GHI Board Hears Historic District Plan

by Betty Timer

The meeting of Greenbelt Homes Board of Directors on December 20, included discussions of member involvement, historic preservation and leaf-disposal problems. While all board members were present, not one other GHI member was present. The board, frustrated at the lack of attendance, approved a motion to pay for notices of future meetings in the News Review.

Jim Maher, chairman of GHI's Architecture and Environment Committee, reviewed the process started in Dec. 1985 which concluded with Roosevelt Center's being named a Historic District by the Prince Georges County Historic Preservation Commission. Maher's committee now hopes to expand this historic designation to include all of GHI and the surrounding roads, wooded areas and lake park. He told the board that GHI's plan can include or exclude any part of the city. Other adjacent housing developments can also apply to be added to the historic district. Maher stated that this designation would not prohibit development but would make it more difficult. "It keeps the neighborhood as is," stated Maher.

The board wanted to know the advantages, disadvantages, and GHI's loss of control associated with such an expanded historic district. Advantages included protecting property values by preventing incompatible alterations and new development and by preventing the loss, through demolition, of significant buildings and landscapes. District property owners may also be eligible for preservation tax credits on County property taxes of 10% of the cost of approved restoration work and 5% of the cost of compatible new construction. Special renovation See GHI, page 8

Hoax Bomb Disrupts Greenway Shoppers

by Elaine Skolnik

The Safeway in the Greenway Shopping Center and 16 adjacent stores, as well as a portion of the parking lot, were evacuated for more than two hours on January 7 after the supermarket was robbed by a man who left behind a bag that he said contained a bomb. He was armed with a hand gun. After he fled with an undisclosed amount of cash in a silver Subaru, the store manager evacuated the supermarket and called for help.

First on the scene were the Greenbelt Police, who assessed the package, found it to be suspicious and alerted the Prince Georges County Fire Department at 2:40 p.m. Responding were ten technicians from the county's bomb disposal unit, a hazardous materials unit, and a command bus containing telephones, computers, and other sophisticated equipment.

County fire department spokesperson Pete Piringier explained that bomb technicians examined the package and also found it to be suspicious. After taking photographs and x-rays, however, they determined around 5 p.m. that the bag contained a "non-explosive hoax device" that included "a clock and some electronic components." At that time the 16 stores were reopened as was the parking lot.

The Greenbelt Police Department evidence unit then continued the investigation of the robbery. While the police were processing the evidence for approximately an hour, the Safeway remained closed.

The police report that the suspect is a white male in his late 30s or early 40s with strawberry blond to reddish colored hair. He was unshaven, with freckles, and was wearing a dark jacket and blue wrap-around glasses. His car had Maryland tags, though police do not know the tag numbers.

On the scene also throughout the afternoon were approximately 15 officers from fire department and rescue squad units from Greenbelt, Berwyn Heights and West Lanham.

Ten Top Stories of 1990

by Virginia Peauchamp, Betsy Likowski, Diane Oberg, Pat Scully and Mary Lou Williamson

New Police Station and Indoor Pool

City begins to see real benefits of 1985 bond issue as Police Department moves into brand-new, state-of-the-art station in January, leaving behind two green trailers and scenes of patrol officers writing reports in crowded hallways of Municipal Building. New two-story, sand-colored brick building with distinctive Art Deco brown bands and curving glass brick walls, at a cost of $2,250,000, will provide adequate space for years to come. The City holds dedication ceremony Greenbelt Day weekend.

Groundbreaking for natatorium, indoor pool, occurs during Labor Day Festival with actual work following within days. Council approves building contract for $439,000; pool itself will cost $2,892,000. Council raises rates for outdoor pool with an eye toward higher rates needed once new pool opens next year. New pool will be a bright facility with translucent roof and glass window walls, planters filled with tropical plants, whirlpool spa with waterfall, free play pool area and a main pool for competitive swimming, lap swimming and other special uses.

