Major Area Zoning Amendments Reach the Final Decision Stage

by Elaine Skolnik

The Prince Georges County Council, sitting as the District Council, will take final action on the Sectional Map Amendment (SMA) proposal for the Langley Park, College Park, Greenbelt planning areas on Tuesday, May 1. When adopted, the SMA will become the new zoning map for these planning areas.

In a committee-of-the-whole work session on April 26, the District Council gave tentative approval for downzoning the 9.9-acre Sunrise property from its existing R-10 high-rise apartment zoning (maximum 48 units per acre) to the lower density R-18-C condominium apartment/townhouse zoning (maximum 20 units per acre). The green light was also given for downzoning the 0.8-acre tract proposed for the 7-Eleven store. Both properties are in Greenbelt East.

The amendment to downzone Sunrise to the R-18-C classification was offered by Prince Georges County councilmember Richard Castaldi following the Greenbelt city council's February 12 recommendation for that downzoning. (In July 1989, city council had asked the Planning Board to rezone Sunrise to the R-18 classification.) An earlier SMA amendment had designated the Sunrise tract R-10 apartments or commercial office (C-O). Therefore, the District Council on May 1 would have to choose among the three zoning classifications.

In testimony given at a District Council hearing in mid-April, Mayor Gil Weidenfeld said that council preferred the R-18-C condominium apartments over the R-10 or C-O because the zone "is compatible with the neighborhood, conforms to the guidelines of the community activity center and reduces density."

Weidenfeld pointed out that 66 percent of the city's housing stock consists of multi-family housing units. He further argued, "We do not need more high-density rental housing. The road network in Greenbelt East is congested with the major intersections operating at 'E' and 'F' levels of service. The increased density associated with R-10 development will only worsen this condition."

In his February 28 letter to the District Council, Russell W. Shipley, attorney for Sunrise Development Limited Partnership, pointed out that the R-18-C zoning preference by the city "came up for the first time at the SMA public hearing on February 13, 1990." Previously, he noted, only the zoning classifications of either R-10 or C-O were "considered appropriate."

Shipley said the Sunrise owners support the R-10 zone and for the past two years have been working toward the development of twin apartment buildings. He said the owners think the "substantial downzoning" would be "illegal, not only in terms of our right to use and develop the property in the R-10 classification, but also because it would be inconsistent with the adopted and approved Master Plan and all the discussions pertinent thereto."

Decades of Opposition

For decades Greenbelt city councils have expressed disapproval of high-rise apartments on the Sunrise tract located next to the Beltway just south of the Holiday Inn. However, the property has been zoned R-10 and has had preliminary subdivision approval since the 1960's. The county, not the city, has zoning powers.

In 1985 the possibility surfaced of constructing a commercial office complex on the Sunrise tract. For several years the property owners, city council and Advisory Planning Board discussed the proposal. However, agreement could not be reached on an acceptable density for the project. Originally the developer sought a 610,000-square-foot complex and was later willing to reduce it to 400,000 square feet.

The city council, however, felt the project was still too massive and would generate severe traffic congestion. Council wanted the developers to scale down their project further. At that point, Sunrise Development Limited Partnership dusted off their plans for high-rise apartments and said they would move ahead to develop in accordance with the tract's existing zoning of R-10.

At the present time, Sunrise

Co-op Station Offers Service but no Gas

The good news is the Co-op's Service Station is open for service; the bad news is that the gas pumps are closed indefinitely. Federal law requires periodic testing of underground storage tanks and lines. Manager Dave Meadows stated: "One of Co-op's three tanks failed its test last Friday. We're working with Environmental Protection Agency and our landlord to determine necessary corrective steps. It may entail replacing all three tanks and installing all new lines." The existing tanks were re-lined about eight years ago.

Co-op chairman Jim Cassels noted: "This tank failure does not present any danger to the community. Gasoline inventories are closely monitored, and Co-op has experienced no losses that would suggest an underground leak." While the pumps remain closed, Co-op's mechanics continue servicing vehicles. Hours of operation are 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. weekdays and 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturdays.

UPDATE

The District Council on May 1 adopted the Sectional Map amendment for Langley Park, College Park and Greenbelt planning area.

The Sunrise property was rezoned from R-10 (high-rise apartments) to R-18-C (medium density condominium apartments).

The 7-Eleven owners were successful in a frantic last-minute effort to place footings in the ground, thus protecting their existing commercial rights. According to county officials a stop-work order has been issued on the 0.8-acre tract until the developers provide certification from an engineer that the footings are properly installed.

Fatal Crash on Parkway

by Mary Lou Williamson

A night out for four young men who worked together in Greenbelt ended in tragedy on the way home early Friday morning, April 27. The four were returning from a Baltimore Orioles game along the Baltimore-Washington Parkway just north of the NASA interchange about midnight when their car crashed, according to U.S. Park Police.

One passenger, William N. Hancock, 29, of 228 Lastner Lane and the driver of the car, were both killed. Martin A. Bikis, 27, of 6112 Breezewood Court, received minor bruises and was not hospitalized. A fourth person in the car was admitted to Prince Georges Hospital with serious injuries, police said.

