Area Residents Voice Concerns About Speed Humps for Northway

by Virginia Beauchamp

A council worksession that could have been labeled "Speed Humps Revisited" took place on Wednesday, April 28 at the Greenbelt Police Station. The issue under discussion was how to control traffic and speeds along Northway between Hillside and Crescent. Before the evening was over, however, the issue had broadened to include the entire neighborhood.

In large part this widening of the topic occurred because of the presence of a large number of residents from the Lakewood subdivision, as well as others from Woodland Way. If traffic on Northway were disrupted by speed humps, they suggested, it would tend to be diverted on to their streets.

In fact, as the Lakewood folks kept talking, council members became concerned about the picture these residents painted about current traffic patterns along Greenhill Road. Although a four-way stop is in place at the intersection of Greenhill with Orange Court, the Lakewooders described how morning rush hour traffic moves at very high speed down the hill from Hillside, with many cars regularly failing to make the stop. Residents near that location stressed that many young children live in the houses immediately in the vicinity.

Not only did they feel that an accident was waiting to happen, but warned that further trouble would be ahead when the new elementary school opens next fall.

"Quite clearly the big picture needs to be looked at," said Mayor Gil Weidenfeld. "It's a problem for the entire area."

Options for Northway

The agenda for the hearing began with a formal presentation by the city's Director of Public Works, Carl Hirsch, on various options for Northway. With the aid of drawings which he projected on a screen, he made clear the distinction between speed bumps and speed humps and also illustrated several solutions to slow down traffic. (See illustration).

What are being talked about as speed humps are 12-foot gradual rising and falling changes in elevation, with the highest point only four inches above the rest of the street, Hirsch said. Based on recommended specifications from experience in other areas, six such humps would be planned for that stretch of Northway. Speed humps do indeed slow traffic between 200 and 300 feet away from them, but further apart than that, vehicles tend to speed up to regain momentum. Thus the humps need to be spaced about 400 to 600 feet apart. Hirsch showed a sketch of where the humps might be located.

Other options looked at were to establish barricades, either movable or permanent—probably just above the intersection with Woodland Way—or to put down rumble strips, establish cul-de-sacs or mid-street traffic islands or institute one-way traffic.

Rumble strips were ruled out almost at once, Hirsch argued, since they had almost no effect on speed. They were used as warnings to drivers to become alert—as on road shoulders or as signals of hazards ahead. When used as a permanent device that people become accustomed to, they actually seem to cause an increase in speed, apparently for the pleasure of the sound effects.

Barricades and Cul-de-Sacs

Movable barricades would require some kind of locking device with a key-type tool that would be used by emergency and service vehicles. The latter would probably have to back a considerable distance up Northway, or possibly use a vacant driveway to turn around. Questions about responsibility for damage and wear-and-tear to driveways would have to be resolved. Delivery vans would be similarly forced to back along the street.

Permanent barricades would be even worse, since emergency vehicles would be slowed considerably. They would also be forced to back out, since turnaround space would be unavailable. Traffic along Woodland Way would inevitably increase since access to Crescent would be blocked from Northway.

Creating a cul-de-sac—in effect a landscaped barrier—either at the intersection with Woodland Way or at Crescent Road would offer many of the same problems as barricades. They would have the further disadvantage of requiring the taking of lawn areas from the properties on either side. A standard cul-de-sac requires 76 feet, by M-NCPPC specifications. On Northway only a 60-foot diameter would be possible. A cul-de-sac at Crescent would decrease the total amount of traffic but not necessarily decrease speed along the length of the street.

Traffic Islands

Traffic islands might be a more attractive solution, since the splitting of the two lanes to make the curve around them would tend to slow traffic. Again lawn space would have to be taken from the city's right-of-way areas on both sides of the islands. A further concern would be the loss of parking spaces—also a consideration with speed humps. The city would maintain and landscape such islands.

Another possible option would be to turn Northway into a one-way street from Crescent up the hill to Hillside, or from the intersection with Woodland Way up the hill. A side effect would be to divert half the traffic to other roadways, creating inconveniences for drivers and residents. Because of the lack of oncoming traffic to look out for, drivers on one-way streets actually tend to increase speed, a report by the city's Director of Planning and Development, Celia Wilson, asserts.

What Speed Problem?