Firefighting Heroes

On February 1 two quick-acting teenagers, Tim Grady and Ted Sacra, use fire extinguishers and a garden hose to fight laundry room fire at 4 Court Laurel Hill Road until fire trucks arrive. These two junior firemen are credited with probably saving three adjacent frame homes in row. Teens are recognized for their courageous action by city and by Greenbelt Homes.

Sunrise

As the county's Sectional Map Amendment hearing nears, debate heightens on the city's position on Sunrise zoning—commercial, residential, high density, low density? The council opts to back a lower-density condominium ownership zoning, which is adopted by the County. Lawsuits and stop-work orders follow. The developer claims work has already begun on the previously approved high-rise apartments. Footings were poured, land was cleared. Not so, declares the County Board of Appeals. The work done fails to meet the state's test for vested interests. Any development on the Sunrise property will have to conform to the C-18 zoning established in the SMA.

Development

Despite the continuing "slippery slope on a grassy knoll" problem, growth continues at Beltway Plaza. Landscaping and repaving work is done as a condition for the occupancy permit for the Sports Authority. Owner Sidney Brown also presents his long-range concept for the plaza to council at a work session, which includes extensive new retail, office and parking space.

Capital Office Park continues to expand, with a new Dominion Bank Branch planned and another high-rise office building ready for occupancy. Plans continue apace for Greenbrook Manor, a luxury townhouse and condominium community planned off of Hanover Parkway. Belle Point, office and residential townhouses, is now renting in the Golden Triangle. And GSA announces plans to build a major courthouse just outside the city on Cherrywood Lane.

Metro

Grading and road construction proceed on station site. Extension of Cherrywood Lane from Springhill Lake over Beltway to Kenilworth Avenue, which will provide vehicle access to station, opens in midsummer. For most of year, Metro, Corps of Engineers and interested citizens scrap over site and design of service and inspection yard and yard's impact on wetlands. While regulatory agencies focus on how to minimize damage to wetlands on yard site, currently part of Beltsville Agricultural Research Center, citizens seek to have yards relocated to already disturbed, privately owned property located south of station. Metro rejects this request, citing increased costs and construction delays. Corps grants Metro permission to disturb a reduced area of wetlands. Metro had argued that changes required to reduce damage would increase noise and decrease train safety.

Environmental Concerns

In June council decides Greenbelt will join county recycling program. However, start up of collection delayed until at least March 1991.

An unintended lake forms in Schrom Hills Park when heavy spring rains back up behind closed pipes. The lake comes within twenty feet of some houses, inundates wetlands and trees before a trench is dug to release the water.

Greenbelt lake suffers from deluge of red silt after heavy spring rainstorms from Belle Point construction.

Parkland: Acquisition and Development

The city finally acquires Parcel 1, after 2½ years of struggle, for 2.2 million. Acquisition costs are to be funded in part by state and federal grants. City boards and citizens begin discussing plans for using Parcel 1, Parcel 2, and the 72 acre former School Board tract.

Senior housing advocates cast an eye towards Parcel 2 as a possible site for a cooperative apartment building before looking elsewhere. A petition is presented to council to make the whole acreage a forest and wildlife preserve. Long-time city plans call for placing ballfields on part of the property.

City staff eyes the garden plots in the 72 acre tract as a possible site for public works storage. Public opposition persuades council to look elsewhere. Plans for the perimeter trail through the area are discussed.

Planning for Schrom Hills Park nears completion. Two controversies remain: whether there will be a pond and whether ballfields will be lighted. In December the city settles with owners of last property needed for park.

Work on Master Plan for "Buddy" Attick Lake Park begins in October. Settling pond at east end of lake is constructed and one at south end planned to help clean up and rejuvenate Greenbelt Lake.

Elementary School

Most of year passes while city, county and school officials attempt to resolve details of transfer of city-owned North End School property to school board, for construction of new elementary school on site, and eventual transfer of Center School to city, once new school is complete.