According to the police report, the driver of the car had "left the right-hand lane and attempted to pass vehicles in that lane by using the right shoulder of the roadway." Police believe the car, a Honda Civic, was "traveling at a high rate of speed when it re-entered" the right lane. The driver then lost control, crossed the left lane "and struck several trees" in the median. According to police, the preliminary investigation shows "the cause of the accident to be alcohol and speeding." Prince Georges County police and fire and rescue units from Greenbelt and Beltsville assisted at the scene of the accident.

Two car-loads of T.G.I. Friday's employees had put together last-minute plans Thursday to see the Orioles game that evening after their shift, said restaurant general manager Jay Rosenthal. "After the game they were coming back here to pick up their cars." Hancock, who had worked at Friday's for the past two years, according to Rosenthal, had come here from Reno, Nevada. Bikis, said Rosenthal, was originally from Ohio.

Earth Day Fair & Activities Drew People Despite Rain

by Betsy Likowski

Mother nature put a damper on the celebration of Earth Day in Greenbelt on Saturday, April 21. But the rainy weather did not stop the fun and many people turned out to join in at the Earth Day fair, "parade", hands-around-the-lake, tree planting, nature walks, and folk dancing.

Fair

The core around which the day's activities revolved was the Earth Day fair. From 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. people wandered through the Youth Center and saw booths, photos, and children's posters. Music was provided by The Skunks and The Earthlings. Literature from national environmentally oriented groups was available but the emphasis was on local groups and action.

People who helped organize Earth Day created displays such as "The Miracle of Styrofoam," disposable diaper facts, and "The Greenbelt Museum of Disposable Products," (trash collected by Greenbelt Lake.)

There were booths from area groups such as the Vegetarian Society of D.C., and the Sierra Club (featuring recycling). Groups closer to home included the newly formed Roosevelt High School Ecology Club and the Goddard Ecology Club. The Goddard Astronomy Club members displayed a telescope made mostly from reused parts. The telescope worked well and the view through it clearly showed individual leaves on trees across Braden field. The local Explorer Post built three of these telescopes. Girl Scout Troop 1411 displayed "Earth Saving Alternatives, such as cedar chips instead of moth balls and safe silver polish.

There were a few groups present at the fair urging political action. One woman circulated a petition supporting city recycling. The newly formed Greenbelt Greens were present as were the Committee to Save the Green Belt, the latter with photos of the Greenbelt Metro site.

The most unusual political action "group" were several children from Hyattsville who urged children to draw posters to send to President Bush. The huge "mail box" was backed by sample posters and a "No Greenbelt Metro" sign. One mother explained the children were concerned about the environment and wanted to do something.

Hands Around the Lake

Mother nature finally stopped the rain for the parade to the lake and the hands-around-the-lake. Around 2:30 p.m. Earth Day celebrants in the Youth Center gathered in front of the building to walk to the lake. The "parade" consisted of several dozen people with banners representing Earth Day and local groups.

When the parade reached the north shore of the lake, people spread out and held hands briefly. See EARTH DAY, page 8

Center School PTA Plans Finance Meeting

Board of Education member Suzanne Plogman and County Council member Richard Castaldi will address a special meeting of the Greenbelt Center School PTA on the subject of school finances. The meeting will be held on Monday, May 7, at 8 p.m. in the Center School media center.

The meeting was arranged by Center School PTA President Robert Zugby to address concerns raised by PTA officers at a recent executive board meeting. Members had been discussing the necessity of raising funds to purchase a new copier for the school, when the discussion broadened to include several serious questions: How are school funds allocated within each school? Is the allocation of funds among different schools—magnet and comprehensive—really equitable? Exactly what is involved in the school and county budget processes? What are the limitations—TRIM, political considerations—on school financing? Is there a role for the local PTA to play in influencing any of these factors?

These questions and others which might be raised by the audience will be addressed by representatives of the school system and the county government. The meeting will be open to all PTA members, parents, and interested citizens.

Census Comes Knocking

The focus of the 1990 census is shifting from a mailing campaign to door-to-door visits. Census takers will be visiting households through at least June 30.

Residents who have received a census form and have not returned it, or have misplaced the form, should wait until a census taker visits them. Those who have not received a census form should call the toll-free assistance hotline (1-800-999-1990) immediately. A census taker will then visit them to collect the necessary information.

Census takers are easily identified by their black brief cases with red, white and blue stripes and the words "1990 Census" on the front. Each census taker will also be wearing a clip-on badge with their name; no photograph appears on the official census taker's identification badge. Residents are encouraged to carefully check the credentials of any census taker.

Craze to Speak To Crime Group

The Springhill Lake Good Neighbor Watch Group will celebrate its ninth anniversary at the Fountain Lodge on May 10 at 7 p.m. Greenbelt Police Chief James R. The watch group was the recipient of the Governor's 1988 Award of Merit for Crime Prevention. The public is invited.

Certificates of Training will go to:

Jean M. Cook, Bruce H. Floyd, Brenda A. Gomache, Scott A. Gomache, Patrick Gormley, Tina Gormley, Stanley Grabia, Sharon Lee Grzesiak, Alice A. Correction

In the April 26 article "Council Hears Recreation Groups Funding Requests," it should have read that the Greenbelt Aquatic Boosters are requesting a total of $4,300 for all the swim team coaches. These include one head summer coach, two or more summer assistant coaches and winter swim program coaches.