When is a speed problem not a speed problem? According to an April 2 memorandum last year by Greenbelt Police Lt. Daniel P. O'Neil, "I firmly believe that the primary reason for the continuous resurfacing of the topic (of speed control on Northway) is not one of need, but one of a perceived need." Acknowledging that occasional vehicles are seen speeding, his memo goes on to say that these are "the instances which are remembered by the community."

In radar traffic studies which have been carried out, most vehicles travel Northway in either direction at between 23 and 29 miles per hour. A few were tracked in the 30s and one vehicle posted a 41-mile-per-hour speed. The speed limit is 25.

New Proposal for Theatre Adjoining Community Center

by Eileen Peterson

A pie-shaped theater on a hill was proposed at a meeting of Greenbelt's Arts Advisory Committee (AAC) on Tuesday, April 27. Members of the Community Center Task Force were also in attendance.

At the invitation of the AAC, The Greenbelt Arts Center's Theater Development Board presented its concept plan for a performing arts facility at the proposed community center. This design would provide a theater space with excellent acoustics and technical systems and a proscenium stage.

The concept plan was presented by Kim Scheibel McCarl, a Greenbelt architectural designer, who showed her drawings and a small model. The theater would adjoin the back wing of the cur-would provide the city with the best return on its investment because it could be rented by many kinds of groups.

Lobby

The lobby area extension into the green space by virtue of multiple doors in the curved glass outside wall, possibly a brick patio and the inviting shade of the large trees on the site would be a focal point from inside and outside the building, McCarl explained. The sense of space would be enhanced by the merging of inside-outside, and the building rent Center School (see drawing). The building would have a curved, partially glass-enclosed lobby. It was noted that the theater would become the focal point for the entire Roosevelt Center area.

The lobby is designed to encourage socializing and could be used as a separate entity for receptions and other public events. The exterior's elements of Art Deco design would tie the theater aesthetically to the original building.

The theater would have fixed seating facing a permanent proscenium stage. This contrasts sharply with the earlier design proposal by the community center's architects of a "black box" theater with moveable, temporary seats and equipment. McCarl noted that Greenbelt had been conceived as a bowl, with Roosevelt Center in the low area, and her plan replicates this idea, with the theater seating sloping to the stage. There would be about 240 seats.

Tom Renahan, chair of the Theater Development Board, explained that the proposed plan would draw people across the Roosevelt Center area.

An intriguing idea set forth by McCarl is the use of lobby and second floor space above as exhibit areas for varied art works. The plan includes a second level above the lobby from which patrons can view art exhibits on the second floor outside wall above the glassed lobby wall. The curve of that entire area adds sense of movement and expansion to an area which in reality would be only about 20 feet deep.

Seen as an architectural and visual integration of Roosevelt Center, the Facilities Design Committee's building — as envisioned by McCarl—would attract potential donors to what would obviously be a major fundraising endeavor.

Link to Center?

Bill Stratton, chair of the Community Center Task Force, pointed out the need to link the performing arts space with the interior and functions of the rest of the building. There were various concerns expressed about handicapped access and walk- See THEATRE, page 10

A Designated Green Belt

When you think about it, it really is surprising that nothing was ever done while Greenbelt was being planned or for 55 years thereafter to designate this city's green belt, even though it was that planning concept of Ebenezer Howard that gave this community its name.

Although when first built there was a green belt of undeveloped land, it was clearly intended that eventually more homes would be built and that not all land would permanently remain as the green belt. By the time the federal government sold Greenbelt in the early 1950's, little consideration was given to the long-range planning of development of the city. While the original homes were buffered with a green belt sold to the fledgling cooperative, this land was lost to development shortly thereafter because of the economic concerns of the homeowners.

Elsewhere in this issue is a column by former City Manager James K. Giese, now a News Review staffer, in which he proposes a process for formally designating remaining green space around our community as a green belt. Although the designation process and the specific land to be included are subjects for further discussion, we agree with the general concept of his proposal. We urge the City Council to take this proposal under consideration and initiate a designation process.

The time to designate our green belt is long past due. Let's do it now, before more of the remaining green space is developed.

Fees too High

Referring to GHI board candidate Alan Freas' fee-for-service program ad in the April 29 News Review, here's the rest of the story:

Members have documented instances of being charged two to three times the going rates. These members have spoken at board meetings and at the recent MembersFIRST Forum.

