Council Considering Two Bond Issues

by Diane Oberg

The Greenbelt City Council moved a step closer to an early summer bond referendum by introducing an ordinance for a three million dollar bond issue at its April 17 regular meeting. In addition, council, at the suggestion of Councilmember Joseph Isaacs, directed staff to prepare an ordinance for a separate one million dollar bond issue to fund development of Schrom Hills Park. Council will consider introducing this ordinance for first reading at a special meeting on April 25.

At its last meeting, council directed that the bond referendum be held "on or before August 15." However, the city has been notified that the county School Board must make its decision on a school site by July 1, making an August referendum meaningless. Council kept its options open, however, introducing ordinances to hold the referendum on June 27 and July 6. The final decision will be made at the next meeting, when council decides which ordinance to introduce for second reading and final passage.

Isaacs argued that the extra million dollars is needed because the planned phased-in development of the park would leave the needs of the eastern part of the city unmet for too long. He requested that staff seek guidance from the city's financial advisors about Greenbelt's ability to borrow these additional funds.

Councilmember Edward Putens supported Isaac's motion saying it would help settle the question of development of the park. However, Councilmember Antoinette M. Bram expressed shock at the sudden introduction of a bond issue proposal for the park. However, she said that she would support an ordinance for a $500,000 bond issue, if the city's financial advisors approve. Bram contended that the city could then seek grants or rearrange priorities in the capital improvements budget to fund the remainder.

This solution was not acceptable to Isaacs, who argued that council had promised a park to residents of the eastern part of the city for too long. He indicated that he would support the issuance even if it threatened the city's bond rating, saying that there is "nothing sacred" about the current rating.

Councilmember Thomas X. White said that he would not hesitate to support Isaacs' proposal, were it not for the proposed referendum for community center development. He questioned the "ease" with which council had "bandied about" plans for a bond referendum which would exhaust the city's "comfort level for bonded indebtedness for many years."

Another issue was the fate of the North End school building if the community center bond issue is defeated. At the last meeting, Bram, in making a motion for the bond referendum, had included a provision that the school be razed if the referendum were defeated. However, the draft ordinances did not reflect this provision.

White suggested that the school's fate be included as an advisory question on the referendum, while Bram felt that the direction to raze the school was still part of the motion passed. In the end, however, council took no action to resolve this question.

Council, at Putens' request, scheduled a May 8 worksession to discuss the Coakley and Williams report on the renovation of North End or Center School as a community center and to discuss the city's capital improvement needs.

Traffic Study

City Planning and Development Coordinator Celia Wilson prepared traffic studies for use of Center or North End Schools as community centers. She studied the traffic generated by a community center located at either site and concluded that the city's roadways would not be overburdened in either case.

Wilson based her analysis on traffic generated during the peak hour, saying that if the road network could handle peak hour traffic, then it should function adequately during off-peak periods.

The traffic analysis was limited by the lack of accurate traffic counts and accurate traffic generation factors for city community centers. However, Wilson determined, by observation, that all affected roads and intersections operate currently, at worst, at level of service "B," defined as short traffic delays.

The additional traffic generated by a community center at either site, she said, would not cause any intersection to function at less than a "B" level of service.

Ruth Kastner argued that Wilson's study was flawed. Her main concern was that Wilson had based her traffic estimates only on the usable space in the building, excluding non-usable spaces such as hallways and closets. She said that county traffic experts told her that the full floor area, including non-usable space, must be used. However, Wilson said that this is true, if the factors are based on gross floor area. However, she said that she had used factors based on net floor area, so that non-usable spaces should be excluded. Wilson said that she could not use the county procedures because accurate traffic generation factors are not available.

Kastner also disputed staff's emphasis on peak hour traffic over total daily trips. She estimated that a community center would generate up to 1400 trips per day and argued that the citizens must determine which traffic measure is most significant. She argued that off-peak traffic contributes to increased pollution, pedestrian dangers and noise.

Bram doubted that the community center would generate as much traffic as Kastner claimed, although she said it would be great if the center were that successful.

White complained that staff had still not provided the basis for estimates given the News Review for a February 9 article, as council had directed. He said that Kastner's concern should be investigated further, that the city was applying a less rigorous standard than is applied to private developers.

Isaacs and Bram praised Wilson.

Library to Celebrate 50th Anniversary On May 6 with Special Events on Lawn

by Karen Myers

A half century has passed since the Greenbelt Library was established, with a collection housed in Center School. Next weekend the Friends of the Greenbelt Library will host a celebration in honor of the 50th anniversary.

The celebration will take place on the lawn of the library on Saturday, May 6 from 10 a.m. through 4 p.m. Members of the Friends of the Greenbelt Library will be on hand to answer questions and distribute historical pamphlets and commemorative T-shirts. A live jazz band will play tunes from 1939, and printed material from 50 years ago will be displayed. There will be plenty of refreshments.

The library moved to its current building in 1970, according to Nancy Johanson, Greenbelt Library Branch Manager. In its 19 years at the Crescent Road location, the library has seen much growth and many changes. In September 1988, the library renovations began, shortly after Johanson's arrival in July. In an interview with the News Review, Johanson highlighted the new additions and changes to the

by Kathleen McCleary

The Greenbelt Volunteer Fire and Rescue Squad's General Fund Drive is winding down. There are only two weeks left in the squad's largest fundraiser of the year, a citywide campaign to replenish the funds used to replace fire and rescue equipment.

The squad has posted a sign in front of the fire house, placed advertisements in the News Review and left material about the drive at doors. The General Fund Drive may not be fancy, but it has been the mainstay of the squad for years.

"Last year we collected $20,000," said squad President Gene Davis. The money was put toward the purchase of a new safer fire engine that will carry firefighters inside a cab, rather than hanging off the back.

"It's state of the art," Davis said. "No one rides in the back, everyone is enclosed." The new engine will be delivered in late May or June.

This year, the squad has collected approximately $16,000, according to Davis. The money will go into a special Equipment Replacement Account and be used to buy a new ambulance or fire engine within the next two years. "Sixteen thousand dollars doesn't go a long way toward a $200,000 fire engine, but it helps," said Davis. Additional funds are raised throughout the year at squad-sponsored bull roasts, crab feasts, bingo games and other events.