GHI Board Will Discuss School Site Plan May 10

At its May 10 regular meeting, the Greenbelt Homes, Inc. board of directors will discuss the issues relating to the new school planned for the North End School property. Several neighboring GHI members have raised questions about the property line as staked out by school system surveyors, which runs through land they have long considered part of their yards.

School architect R. C. Garcia will be present to provide information about the proposed site plan. The meeting will begin at 8 p.m. in the GHI board room.

Increased Assessments Increase Our Taxes

To the Editor,

It is that time of year again (budget time), and here is my (by now annual) letter, showing the influence of increased assessments on tax dollars. I have taken the assessments of our house as the basis for the calculations.

In 1988/89 we received an "increased assessment notice" for the coming three years, showing a total increase in assessed value of over 22% during that period. For that reason, I use 1988/89 as the base year.

For those of you who do not like numbers, let me summarize the table: Last year, we paid over 6% more in city taxes than in 1988/89. This year, we will pay nearly 25% more in city taxes than in 1988/89, (assuming that the proposed budget will be the approved budget). Next year, we will pay 35.5% more in city taxes than in 1988/89, (assuming that the proposed budget will be the approved budget).

For those of you who like numbers, here they are:

	(1)	(2)	(3)	(4)	(5)
88/89	100	1.21	1.21	100
89/90	106.3	1.21	1.29	106.6
90/91	114.3	1.32	1.51	124.8
91/92	122.2	1.34	1.64	135.5

Descriptions of the columns in the above table:

- 1 Fiscal Year
- 2 Assessed value indexed on 1988/9 assessed value
- 3 Tax Rate (proposed for last two fiscal years)
- 4 Tax dollars, taking into account increased assessments. In other words: if for example, your house in 1988/9 was assessed at $50,000, you paid 500 x $1.21. That same house, in 1989/90 is assessed at 1.063 x $50,000 and you pay 1.063 x 500 x $1.21 in taxes, or 500 x $1.28623.
- 5 Tax dollars (column 4) indexed on 1988/9 tax dollars.

Earth Day Video

To the Editor:

I want to thank everyone who helped us videotape the Greenbelt Earth Day activities. We recorded over two hours of exciting action and insightful interviews, and we expect to put a good half-hour program together in the next few weeks.

If you don't see yourself this time, you might appear in one of our upcoming summer specials. We'll let you know when the finished product goes on the air.

Doug Love

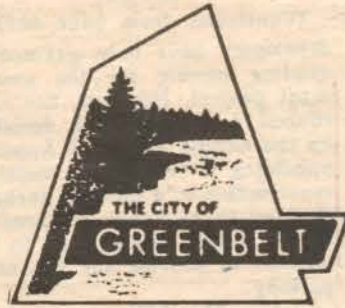

THANKS

Thanks to all those people who helped make the Greenbelt Earth Day Celebration a success despite the wet weather: to Marjorie Donn and Hopi Auerbach who lined up many of the exhibits; Lee Wright who arranged for most of the speakers; the city's recreation department, Cathy Corona, Hank Irving, Joe McNeil and the rest who went way out of their way to make the day possible; the city council, Bill Phelan, Mike McLaughlin who supplied inspiring words, the tree for planting and a safe path to the lake; Doug Love and Konrad Herling who had a busy day videotaping; Colleen Fitzgerald and the Eleanor Roosevelt Ecology Club; the News Review for their great help in promoting the event; Betty Allen for the library display; the merchants who let us put up Terri Urban's beautiful posters; Janet Hartley whose idea it was in the first place; Glory Houck and Susan and Eric Flamino whose help was invaluable; Daniel Montague and the religious organizations who supported us; Bob Holloway for leading the folk dancing; Dr. James Duke who led about 25 people in the rain to observe medicinal wild plants; Beth Novick and the afterschool program; the Homemaker's Club for braving the cold and wet to help clean up the lake; Mary Ann Tipton and Leena Sumitra whose entries won the cleanup contest; all the groups and individuals who took time to put together a phenomenal set of displays at the Youth Center so we could all learn; and I know I'm leaving out a lot of others, but most important, the citizens who came out on a damp day to show their support to the very important work which must be done—

THANKS! Tom Bartlett

Elizabeth Gresham Takes Reins At Greenbelt Middle School

by Margaret A. Hames

Greenbelt Middle School has a new principal. Elizabeth C. Gresham's new job started seven months ago, but her career in the education field began over 24 years ago. Gresham, who got her degree from Virginia Union University, began her career as a teacher in New York. She decided to stay in the education field when she moved to Prince Georges County in 1968.

She got a job as an administrative assistant at High Point High School. Later she became an area teacher specialist/instruction specialist. As a specialist, Gresham served as a liaison between the assistant superintendent and several schools.

"I worked with the school personnel and teachers implementing programs and helping to conduct training services," she said. "I observed classes and helped instruct programs."

This extensive background in administration and in instructional supervision helped Gresham become the Middle School's principal.