Fee-for-service use has fallen below predicted use. People with little cash have no choice on fee-for-service when they are selling. GHI will take the fee out of the selling price. A member in this situation, unemployed, has little choice but to pay an exorbitant fee for GHI to fix a cracked embankment wall—even though the member showed the board a photograph proving the wall was cracked when he moved in.

Many of us may be in that situation someday, facing a fee of $700 or more on top of our other fees.

The board doesn't serve GHI well by defensive reactions to the growing calls for improvement at GHI.

Office to Close Monday Evening

The office of the Greenbelt News Review will be closed Monday evening, May 10. The office will be open for advertising and copy on Monday from 2 to 4 p.m. and Tuesday from 8 to 10 p.m. The deadline for copy and advertising is Tuesday at 10 p.m.

So Right!

You are so right, Virginia Moryadas, in last week's letter to the editor ("Disturbed") comparing the present GHI Board to a boat which needs to be rocked. What is desperately needed are some new boatmen and a corrected compass!

The incumbent candidates appear to me to be charting a dangerous course in supporting a two-year leave of absence for Manager Colton, prospective consultant in the Ukraine, who wants to have his cake and eat it too!

It is also the very same Board majority and Manager who have kept the membership on edge for at least two years for refusing to divulge his salary and, second, for ignoring the directive on staff salaries voted by the membership at the 1992 Annual Meeting.

For those concerned about the present and future of GHI it's time for a change!

Reminder

This is to remind readers of News Review policy with respect to the printing of campaign and election material. In its last edition preceding an election the newspaper will not publish letters to the editor and similar materials that inject for the first time highly controversial issues and charges. Last minute introduction of such material without an opportunity for refutation is considered an unfair campaign practice.

The News Review will not print letters of endorsement.

Letters to the editor and other copy on election issues must be submitted by 9 p.m. Tuesday evening, so as to give the News Review editorial board sufficient time to review content.

Display advertising should be submitted Monday afternoon from 2 to 4 p.m., or if necessary, Tuesday evening from 8 to 10 p.m.

Letters to the Editor

Also Disturbed

I am writing in response to Virginia Moryadas letter in the April 29 News Review headlined 'Disturbed'. While most of her letter was devoted to expressing her views on the merits of a possible leave of absence for Ron Colton, there are two statements in her letter that disturb me:

1. "I am disturbed by the GHI Board of Director's consideration of giving the Manager, Ron Colton, up to a two-year leave of absence."

When I learned of Rons offer and upcoming trip to the Ukraine, I instructed the GHI Staff to place an item on the next Board agenda for discussion - 'Manager's Future Status.' Obviously this was a matter of vital and immediate importance to GHI. In the discussion that ensued during the April 20 Board meeting, a GHI member suggested granting Ron a leave of absence. Subsequently, a member of the Board moved to grant such a leave of absence. The motion was seconded and was then on the floor, and discussion continued.

I simply cannot understand why Mrs. Moryadas would imply that the Board somehow acted improperly by discussing this subject, and by considering a motion on the floor, both of which are in complete accordance with Robert's Rules of Order and the Board's long-standing procedures!

2. "This final decision will be made at the Board meeting on Thursday, May 13."

During the discussion on April 20, two Board members invoked a bylaws provision that says "... no item of business shall be finally acted on at a meeting at

Trails Chipped

On Sunday, May 2, an event occurred which symbolizes, for me, the unique opportunities that Greenbelt, and GHI in particular, offers. Members of the GHI woodlands committee and members of the community gathered in the woods bounded by Hillside Road, Research Road, Ridge Road, and Laurel Hill Road to rehabilitate the trail system that connects the Northway Stream Park to Ridge Road. Working together, people with no particular skill other than enthusiasm accomplished what seemed a monumental task.

We surfaced the three major trunks of the trail (the fourth being in good shape already) with wood chips, we lined the downhill parts of the trails with logs to retard erosion, we tiled the stream bed under the new bridge (built by GHI; I'm sure we would gladly have built the bridge, too). It took us about three or four hours.

The trail is magnificent. The cost was miniscule. That is what a cooperative ought to be about: sharing work as well as costs. Come and walk on the results.

which it is first introduced if at least two directors of the Corporation request that final action be postponed until the next meeting."

