Sidney Brown, State DOE, and City Fail To See Eye to Eye on School Bus Sites

by Gerald Gottesman and Elaine Skolnik

Regardless of a deadline from an official of the Maryland Department of the Environment (DOE), Beltway Plaza Developers said they will not submit a sediment control plan for the eastern slope of Beltway Plaza and will, instead, continue efforts to gain ownership of the adjoining county bus lot through a land swap with the Prince Georges County Board of Education. Last spring Plaza developer Sidney Brown had proposed exchanging the Greenbelt Road bus lot for the Monte's miniature golf course acreage he bought on University Boulevard and Metzert Road.

In his November 29 letter, Vincent Berg, Director of Sediment and Storm Water Administration, DOE, told Brown that since Brown's efforts at getting ownership of the bus lot had been exhausted, he had until December 19 to submit to the state agency his plans to "permanently stabilize the slope" and to provide "an estimated time frame for design, local approval and implementation." In addition, Berg said, Brown must take "temporary stabilization measures" for eroded areas of the slope until the permanent solution is implemented.

Berg's directive came after City Manager James K. Giese informed DOE of the Board of Education's decision to declare the "land swap dead."

Berg told the News Review on December 29 that, in response to his directive, Beltway Plaza construction manager Bruce Wolfe informed DOE in a December 13 letter that a preliminary site plan for the new bus lot (University Blvd./Metzert Rd.) is being worked on, along with costs relating to the land swap. The letter also noted, Berg said, the completion of a proposed development concept plan for the Greenbelt Road lot property and plans for regrading and correcting erosion problems on the embankment including retaining walls.

Brown presented plans for the bus lot development to the city staff on December 21. These showed retail space and integration of the bus lot and Beltway Plaza through a multi-level parking garage. According to city Planning and Development Coordinator Celia Wilson, Brown told staff that he is prepared to proceed with the land exchange and hopes to get the city's support.

While Brown says negotiations are continuing, Associate Superintendent for Supporting Services Frank Tracy of the school system says the matter is closed. Tracy told the News Review on December 29 that there had been no further negotiations with Brown.

Berg said that he planned to coordinate a face-to-face meeting with all parties after the new year to clear up the confusion.

The slope, created when the Beltway Plaza Shopping Center was under construction, has been regarded as a problem for many years. It was first cited in 1972 because of erosion and sedimentation problems. Intensive and costly corrective work, including structural and vegetative stabilization of the entire eastern embankment, was eventually accomplished by Brown.

In response to a 1985 citation by the state, Brown proposed negotiating a land swap with the County Board of Education, in which he would get the neighboring bus lot property in exchange for property elsewhere on which to park school buses. Brown believes he cannot solve the erosion problems with the bus lot sitting on top of the slope. He contends that he can properly maintain the land only if he owns and then grades the adjoining property to Beltway Plaza. Brown has been granted various deadline extensions by the state for corrective procedures while he was trying to negotiate the trade.

Staff Position

In the summer of 1989 the school system's staff studied the feasibility of the possible land swap. The board and staff were interested in obtaining a larger, modern school bus lot which Brown promised to develop on the Monte's golf course tract as an "upgraded" bus maintenance and storage facility. However, board chairman Sarah Johnson, in an October 25 letter said "... the deal is dead and I see little chance of further negotiations in this matter." She explained that Brown "had withdrawn his offer" after he was notified "as to the level of improvements that would be part of any 'exchange,' given the marked difference in value of the two sites."

"It's not a dead issue, politics just got in the way," insisted Brown.

"Grading a slope like that won't be maintainable," he said, "unless we grade the slope right into the (bus lot maintenance) building. It simply won't hold; we have to grade properly if we're going to grade."

The Greenbelt city council and the city's Advisory Planning Board (APB) have opposed the land exchange. They said many of their concerns had not been addressed. APB called for an engineering study of the embankment; for a master plan for Beltway Plaza which detailed future development; for no additional development other than parking on the bus lot property without the city's prior approval; and for the developers to enter into covenants with the city which detailed all agreements. APB also recommended that the impact of the transfer on Greenbelt Middle School be evaluated.

