship between council and the FOP into an adversarial one, with each side seeking something in return for each benefit given.

Lann countered that collective bargaining would lessen hostilities between the two sides since someone else would be doing the arguing. The FOP is also concerned that future councils may be less willing to work with them.

The councilmembers asked the FOP to realize that they would not get everything they wanted under either the current system or with collective bargaining. Several members cited the recent reclassification of all police officers to higher pay grades as an example of council's recognition of the FOP's concerns. Mayor Gil Weidenfeld reminded Lann that this reclassification, as well as the 25-year retirement plan the city is supporting in the state legislature, will leave substantial, ongoing costs for the city.

None of the councilmembers stated a position for or against granting collective bargaining. However, each councilmember questioned whether that is really the best way for the FOP to get what it wants. Weidenfeld said that if the officers wanted more time to meet with council, they should ask for it. He estimated that working out the details of collective bargaining could take six months to one year, and suggested that the time could be better spent discussing the actual concerns of the FOP.

However, increasing the number of meetings between council and the FOP could not resolve another problem Lann cited with the current system—the lack of guarantees for the officers. He claimed that in 1985, council appropriated $10,000 for a disability insurance program for the officers which was never established. Under collective bargaining, all agreements would be a part of a contract that, once approved, could be enforced.

Giese disputed Lann's account of the 1985 action, saying that council established a reserve fund allocated for disability insurance but never agreed to provide the insurance. Lann and Councilmember Edward Putens disputed the City Manager's version.

County Cable Company Rejects Council Conditions

by Heather Elizabeth Peterson

Prime Cable of Maryland, the company serving Greenbelt and other northern Prince Georges County communities, was purchased on November 17 by ML Media Opportunity Partners. In a letter to city council, the president of the new cable corporation refused to accede to certain demands council made in a special meeting on October 25.

At that time, council had indicated that it would agree to the transfer of the city's cable television franchise agreement on three conditions: (1) that the universal tier service (which allows subscribers to view only local and public access channels) have the same installation charge as the basic service, (2) that no fee be charged for use of a converter box after the first 12 months of use and (3) that no subscriber fee be charged for use of the city channels.

Winfield Kelly, President of Prime Cable and representing ML Media at the meeting, told council that ML Media had already accepted the first condition but that he doubted the company would agree to the other two.

Kelly had said at the council meeting that the federal 1984 Cable Communications Policy Act forbids municipalities from regulating rates. In the letter to council, Christopher J. Conley reiterated Kelly's belief that council's latter two demands constitute rate regulation. Conley is President of ML Media's new cable company, Maryland Cable Corporation.

In addition, wrote Conley, "Maryland Cable Corp. cannot accept regulation of the rates that it charges for converter rentals since it is such a significant source of revenue. Accordingly, please be advised that the acceptance of (council's) transfer resolution is given under protest with respect to the provision that relates to rate regulation. Please also note that the provision relating to rate regulation is not enforceable under federal law."

Conley went on to say, "While Maryland Cable Corp. understands that the Council felt the need to make a point about its concerns about the rates charged for remote controls, we hope that the Council understands that Maryland Cable Corp. cannot accept such a request."

GEAC Opposes Ballfield Lights

by Marcie Birk

The Greenbelt East Advisory Committee carried motions to endorse the elimination of ballfield lights from the design plan of Schrom Hills Park and to urge the city council to allocate sufficient funds to complete the park within two years of its adoption of this year's budget. These motions will now go to GEAC's five member associations for approval.

The endorsement concerning the ballfield lights was requested by James Foy, president of the Hunting Ridge Condominium Association, at GEAC's December 1 meeting. Foy said the association was preparing to circulate a petition taking a stand against ballfield lights at the park.

This issue has pitted the residents who live around the park against those who feel the use of lights would enhance its utility.

Edward Schilling of the Windsor Green Homeowners Association asked if a compromise could be reached where the lights would be put on timers so that they would be out by a certain time each night.