Although Greenbelt's first fire equipment was purchased by the federal government, the Greenbelt Rescue Squad has always been operated and funded by volunteers.

In 1946, Dick Bates, Robert Gray and Warner Steinley bought a nine-year-old Buick ambulance for $1,000. They kept the ambulance in repair and the rescue squad in action with money raised from carnivals, dances and solicitation. When the local fire department became a volunteer organization in 1955, the volunteer fire and rescue squads merged.

The City of Greenbelt donated two fire engines to the new volunteer squad, and the fire house on Crescent Road, built in 1960, was funded in part by the city's sale of Center School to the Prince Georges County Board of Education.

The Greenbelt Volunteer Fire Department and Rescue Squad, through the financial support of local citizens, has made Greenbelt a safer place to live for more than thirty years.

"We appreciate Greenbelt's support in the past and we look forward to their support in the future," Davis said.

"Unfortunately, there have been reports that unauthorized people have been calling Greenbelt residents, requesting donations in the name of the fire department," Davis said. "We do not solicit by phone. Any donations should be mailed to the Greenbelt Volunteer Fire Department, and checks should be made out to the department."

Since the fire department has not authorized any calls, anyone receiving a call asking for money in the name of the General Fund Drive, should call the Greenbelt Police (474-5454).

For more information about the General Fund Drive, call 345-7000. To make a tax-deductible contribution, send a check made out to "Greenbelt Volunteer Fire Department" to P.O. Box 35, Greenbelt, MD 20770.

Greenbelt Branch resulting from this renovation. Johanson said the renovation was part of a system-wide plan of the Prince Georges County Memorial Library System to refurbish all of its libraries. Greenbelt is the second to be renovated.

During the renovations, which were completed in December, the library never once had to alter its normal hours of operation, even though books and other resources had to be shifted several times to accommodate the renovation process.

Visitors to the library will find new carpet, chairs and refinished tables. The renovation also created a glassed-in silent study room which, in addition to desks and chairs, contains the library's collection of newspapers and periodicals. Johanson told the News Review that this silent area is the first of its kind in the Prince-Georges County Library System.

Computers Available

Another new feature is "The Computer Connection," a row of three separate rooms each containing a different type of personal computer. Patrons can make an appointment to use the Apple 2E, the IBM PS2 or the Apple Macintosh. Each PC comes with tutorial software, and a "computer captain" (PC-trained librarian) is almost always on hand to answer questions. Johanson said that the computers are mostly used by adults, but she expects that use by students will pick up in the summer months when school computers are no longer accessible. Johanson

County Council Takes Steps To Transfer Land to City

According to City Manager James K. Giese, a resolution has been introduced by the Prince Georges County Council to declare the junior and senior high school sites surplus and transfer the 71.4 acres of land to the city. The so-called "school board" land lies between Parcels 1 and 2 in the central city.

At its meeting on April 20, the Prince George's Municipal Association approved a motion to support the county council resolution.

George Panagoulis, Greenbelt's First Police Chief, Dies of Heart Attack

George James Panagoulis, 78, Greenbelt's first employee and first Chief of Police died of a heart attack on Wednesday, April 19. He also served as Chief of the Prince Georges County Police Department. He was living in Glenn Dale.

A native of New Hampshire, Mr. Panagoulis was graduated in 1934 from the University of New Hampshire. He came to the Washington area wanting to study medicine at Georgetown University, but after a year he needed a job. His New Hampshire senator helped him become a guide at the new project of Greenbelt, taking visiting dignitaries on tours of the model town then under construction. When more guides were hired, he became Chief of Information and Guide Services.

Hired as a police officer on December 1, 1937 Mr. Panagoulis became the first employee of the Town of Greenbelt. A bachelor, he moved into an apartment on Parkway. When he married Claire Wrenn, they moved to 39-A Ridge Road, where they raised two sons.

"Back in those days," he later wrote, "one of our biggest responsibilities was making sure all the clotheslines were cleared by 4:30. The regulation (was) not too popular with some people . . . (but) we enforced all regulations."

"Anytime there was something special going on, we were there—4th of July annual picnics and fireworks at the lake . . . and the New Year's Eve parties at Center School," he wrote in reminiscence in 1987. "When it snowed, we'd go out to the power lines after dark and turn our cruiser light on, so the sledding could continue (on the big hill in what is now Lakeside where trees had been cleared under the power lines.)"

After Pearl Harbor, Mr. Panagoulis served as Chief Air Raid Warden. He set up an air raid precautions unit, telling people what to do in an alert: keep cool, stay home, put out lights, lie down. He arranged air raid defense classes for citizens, surveyed the town for air raid shelters and located air raid sirens throughout the town.

Mr. Panagoulis officially became the town's first Chief of Police on January 1, 1944. In April 1955 he left to become the fifth chief for the county's police department.

During his 13-year-tenure with Prince Georges County, he doubt-led the strength of the department, hired its first woman officer and, several years later, the first black officers.

Attending night school for three years, Mr. Panagoulis earned his law degree from Georgetown in 1962. In 1967 the International Association of Chiefs of Police, in a study-completed that year, found the Prince Georges Police Department to be "above average" when compared to suburban departments in the southern region of the country and "one of the nations finest." Mr. Panagoulis retired in 1968 and went into the private practice of law.

Mr. Panagoulis is survived by his wife, Claire; two sons, Charles S. of Largo and James R. of Florida; five grandchildren; and two great-grandchildren.

Services were held on Monday, April 23 at Saints Constantine and Helen Greek Orthodox Church in Annapolis; interment was at Resurrection Cemetery in Clinton. The family suggests donations may be made to the American Diabetes Association.

Reconstruction of B-W

Parkway Now Proceeding

Rehabilitation of 19 miles of the Baltimore-Washington Parkway from the District line to Route 1 (Jessup) began in late March. The first phase of the project involves reconstruction of 19 miles of the Parkway from the District line to Route 1 (Jessup). The second phase covers major construction at various Parkway interchanges including the Route 193 (Greenbelt Road) interchange across from the Greenway Shopping Center. The total project is expected to cost about $120 million and should be completed in four to five years. To date, $40 million has been appropriated by Congress.