She was appointed "acting principal" when Robert McKean became ill.

"It's a challenge, but I really like it." Greenbelt Middle School, which has 520 students enrolled, has a capacity of about 900 seventh and eighth grade students. Currently, 54 percent of the students are black and about 46 percent white. Most of the children come from 15 surrounding communities, the largest being Greenbelt, College Park, Cheverly, Landover and Palmer Park. Only about 13 percent of the students walk to school, with the other 87 percent being bused.

Drugs and violence are not serious problems in Middle School, Gresham said. Although she has not had any drug problems, she is not saying the school is free of drugs.

"I've not had any problems with drugs. I'm not saying we're absolutely drug-free," Gresham said. "In most schools... you're going to have drugs."

Gresham has had to search a few lockers since her job began, but nothing illegal was found in any of the searches. Another problem is fights. Such incidents are not common at the school, but they do occur.

"I think we have a normal amount of fighting," she said. "The kids are trying to establish themselves, it's a normal growing developmental type thing."

The school, which has 29 regular teachers and eight professionals, is not like a junior high school. In junior high, Gresham explained, kids who are together in one class split up and go to different classes when the bell rings.

In the middle school, the teachers are divided into three teams. Six teachers teach only seventh grade, six more teach only eighth grade and a combination team of the creative art teachers (shop, music, art and home economics teachers) teach both grades.

For English, science, math and social studies, students do not split up after a class is over, they simply go to their next class as a whole, Gresham explained. The creative art classes, along with physical education, are an exception, with students from both grades in the same class. Most classes last one mod, or roughly 42 minutes except for the creative art classes, which lasts two mods.

The advantage to this system, Gresham said, is that it is not as structured as elementary school, or as flexible as high school.

"It's really a good transition between elementary and high," she said.

This system also helps teachers pinpoint problems with students, and allows them to try to come up with a solution as a collective. Gresham explained that every day each team of teachers meets for two mods for collaborative planning. They discuss how to get students motivated in the classroom.

"If I'm having a problem with one student," Gresham explained, "I know there's a period of time in the day where I can meet with that kid's academic teachers to discuss a resolution. In the old junior high, you pull the kid's records and have to schedule with the other teachers, either before or after school."

developers have been granted a grading permit for the apartment project. However, the city council has appealed a decision by the County Board of Appeals upholding a variance permitting construction of a parking garage. Without the variance, the density of the project would need to be reduced to provide for adequate parking.

The 7-Eleven

The Adopted Master Plan and SMA proposal recommends rezoning the 0.8-acre tract proposed for the 7-Eleven store from commercial (C-1) to single family residential (R-80) to conform with the zoning recommendations for the remaining 27 acres of the Mark Vogel property. The 7-Eleven site is located northwest of Hanover Parkway and north of Good Luck Road. A building permit has been granted. If any construction begins prior to the District Council's adoption of the SMA, the completed 7-Eleven will then be designated a non-conforming use. In the event the District Council confirms its straw vote on May 1 for single-family development, then the 7-Eleven cannot be built if construction had not begun.

Property owners have six months after approval of the SMA to present testimony before the District Council if they believe there has been a mapping or legal error.

Police Blotter

On April 18 a 12-year-old resident reported being assaulted by a man in the 100 block of Centerway. A suspect has been identified and investigation is continuing.

Responding to a report of a fight at Kangaroo Katie's (Greenway Center) on April 20, Pfc. Maria Arthur arrested one of the participants because he was armed with a knife. The 35-year-old nonresident male was charged with carrying a concealed deadly weapon. He appeared before a District Court Commissioner and was held on $1,000 bond pending trial.

On April 21 Pfc. Carl Schinner arrested a 31-year-old resident male for possession of drug paraphernalia (in this case, a particular kind of pipe) at the Northway ballfield. The man was released on a citation pending trial.

When a patron of Ross Department Store (Greenway Center) left a dressing room on April 24, a man exposed himself. The man is described as white, 20s, 5'10", 180 lbs., sandy brown hair, and wearing black shorts and a black cut-off shirt.

Theft, Etc.

On April 14 a patron of Ross Department Store left her purse there and found it gone when she returned to get it.

On April 20 a resident in the 2 court of Plateau Place reported the theft of lumber from the backyard of a unit.

On April 20 a resident in the 9000 block of Breezewood Terrace reported an attempted breaking and entering. The would-be thief had tampered with the door lock.

On April 22 a resident in the 9100 block of Edmonston Road reported a burglary that had taken place between 11 p.m. and 4 a.m. the preceding night. There were no signs of forced entry. Jewelry and cash were stolen.

On April 23 Officer John Rogers arrested three men who were siphoning gas from a vehicle in the 9100 block of Edmonston Road. The men, ages 26, 30 and 32, were charged with theft, appeared before a District Court Commissioner, and were held on $500 bond pending trial. Only the 26-year-old is a resident.

When an employee of Pic-n-Pay Shoes (Beltway Plaza) went to make a deposit at Equitable Bank (also Beltway Plaza) on April 24, a man came up to his car, started talking to him, demanded money at gunpoint, got it, and fled. The robber is described as black, indeterminate age, 5'11", black hair, wearing an oversized t-shirt and blue jeans.