Greenbrook Estates representative Gary Kohn said, "If you've got lights, there's going to be pressure to use them."

Kohn also said that the lights might "create a different atmosphere," and encourage more use of the park by adult non-residents.

During the discussion, Schilling said he felt GEAC should let council know that the area residents wanted the park completed as soon as possible.

"As a show of good faith to the people who live in Greenbelt East, the city council should not drag their feet in the development of this park," Schilling said.

Gary Kohn agreed and said, "This area should have a park convenient to its residents."

Dave Lychenheim of Windsor Green said, "If you think lights will cause a problem, just think how bad it will be if that park is torn up for four or five years until it is finished."

GEAC felt that by taking a stand on this issue, city council would set aside sufficient funds to complete the project within two years from July 1989.

Internal Rules

GEAC, following the lead of city council, the airlines and area hospitals, has banned smoking during the committee meetings. Several committee members said that while they didn't like the decision, they would abide by it.

GEAC has still not settled its unanimity issue. Four out of five of the boards of directors have voted for a change which would allow GEAC to present positions to city council after approval of 75 percent of the member boards, instead of the unanimous vote which is currently required.

Councilmember Edward Putens was present at the December 1 meeting and urged GEAC to reach a decision on this issue.

"The city council puts a lot of weight on the position GEAC takes on an issue. The key is to get together and reach a compromise so that a position can be presented to the council," Putens said.

GEAC hopes to reach a decision on this issue at its next meeting.

Keep School in Center

David Lange suggests in his letter to the Editor of December 1 that the city consider abandoning Center School as an educational facility and construct a new school at the North End site (and) that Center School would be inadequate even if renovated. I must disagree.

For one thing, citizens are still waiting for more detailed information from the School Board about why it should cost over $7 million and require two years of busing to renovate Center School.

Granted, there are code violations which obviously should be corrected. But will this cost millions? I doubt it. The high cost and lengthy completion time have not yet been adequately explained. If the school board can convince me that a $7 million renovation is really necessary, I'll be all for it. However, as of yet I'm not convinced.

Mr. Lange lists a number of "50-year-old features," such as "long hallways," that he feels would prevent even a renovated Center School from serving "today's educational needs." This statement seems to assert that it is the physical school building that determines whether or not the school can provide a good education.

Many of (the) buildings (at the University of Maryland) are well over fifty years old. England's Oxford University is 800 years old. Yet no one is calling these venerated institutions "antiquated" and "obsolete." Why? Because they continue to provide an outstanding education. Could it be that the quality of education is primarily determined by the quality of teaching that goes on inside the building, rather than by the building itself?

If there are problems with Center School, let's identify them, explain exactly how they preclude a "quality education," and then correct them. But let's stop using irrelevant pejoratives about the building's age to "explain" the necessity for massive renovation, or even abandonment, of Center School.

The school's playground has received its share of criticism. Why don't we start by asking the school board to provide an adequate operating budget for Center School, so that they can at least afford to put swings on the swing set? That alone will go a long way toward improving educational quality.

I don't think it can be over-emphasized that by far the most important features of a quality education are first-rate teaching and a first-rate curriculum. These have little or nothing to do with the physical building.

In fact, new buildings can bring unwelcome disadvantages. I was surprised to read recently that the vast majority of new buildings are "sick;" that is, the building materials used give off vapors that can adversely affect the health of the occupants. Problems like this should make us appreciate our nice, old building as a reliable, safe environment to learn in.

This issue has forced us to examine how to best secure a quality education for our children. In my view, that important goal can best be achieved by: 1) a fully funded operating budget; 2) correction of code violations; 3) a low student-to-teacher ratio; 4) first-rate, well-paid teachers; and 5) a good curriculum.

Let's ask the school board to do these things. And let's keep Center School in the Center where it belongs.