At ceremonies kicking off the project on March 26, Congressman Steny H. Hoyer recalled that in 1976 "Congresswoman Gladys Spellman gained Congressional approval of funding for a temporary resurfacing of the Parkway, which was riddled with potholes and buckling joints."

Left in question at that time was whether the State of Maryland or the Federal government would assume control of the Parkway. The matter was settled later when Hoyer's amendment passed for the Parkway to remain under the jurisdiction of the Federal government.

Hoyer complimented the Park Service and the Federal Highway Administration for their "sensible construction schedule," which would keep all four lanes of the Parkway in operation during rush hour. "Much of the construction will take place at night," he said.

Construction is underway on 2.4 miles of the Parkway from Kenilworth Avenue to Riverdale Road. The reconstruction of this portion will cost $8.6 million and is expected to be completed in May 1990. The Greenbelt Road/Baltimore-Washington Parkway interchange was designed by Prince Georges County personnel and will be advertised for bids in May. The ramps to and from the northbound Parkway will be shifted to intersect Greenbelt Road roughly from the El Torrito Restaurant.

Bond Issues

(Continued from page one) son's analysis. They argued that the matter had been sufficiently explained. Weidenfeld said that he considers level of service to be the most important criterion in assessing traffic. By that criterion, traffic is not a concern, he said, since level of service B is tolerable for anyone.

Putens supported Weidenfeld's observation that Greenbelt East residents would "give an arm and a leg" to get the level of service on the roadways there that will exist on the roadways near either community center site. Putens also praised the city staff for their "innovative approach" in studying this issue.

Kastner was still not convinced, continuing to argue that the gross floor area should have been used in Wilson's analysis. She asked council not to include Wilson's traffic estimates on the fact sheet being prepared on the community center issue.

School Board Meetings

In a separate petition, presented at the March 20 council meeting, Kastner asked for information about meetings council had had with the county School Board on October 18 and December 20 of last year. Her major concerns were whether these were open to the public and if so, whether proper notice was given, and if not, whether a vote had been taken to close them.

Giese replied that the meetings were called by School Board member Suzanne Plogman and that he was unaware of the board's policy on open meetings. However, he said that the meetings were included in the city's schedule of meetings posted weekly in the Municipal Building.

White questioned whether the

Next to the row of computer rooms, there is now a tutorial room. It is available on a walk-in basis for anyone who needs a quiet place to tutor. The listening booth is also alongside the computer rooms, complete with cassette player and turntable. It is used often for patrons listening to talking books, foreign language tapes or searching for specific pieces of music.

The Tugwell Room, which used to be on the lower level of the library, has been moved upstairs for easier access to library patrons. Named for Rexford Guy Tugwell (1891-1977), United States Resettlement Chief during the FDR administration, the room contains material on the history of Greenbelt as well as information on city planning. The staff of the library would like to see many patrons come in and explore Greenbelt's history through books, newspaper clippings, maps, photos and back issues of the News Review.

Audio-Visual Materials

Who in 1939 would have guessed that the library would one day become the source not only of books, but a vast array of audio-visual materials as well? Patrons can choose from hundreds of music titles ranging from classical to jazz to children's music. Talking books are also becoming more popular as people meetings had been included on the schedule of meetings, but City Clerk Gudrun Mills said that staff had pulled the schedules to verify that they had been included.

are discovering that they can "read" while driving, fixing meals or doing the laundry. Johanson said that people are constantly checking out the library's videotapes. For only one dollar a day, library patrons can borrow those movies that they may have missed in the theater or those that they want to enjoy again.

The Greenbelt library has indeed seen many changes over the past year, yet it continues to offer all of the same services that its patrons have appreciated through the years. Adult book discussions are held once a month, and the children's story-time takes place every Thursday morning. Johanson, a native of Minneapolis who has worked in the Prince Georges County Library System for 18 years, said that the library offers a home-bound service through which materials are taken to people in nursing homes and others unable to get to the library themselves.

Art Gallery Coming

As the library begins its next 50 years of service, Greenbelters can expect many new and exciting changes and additions. The cataloging system, currently on microfiche, will eventually be transferred to computer. And Johanson said that the county library board has recently decided to create an art gallery in the lower level.

Although the library has seen many changes since 1939, one thing remains constant: its dedication to serving the city of Greenbelt. Friends of the Greenbelt Library invite everyone to come out on May 6 to take pride in the Greenbelt Library's service to the community in the past, take advantage of the countless resources it has to offer today and share the excitement of the library's future.

The 10 Most Asked Questions

Regarding Gypsy Moths

1. What does a gypsy moth caterpillar look like?
The newly hatched caterpillar is only $\frac{1}{8}$ " long and mostly black. As it grows to approximately $\frac{3}{4}$ " long, it will develop a light brown band down its back. When it is about $\frac{5}{8}$ " long it has 10 pairs of blue spots down its back. At its largest size, about $2\frac{1}{2}$ " long, it will have 5 pairs of blue spots and 5 pairs of brick red spots down its back.
 2. How do the sticky barrier bands affect the gypsy moth caterpillars? Caterpillars that hatch from egg masses laid below the tree canopy (i.e. on lawn furniture, awnings, sheds, wood piles, etc.) will attempt to crawl up the tree to reach the leaves to eat. If the tree is banded, the small caterpillars will stick to it and die. Larger caterpillars will choose not to cross the barrier and seek other foliage. If the caterpillars hatch from egg masses that are in the tree canopy, they may remain in the tree, therefore the band will not have an effect on them.
 3. Will they eat only oak tree leaves?
No. They prefer oaks, however, they have been known to eat almost any type of leaf if it is made available.
 4. Are the nests in my crabapple tree gypsy moth caterpillars? No. These white, weblike nests house tent caterpillars. They too can defoliate trees. See #7 for spray recommendations.
 5. What is B.t. and will it affect anything else other than gypsy moth caterpillars.
B.t. is a naturally occurring bacteria that if ingested by caterpillars, whether they be gypsy moth, tent or some other type, is fatal. B.t. is not harmful to people, pets, birds, etc.
 6. What factors determine whether or not my area is sprayed? During the summer, female moths lay egg masses. These egg masses are surveyed and monitored by the city's consultant, as well as by State entomologists, to determine what areas are most likely to be infested the following spring. The areas with the highest egg mass counts are sprayed.
 7. What can I spray the caterpillars with in my own yard? Local garden centers carry a variety of EPA recommended and approved products that the homeowner can apply to kill caterpillars. Check the label on these products and follow the instructions carefully.
 8. How do gypsy moth caterpillars travel? Small caterpillars spin silk threads and hang from them until the wind carries them to their next destination - whether it be another tree, the side of a house, etc. This is called "ballooning" and is one way gypsy moths spread. They also crawl from place to place, are carried by vehicles and may even come with new trees or firewood.
 9. Will gypsy moths go away? ...
Not in the near future. They are traveling in a south-west direction, from the New England area, at a rate of approximately 25 miles per year. Once they enter an area, some stay and some move on. The entire population can not be eliminated. It must be controlled. An informed public and cooperation in banding and spraying programs are the best means of control.
 10. Where can I get more information?
There are many sources available, here are just a few:
Maryland Department of Agriculture
Forest Pest Management
50 Harry S. Truman Parkway
Annapolis, MD 21401 (301) 841-5922
University of Maryland
Cooperative Extension Service
6707 Groveton Drive