I see nothing in this that mandates final action at the next meeting. Whether or not any action will be taken on May 13 remains to be seen. As I write this, it is still possible that Ron will announce that he will not accept the offer in which case the issue would be moot.

If this issue remains on the agenda for May 13, I too encourage members to attend and make their views on the merits of the issue known to the Board.

An Opinion

Time to Designate the Green Belt

by James Giese

Because it was never formally defined and restricted as to land use, much of the city's green belt has been lost to development. Yet large areas of land still remain suitable for designation as this city's green belt. Although what I am proposing should have been done a long time ago, it is still possible for the city, the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission and others to formally name and define Greenbelt's green belt.

Our City took its name from an important element of Ebenezer Howard's concept for planned garden cities, a concept followed in the original planning and development of Greenbelt. According to Howard, the ideal garden city would be surrounded by a belt of green space—that is, land not developed with worker houses and factories but kept in a rural state. For Howard, in an England of farms and estates, this meant that the belt of green would be agricultural land. In practice, however, green belts developed in other places have been used as park land, to maintain open space, and to preserve forests and other natural features, as well as for agricultural purposes.

Green Belt Lost

When Greenbelt was developed by the Federal government, sufficient land was acquired to provide an extensive green belt for the community. However, the planners focused on the initial development plans and failed to clearly define the long-range plans for the city. Our green belt was never clearly defined.

After World War II, a more conservative Federal government became interested only in selling off and privatizing its planning experiment. Still, it made available to the housing cooperative which purchased most of the original homes large tracts of undeveloped land surrounding those homes.

Unfortunately the majority of the residents of that time, many of whom were stretching their financial resources to raise families, obtain educations and buy their homes, looked at this land not as preserved open space, but as an unnecessary tax burden which could be sold for profit. Consequently, that green belt was sold to land developers.

Some Green Belt Remains

Now, most of the city is developed. It no longer is possible to surround the city with a green belt. Still, large tracts of undeveloped land remain along the city's perimeter. They are suitable and should be designated as Greenbelt's green belt.

Which lands? I would suggest the following as candidates for consideration.

To our north, outside the city's limits, lies the largest tract—the Beltsville Agricultural Research Center (BARC). Over the years, BARC's size has dwindled as its land has been converted to other federal and governmental uses. Adjacent to Greenbelt, BARC property has been transferred to the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) for the Goddard Space Flight Center, to the Department of Justice for the new Southern Maryland District Court facility and to the Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority (WMATA) for a Metrorail terminal yard. However, large areas of wooded land, wetlands, and land used for agricultural experimentation still remain. At a minimum, all BARC land south of Sunnyside Road between the railroad tracks and Edmonston Road, and all BARC land south of Beaverdam Road between Edmonston Road and Soil Conservation Road, should be designated as green belt for Greenbelt.

Greenbelt Park

To the south within the city limits is the 1,100-acre Greenbelt Park of the National Park Service. Since the park was once seriously considered to be traded to a private land developer for land the Park Service wanted elsewhere, and since a small piece was actually exchanged for other land, a federal park designation is not a guarantee that the land will always remain so. Therefore, the national park should be designated as green belt for Greenbelt and subject to the restrictions on development which that designation should entail.

Eastern and Western Boundaries

Next to the city's eastern boundary north of Greenbelt Road, there is a buffer strip for the Goddard Space Flight Center. Its purpose is to buffer the Center from its noisy neighbors. Nevertheless, the buffer strip functions equally well to buffer the Center for Greenbelt. Although outside the city limits, that buffer strip should be designated as green belt for Greenbelt.

South of Greenbelt Road along the city's eastern boundary is a PEPCO right-of-way for a power transmission line. It isn't much of a green belt, but it's the best we've got in this area. It should be made a part of the green belt.

To the west, BARC land proposed for the green belt extends along the city's boundary to the Beltway and consists primarily of the Indian Creek flood plain. This flood plain and wetland area extends south of the Beltway on land owned by WMATA and by private interests. Because it is flood plain, development of this land is restricted. It, too, should be designated as green belt for Greenbelt.

Parcels 1 and 2

Lastly, Parcels 1 and 2, once owned by GHI as part of its green belt, but sold off, have now been reacquired by the city. They should be designated as green belt, as well as the old city landfill and the surplus BARC property previously acquired by the city which also are located in that area.