Mid-summer sees two petition drives: one seeks to block transfer of school while other asks school board to construct a two-story building, rather than planned one-story facility. Additional concerns arise when property boundaries are staked out, with some Laurel Hill residents discovering that property line is well inside their fences. At often heated meeting in July, school officials reject two-story request, refuse city request to ban future development of wooded area and state that, when transferred, property must "be free of any encroachment from third parties."

Near year's end, city, county and school officials finally sign an agreement exchanging properties. Although School Board refuses to make any official concession regarding Laurel Hill fences, city officials negotiate an informal agreement granting a grace period following which fences must be removed.

Roosevelt Center Redevelopment

In announcing hiring of a contractor to reconstruct Centerway, an optimistic council predicts work will be finished by Labor Day. All but 10% of $420,320 cost is to be funded through a Community Development Block Grant. Contract is later extended to include laying of water mains to indoor pool. As summer and then fall wear on, pedestrians still slog through mud and around temporary barriers, drivers find parking and road access disrupted and Roosevelt Center merchants complain of revenue losses. New completion date is set for year's end.

Meanwhile new activities for vacant buildings develop. Theater lease is let to Paul Sanchez, to show 99-cent movies. Theater opens Christmas Day with packed house. Lease to Liu family is pending to operate a Chinese restaurant, despite disappointing failure to receive liquor license because of proximity to school. Owner George Christacos also hopes to build new store in vacant corner at east end of Centerway. Domino's Pizza seeks support for parking waiver to permit carryout operations, as new club for persons with chemical dependencies opens below.

Community Center Planning

Plans to redevelop historic Center School into Community Center move ahead as city appoints architectural firm of Keys Condon Florance to oversee renovation and coordinate usage plans for building. Their architects meet with representatives of organizations and interested citizens, as well as with council-appointed citizen Task Force to gather data and wish list for projected campus-like facility. In meantime commitments of funds for remodeling are made by state legislature ($150,000), by county executive (assistance with asbestos removal), and by Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission ($230,000); these augment $280,800 previously set aside for the projected North End Center. Citizens approved $3,000,000 bond issue last year to renovate building. As year ends, a community workshop is scheduled for early January.

THANKS

To the Editor:

I would like to take this opportunity to thank the wonderful people of Greenbelt who extended so many kindnesses to me and my family in response to the death of my son, Richie.

Losing a child has been devastating. However, the outpouring of love and concern from this community brought a great deal of solace to us. Your cards, letters, calls and prayers were heartwarming, and have helped put us on the path to recovery. Our sincerest thanks.

Woods vs. Ballfields

To the Editor:

You cannot just compare woods to ballfields. You must compare woods to ballfield expenses; woods to additional traffic; woods to parking lots. It's not just ballfields versus the tree people. It's really the town of Greenbelt hosting ballfields for the county vs. a people's annoyance and sickness over growth, growth, growth. It's a busy street vs. a busier street. The ballfields won't just have to deal with the tree people; they will have to reckon with the sweet little old lady who is already fed up with this thing "they" call "progress" closing in around her. They will have to reckon with the mother who is worried enough already about traffic in the streets her children cross.

It's not ballfields versus the tree people. It's finding open existing spaces for our needs, Greenbelters' needs vs. the demolition of a vital habitat. It's finding another solution vs. driving a stake into a great spirit. It's finding another way vs. keeping a history. It's the only night sky to look at becoming more neon. It's persons living along the route to the sports complex, hearing the morning trip to the ball game. It's all of about 300 cars going in and around through Greenbelt. Fifty per cent of those, non-residents. Fifty per cent! We need a sports complex?

For 25 years citizen intervention has fought development in this last vestige. And now there is a cannon aimed at it ready to tame it dead. No matter what you hear about ballfields and woodland preservation in the near future, this fact will remain. This will be a severe assault to this ecosystem, to what we know as a piece of the wild.

Comrades, it's time to be heard again. Time to make another call for the wild. Our chance to speak will be at the January 17 council meeting. Be heard again!