Upper Marlboro, MD 20772 (301) 952-3072 or call Renee Winsky at the City Offices at 474-8000.
- IMPORTANT NOTICE! It is NOT too late to band your trees. City staff has learned that the barrier bands can and will have an effect on the gypsy moths throughout their caterpillar life-stage. If the bands become covered with debris, other insects or caterpillars, they must be replaced to remain effective.

Herbert Allen, Sr. Dies, Printer of News Review

Herbert A. Allen, 76, died on April 20 at his home in Hyattsville after a long illness.

Mr. Allen was born in Detroit, Michigan. After his marriage to Olive in 1931, they came to the Washington area. He was shop manager for the Prince Georges Post where he was responsible for the first printed edition of the Greenbelt News Review when the paper contracted with the Post for printing services in August 1941. When the Post could no longer print the News Review (then the Co-operator), Mr. Allen formed his own printing business. He and his family members have been responsible for printing the paper since that time. Until two years ago, Allen was personally involved with printing every edition.

Generations of News Review editors have written tributes to Mr. Allen. In "Only One Allen," I. J. Parker wrote of a period of great financial stress when the paper couldn't pay its printing bills, "Allen will always be a hero to me, because of his patience and good humor. There was never a dispute or ill-tempered demand. He printed the newspaper, waited for the money, and the newspaper survived. There have been other editors, but only one Allen."

Former editor Harry Zubkoff wrote in 1967, "... (the Allen family) knew the names of officers and members of local organizations; even more important they knew how to spell those names and corrected many of our mistakes. I must confess though that we always blamed mistakes on Allen, but then the printer's lot is not a happy one, at least in that respect. They carry the weight of the world on their shoulders; after all, if it were not for printers, what would we know about the world around us?"

Current editor Mary Lou Williamson says, "Mr. Allen was a quiet man with a twinkle in his eye who loved working his press—a private man who would gladly have skipped talking with customers if he could have—a man who always apologized when increased business costs forced him to raise what he charged us to print the paper."

A tribute printed in the 50th anniversary edition of the paper put it this way. To editors who have struggled every week to get out the News Review, he was just Allen the printer. No disrespect was intended; it was simply that Allen has been an institution as far as the News Review was concerned. Always helpful in meeting our deadlines, sympathetic to the paper's community causes, and, most important, patient in times of financial straits, Allen the Printer has always held our appreciation.

Mr. Allen was a long-time member of the Hyattsville Seventh-day Adventist Church.

Mr. Allen is survived by his wife Olive of the home; two sons, Herbert Jr., of Warsaw, Va., and Michael E. of Lithia Springs, GA, a daughter Betty Jo Richards of Lanham; 10 grandchildren; and seven great-grandchildren.

The family suggests contributions may be made to the Parkinsonian Society of Greater Washington, 11376 Cherry Hill Rd., Suite 204, Beltsville, MD 20705.

Members of the News Review staff were saddened to learn of the death of Herbert A. Allen, Sr. who printed this newspaper during its entire existence. We offer sympathy to his wife and family.

Greenbelters were shocked to hear of the death of former resident, Matt Vanderzon. A large number of his Greenbelt friends and former neighbors attended the wake at the family home in Virginia and the funeral mass.

The Army reports that Pvt. Raven J. Glenn II has completed an Army administrative course at Ft. Jackson, S.C. Glenn, the son of Raven Glenn of Springhill Drive, graduated from Eleanor Roosevelt in 1987.

Seaman Recruit Brian K. Sluder of Lakecrest Drive has completed recruit training in San Diego. A 1988 graduate of ERHS, he joined the Navy Reserves in November 1988.

And Marine Cpl. Daniel J. Stewart has been promoted to his present rank while serving at Camp Pendleton. Stewart is the son of Janet Stewart of Edmonston Terrace.

Uttam Chand of Hanover Parkway is proud of his grandson Rohit Chand, 13, who recently received his school's Citizenship Award. The award recognizes students who have contributed to the well being of others and to the improvement of the school.

Congratulations are also in order for Specialist John F. McClure. A Black Hawk helicopter crew chief assigned to the 101st Airborne Division of the U.S. Army, in Fort Campbell, Kentucky. He earned an Army Achievement Medal in January, Soldier of the Month at the Brigade level in February (for which he received another Army Commendation Medal), and Soldier of the Quarter in March. John, the son of Virginia Haberman of Windsor Green, attended Roosevelt High School from 1982 through 1986. Virginia and David recently spent several days visiting John and his wife, Anna, in Tennessee where they all celebrated the McClure's first wedding anniversary. Sounds like there was quite a lot to celebrate. Well done, sir!

We hear that Pvt. Brendan N. Kerchner, son of Shirley R. Kerchner of Springhill Terrace, has completed basic training at Fort Dix, N.J.

Marine Pfc. Christopher G. Taylor, son of George W. Taylor of Mandan Road recently reported for duty at Marine Corps Base, Camp Lejeune, N.C.