Brown thinks he can still convince the Greenbelt city council that moving the county's bus lot would be the wise choice due to the imminent Metro opening. "The subway is opening soon on Cherrywood Road. . . . What's going to happen to Greenbelt Road's traffic? It will be terrible, but especially for the buses. That's why that bus lot must move. It must go—it can never survive with this traffic. No one has zeroed in on that problem."

"I want to put the buses way down University Boulevard, completely shielded in the lot, and down over one mile from the traffic crunch," said Brown.

College Park officials and County Councilman James Heil, who represents College Park, argue against the bus swap. They say the intersection of University Boulevard and Metzert Road cannot handle the additional traffic generated if the county bus lot is relocated on the miniature golf course. They also point out that it is poor land use planning since the property adjacent to the golf course is land that the University of Maryland is utilizing for a research park. The Veterinary Sciences Research Laboratory currently borders the golf course along with the 4-H Center. A veterinarian science complex is under construction.

The Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning staff notes that the traffic Level of Service at the University Blvd./Metzert Rd. intersection is currently designated a "poor" Level E (low speeds, high traffic volume, temporary delays, backups between signals). Level D is the adopted standard in the county as the acceptable minimum level of congestion.

Ten Top Stories of 1989

by Betsy Likowski, Diane Oberg and Pat Scully

In accordance with its annual custom, the Greenbelt News Review has selected the ten top stories of 1989. This year the following have been chosen.

Elementary School

First half of 1989 features protracted arguments over whether county school system should renovate Center School or build new school elsewhere in core of city. School system officials remove from consideration 72-acre surplus school site off Northway after protest by citizens and council. In March school system officials report survey results showing 53 percent of citizens favor construction of a new school on site of old North End Elementary School. Complaints arise however, about survey's distribution and methodology.

City officials hold off approving use of North End site for a new school until citizens approve bond issue to finance community center. Accompanying advisory question shows citizens narrowly favoring Center School over North End as site of facility.

At year's end city and school officials are still working out details of transfer of North End site to school system in exchange for Center School. School officials make some modifications in response to neighbors' concerns over tree loss at new school but additional tree loss may occur if Park and Planning officials require construction of stormwater management pond.

Community Center

Planning for city community center is delayed while location of new elementary school is determined. Although school board survey shows majority of respondents favoring North End site, city grapples with question of whether it can afford Center School. Besides being larger than North End, Center School is historical site requiring special measures for renovation. Citizens are split over whether retention of Center School as a school better retains spirit of original town plan while others fear that if city obtains Center it will sit vacant like North End facility. In June, voters approve $3 million bond issue to finance community center at Center School, although consultants' estimates place renovation cost at $3.1 million to $4.2 million plus inflation and design and management fees. In September, council approves legislation establishing community center advisory committee.

Park Acquisition

In June when city acquires 72 acres of remaining green belt in north end, county officials inform Greenbelters that $1.4 million in state funds are available for purchase of Parcel 1, which city has already moved to acquire through condemnation.

Council also moves to condemn Steiner property as part of Schrom Hills Park.

Parkland acquisition is one of most discussed issues in November council election.

Park Development

Greenbelt voters approve $1 million bond ordinance to fund development of Schrom Hills Park. Park plans developed in series of planning sessions and meetings during 1988 and 1989, are okayed by council. Two issues remain unresolved: whether Schrom wetlands will become a pond or remain untouched and whether ball fields will have lights. Park gets stag statue as first acquisition.

Work begins on cleaning up and rejuvenating lake in "Buddy" Attick Lake Park. Lake level is lowered in September to prepare for dredging of silt and enlarging eastern settling pond.

Council takes first steps to prepare master plan for lake park and master plan encompassing all city parks.