While a Domino's Pizza man was delivering a pizza in the 7700 block of Hanover Parkway on April 24, he was approached by someone who displayed a handgun and demanded his money. The robber fled after getting the money. Investigation is continuing.

Vehicles

On April 14 Officer Richard Sullivan tried to stop a car for a traffic violation in the area of Greenbelt Road and Kenilworth Avenue. Instead of stopping, the car took off down Kenilworth Avenue, onto I-95, and thence onto the Baltimore-Washington Parkway, southbound. A chase ensued; it ended when the chased car, a stolen 1986 Camry, ran into some trees off the Riverdale Road exit. The people ran away from the car but were quickly apprehended. Four teenagers, three aged 15 and one age 16, were arrested and charged with two counts of theft. The teenager who had been driving was also charged with fleeing and eluding a marked police vehicle, driving without a license, and reckless driving. All of them were released to their parents pending action by Juvenile Services. Only one of the boys is a Greenbelt resident.

On April 18, Pfc. Thomas Moreland stopped a vehicle for a traffic violation in the 6900 block of Hanover Parkway and learned that the license plate displayed was stolen. He then arrested the 25-year-old nonresident male driver. The man appeared before a District Court Commissioner and was held on $500 bond pending trial.

On April 22 a resident in the 6900 block of Hanover Parkway reported the theft of her 1988 Toyota four-runner truck, MD tags 190329M.

On April 23 a resident in the 8000 block of Lakecrest Drive reported the theft of his white 1989 Jeep Cherokee Limited Edition, MD tags IMOF.

On April 24 a 1986 Toyota Camry that had been reported stolen from Beltway Plaza on April 16 was recovered. No arrests were made.

Vandalism to, thefts from, and attempted thefts of autos were reported in the following areas: Beltway Plaza, 6100 block of Breezewood Drive, Greenway Shopping Center, 7900 block of Mandan Road, 9 Court of Parkway, 6200 block of Springhill Ct., 6000 block of Springhill Drive, and Westway at Lakeside Drive.

On April 12 a resident in the 11 court of Parkway was awakened by the sound of someone tampering with her window, so she called the police. Whoever it was left before the police arrived. The police found that several screens were removed from two units, but entry was not gained.

On April 13 Sgt. Doug Sappington responded to a report of domestic violence in the 5900 block of Springhill Lane and found that a man had battered his girlfriend. In the process of arresting the man for battery, Sgt. Sappington found marijuana. The man, a 27-year-old resident, was arrested for possession of a controlled dangerous substance as well. He appeared before a District Court Commissioner and was held on $1,000 bond pending trial.

On April 15 someone complained of a loud party in the 6100 block of Breezewood Court in the middle of the night. Investigation of the complaint resulted in the arrest of three Greenbelt men: one, aged 21, was arrested for possession of an open alcoholic beverage in public; the second, aged 23, was arrested for disorderly conduct and refusing to leave; the third, also aged 23, was arrested for disorderly conduct and creating a disturbance. All three men were released on a citation pending trial.

Responding to a report of domestic violence in the 400 block of Ridge Road on April 15, Cpl. James Parker arrested a resident male for disorderly intoxication.

The man was released on a citation pending trial.

On April 16 Officer Barry Byers arrested two resident juveniles who were attempting to take a hood ornament off a vehicle in the 9100 block of Springhill Lane. Both juveniles, aged 14 and 16, were released to their parents pending action by juvenile services.

Responding to a report of an unwanted guest in the 100 block of Westway on April 16, Pfc. Carl Schinner arrested a nonresident woman for trespassing. The woman was released on a citation pending trial.

A LETTER TO OUR READERS

Dear Readers:

This letter is not so much about Medicine as about Philosophy. We want to discuss with you what we think is the function of a doctor. Many of you think that a doctor's function is to heal, to make sick people well with drugs and surgery. That is only part of our function. More importantly, our job is to educate. It is eminently appropriate that the Latin words PHYSICUS means philosopher, and DOCTOR means teacher..

My "hobby" has always been to write booklets, pamphlets, and brief "blurbs" about various diseases, and aspects of child care. Some people have accused me of doing this to save time, but actually it is to reinforce my verbal explanations, and to give the patient a "hard copy" to take home and read at leisure. It is well known that most patients will forget a doctor's explanations once they step out the door.

For a long time my associate and I have pondered on how we can further educate our patients about important matters of child care, not just individually but as a group. The thought occurred to us that lectures and discussions would be the best way.

For this reason, we would like to offer our services to you, our patients, and to the public at large, to talk about matters of pediatric interest. We are willing to go anywhere — day-care centers, PTA meetings, various service organizations and religious groups, wherever we would be welcome. All this would be free-of-charge.

The following are some suggested topics about which we are extra familiar, and about which we may have lectured before:

- DR. ARONFY — Attention Deficit Disorder (Hyperactivity)
- Children of Divorce
- Family Imbalance (problems within the family)
- DR. KUMAR — Problems of adolescent women

If any of you belong to a group which might be interested in listening to one or both of us hold discussions on any of the above subjects (or others) please give us a call.