The children of Greenbriar and Glen Oaks took part in an Easter Egg Hunt on March 25. The Easter Bunny was on hand to begin the hunt, and later distributed candy to all the children. The lucky winners of the "Greenbriar Eggs" were Tina Mooney and Angela Richard. After the hunt, the children played games and did crafts. Due to muddy conditions, the hunt was held in the Terrace Room but nothing dampened the enthusiasm of the hunters.

Residents and guest of Greenbriar and Glen Oaks had a Spring Fling on Friday, March 31, in the Terrace Room. Spring was welcomed with beverages, snacks, and games to puzzle the participants. The door prize was won by Flo Ormond. The evening ended with a rousing game of Trivial Pursuit.

There are some new little members of our community to introduce today. Justin David Hart was born to LuAnne and Kerry Hart on March 19 at Holy Cross Hospital. He weighed 6 lbs, 4 1/2 oz. and is their first child. The Hart family lives on Springhill Terrace.

Keith and Jennifer Ann Zevallos of Ridge Road are celebrating the birth of their first child, Keith Alan Zevallos II. Young master Zevallos arrived at Holy Cross Hospital on April 6, weighing 8 lbs., 14 1/2 ozs. Greenbelt grandparents are Prospero and Anne Zevallos of Lastner Lane. Welcome all!

Greenbelt resident Barbara Vermillion has an interesting adventure ahead of her. She has been selected to be an "All American Girl", one of the cheerleaders for the Washington Diplomats, a professional soccer team and 1988 Soccer League Champions. An aerobics instructor at the Holiday Spa, Barbara will bring her dance and gymnastics skills to the newest area cheerleading squad. Congratulations!

From the military comes word that Army Reserve Private Nyceemeh Bennett has completed basic training at Fort Dix, N.J. She is the daughter of Jean Dennis of Springhill Court.

And Marine Warrant Officer Anthony S. Wilson was recently commissioned to his present rank at the Marine Corps Combat Development Command in Quantico, Virginia. A 1975 graduate of DuVal Senior High School, he is the son of Catherine Terry of Hanover Parkway.

Former Greenbelt Tim Uber was honored by Giant Food recently as the recipient of their Lehrman Community Service Award. Tim has helped numerous charitable organizations in the past but was specially honored for his work in establishing a residence for the nuns and volunteers connected with S.O.M.F. A tireless volunteer, Tim locates salvageable discards and donates them to those in need. His generosity and good works are a shining light to good neighbors everywhere. Hats off to you, sir.

Local Student Does Outstanding Project

by Andrew Farris

John Carroll Elementary School held its annual Science Fair March 16. As a part of its science and mathematics magnet program, first through sixth graders are required to plan, research and present a science project. The project must follow the established scientific method. The students are then judged on their understanding of the scientific method, on their particular problem, and on their oral and written presentation. This year's judges included working scientists from Harry Diamond Labs and NASA and the director of Owens Science Center.

Outstanding projects included those of fifth-graders Kapricia Banks of Greenbelt, Robert Webb of Landover, sixth grader Kristin Pulkinen of Lanham, and Olaf Fabiani of Willow Oaks. Kapricia chose to investigate the conditioning of goldfish because she enjoyed her pet goldfish. She put in long hours and got plenty of help from her family. It was obvious from talking to her and to other students that they had gained a great deal—not just scientific knowledge but poise and pride.

"Seems as though Washington is finally doing something about its crime problem," said Uncle Nemo.

"Uh huh," I agreed. "The authorities have stepped up their war on jay walkers."

"You have to start somewhere," Nemo said. "Can't let Atlanta get ahead of us."

"I would have thought they'd start with the bicycle jockeys," I suggested. Personally I have nothing against pedestrians, although I do wish they'd cross with the lights since I don't particularly wish for one as a hood ornament."

"How come you're so prejudiced about bicycles?" Nemo asked.

"What I'm prejudiced about is their coming after me on the sidewalks," I explained. "Although I'm not crazy about them on the streets of Washington either. I think they must all be color blind - can't tell a red light from a green. In addition, all roads are one way to them, whichever direction they happen to be going."

Goddard to Celebrate Three Decades in Space

Goddard Space Flight Center will be celebrating its 30th birthday in May. During its three decades of existence, Goddard has built and tested more than 40 satellites, has managed approximately 160 different satellites projects for NASA, has launched 171 payload-carrying Delta rockets, and has flown more than 2,500 sounding rockets and 550 scientific balloons from all corners of the earth. Among Goddard's accomplishments are the first weather pictures from space; contributions to Landsat, the system of large-area land surveying satellites used by land planners world wide; and the International Cometary Explorer, the first spacecraft to intercept a comet.

As Goddard enters its fourth decade, it strives to live up to its namesake, Dr. Robert H. Goddard, considered the father of modern rocketry. The center emulates Dr. Goddard's work in both creative science and practical engineering to help lead the world into the future.

In celebration of its birthday, "I'm glad there are no jay bikers in Greenbelt," Uncle Nemo said. "However, we do have a lot of jay birds."

"Lots of blue jays," I agreed. "But they don't do much walking."

"Much you know about it," scoffed Uncle Nemo. "There was one parading on my clothesline yesterday. You should see what he did to my flamingo pink shirt."

"Obviously a bird of better taste than some of my relatives," I suggested. "Maybe you should hang out the pea green one also."

"You better watch where you hang out," advised Uncle Nemo darkly. "No wonder the bikers are after you."

"Well, at least the jay walkers of Washington are learning that crime does not pay!" I suggested.

Uncle Nemo nodded. "I hope that Atlanta is taking notice. I wonder what their blue jays are like. I'll be going to Georgia next week to visit your Aunt Sophronia."

"Don't wear your psychedelic orange shirt," I cautioned.

the center is sponsoring a Community Day on May 6. Midrise Apartments for Sunrise ? GEAC Residents take Dim View

by Mavis Fletcher

At a meeting of the Greenbelt East Advisory Committee on April 6, residents of the eastern part of the city heard Joe Clarke, development partner of Trammel Crow Residential, outline plans for building luxury garden apartments on the property known as the Sunrise tract.

Trammel Crow is the contract purchaser of the land parcel which is owned by Sunrise Development Limited Partnership. This firm was represented by Ronald Cohen, the general managing partner, and James McCaig, who has long been a partner in ownership of the 9.96 acre tract. The land lies at the end of Hanover Drive adjacent to the Beltway and between the Holiday Inn and Greenway Village apartments.