Define Land Use

The designation of the green belt must entail more than just imposing the name upon the land. How the land may be used must be defined clearly. Permitted uses should be consistent with the present uses of the land for open space, parks, agricultural (including experimental agricultural) uses, buffering and nature preservation. Buildings auxiliary to such uses and necessary roads and parking areas should be permitted, but strictly limited. Such use restrictions must be carefully crafted to assure that while preserving the character of the green belt, the needs of the owners of the properties for their current uses would be recognized.

Who Designates?

I propose that the Greenbelt City Council should designate our green belt as a first step towards formally recognizing it. While this would have no legal effect on controlling the use of the land involved, it would bring attention to the idea.

It is important that two regional planning agencies also designate the green belt. The first of these is the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission (MNCPPC), the official planning agency for this county. The green belt designation could be done by amending the area plan for Greenbelt and vicinity. Such an action also would require the concurrence of the Prince Georges District Council (another name for the County Council).

However, the county has little control over the use of federal land. While strong control is lacking by any single agency, the other area planning agency which I believe should be asked to designate our green belt is directly responsible for the review of federal development plans in the Washington region. It is the National Capital Planning Commission (NCPC). That commission's recognition of the green belt would be a useful first step in the recognition of the concept by those federal agencies which own land within the green belt. Such recognition would encourage their imposing their own restrictions on how their land is used.

Each of these agencies, Agriculture, Interior and National Aeronautics and Space Administration, are required to develop and maintain their own master plans for their facilities. The master plans for BARC, Goddard and Greenbelt Park should recognize the suggested green belt designation. I don't believe that there is anything in this proposal that is contrary to the planning objectives of these agencies.