Letters

Proud Tradition

This is in response to a recent letter criticizing the activities of this unit at Lake Park during our First Annual National Guard Awareness Day.

First, there were no "huge military helicopters" at the lake that day. Both were two-seaters, a "Cobra" Attack Helicopter and a "Loach" Scout. Neither one is much bigger than the cars that are driven to the park—I would submit that their "roar and fumes" are no more obnoxious. The same statement can be said for our "trucks," which were in reality a HUMMV (the replacement for the old "Jeep") and a 5/4 ton pickup, both again about the same size as other vehicles commonly found at the park.

Second, the National Guard does take part in "emergencies." Let me discuss two of them. The 29th Infantry Division, of which the 629th Military Intelligence Battalion is a part, fought in both WWI (500 casualties) and WWII (15,000 casualties.) In fact, the 29th was the only National Guard unit that went ashore with other Regular Army units on D-Day, June 6, 1944. The bloodstained beaches of Normandy gave silent tribute to these citizen soldiers who gave the ultimate sacrifice to crush Hitlerite fascism. The snide comment about "firefighting in drought-stricken areas" is a blatant slur against those who shed their blood so that the writers of this caustic letter may enjoy their freedom today.

The National Guard has a proud tradition of over 350 years. Guardsmen (or their predecessors, the Militia) have fought in all our nation's wars (yes, even Vietnam.) The volunteers of today's National Guard honor that heritage through service. We are your neighbors, your friends, and a valid part of the Greenbelt Community. We'll see you next year!

Resist Leaf Bags

In these environmentally troubled times, when we are hearing so much about the greenhouse effect, incinerators, landfills, etc., I was shocked and saddened to read about "New Procedures for Leaf Pick-Up" in the GHI Newsletter.

Surely the price we will pay, in the future, for disposing of all of these non-biodegradable plastic leaf bags will far outweigh the dollars we will save in the short run by using this method of leaf dumping.

I urge all Greenbelters to resist this unhealthy change. Let us set an example for the rest of the county and state by persuading the City of Greenbelt to go back to the old method. Let's choose to let our leaves fertilize the earth rather than pollute it.

CITY NOTES

The Holiday Tree was trimmed for the beginning of the Festival of Lights by employees of the Public Works Department.

Greenbelt Lake has been lowered approximately five feet. This level of the lake will be maintained until the debris can be cleared from the shoreline and the construction of the underwater berms has been completed.

The leaf collection/recycling program is going at full strength with two crews assigned to the task.

Residents are requested not to store rakes, shovels or other yard equipment in their trash closet.

SEE SPOT RUN, RUN WITH SPOT

A Rover Run will be held in Greenbelt Park at the Holly Picnic area on Sunday, Dec. 11 at 8:30 a.m. The Prince Georges Running Club is sponsoring the 1.5 mile "run-with-your-dog" race. Remembering Janet James

by Eileen Peterson

On a bright, Saturday morning last week, almost 200 friends gathered at St. Andrew's Episcopal Church to remember Janet James in a service she would have heartily enjoyed.

In his homily, the Rev. Moody Burt talked about the qualities of the biblical Martha of Bethany, the sister of Lazarus. Pointing out that Martha didn't mince words, was always direct and truthful, he asked, "Does that remind you of someone?" and a chuckle swept the congregation.

"She was fiercely loyal both to people and to principles. She was ready to do battle when troops were needed," he explained. He spoke from the perspective of the rector of a church where Janet was a singularly active parishioner, but many present reflected on her life in Greenbelt.

Wayne Williams, Greenbelt Homes, Inc., board member since 1977, remembers how "she wrote in a lighter vein to put across news with a vitality that made you read the article (in the News Review) even if you weren't interested in the organization." He points out that she ran again for the board at age 75 (losing by a handful of votes) and served on her last committee at age 80.