Design Workshop No. 1

The first of two workshops to develop the program for the Community Center planned for Greenbelt Center School will be held Saturday, January 12, in the Center School gymnasium from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The workshop will consist of the presentation of information about the project, the building, the site and adjacent areas, and suggested uses. A number of uses have already been proposed, but new ones may still be offered. This will be followed by open discussion, focusing on how to match the building and other nearby public building space with the suggested uses.

The thoughts and comments from this workshop will assist the architects in developing alternative building programs to be considered at the second workshop to be held in late February or early March.

The public is invited to attend and participate in this process. For more information call Michael McLaughlin or Celia Wilson at the city offices, 474-8000.

Very Interesting To the Editor:

Regarding the city council meeting of December 17, as reported in the December 27 issue of the News Review: Very interesting, the way the city works. Hasn't it been months since the crowd that overflowed the council room was promised a public meeting on the fate of the then recently acquired woods? And wouldn't you suppose that in light of the petition before the city council last year about the pedestrian safety of Northway and the recent worries about the traffic and parking problems resulting from Greenbelt's expansion, that the people in the audience were not just "tree people?"

Wouldn't you suppose that some of those people are concerned about the quality of their neighborhoods, especially given that Greenbelt Road and Hanover Parkway are now traffic disasters and that one rumored ballfield possibility is a baseball complex with 300 more cars coming in and out of Greenbelt every day of the season? Yet time and tax dollars continue to be spent on plans for the Northway baseball fields.

Should we be surprised if several months from now, a hearing is finally held, but by then, of course, plans will have already been in the works for so long that there's nothing that can be done to change them? The council already seems to be pulling that trick by noting that the baseball fields have been part of their plan for a long time. And, in spite of the shady way the city appears to be handling the situation, a council member called a complaining citizen "inflexible."

I'm hoping that something was lost in the reporting of this meeting and that this situation is not as obviously absurd as I read it. If this is not the case, I think it is time that the city grew up a little, stopped playing silly games, and started listening to what its citizens are saying.

Some Misunderstandings

To the Editor:

Judging from the articles in the December 13 and 27 issues of the News Review dealing with the plans for the Northway ballfield complex, there seem to be some misunderstandings which need to be addressed. I can only assume that Mayor Weidenfeld's reference to the "tree people" in fact refers to the Committee to Save the Green Belt, its members, supporters, and the nearly 1500 persons that signed a petition which asks City Council to preserve and protect the last contiguous 184 acres of the original "green belt" as a forest and wildlife preserve. This petition would in no way affect the current uses of the area, which include the existing Northway ballfields, city gardens, and the excellent existing network of trails that currently allows a wide variety of uses (bicycling, hiking, jogging, passive picnicking, guided nature tours offered by the Committee to Save the Green Belt, bird and animal watching, nature and plant study, etc.). Also the rehabilitation of the Hamilton grave site would be encouraged.

In response to Mayor Pro Tem White's assertion at the December 17 City Council meeting, that I am "very inflexible" due to my unwillingness to accept the cutting of 3-5 acres; first of all, I was there to represent 1478 forest preservation petitioners and I had no right to negotiate a compromise without their input. Secondly, there have been no plans to date that have mentioned the clearing of 3-5 acres. The only plans that have been presented were those done by the Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission (MNCPPC) at the request of the Greenbelt Recreation Department under the Aid to Municipalities program. This study included three options, A, B, and C which would require the clearing of 30, 35, and 16 acres, respectively. The Recreation Department supported Option C, 16 acres.

The current Park and Recreation Advisory Board (PRAB) report #12-90, concerning the Northway Fields Planning process, estimates the need for six lighted ballfields in which "the amount of field area needed is only about 10% of the acreage acquired recently by the City (Parcels 1 and 2 plus the 72 acres)". This translates into 18.4 acres of forest that would be cut. This is in contradiction to the report's earlier statement that "much of the land at the Northway site has already been cleared." In fact, the currently cleared area at Northway is not part of the recently acquired land, which is all wooded (except for the City gardens behind GHI). It seems that the PRAB report goes out of its way to appear to be sensitive to woodland preservation and environmental concerns.