Other Actions

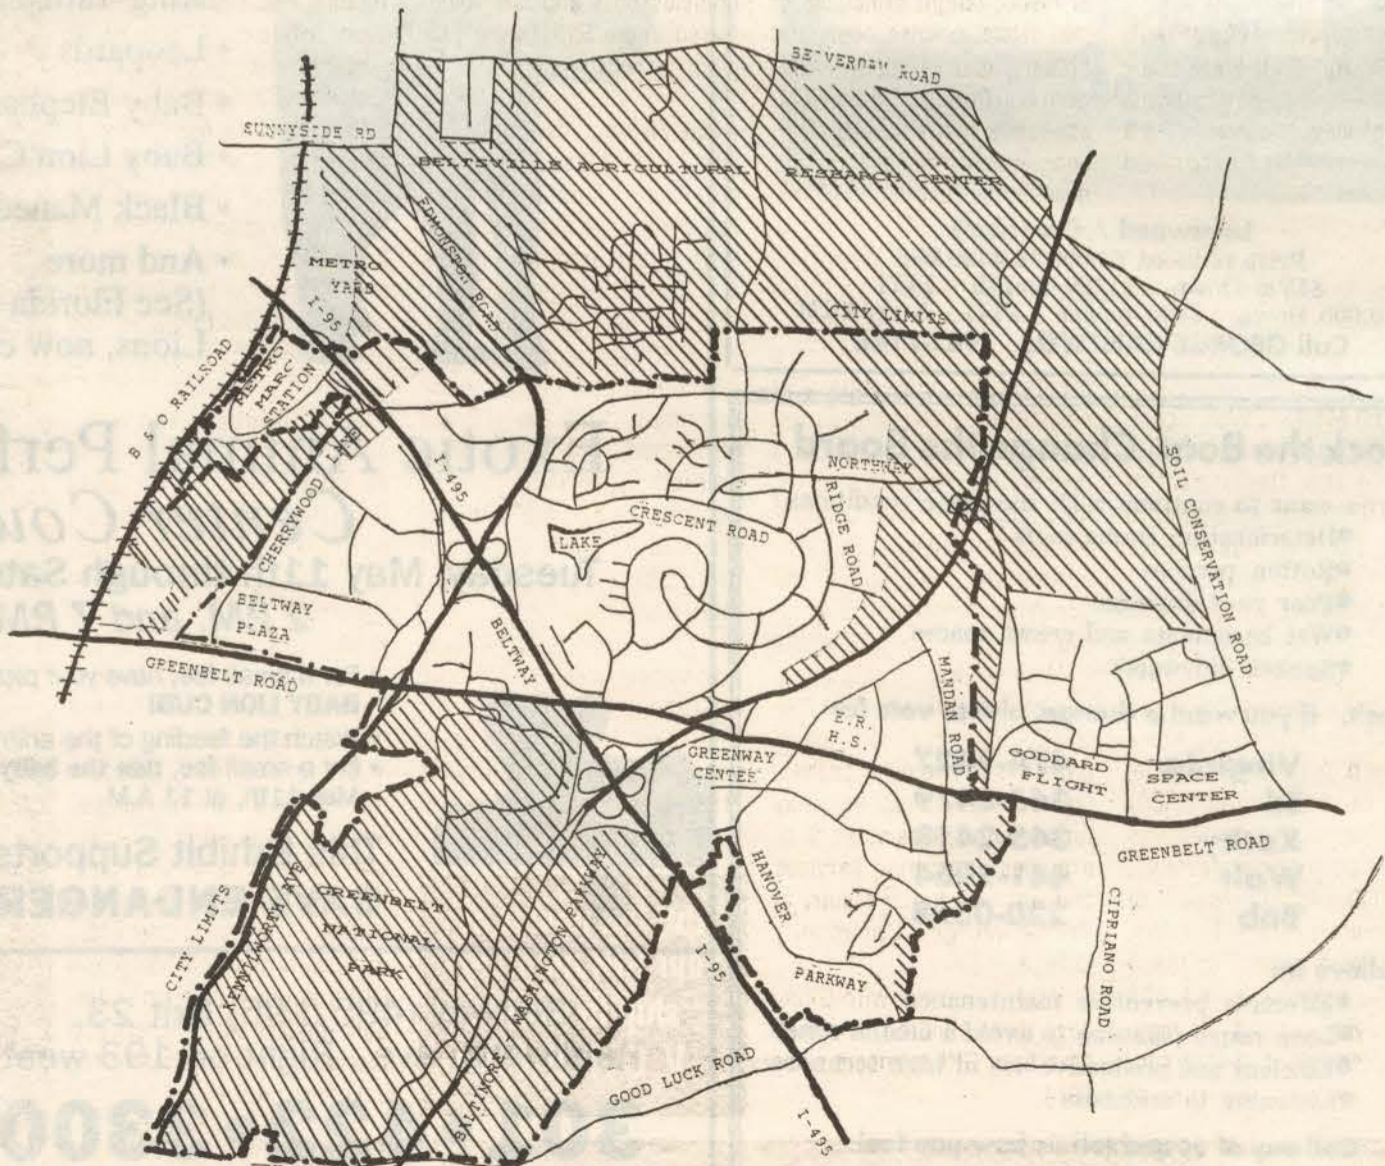

Another federal agency whose support of the green belt should be sought and obtained is the National Historic Trust, which has the ability to designate the proposed green belt as an historic site. Original Greenbelt is already designated an historic neighborhood. This attribution would have a significant legal effect upon how the federal government could use the land.

While it might entail an extensive lobbying effort, it might be possible to obtain a special act of Congress to designate and define our green belt as it relates to federally owned land.

Time to Act

For much too long, Greenbelt and those responsible for planning and zoning have failed to formally recognize the planning concept that gave our city its name. It is too late for us to achieve the green belt our city should have had. Even so, a lot of land remains suitable for designation as our green belt. While most of it already is restricted as to development, the recent transfer of BARC land for the courthouse demonstrates that the potential for future erosion of our remaining green belt is still possible.

Official designation of a green belt for Greenbelt, one recognized by local planning agencies, local master plans and by the National Trust for Historic Preservation will help to prevent future land conversions of the remaining green space on the outer perimeter of our community. Action should be taken now, before we are surprised once again.

This map of Greenbelt and its environs depicts the approximate area (marked with diagonal striped lines) to be designated officially as the green belt for Greenbelt as proposed by James Giese in the adjacent opinion column.

Previously he was president of D.C. Striders, which motivated more than 1,500 Washington-area youth to remain in school and assisted in providing more than $30 million in scholarships. He was also a House Manager at Arena Stage.

John has been on the Vestry of St. John's Church in Beltsville and was on the original Cable Access Committee for Greenbelt. He is currently helping his wife, Christina, raise Mike, 5, and Kathy, 2.