Projects from 1985 Bonds

In July council reviews ways to reduce costs of indoor pool. They learn that pool, previously estimated to cost $2.2 million to $2.7 million dollars, is now expected to cost $3.7 million. Council identifies some savings but is leery of reducing quality of facility, fearing that a cheaper facility will increase maintenance costs and drive away potential customers.

In November city finally takes possession of new police station, originally scheduled for occupation last April. Police hope to move in by January 11.

Sunrise and Other Developments

Council and Coalition of Greenbelt East Communities try to stem tide of high-density residential development planned for apartment-zoned 9.9-acre Sunrise property at end of Hanover Parkway. Early in year Sunrise developers, giving up on commercial office development, negotiate contract with Trammel Crow for proposed 470-unit mid-rise apartment development. When council, Greenbelt East Advisory Committee and County Councilman Richard Castaldi express displeasure, Trammel Crow pulls out leaving Sunrise developers angry. GEAC and Castaldi suggest that commercial development causes fewer traffic and crime problems but would require rezoning of tract and traffic study. At year end site plan for originally planned 467-unit high-rise Sunrise Apartments is approved by county planning board. Developers also apply for building permit to install foundation footing to protect tract's R-10 apartment zoning rights. Approval is contingent upon County Board of Appeals granting variance from lot coverage requirement for underground parking.

Meanwhile, Maryland Trade Center III opens doors, a luxury townhouse development is planned along Hanover Parkway, and "southern gateway to Greenbelt" is to be graced with a 7-Eleven.

Metro

Extension of Metrorail system to city moves closer to reality with official groundbreaking for Greenbelt station in October. Construction is delayed, however, with construction permits not issued finally until late November. At year's end WMATA awaits permits

Metro: No More Delay

On Monday city council will consider whether to request the Corps of Engineers to reopen hearings about the wetlands on the site of the Metro service and inspection yards. Although like many citizens we would like to have seen this facility built on industrial land, rather than on Beltsville Agricultural Research Center property, that decision was made long ago after extensive hearings. Any attempt at this point to reopen the issue will serve no purpose other than to delay construction. Any lengthy delay, such as that needed to condemn additional property, would significantly increase construction costs.

Regardless of our feelings about the worth of the planned site for the yards relative to other possible alternatives, WMATA has reviewed many alternate sites in lengthy reviews and public hearings over many years, rejecting each as impractical, too costly or even more damaging to the environment than the planned site. It is unlikely, especially now that some construction has been done, that any alternate will be approved, even if the review were reopened.

Alterations in track design for the inspection yard recommended by the Army Corps of Engineers will mitigate some of the environmental damage from this facility. At the same time, new wetlands will be created, more than compensating in total acreage for those which would be lost.

Instead, we urge council to direct the city staff to keep a close eye on all construction in and around the Metro property. Metro must be held to account to prevent any unnecessary environmental damage by adhering to or exceeding all regulations pertaining to air and water quality.

In addition, the city must ensure that private developers are held to the same wetlands standards as WMATA. The damaged wetlands and floodplain that WMATA was not permitted to use should be similarly off limits to commercial development.

The environmental impact of development pressures throughout our region, has created a transportation crisis. As more and more vehicles idle in gridlock patterns, polluting the very air we breathe, the completion of this important artery of public transportation seems daily more urgent. We trust that the members of council—like all of us having to choose between alternatives not wholly good or wholly bad—will send a clear message to both Metro planners and the community that the first possible date for completion of Metro is for the greater good.

THANKS

We would like to publicly praise one of Greenbelt's finest organizations. It is the Greenbelt Volunteer Fire Department. Their prompt, courteous and professional talents displayed during our family's recent emergencies are a tribute to their dedication. Our heartfelt thanks go out to each of these men and women volunteers.

Green Ridge Thank You

I would like to publicly thank Louise Swiderski and Jim Casels for making such a lovely New Year's Party for the residents of Green Ridge House. We had everything — games, sing-along, music, dancing, refreshments, noise-makers, hats and plenty of camaraderie. There was to be a band, but it was cancelled because of sickness, but we had Louise and Jim and we could not have wanted more.