ANNUAL MEETING OF GREENBELT ARTS CENTER LOOKS TO FUTURE

by Julie Andrews

At its eleventh annual membership meeting on April 8, members of the Greenbelt Arts Center elected ten members to its board of directors and outlined goals for the coming year.

Reelected to the board were Frank Pearlman, Tom Schreiber, Ken Voigt, and Trix Whitehall. Newcomers William Ayers, Dulcie Baker, Sally Hanna-Jones, Pat Horsman, Linda Schwarten and Christine Ullich brought the board membership up to 18.

"We look forward to this talent on the board," said Renahan, who said earlier that members with management, sales and organization experience were needed to help the arts center meet its goals. The center is looking for liaisons, especially in the business community, and needs a vision of the space in Greenbelt allotted to the performing arts, he said.

Arts Center President Marie Tousignant explained that the arts center decided in December to set up a facilities development fund for the arts area, which may be located in the proposed community center. In addition to an annual budget request of $6,000, the center has asked the city to match funds up to $3,000 for the year, and up to $5,000 next year. These matched funds would be put into savings for facilities development, which currently has $5,000. The money is designated for equipping, decorating and furnishing the future arts facility. Tousignant urged members to attend the public hearings to be held on this issue.

Arts center member Konrad Herling implored the group to envision the type of arts center it wants, so there could be some consensus on goals.

Tousignant said some responsibility for planning the center is held by the Community Center Task Force (CCTF), on which she sits.

Renahan agreed with Herling's sentiments. He raised concern for the needs of a performing arts space. Since requirements for theater and music performances are different, a facility that accommodates both is necessary, he said.

Tousignant said the board of directors is looking at the need for supporting space, including rehearsal areas and dressing rooms. She said she brought these needs up with the task force.

Sally Hanna-Jones, one of the newly elected board members, questioned the small amount of support the arts center will receive from the city.

"Our support from the city has been increasing," said Tousignant.

Arts center treasurer Fann Kash agreed, saying that the city is providing more psychological support than it did in past years, and now encourages fund raising efforts.

Arts center member John Ward suggested that the center obtain funding from private sources to develop the facility. The center will get more from the city if it has a definition of what it wants and a well-developed way of financing its efforts, he said.

Konrad Herling said the center should have a list of needs it can present to the city that is clear, but not too specific. The center should make detailed plans once a space for the arts is available, he said.

Center member Albert Herling said "we would have a cultural desert" without the arts center, and the city has an obligation to support the group and the

Area Reunions Planned

Several area high school classes are currently planning reunions. The Parkdale High School class of '75 will hold its 15th reunion at La Fontaine Bleu on May 11. arts in the community. Tom Renahan reminded the group that the city council has already endorsed the idea of creating a "first class performing arts center" in Greenbelt.

Year's Review

In an opening report, Tousignant reviewed the major arts center events from the past year, including three plays, a music series, and the children's drama workshops. She said the season had been successful, but volunteers are needed to help stage productions.

Tousignant also discussed fund raising efforts. She said the center is thinking about holding an art auction in the fall. Treasurer Fann Kash gave the financial report.

"The treasury is in excellent shape," said Kash, noting that approximately $9,000 is available.

Tousignant informed center members of requests put forth to the Prince Georges Arts Council. These included a desire to establish a series of children's programming, and a request for funds to encourage new playwrights and assist them in producing their works in workshop fashion. The development of these new activities would depend on the outcome of the grant requests, she said.

June 1 Is Deadline For Art Show Entries

Interested artists should submit a maximum of 3 slides or photographs of work done within the last 2 years. Slides or photographs should be labeled with the artist's name, the medium of the piece, and its size. Entries can be sent to Ted Kliman, 58L Crescent Road. Please include a self-addressed, stamped envelope for returning photos. Deadline is June 1 to be considered. There will be a hanging fee for work accepted in the exhibit.

York 8, Lancaster 6: Delightful Evening

by Joanne Tucker

The Greenbelt Arts Center has done it again—given us an entertaining evening with their latest offering, "York 8, Lancaster 6," written by Katherine Dubois. The audience is held in rapt attention trying to figure out which of the sides will score next.

The story is about England's Wars of the Roses between the houses of York and Lancaster in the middle 15th century, as seen through the eyes of the ordinary people. The setting is a peasant hovel, where various parties of the warring factions seek respite. The action is kept interesting by the changing allegiances throughout the play.

Ben Fisher as Harold, and Trix Whitehall, as Edith, are the peasant couple who remain fairly steady throughout the comings and goings at their home, and both turn in admirable performances. Other cast members, various nobility and hangers-on, also perform convincingly. The costumes and props helped add authenticity to the play.

The play is ably directed by Virginia Zanner, assisted by Marie Tousignant. Final performances are this weekend, Friday, May 4, and Saturday, May 5, at 8 p.m., in the comfortable, air conditioned auditorium at Capital College in Beltsville. Plan to attend one of these shows so as not to miss out on the delightfully funny portrayal of this famous period in history.

AFTER SCHOOL PROGRAM CELEBRATES EARTH DAY

Children in Center School's after school program did research and presented the results at Greenbelt's celebration of Earth Day, April 21.