Unfortunately, it doesn't mention other important concerns such as the effect of hundreds of cars entering and exiting every couple hours on narrow residential streets as well as what effect six lighted ballfields would have on the surrounding community. Having personally visited MNCPPC's three newly built lighted ballfields on Old Gunpowder Road in Beltsville, and having witnessed the massive amount of light and noise emitted, it is clear to me that six lighted ballfields in one area is totally unrealistic.

Also, if City taxpayers are going to be asked to spend millions of dollars on new ballfield facilities, shouldn't they be equally distributed throughout the City so that the residents of each community have equal access? For example, the Springhill Lake area, which comprises a large portion of the City population has virtually no City ballfields, ZERO.

There is one aspect to the Northway ballfield complex plan that has me baffled. It seems I learned at the December 17 City Council meeting that part of the plan is that once the forest is cut down, bulldozed, regraded and the ballfields built, the trees will simply be replanted. But what about the ecosystem that goes along with the trees?

JOE'S TIPS OF THE WEEK

Hello Again!

All the snow and slush that we've had this week seems to outwear its welcome quick! A couple of common problems that we've dealt with here at our repair facility—when some of the people out there got into their vehicle to go to work in the morning, it seemed to have frozen in place. Yes, the car wouldn't move. Stuck. No wheels were turning, no movement but they could feel the torque of the engine and transmission like it wanted to go! Not uncommon. What happened is that they applied the parking brake the night before. With all the slush and snow around, the brake components servicing the parking brakes froze in the on position and wouldn't release until it thawed a little from the radiant heat given off by the exhaust; a little bit of an inconvenience to say the least if you are punctual ! !

Here are a couple of good ideas to keep in mind when this type of weather is around. First, use common sense when applying your parking brake. Unless you're on a 48.6 degree angle, refrain from applying the parking brake. This will allow free movement of your vehicle in case of a freeze up overnight. Second, use common sense on this idea, if you lock your vehicle and it freezes you won't get in either. Do one of these ideas—don't lock your car or, if you do lock your car and it freezes, use a glycol deicer. If you don't have that, use a little bit of cold tap water, not hot (you don't want to break anything). Last, preset your heater settings the last time you get out of your vehicle for the evening. This eliminates the movement of the hard plastic components when cold, subjecting them to stress flexing and breakage.

loan programs may be available as well. This designation will not prohibit property additions or changes, require new buildings to be built in an Art Deco Style, or raise taxes. Maher said, "We can propose variances and controls to the Preservation Board because of the uniqueness of GHI." He did not anticipate controls being any different than those currently required by the board.

Director Betty Deitch was concerned that this designation could present future problems in some unforeseen way. President Wayne Williams suggested that the board take no official action now on the application, and that GHI request a meeting with City Manager James Giese to discuss this subject. The item was placed on the agenda for a future meeting.

Leaf Disposal Problems

Difficulty with leaf collection and with leaf disposal in GHI was also discussed. A state forester alerted GHI of a severe fire hazard in the wooded area near the intersection of Ridge and Crescent Roads. Staff estimates that in some areas leaf dumping has created piles which are approximately 10 feet deep. Leaves in these deep piles will not compost naturally in a timely manner. General Manager Ronald Colton then stated that annually, GHI seems to be spender, super serial & grappler trash patrol. Williams asked management to come back to the board with a list of possible solutions to these problems.

Colton formally announced that he will be a candidate for the National Co-op Bank Board. He stated his desire to continue the mission of developing co-ops in housing, education, and child care. Director Margaret Hogenen will retire from the Co-op Bank Board at the next election after having completed her two terms of office. The members of the GHI board wished Colton success in his endeavor.

GHI board meetings are held on the second and fourth Thursdays of each month. The next meeting will be January 10.