Norman and Ruth Weyel of Woodland Way became Janet's friends through GHI. "It's hard to put Janet into words; you had to know her, but once you did, you always remembered her." Joan Krob, GHI director of member relations, remembers that Janet invited the entire administrative staff, in small groups, to her house for luncheons.

Florence Holly, President of the Golden Age Club, says that on trips Janet James would often regale club members with folklore and history about various places as the bus rolled along. Despite discomfort which was to lead to her receiving a heart pacemaker only a few weeks later, Janet was delighted to take charge of refreshments at the club's first meeting in November. "She would do things on the spur of the moment for you," Holly muses, "and she had quite a sense of humor. She used to put surprise endings on songs we sang at our meetings."

"She behaved in love to everyone she ran across," the rector reminded those at the memorial service. Greenbelt residents know of her kindness to Mary Norton of Crescent Road. A friend since 1931, Janet had for years taken Norton to lunch once a week, until the move to Collington Episcopal Life Center in Largo put Janet out of reach of this regular kindness.

Adeline Hinson of Eastway first met Janet in 1949. "She liked to help people," Hinson explains, citing James' volunteer work for Help by Phone, when she often took strangers to their doctors' appointments. Her friend also recalls that the sign on Janet's door read, "I work for the Lord."

In remembering Janet's strong religious beliefs, Rev. Burt said that through her many people were blessed in many ways. He said that she not only lived the Good News, "Janet James was Good News." Her friends—from the past, in her parish, and her neighbors in Greenbelt—might well say, Amen.

A Joy To Be With

by Martha Kaufman

Janet James was a joy to be with. At our proof-reading sessions of the News Review she would regale us with anecdotes, stories and tidbits of her early family life which left us in good humor the remainder of the evening.

She will be sorely missed.

Of Strong Traditions And Irrepressible Humor

by Sandra Barnes

Janet James was a special member of the News Review staff. In the mid-1970's, when Janet was in her 70's, she was asked if she would do make up; that is cutting up the galleys of type and setting the ads and stories on pages. When assured that she could still write letters to the editor, she gladly accepted the make-up job until arthritis in her hands forced her to give it up several years later.

However, Janet continued as almost a weekly proofreader. She eagerly came out on Wednesday nights despite cold, rain or snow. A meticulous proofreader, her specialty was looking for incidents or typos which would remind her of a funny story.

Janet also liked to sing and would occasionally startle other proofreaders with her rendition of an Episcopalian hymn or nursery rhyme. Her singing was in evidence at the recent wedding of Sally Sims and Sam Stokes, where she was heard gustily leading the audience in some of her favorite hymns.

Sally Sims bought Janet's GHI home in April. When she found out that Sally was going to marry Sam, she was delighted to know that her house would really become a "honeymoon cottage."

Sally recalls that Janet telephoned her one day to ask if Sally had any silver reverer bowls. Janet traditionally gave all brides-to-be a Revere bowl as a wedding present, because one had been given to her when she moved into her first house. She was a person of strong traditions.

Among the many wonderful memories of Janet are her hospitality in opening her home to visitors for frequent House and Garden tours and for luncheons and dinners, her love of cooking and singing, her joy in storytelling; there was her incredible memory—in which she could recite a poem heard only once 20 years ago—her hearty, infectious laughter and her irrepressible humor.

A Formidable Fighter

by Katherine Keene

Since getting the phone call this afternoon from a friend who told me that Janet James was dead, I have felt rather desolate, and very far away from Greenbelt.

Certainly there can have been few persons with any greater dedication to service to others than Janet. She was active in her church, which when I first knew her was Epiphany Episcopal church downtown. There she was involved in many church projects to help the D.C. homeless.

Some cynic might say that since her father had been a clergyman this might have been expected, but her involvement seemed to spring from a belief that service to others is necessary in a community.

Similarly she became involved in the Greenbelt Community, particularly with the housing cooperative, GHI. She served on committees and was elected to several terms on the Board of Directors. She was a formidable writer of letters to the News Review, a formidable opponent in an argument, and a formidable fighter for maintaining good management policies. She was a very honest person.