Kelly Baird's second graders did their project on water conservation. The children made a survey to find out the most popular use of water and found out that washing came out on top. They presented this information on a poster which also had on it pictures of the children's favorite water activities.

First graders in Debbie Kendall's class researched the rain forest and each wrote a paragraph about it. They also made rain forest animals out of recycled materials such as egg cartons and grew a miniature rain forest in a plastic jug. Their poster was decorated with hand prints.

Beth Novick's third graders did a project showing how trash could be recycled. They were helped by other classes who picked up trash in the vicinity of the school.

A total of 41 photographs were entered in the Earth Day photography contest and displayed at the Youth Center on Saturday, April 21. The winners of the contest are as follows: best color photo: first place, Rodney Roberts, for his view of a tree with five trunks as seen from the ground through the tree; second place, Cindy Osborne; third place, Stanley Jarrett. For best black and white photo, first place went to Jeffrey Summers; second place, Prospero Zevallos; third place, Anne Zevallos. Stanley Jarrett was given an award for the best action photo, and Emily Crossed had the best photo, in the 14 and under age group.

ERHS Students Enter Bee

Three Greenbelt residents will represent Eleanor Roosevelt High School on May 4 at the Citizen Bee competition in Annapolis.

Jennifer Dikes, Kannappan Narayanan, and Marc Singer will compete against approximately 20 other Maryland high school students, answering questions on American history, geography, economics, politics, culture and current events. The contest is sponsored by the Close Up Foundation of Washington, D.C.

Savings bonds of $750, $500 and $300 will be awarded to the winners, and the top two students will advance to the national convention set for June 17 at the Smithsonian Institution. These students will compete for scholarships of $7,000, $5,000 and $3,000.

EARTH DAY

A swan swam slowly by, gazing curiously at all the people.

Tree Planting

Earlier in the day a couple dozen hardy souls and several local politicians gathered in the pouring rain for the tree planting in front of the swimming pool. Mayor Gil Weidenfeld read the proclamation approved by the city council declaring Earth Day in Greenbelt. County councilman Richard Castaldi announced the pilot project he helped start, collecting newspapers at several Metro stations for recycling which will now be expanded to all the Metro stations.

And State Senator Leo Green reminded all how far the environmental ethic has come in this county. Twenty years ago Earth Day was widely perceived as a celebration by the fringe, now it is seen as mainstream, he said. Then he handed out black-eyed-susan seeds, the state flower. Then they and council members Joe Isaacs and Toni Bram and Miss Greenbelt Alicia Derin placed shovelfuls of soil around a yellowwood tree planted to commemorate Earth Day in Greenbelt.

Walks and Dances

Throughout the morning other events took place to entertain and inform. Folk and Sufi dancing were performed in the Center School Gym.

A bird walk, plant walk and kids walk took place. Twenty-five people took a walk with medicinal plant expert Dr. James Duke. He was entertaining as well as informative, so that despite the pouring rain he kept his audience riveted with stories of cancer cures sought and found in wild plants, folk cure and edible plants.

Police Budget Funds 3 New Officers For this Year and 2 More in 1992

by Pat Scully

The proposed two-year police budget for fiscal year 1991 (FY91) and fiscal year 1992 (FY92) includes funds for three additional police officers and a Police Information Systems Manager and calls for the addition of another communications specialist position. The proposed budget calls for expenditures totalling almost $3.5 million, an 18 percent increase over the FY90 budget (21 percent over current estimated expenditures). FY92 expenditures would increase an additional 8 percent to $3.8 million. These totals do not include debt service payments on the new police station.

City Manager James K. Giese presented the budget at a council work session on April 3 in the multipurpose room of the new police facility, following a tour of the facility conducted by police chief James Craze.

Other significant new expenditures in the proposed budget include an estimated $250,000 for a 25-year pension plan for police officers; $6,000 in fees for examination and review to have the department nationally accredited; $6,000 to participate in Network, which offers training courses for police officers; and the Law Enforcement Television $177,999 in FY91 and $197,100 in FY92 for new equipment, including new and replacement vehicles, mobile radios, a portable generator for the mobile crime lab and a computer ad printer for the information systems manager.

The most significantly lower rental (a drop from $15,500 in budget items are in equipment the FY90 budget to $1,000), since the opening of the new facility made rental of the trailers no longer necessary; program expenses include drug awareness education (DARE), the Labor Day booth and other school programs, $9,500 for FY91 and $9,900 in FY92.

Unfunded items that the police department had requested include seven additional police officers in FY91 and two more in FY92, 50% of a half-time crisis intervention specialist (to be shared with CARES), night differential pay at an additional $1.25 per hour, special frequency radios for a narcotics unit, an alternate light source and additional computer equipment.

Additional Personnel

The three additional officers proposed will be used as a narcotics enforcement unit upon completion of training. The cost for the three, including benefits and equipment, will be $103,700 for FY91 and $168,100 for FY92. "Equipment" includes, in FY92, vehicles under the department's take-home vehicle program.