Thanks to two great people.

"What's Really at Issue"

The following is a revised version of a letter that was intended for last week's issue. I have been told that the original letter wasn't received in time because the News Review box in the Co-op was picked up earlier than the stated deadline.

Four years after the fact, much ado is being made by the three authors of the "TRUTH TIME" flyer and by the News Review about a distinction between opposition to the bonds and opposition to the Sunrise project itself—a distinction which clearly was not made at the time of the November 4, 1985 action. The 1985 News Review article on this meeting reported Mayor Weidenfeld as saying that it looked as though the (Sunrise) project would go ahead with or without revenue bonds or city opposition." Council woman Bram is also reported as giving arguments against opposing either the bonds or the project, and stating that she "would take no position on the project." This discussion shows that both the bonds and the project were being considered together as two aspects of the same issue. (And, as Councilman White pointed out last week, they really are.) The recognition that council simultaneously withdrew opposition to both the bonds and the project accounts for all the official documents in a completely consistent way.

The minutes of the November 4, 1985 meeting clearly state that council voted to take no position on the project. Shortly after the November 4 meeting, the mayor wrote a letter to the county council stating the withdrawal of opposition to the use of bonds. This letter was addressing specific revenue bond legislation, and contrary to the News Review's inference in its recent article, in no way precluded that council also withdrew opposition to the project. In addition, the mayor wrote a letter on May 14, 1986 to the county executive citing the city's agreement "to not oppose the Sunrise Apartment development."

On the other hand, if the "TRUTH TIME" flyer's claim that council maintained opposition to the project were correct, then the mayor's 1986 letter to the county executive citing lack of opposition to the project would be contradictory to council's official position and could therefore be seen as highly improper. But this is undoubtedly not the case.

Mr. Herling's second letter makes some incorrect assumptions about my position. For example that I did not recognize the "quid pro quo." On the contrary, in my campaign flyer I specifically criticized council's withdrawing its opposition in return for promises. In any case, it appears that Mr. Herling still agrees that council withdrew their opposition to the Sunrise project, and not just to the bonds.

Let's not lose track of what's really at issue in this controversy. It's to decide whether to uphold a basic democratic principle: the integrity of the written record. Should members of our city council be allowed to misstate their position as documented in the official record? To do so would render the official record meaningless. This would make it possible for public officials to rewrite history, seriously undermining their accountability to the public.

If the authors of the "TRUTH TIME" flyer would simply correct their misstatement, this unfortunate matter could be put behind us.

Ruth E. Kastner

Editor's Note: As Ruth Kastner correctly notes, we made our Tuesday-night pickup last week from the Co-op box 30 minutes early because of holiday staff shortage and the extremely cold weather. This was explained to her in a phone call we initiated.

At the Library

for construction of service and inspection yard as Corps of Engineers seeks to resolve various wetlands concerns. A public meeting in December fills council chamber, with some citizens calling for reconsideration of yard site. Meanwhile, traffic on Greenbelt Road and East-West Highway increases by closing of Calvert Road for Metro construction.

Beltway Plaza

Beltway Plaza Developers propose exchange of Greenbelt Road county school bus lot for property on University Boulevard at Metzgerott Road, as a way of correcting longstanding erosion problems on embankment. Council and APB oppose transfer because city concerns are not addressed. College Park officials oppose because University Boulevard intersection is already too congested.

Board of Education says "deal is dead" in October, reiterates in December. However, when State Department of Environment directs Beltway Plaza Developers to submit sediment control plan for embankment by December 19, Sidney Brown says land swap negotiations continue. To get straight story, DOE will coordinate face-to-face meeting of all parties after New Year.

In October, Beltway Plaza developer presents site plan and requests departures from design standards for landscaping, parking and signage. M-NCPPC is requiring site plan approval before issuing additional occupancy permits. Despite council opposition, county approves site plan and construction progresses at Plaza.