Clarke said that his firm plans to build about 460 or 470 garden apartments in midrise (4-story) elevator buildings above underground parking. He maintained that these one- and two-bedroom luxury apartments would be unlike any apartments now in Greenbelt. Some would have vaulted ceilings and fireplaces. Amenities would include recreational facilities similar to a health club, at least one pool and sophisticated security measures.

He said that the apartments would range in price (in today's dollars) from $650 or $675 a month for a one-bedroom apartment to about $1000 for a two-bedroom with all the luxury options. He estimated construction time as sometime in 1990. In response to a question, he said the development would be aimed at college-educated singles or couples in the 25-36 age bracket with an income in the $30-$60 thousand range, employed within six to eight miles of Greenbelt.

Clarke emphasized the advantages of the site, saying that it was well-located, appropriately zoned, and highly treed. He indicated that Trammel Crow would scale the buildings to the landscape and enable the tenants to live in their own "little forested community." Those present at the meeting, however, questioned how many of the trees could be saved when, as Clarke had stated, only one-third of the parking will be in garages and the rest in parking lots.

Clarke showed drawings of buildings Trammel Crow is constructing in surrounding areas. He said no specific plan has been drawn up for the Sunrise site but that he would like to be invited back to GEAC with such a plan if the concept wins community support.

Residents Reject Residential

The GEAC members and residents at the meeting, however, contended that residential development of the property would exacerbate traffic problems in the neighborhood, overstrain the shopping facilities, and adversely impact city services, such as police protection.

Mark Brey of Windsor Green said that he thought GEAC was supposed to be a "sounding board" for opinions of Greenbelt East residents and charged Clarke with "not liking what you hear." Clarke replied that he heard and appreciated what the residents were saying but pointed out that "that doesn't change the fact that that's the zoning which exists and has existed for 25 years. When I buy a piece of property I'm entitled to enjoy what the public zoning board designated the property to be," he said. (The land has been zoned for high-density residential development since 1960.)

GEAC chairman Robert Zugby intervened to stop the somewhat heated accusations that Clarke was not listening to residents' concerns. Zugby pointed out that Clarke had come to present a plan and it was not GEAC's function to try to change his mind or to get him to build something else. To charges that GEAC's earlier stand had not represented the opinion of the residents, Zugby reminded the speakers that GEAC had split on the question of residential versus commercial and therefore had not taken a stand. He said this meeting was the first step in determining what people really want.

Owner Takes A Stand

An angry Ronald Cohen protested that he was tired of waiting to develop the property. He emphasized that the preference of those present for commercial was, as far as he was concerned, two years too late. He said his preference for commercial development was clearly expressed but "I got no where with it."

He stated that he had wasted $1.85 million in interest costs to carry the land for that period while "I sat down and let you all decide the destiny of my property."

Therefore, he had decided to "go after what I bargained for when I bought the land. I've got a right," he said, "and I'm going to pursue that right."

He said he had gone after the "premier developer of residential" property in the country, who would "do what is best for themselves, which is usually the best for the acceptability of the project in the community."

Cohen warned that if Trammel Crow is "frightened off, you might end up with me as the developer and they are a lot more qualified to determine which tree should and shouldn't be saved. I am a developer and I have substantial projects," in the area, he said, but maintained that residential development is "not my forte."

Residents Apologize

Dorothy Pyles of Greenbriar said that she wanted to apologize personally to Cohen for the Advisory Planning Board and city council which opposed his plans for commercial use of the property. Pyles said she would like to see the parcel developed as a commercial property.

Brey lamented that he had not lived here two years ago when the debate about commercial was going on. "We probably wouldn't be discussing this if I had," he said. "If it is still possible to work with you we would sure like to do so," he urged.

Brey had with him a petition which he said "95% of the residents" are signing. The petition supports commercial rezoning. Brey told the News Review that he strongly supports commercial, because he views it as better for the community, the tax base, the economic health of the city, and as causing less traffic impact than residential development.

Others present asked why they had not been kept informed of the debate between residential and commercial development. After the departure of Cohen and other developer representatives, Mayor Gil Weidenfeld gave a summary of the history of the tract in the last four years. He pointed out that the APB had rejected a plan which proposed building 612,000 square feet of office space and that the council had later nixed a plan calling for half a million square feet. After that, he said, the developer brought nothing back for the council to look at.

Council member Ed Putens and Thomas White were also present at the meeting.

Vote Supports Commercial

GEAC representatives voted unanimously in favor of a motion by Jack Davis of Hunting Ridge which recommended to GEAC's parent boards support for rezoning the Sunrise tract for commercial office use. Members from Greenwood Village, Greenbrook Estates, Greenbriar, Hunting Ridge, and Greenbrook

How Much Commercial ?

While endorsing commercial office use of the Sunrise tract, no one at the Greenbelt East Advisory Committee meeting on April 6 raised the question of how much office space the project should contain.

When representatives of the owners brought proposals for commercial construction before the Advisory Planning Board and the city council more than two years ago, these plans called for 612,000 square feet of office space. The square footage was later lowered to 500,000 square feet, a figure which was also turned down by the city council.

The original plans called for three towers containing 9, 11, and 13 floors and three parking structures of 5, 6, and 7 levels to satisfy the requirements for parking.

Since the 9.96 acre site contains only about 435,000 square feet, the proposed office space, even at the lower level proposed later, would have exceeded the surface area on the site.

City Planning and Development Coordinator Celia Wilson noted at the time that the planned square footage was much higher in relationship to the land surface than in other commercial office developments in the city. For purposes of comparison, the three Maryland Trade Center towers, built on a 24.8-acre site, contain 535,353 square feet combined.

The Advisory Planning Board advised against approving plans for the commercial office buildings because of their massive size and the visual impact of the structures.

Village all voted in support of the motion. No GEAC member from Windsor Green was present. Zugby indicated that an unforeseen emergency had prevented the attendance of a Windsor Green member.

Adopt-A-Tree This Month

Last spring 41 trees were donated as part of the Adopt-A-Tree program. These trees were planted on public property throughout Greenbelt. Since the program began in 1986, over 300 trees have been planted.