She was also a very tolerant person. Deeply religious herself, she maintained friendships with those who were freethinkers or skeptics, apparently feeling that

Holiday Walk in the Woods Will Be on December 17

Come out of hibernation all ye Greenbelters and venture to explore the enchanting depths of the great north woods with members of the Committee to Save the Green Belt on Saturday, December 17 at 4 p.m. The trail will be lighted to a clearing in the woods where there will be some holiday festivities supplemented with hot chocolate and "s'mores" meltdown. The candlelight walk will begin at the end of Northway extended. Rain-date is Sunday, December 18 at 4 p.m. Call Paul at 474-4653 or Rodney at 345-5427 for more information.

an honest search for truth one could live with was admirable.

She was very witty, very talented musically, very literate. She was extremely intelligent, and shared all her talents. She was good company. If a heaven does exist, she must be already on a committee, and probably has already composed something for a heavenly chorus. She is indeed a person who will be missed.

Avoid Holiday Hazards
This is the season to be jolly, but the Maryland Department of Health and Mental Hygiene wants the holiday season to be safe as well. Last year 117,000 people nationwide suffered injuries related to toys. Skateboards were responsible for 91,000 additional injuries.

Follow the manufacturers' age recommendations for toys. Teach older children to store chemistry sets, electronic toys, etc., away from younger brothers and sisters. Before buying, make sure toys are made of durable materials, and don't have sharp parts and edges or small pieces that could be inhaled or swallowed.

Children should be taught the correct way to play with toys, including never to shoot or throw objects at another's eyes.

Christmas trees can also be a safety problem. Before buying an artificial tree, be sure it is fire-resistant. Make sure a live tree is fresh—the needles should be hard to pull from branches. Once inside the tree must have its holder kept filled with water.

Decorations should also be fire-resistant. Avoid sharp or breakable ornaments and any leaded materials. Children may be at-

Artists' rendering of Commerce Center I.

Vacant Space Filling Up In Commerce Center I

Commerce Center I, the five-story angular-shaped office building located on seven and a half acres at the intersection of Greenbelt Road and Hanover Parkway, is 80% leased. Already occupying 3,945 square feet on the fifth floor for its regional headquarters, Crestar Bank will open a 3,496 square foot branch on the retail/first floor in early December. J. D. Enterprise International, Inc. has leased 817 square feet for a copy center and 1,146 square feet for a sandwich shop on the retail floor. The quarters will be occupied by the end of the year. The first and third floors are fully leased. About 450 parking spaces have been provided.

Baby Meekins of the Richard H. Rubin Management Corporation said, "We have been very happy with the building and the market and we are going forward with Commerce II."

Commerce I and II are joint ventures of The Midland Companies of Washington, D.C. and The Rubin Companies of Rockville, Md. Lockman Associates of Washington, D.C. are the architects who are also designing Commerce III, which will be situated between Commerce I and II.

Construction of Commerce II is underway at the intersection of Hanover Parkway and Ora Glen Drive. Two buildings—a three story 75,500 square foot West building and a 46,089 square foot single story East building—are scheduled for completion in March 1989. The structures will be compatible with Commerce Center I, in particular the building's exterior of warm gray trim and deep red brick. Commerce II, a Midland development, will be composed of similar materials.

"To Your Smile" by Ray Vidal, D.D.S.

What special care do dentures need?

If you are one of the many millions of Americans who have unfortunately lost several or all of your natural teeth and now have a full or partial denture, your thoughts are probably not of prevention, but rather of maintenance of your denture. While it is important to maintain the actual denture, you still cannot overlook preventive measures that you can take to minimize further problems.

All dentures do require good daily cleaning to prevent unsightly staining or objectionable odor. Today's highly advanced denture materials assure many years of trouble-free service, but reasonable care must be taken not to drop the denture or allow it to dry out when not in the mouth.