Gypsy Moths

Southward-heading invasion of Gypsy moths reaches Greenbelt in big way in 1989. City conducts three-pronged defense: public information campaign, sale of sticky bands to wrap around trees, and aerial spraying with Bt. Some areas in city center are sprayed twice, less infested areas monitored.

Program against gypsy moths continues with city consultants surveying and monitoring moth egg masses this fall and winter.

Drugs

Concern about effect of illegal drug use on community increases during year. County and school officials establish afterschool program at Center School to provide safe after-school activities for students from drug-infested areas. Police department begins offering anti-drug program in area elementary schools. In August, area around Center School become first "drug-free school zone" in state. In October, city kicks off its participation in nationwide "Red Ribbon Week" against drugs with council-Fraternal Order of Police volleyball game.

Drama Portrays Stigma Of Mental Illness

On Sunday, January 7 at 8 p.m., the Center for Community Development invites the public to a performance of the prize winning play "M.I., the Double Scarlet Letter" at Mishkan Torah Congregation, located at the corner of Ridge and Westway. This showcase performance traces the life of Andie, a person recovering from mental illness, who returns home from the hospital to find that home has changed. "M.I." traces Andie's new relationships with her family, friends, herself, and the public. The 30-minute play offers glimpses of what it feels like to be mentally ill, homeless, hospitalized and ostracized. The program will conclude with a panel of experts who will lead a discussion based on the emotions all participants are likely to experience as they watch the play.

The public is invited. There will be no admission charge, although donations will be welcome by the Center. Light refreshments will be served at 7:30 p.m.

For more information, contact Mishkan Torah at 474-4223.

Free Advice Column (Worth Every Penny!) by G. R. Eenbelt, MD

Dear Doc: I have been reading in the papers that there has been an unexplained drop in the frog population of the world. Do you think people are eating too many frog legs or are girls kissing frogs excessively?

Kermit

Dear Kermit: I doubt that either of your reasons is valid, since I haven't seen McFrogburgers at any of the fast food eateries, nor has there been a noticeable increase in the number of princes. Most likely, the ecology being what it is, it just isn't easy being green these days

G.R.E.

Dear Doc: Why didn't Gorby and the President hold their recent conference on Greenbelt Lake instead of at Malta? The water might have been much calmer and it would have been more convenient to the Metro, the Beltway, and the Parkway. Where is Malta, anyway? Sounds like an ice cream fountain item.

Soda Jerk

Dear Jerk: Why don't you look on a map? Doesn't anyone do research anymore? As for your first question, if you kept up with local news, you would know that Greenbelt Lake has been dredged and thus couldn't possibly have floated two battleships. Ask a silly question!

G.R.E.

Dear Doc: Recently I heard that it now costs over $14,000 to send all the items named in "The Twelve Days of Christmas", up $2,000 over last year. Isn't that a higher inflation rate than we have been led to expect?

Frustrated Shopper

Dear Frustrated: Everything is at a higher rate than you would expect. The only rate which seems to have gone down is the population of frogs.

G.J.F.

Dear Doc: Can't you ever say anything nice?

POLICE BLOTTER

Based on Information Released by the Greenbelt Police Department

On December 21, in what police describe as part of an ongoing dispute between a group of Springhill Lake juveniles and a group of juveniles known as the Glenarden Group, a victim at the Springhill Lake Shopping Center was attacked by 10 to 15 individuals wielding baseball bats and sticks. The victim sustained injuries to his hands and head. When police arrived, one of the individuals involved fled in a vehicle and was arrested when he struck a parked vehicle near the intersection of Cherrywood Terrace and Breezewood Drive. The driver, a 15-year-old Glenarden resident, was charged with driving without a license, fleeing and eluding, leaving the scene of an accident and resisting arrest. A 15-year-old New Carrollton resident was also arrested and charged with assault and battery.