KATHLEEN WEBER. Kathleen grew up on a farm where she became a happy observer of building and repair operations. Since then she has supervised the building of two of the six houses she has owned. Kathleen studied administration, economics, mathematics and education, receiving a Bachelor of Science Degree in mathematics.

Treasurer, accountant, teacher and tutor were some of Kathleen's paid positions. She has also volunteered as a treasurer, coordinator and researcher.

"Greenbelt and I have cared for each other for 12 years," says Kathleen, "and I believe I am qualified for the Board of Directors of GHI."

WALTER MORSE. Walt recently retired as a senior attorney with the U.S. Department of Labor. He has also been a journalist for Radio Free Europe and the ILGWU-AFL-CIO national newspaper. Walt is a graduate of Harvard (A.B. '48) and Columbia (J.D. '55) Universities. Walt helped increase its membership from 200 to 1,400 dues-paying families. He regularly attends GHI Board sessions, and is a member of

MENSA, ACLU, and GATE (CATV access).

ED JAMES. Ed has been very active within our community over the past 16 years. He co-founded Citizens for Greenbelt and served as chairman during its formative years. He has also served the Greenbelt community as a member organizations such as: the Labor Day Festival Committee; the 50th Anniversary Committee; and the Board of the Greenbelt Consumer Cooperative.

Wayne has a Master's Degree from The American University. His professional background is in computer analysis and technical writing. He works for a computer services firm, provides consulting services and on the adjunct faculty at Prince George's Community College.

Wayne and his wife Ginny have three children, and they have been GHI members since 1974.

BETTY DEITCH. Betty has been a member of GHI for 24 years. She retired from the National Security Agency after a varied career including overseas assignments. Betty was an actively involved member for many years before being elected to the Board of Directors. She has served as chairperson of the Member and Community Relations Committee and directed many special GHI events. She is a member of Citizens for Greenbelt; Golden Age Club; American Legion Auxiliary; and the Phoenix Society (two terms).

BILL PHELAN. Bill, who graduated in 1974 from the University of Maryland, is married with three children. He moved to GHI in 1986 to take the position of City Horticulturist. Bill's other activities have included helping coach Greenbelt T-ball and Little League. He is also interested in issues of homelessness and has volunteered in the Safe Haven program for homeless men.

James attended A.U., University of Virginia and G.W. before becoming a registered architect in 1964. He has served on A.I.A. Historic Buildings, was a member of the P.G. County Historic Preservation Commission, Historic Trust. He is presently chair of the Architecture & Environment Committee; a member of the Audit Committee; on the City Task Force for Center School Rehab; and The Historic Preservation Review Committee. James retired to GHI to be near his family and live in what he thinks is "the best community in the area."

ALAN TURNBULL. Alan works as a Planner for the National Park Service and has worked in the private sector assessing performance and budgetary needs of another federal agency. He serves on the GHI Woodlands Committee and is chair of the city's Recycling Advisory Committee. Alan and his wife have been living happily in GHI for two years. Alan feels that GHI is a unique organization that needs to be managed with common sense and sensitivity. He would use his membership on the Audit Committee to "ensure that the Board and GHI's employees treat members' dollars with respect and manage our cooperative for long-term prosperity."

ways and ways in which visitors to the theater would feel drawn to the other parts of the community center.

The City has collected data on other theaters in the area which are used primarily for performing arts, and Renahan added that mode data on multiple-use theaters could be gathered. The adaptability of the building to fill many needs without being simply "another large multipurpose room" was stressed; the theater and/or lobby could be rented by corporations for special events and meetings.

Merging Ideas

The meeting was about a concept plan and its general features. Renahan introduced the evening's presentation by reminding everyone that all the steps leading to this moment had come by people coming together to merge their ideas and visions of a community center. He pointed out that the theater would be a "beautiful building which enhances everything around it." The intention is to have a building with significant Art Deco elements.

David Fogle, Professor of Architecture and Director of the Graduate Program in Historic Preservation at the University of Maryland, is an advisor to the GAC's Theater Development Committee. Originally, he believed his role was to help find the most attractive way to deal with the "black box" theater plan. After the evening presentation, he criticized the black box proposal and enthusiastically endorsed this alternative concept. He added that the presence in the group assembled of people who have spent lifetimes immersed in the needs of performing arts spaces (and the problems to avoid as well as the good things to include) is a real strength as the city considers a theater in its community center.