The information systems manager, a non-police-officer, will supervise the records section and be responsible for implementing a complete records system on the data processing equipment recently purchased. When this system is working, the department will be able to analyze crime statistics, to determine, for instance, what types of crimes occur most often in what neighborhoods or which are increasing or decreasing in frequency. This will allow for better planning and allocation of resources to both respond to crimes and prevent them.

The budget includes no additional funds for the communications specialist position. It would be funded by budget savings resulting from the staffing shortfall, which is primarily caused by employee turnovers.

The police had requested an additional seven officers, to be used to establish a separate traffic division. According to Craze, it was difficult to pick which had a higher priority—traffic or drugs. The police have received requests from virtually every neighborhood in the city for radar traps and additional traffic enforcement.

Pension Plan

The budget will implement council's decision to provide police officers with a 25-year pension plan, when it becomes available through the Maryland State Retirement System. While firm actuarial figures are unavailable, the budget estimates $250,000 for this item. However, the budget also proposes that the city cease its matching contributions to the deferred compensation plan. Currently the city will match up to five percent of salary deferred by officers.

According to Giese, the current policy of matching officers' deferred salary contributions is intended to redress the imbalance, in costs to the city, between the city's retirement plan for other employees and the current police pension system. Because the cost to the city will be much greater under the new 25-year pension system (approximately $6,000 per officer, Giese estimated), the matching contribution should be dropped. He estimate that the savings would be approximately $30,000 next year.

Pat McAndrew and Robert Keller, of the Fraternal Order of Police, welcomed the 25-year pension plan but vehemently opposed ending the city's contribution to the deferred compensation plan. According to McAndrew, under the 25-year pension plan an officer will have an income equivalent to that under the current 30-year plan. The stress and physical danger of police work lead to injury and job burn-out, making a 25-year police career more feasible than 30 years.

However, the pension income will only be about 30 percent of an officer's salary, said McAndrews. Both the pension plan and the deferred salary are necessary to achieve a livable income. The city's matching contribution to the deferred salary is essential for officer's ability to achieve a livable income in retirement; officers have been including that contribution in their long range planning.

Giese disagreed with McAndrew's figures on percent of income achieved under the pension plan, saying he calculated it in the 40 percent range. He maintained that accurate, actuarial figures are not yet available to arrive at definitive dollar amounts for pension incomes or for costs to the city.

Mayor Gil Weidenfeld asked when firm figures would be available. The issue was referred to staff for further research.

Other Costs

Participation in the Law Enforcement Television Network will allow officers to receive training courses broadcast by satellite directly to the station. The annual cost of $6,000 will be offset by reductions in other training courses, such as those offered at the University of Delaware, and in a reduction in the city's police liability insurance coverage.

Among the equipment costs for FY91 were $74,400 for five replacement vehicles and $74,500 for five new take-home vehicles; FY92 vehicle expenses were budgeted at $89,300 for five new take-home vehicles and $44,700 for three new vehicles for new officers. Mobile radios for new vehicles were budgeted at $15,000 for FY91 and $18,400 for FY92.

Other equipment to be purchased included a self-contained breathing apparatus, for use in the crime laboratory when dealing with noxious chemicals, and special bullet-proof vests for undercover officers.

Special Programs

The expansion of the DARE program into the middle school will take up most of the Special Program budget, so that police participation in the Labor Day Festival and the School Safety Patrol would be curtailed. Council members were unhappy with this prospect and urged Craze and Giese to look into other avenues for funding.

Since many non-Greenbelt students attend schools served by the DARE program, council member Antoinette Bram suggested requesting additional funding from the county Board of Education. Weidenfeld said that the probable county response would be that the tax differential covers the non-Greenbelt students. Bram and council member Joseph Isaacs both stated that the request should be made anyway. What about federal and state grants for drug prevention, asked Isaacs and council member Edward Putens.

Craze responded that a grant proposal has been submitted for both state and federal monies. The issue was on the agenda of the next council meeting. In addition, he noted that there has been community support for special programs, but grant funds cannot be relied upon or used as a basis for a budget.

Differing Priorities

On a number of issues, council members questioned whether the budget included funds for the most important items. Putens suggested that council "bite the bullet" and raise taxes enough to fund the hiring of two additional officers in FY91 and FY92. Bram suggested deferring adoption of the 25-year pension plan to fund new officers rather than raising taxes. However, council has expressed its intent to adopt the plan as soon as possible and Bram received no support for her suggestion.

Mayor pro tem Thomas X. White questioned why some equipment that had been requested for the narcotics unit had gone unfunded. Radios that are concealable and operate on a special frequency would permit undercover officers to communicate with the dispatcher without being overheard. He suggested cutting some other item, such as the lab's self-contained breathing apparatus, from the equipment budget to buy the radios.

McAndrew noted that they have been seeking night differential pay as a benefit for 15 years. In his March 30 message to council on the budget, Giese had noted that Prince Georges offers this benefit, along with higher compensation and a 20-year pension plan. Weidenfeld explained that the increase in the tax rate precludes funding of such a large additional expense. Council has been addressing some major, expensive FOP concerns, he pointed out, including take-home vehicles and the 25-year retirement plan.

Other Public Safety Expenses

The work session also touched on fire protection and animal control expenses. The proposed budget for FY91 and FY92 included no significant changes from the current budget in these categories.