Later that same day, police were summoned to the scene of another fight where they found four male juveniles hiding in the basement storage area of an apartment building in Springhill Lake. Two of the youths were arrested, after one was found to possess suspected crack cocaine, while the other possessed drug paraphernalia.

On December 23 a Wheaton man was arrested for disturbing the peace when he refused to leave the scene of a fight involving a large group of people in the 9300 block of Edmonston Road. Instead, the man continued to curse and yell, causing the group to recongregate.

A resident male was incarcerated in lieu of bond following his arrest by Officer Barry Byers on charges of disorderly intoxication, assault and resisting arrest. The individual assaulted the officer when Byers, responding to a complaint of a loud party in the 6200 block of Springhill Court, attempted to arrest the intoxicated suspect for disorderly conduct.

A Virginia man was arrested for a theft in the Bennigan's men's room. An employee had inadvertently left his work apron there, containing a quantity of cash. The suspect, who was seen leaving the men's room when the employee went to recover the apron, had cash in his pocket totaling about the same amount as that stolen. When confronted, he claimed he had withdrawn the cash from the bank and offered proof but was unable to produce it. He later confessed to the theft and was incarcerated in lieu of bond.

A resident male was arrested for assault and malicious destruction of auto following an incident in the 6100 block of Greenbelt Road. The man rammed his truck several times into a van in which his ex-wife was riding. He then forced the van to stop, exited his vehicle and struck the van repeatedly with a golf club, breaking the window and injuring the driver.

The man later reported to the police station at police request and also confessed to knowledge of the theft of his ex-wife's vehicle. As a result, he was charged with auto theft. He was incarcerated in lieu of bond.

Other Incidents

A resident male was arrested for disorderly intoxication and malicious destruction of property in the early hours of December 22 after he kicked the door of a car at Southway and Greenbelt Road. The suspect walked in front of the car after the light turned green. When the driver sounded his horn, the suspect walked around to the side of the car, kicked the door and ordered the occupants to get out.

Stereo speakers were reported stolen from an apartment in the 6000 block of Springhill Drive. A portable stereo unit was stolen from the 9100 block of Edmonston Court.

Vehicle Thefts and Vandalism

A black 1989 GMC Jimmy, D.C. registration 351-078, was reported stolen from the 6000 block of Springhill Drive.

A 1990 blue Ford F-150 Econoline van, Md. registration 054-440, with "Claymore C. Sieck Wholesale Florist" painted on the side, was stolen from the 7500 block of Greenbelt Road. The driver, who was making a delivery, had left the van un-

ATVs - Risky Business

Despite recently signed agreements to restrict the sale of all-terrain vehicles (ATVs) to children under 16, studies by the Public Interest Research Group (PIRG) show that dealerships are not conforming to the agreements. Over half the dealerships were willing to sell an adult-sized ATV to a ten-year old.

ATVs are three and four-wheeled motorized vehicles in-locked and running.

An attempted auto theft was reported at Beltway Plaza. Vandalism incidents were reported in the 8100 block of Lakecrest Drive, the 9100 block of Edmonston Road and the 7400 block of Frankfort Drive. Thefts from autos were reported in the 400 block of Ridge Road, the 7900 block of Mandan Road, the 5900 block of Cherrywood Terrace, the 6400 block of Ivy Lane, and the Buddy Attick Park.

tended for off-road use. In 1988 an average of 25 deaths and 5000 emergency room injuries per month resulted from their use. 40% of the deaths and injuries were to children under 16 and 20% to children under 12. Despite a determination by the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission that children under the age of 16 cannot safely operate adult-sized ATVs, 75% of the dealerships surveyed by PIRG said that it would not be difficult for a 10-year old to learn to ride. In addition, many of the dealerships failed to apprise buyers of available training courses for which financial incentives were offered.

In an attempt to correct the situation, PIRG recommends additional legal restrictions on the sale and use of ATVs, especially relative to youngsters.