More important is the understanding that, although dentures do not change, the mouth does. Shrinkage of bone and gum tissue occurs slowly but constantly, and is the main reason for ill-fitting dentures. Periodic examination by your family dentist is necessary to determine when re-fitting, or even replacement, is needed.

Greenbelt Rotary Inducts Barcome

Ann Barcome was inducted into membership at the Greenbelt Rotary Club's weekly breakfast meeting on September 15, held at the Greenbelt Marriott. Barcome became the second female member of the Greenbelt chapter of Rotary International.

Barcome is the senior consultant and vice president of marketing for KSA Health Care Consultants, Inc. of Greenbelt. She has been in the health care industry for 20 years and was previously the president of Barcome Systems, a healthcare management consulting firm working primarily with hospitals in New Mexico.

The Rotary Club of Greenbelt was formed in March 1988 and is headed by Greenbelt stockbroker, Ed McGehrin, its charter president, and is composed of leading professional and management people living or work-

World's Bonanza

World's Bonanza, a Greenbelt minority firm established in August 1987, has won for the second time a six month, $61,200 contract to supply the Prince Georges County Government with several types of envelopes. The contract was awarded to World's Bonanza on Sept. 26, over seven other firms which competed for it.

Arjun Nowlakha, owner of World's Bonanza, said "Prince Georges County is the fastest growing county today. Local businesses and government agencies are very good markets. If minority firms wish to do business with the government, they should get on the bidders' list in those departments which buy their product or service."

Rotary International, an international service club with over a million members in over 60,000 clubs worldwide and 60 clubs locally, is headquartered in Evanston, Illinois.

Police Blotter

As a 27-year-old woman resident stepped out of her car in the 7800 block of Mandan Road on Dec. 1 about 9:30 p.m., she was approached by a man with a handgun who demanded money. Once he obtained the money from her, he fled. He is described as black, age 20 to 30, 6 ft., wearing a light-weight navy blue jacket, dark pants, a white baseball cap with a blue front and bill and wire frame glasses.

As an employee of Godfather's Pizza was delivering a deposit bag to a local bank on Nov. 30 at 10 a.m., he was followed by a 1970's full-sized, four-door, light tan or cream color car, possibly with D.C. tags. Two men got out of the car and approached the victim. One pushed the employee while the other grabbed the bag containing cash and checks. The suspects fled in their car. They are described as black teenagers, ages 16 or 17. One was 6 ft., 160 lbs., and wore a knee-length gray trench coat and white tennis shoes. The other was 5 ft. 10 in and wore a gray ski jacket with a red design on the back. There was no description of the third person.

On Nov. 23 at 4:15 p.m. Pfc. Matthew Carr arrested a 37-year-old non-resident man and charged him with a fourth-degree sexual offense. The man had forced his way into his ex-girl friend's apartment when she answered the door and had grabbed her. He was released pending trial.

Thefts

Pfc. Steven Keller arrested two 11-year-old residents who had been concealing merchandise in their clothing at Best Products and Radio Shack at Beltway Plaza. The juveniles were released to their parents and guardian pending a hearing.

Another shoplifting occurred Nov. 29 at Linens n' Things in Greenway Center. A man described as white, age 30, 6 ft. 3 in., 250 lbs, and wearing blue jeans, a navy tee-shirt and navy down jacket, left the store concealing merchandise in his jacket. He was seen leaving the area in a small-body pickup truck with a white cab.

Other thefts reported last week include: a wallet stolen on Nov. 30 from an unattended purse in an unlocked office; business radios taken on Nov. 28 from a construction trailer on Greenbrook Dr.; a television, V-CR, camera and jewelry taken on Nov. 30 from a home in the 7400 block of Morrison Dr.

Stolen Vehicles

A 1985 Toyota Camry that was reported stolen on Nov. 24 at noon and was recovered four days later by Prince Georges police. A 19-year-old non-resident man was arrested and charged with auto theft and held on $1500 bond.