This year three areas have been identified as having a special need for donated trees. The first of these areas is "Buddy" Attick Lake Park. There is a need for red maples and sugar maples for use as shade trees. Over the past few years, white dogwood and redbud trees have been planted in scattered groups along the lake path. In only a few years they will be flowering. This year a new spring-flowering, native tree, the shadblow serviceberry (Amelanchier), will be used in addition to the dogwood and redbud.

In Greenbelt East, the second area in need, these same three flowering trees could be used along the edges of Greenbriar Park where it borders on Mandan Road and Hanover Parkway.

In the third area, along Edmonston Road in Springhill Lake, a large number of crabapple trees have died. These trees are being replaced with Aristocrat pears which should do much better in this location. A large number of these trees will be needed to screen the Beltway ramp from view.

Many of the trees are planted each year in public areas that residents find to be in need of trees. If there is a special spot anyone thinks needs a tree or if anyone would like to buy a tree to be planted in the curb strip in front of a home, please contact the city horticulturist at 474-8004. He will assist in selecting the most suitable variety or make certain that the "special spot" is on public property and can be used. The deadline for this year's program is May 1.

8 K Race Results

Cheryl and Daryl Conrad were leaders among the Greenbelters who finished the fourth Annual Prince Georges Running Club 3-kilometer run in Greenbelt Park on March 19. Cheryl had the distinction of being the first female runner finishing in 33:08, 30th position in a field of 75 runners.

Jim Hage, Lanham, two-time winner of the Washington's Birthday Marathon and the 1988 winner of the Marine Corps Marathon, took charge of this race from the beginning, winning easily in 26:55. Dave Webster from Stevensville, Md., a former University of Maryland cross-country runner, finished second in 27:43 followed by PGRC member Richard Fulton in 29:01. The second-place winner among the women was Darcy Strouse, Germantown, Md. in 33:15 only 7 seconds back of Conrad. Other Greenbelter finishers were Daryl Conrad, 22nd in 36:10; Eric Rodkin (16 years) 29th in 38:58; Craig Corbin 53rd in 44:57; and Joe Timer 62nd in 46:53.

All runners received a T-shirt designed by a club member. A bike worth over $200 donated by the Riverdale Bike Shop was given away as a random prize, along with many other random prizes. Any Greenbelters not receiving a prize may contact Larry Noel, 474-9362.

Greenbelt CARES

Judye Hering held the April tutor's workshop on Saturday, April 15. Topics discussed included: fun tips for learning, stress management techniques, test taking techniques, planning a schedule and memory recall.

Tracy Gaines, a counselor with the Second Mile Youth Resources program in Hyattsville, visited the CARES Family Clinic to discuss teenagers and the challenges they present.

Paul Fischetti chaired a Children's Committee meeting of the Human Services Coalition in Greenbelt. Ronnie Ann O'Branovich, a Greenbelt resident, presented the Prince Georges County Hotline Service and the County Wide Alliance for Youth Suicide Prevention. Ronnie has been with the hotline for fourteen years and is the director. The Hotline provides services for child abuse, drug abuse prevention, suicide prevention, the homeless, latch-key youth, the deaf, crisis intervention, a crisis outreach team, and teen discussion groups. On July 1, 1989, they will move into new offices and become a separate entity from the Mental Health Association slated to start in the fall. Maryland will be the first state in the country to set up a statewide hotline for youth suicide prevention.

SCIENCE TREK AT P.G.

Students in 4th-6th grades and their parents get a chance to participate in this year's trek on April 29 from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. at Prince Georges Community College.

Exciting opportunities for hands-on experience in research areas as diverse as paleontology (with dinosaurs), electricity, light, sound and modern forensics are designed to fascinate and entertain. 'Science is fun', according to Dr. Vera Zdravkovich of the college, and chair of the Science Trek Steering Committee.

Students, who must be accompanied by an adult, receive a goodie bag of samples, and information, and lunch is provided for all participants.

Chitwood and Cyclotrons Lead in Marathon, Relay

Dave Chitwood, 38, of Greenbelt finished the 28th Washington's Birthday Marathon in 56th place in 3:49:51 to be the first Greenbelter to finish. The race was held on Sunday, February 19, on the Beltsville Agricultural Research Center roads. Dick Good in 79th place was the only other Greenbelter to finish the race, 4:24:44.

John McGrail, 33, Arlington, Va. who finished among the first three, the last three years, won his first marathon in 2:30:25 by almost seven minutes over Jim O'Keefe, 29, of Baltimore in 2:37:18. Ben Mathews, 51, of Columbia, was the first master finisher in 2:56:22. McGrail surprisingly beat all 44 three-person marathon relay teams. The relay runners were running legs of 9, 8 and 9.2 miles.

For the first time a relay marathon was held at the same time as the regular marathon and proved to be a big success. The Washington Running Club Mad Dogs won the relay in 2:31:36. The Washington Running Club Women Warriors won their section in 2:48:38. The Cyclotrons, a team with at least two Greenbelters, Larry Noel and John Munns with Fred Shuman placed 5th in 2:53:46.

In the women's section of the Marathon Ruth Riemenschneider, 31, of Winchester, Va. won in 3:07:50 over Kathy Stiles of Berryville, Va. in 3:08:54. Lyn Brooks, 40, of Baltimore, was the first master woman in 3:35:15. In all 25 men and women qualified to run in the Boston marathon.

CITY NOTES

The general crew worked on street cleaning. The crew covered the salt pile in the public works yard with a plastic cover and did preventive maintenance on the ice control equipment that will be stored for the summer.

The parks crew installed a drainage field at the Northway fields. They also maintained the ball fields, did routine maintenance on the parks, and cut grass throughout the City.

On Friday, April 21, the general crew built a concrete pad for the recycling center.

In the warm weather thousands of tent caterpillars have emerged throughout the city. Bill Phelan and crew have been hard at work spraying trees in the median strips and curbsides of Boxwood and surrounding areas. Residents are urged to purchase Bt, a bacterial spray, or insecticidal soap to treat trees on their own property. Further information on how to use these sprays to combat these tiny beasts can be obtained from any local nursery. New trees, hopefully not on a caterpillar's menu, have been planted at Greenbelt Lake Park.