Officer Carl Schinner recovered a 1973 Mercedes on Nov. 25 that was reported stolen in Ohio earlier in the month. The car was located in the 5900 block of Cherrywood Ter. following a call from a resident advising police of an abandoned car. Officer Michael Lanier recovered a 1986 Oldsmobile in the 5800 block of Cherrywood Tr., also as a result of a citizen's call. The car had been reported stolen three days earlier. No arrests were made in either case.

Other vehicles reported stolen last week include: a dark gray 1984 Isuzu LS pickup, VA tags FJZ-525, taken from the 8000 block of Lakecrest Dr. on Dec. 1; a white 1989 Jeep Wrangler, unknown temporary tag, taken from the 5800 block of Cherrywood Tr. on Nov. 27; and a tan 1985 Toyota Camry, MD tags PHP-941, taken from the 7200

Dogs Help State Police Stop Drug Trafficking

The Maryland State Police K-9 Unit is ready to unleash the "Twelve Dogs of Christmas" on Maryland highways as part of the statewide holiday enforcement effort against drunk and drugged driving. These specially trained dogs will assist troopers on traffic stops whenever drug use or drug trafficking is suspected.

Sergeant Donald Murphy, the K-9 Unit Commander, states that "The agency is making a concerted effort to stop the flow of drugs into the state. We will be on the interstates and back roads . . . wherever we are called, whenever the need."

So far this year, the Maryland State Police K-9 Unit has sniffed out over 350 pounds of marijuana or hashish, more than 15 pounds of cocaine or crack, and quantities of heroin concealed inside vehicles traveling on Maryland highways. The unit is also credited with assisting in the seizure of more than $62,000 in cash and the forfeiture of numerous vehicles being used for drug trafficking in Maryland. During 1987, Maryland State Police arrested 1,429 drivers on various drug trafficking charges.

The "Twelve Dogs of Christmas" will be featured during the annual National Drunk and Drugged Driving Awareness Week observances which are scheduled for December 11 through 17. The annual observance is sponsored by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration in cooperation with state and local highway safety agencies.

LOCAL SCOUTS SELLING TREES

Greenbelt's Cub Scout Pack 202 and Boy Scout Troop 746 will conduct their annual Christmas Tree Sale from December 9 until Christmas Eve (or until all the trees are sold). The location is the same as last year: inside the batting cage next to Bragden Field. The easiest way to get there is to park behind Hugh's School. The hours of operation will be 6 to 9 p.m. Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Saturday, and noon to 9 p.m. Sunday.

The selection will include 300 beautiful Scotch Pine and White Pine trees, from six to eight feet in height. Bought direct from a Virginia grower the trees are guaranteed to be fresh, cut only days before their arrival in Greenbelt.

The annual Christmas Tree Sale is the Scouts' only major fundraising effort each year. All of the workers are Greenbelt volunteers — Boy Scouts and parents of Cub Scouts. The proceeds help the Boy Scouts pay for summer camp and fund a variety of Cub Scout activities including summer day camp. Because the Scouts are a charitable organization, half of the selling price is tax deductible as a charitable contribution.

The coordinator for this activity is Bob Spear, 441-1063.

GHI NOTES
The Finance Committee will meet on Tuesday, December 13 at 8 p.m. in the board room.

JOE'S TIP OF THE WEEK
Now that self-service gasoline stations are part of our automotive and truck routine for gasoline and beer and other goodies, under hoods have been unchecked! When was the last time the vital fluids were checked on your vehicle? This is very important for good operation and trouble-free driving. Take a moment to open your hood or stop by. You might be surprised what you'll find. A couple of bird feathers, 1 or 2 quarts low on oil or anti-freeze, or all fluids might be OK! You never know—you could have just saved yourself a trip on the tow truck. Till next week.