The general crew has laid out a new parking lot behind Public Works for their own employees due to the shortage of parking spaces available at the Lake Park in the mild weather. This will benefit employees and citizens as well by allowing more open spaces in the upper lots.

The building crew insulated the pipes in the new boiler room at the Youth Center, then proceeded to install brand new lights and fixtures on the path behind the Library. More new lights have been installed along parts of Hillside Road.

The special details crews are still working on the police gun

NCSL Soccer

The 15 boys on the newly formed 1979 (age 10 and under) NCSL soccer team started their season after only 3 practices together. At the "Golds" first game, in Chantilly, Va., the team received a 2-6 defeat. The second game, played the following day at the Windsor Green home field, ended at a respectable 1-3. In both games the players showed individual talent, but the range. They are building cinder-block facilities to house equipment.

The parks crew laid sod around the swimming pool in anticipation of the opening (only a month away) and mowed many of the common areas throughout the city. Ballfields were also on the agenda of maintenance, since practices have already started for the season.

Down in the auto shop, the mechanics have been repairing the hydraulic system in one of the trash trucks and are still doing bodywork on the police cars.

The building crew repaired vandalized lights at the Center, tennis courts, and the broken windows at North End School. Also, Stephen May completed a basic motor control course.

On March 20, members of the Association of American Geographers traveled to Greenbelt for a presentation and walking tour. The group was participating in a course offered by the University of Maryland on planned communities. Renee Winsky presented a videotape, "Greenbelt, Md.: A Unique American City," answered a number of questions concerning the past, present and future of Greenbelt, and guided a walking tour through old Greenbelt and to the museum. The 30 members that took part in the course were from all over North America.

lack of practice together was evident in missed opportunities.

The third game, against a team that has practiced together for over a year, was a disappointing 1-2 defeat. However, teamwork was showing through individual talents.

On April 16, the "Gold" held their opponents to just one goal. The Gold scored their first goal early in the first period on a blasting shot through the goalie's hand from John Fennell. The second goal came a little later on a high flying kick by Carlos Castro. A breakaway goal early in the second period by the opposition was answered almost immediately by the Gold. The group effort was finalized by left wing Damon Calacino. The fullbacks, Jeff Timer, Jessie O'Reilly and Robbie Artman consistently kept their opponents from getting into scoring position. The 3-1 victory was a well-fought contest in which the whole team played their best.

The Gold's next game will be Sunday, April 23, at 3 p.m. at 3 p.m. at Windsor Green field. Spectators are encouraged to come out and see nonstop action in youth sports.

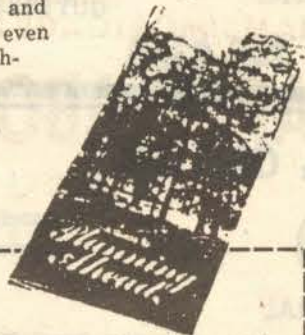

This year's spring soccer season has brought with it two new NCSL teams in the Greenbelt area to join the 1976 Greenbelt Comets in the National Capital Soccer League. Greenbelters born in 1979 and 1980 are joining other experienced players from nearby communities to field these two new teams. All our players anticipate a season of challenge and fun as they take on teams in our metro-area-wide league with its 6,000 players in 400 teams. League play begins in the third grade and carries the players through high school, readying many of them for varsity play in high school and providing a solid background for college soccer too.

JOE'S TIPS OF THE WEEK

Hello Again,

It's warming up outside, so we're going to be using our air conditioners in our vehicles soon. But before you hit that switch, check the system to make sure you'll get fresh, cool air.

First make sure the air conditioning drive belt has proper tension and is free from oil and grease. Also check the belt for rips, tears and dry rot cracks.

Second, take a look at the front of the air condition condenser, which is located at the very front of the vehicle behind the grill area. Make sure this area is free from leaves and any other debris that may block air flow.

Third, check all cooling system components to see if they are intact and antifreeze is properly mixed. The air conditioning system strains the cooling system and will cause the engine to run hotter than usual.

If you have any questions about your air conditioning system or about any other components, just give us a call.

Till next time

Pfc. Steven Keller saw two vehicles chasing each other throughout the Greenway Center parking lot on April 21. When he attempted to stop the vehicles, both left the shopping center and headed west on Greenbelt Road at high speed. Other Greenbelt officers joined in pursuit. Wildlife Sanctuary Needs Gifts, Coupons, Stamps

The Chesapeake Wildlife Sanctuary in Bowie operates a Center dedicated to caring for injured or orphaned wildlife and providing wildlife learning programs to volunteers, student interns and the disabled.

Innovative donation programs provide funds and equipment to maintain the operation of the Center; in particular the Sanctuary collects various types of trading stamps and the coupons from several brands of cigarettes. These coupons and stamps have accumulated to allow some significant acquisitions. As Center Director, Dianne Pearce, remarks, "Who ever imagined that the Sanctuary would be able to get major items (this way), but we have."

The Center encourages donations of property that can be sold, like cars, real estate, or stocks and bonds. It also maintains a wish list of items that it can use in its day-to-day operations, for example; light bulbs, kerosene heaters, gravel, landscaping timbers and baby playpens with mesh sides to hold injured or newborn deer.

Volunteers may join in a variety of activities benefiting the animals of Prince Georges County, including crafts and fundraising, communications, humane education, the neuter and spay program, cruelty investigations, emergency rescue, and animal-rights lobbying.

The Wildlife Center is committed to both saving wildlife and to educating the community about the myriad creatures that live in its own backyard. Further information about the Sanctuary is available from the Director at 390-7010.

An extensive search, using both K-9 and a U.S. Park Police helicopter, failed to locate the suspects. They are described as black males. One is 5 ft., 130 lbs., brown hair and wearing a blue hat and jacket and tennis shoes, a second was 4 ft. 10 in., 120 lbs., brown hair and wearing a gray jacket, blue jeans and tennis shoes.

Pfc. Keller arrested a 40-year-old nonresident man after responding to a report of a forged money order at the Hair Cuttery. Investigation showed the man was wanted by six area police departments for forgery. He is an escapee from the Baltimore City jail. The man was held in lieu of $20,000 bond pending trial.