"This concept is a marvelous idea," he mused, adding laughingly. "I wish that I had thought of it."

a better view and are invited to look at the exhibits after they have finished stargazing. In case of inclement weather, the star watch will be held on Saturday, May 15.

CITY OF GREENBELT NOTICE OF A PROPOSED PROPERTY TAX INCREASE

The City Council of the City of Greenbelt proposes to increase property taxes.

1. For the tax year beginning July 1, 1993, the estimated assessable base will increase by 4.3%, from $493,198,753 to $514,365,787.
2. If the City of Greenbelt maintains the current tax rate of $1.33 per $100 of assessment, property tax revenues will increase by 4.3% resulting in $281,522 of new property tax revenues.
3. In order to fully offset the effect of increasing assessments, the property tax rate should be reduced to $1.28, the constant yield tax rate.
4. The City is considering not reducing its property tax rate enough to offset increasing assessments.

The city proposes to adopt a tax rate of $1.33 per $100 of assessment. This tax rate is 3.9% higher than the constant yield tax rate and will generate $281,522 in additional property tax revenues.

A Public Hearing on the proposed property tax increase will be held at 8:00 p.m. on Monday, May 17, 1993 in the Council Room of the Municipal Building, 25 Crescent Road, Greenbelt, Maryland 20770.

The hearing is open to the public and public testimony is encouraged.

Persons with questions regarding this hearing may call 474-3870 or 474-8000 for further information.

Speed Humps

Thomas R. Kemp, on October 1991, acknowledged that Northway is dangerous — not from the physical characteristics of the road itself—the curbing, the hill-type terrain, on-street parking, lack of sidewalk and foliage close to the road. "The best and most obvious solution," the report continues, would be installation of a sidewalk.

One citizen quoted a survey on traffic in the area that showed three of 10 cars above the speed limit on Northway, six of 10 on Greenhill and eight of 10 on Hillside.

"The first law I would pass," joshed council member Tom White, "would be to change human nature."

Sidewalks

Norman Weyel wondered why it was that people on Northway "don't want sidewalks to protect their children but want speed humps to protect themselves." Joe Wilkerson said he had watched parents on Northway playing ball in the street with their children. A sidewalk would keep school children from walking in the street.

Leonie Penney argued that extending the internal walkway system that runs between the Northway homes and Lakewood would be a better solution. The only accidents on Northway had involved cars running into parked cars, she said. They did not involve pedestrians. Others suggested that the internal walkway was no longer as safe because of its isolation. People are too damn scared to use them in larger metropolitan areas, said Jack Maffay.

Police Presence

Could there be more police surveillance, someone asked. To this question Police Chief James Craze commented that he had made a budget request for two more officers to be assigned specifically to traffic control. (However, the city manager's proposed budget did not fund these positions). With the tie-ups on Greenbelt Road because of the construction problems, and where five fatal accidents had occurred, the force was over-extended, he indicated.

"Could two traffic officers tame the city?" asked Weidenfeld, to a general laugh.

"They could put a dent in it," Craze answered. He indicated that adding two traffic control officers, plus their equipment, would cost about $150,000.

In contrast, estimated costs for structural options on North-way were far lower: six speed humps, $3,870; movable barricade, $1,500; permanent barricade, $691; rumble strips, $14,868; cul-de-sac, $6,435; and two mid-street islands, $9,356. Maintenance and landscaping would be continuing additional costs.

No one assumed that any of these options could be considered a cure, however, without occasional monitoring of traffic by the police. Council member Toni Bram worried that additional officers hired specifically for traffic control would turn their main attention to Greenbelt Road and away from the neighborhoods.

Suggestions

Two comments from residents intrigued both council and staff. One suggestion was that a pedestrian walkway in lieu of a sidewalk might be created on Northway by marking off a lane on the street itself. Cars could park between the lane and the traffic, he said, protecting the pedestrians. He had seen such a solution in Los Angeles. But a similar solution, though no one noted it, already exists in Greenbelt, where a pedestrian lane has been marked by a painted line on the driveway that leads to the Youth Center.

The second suggestion dealt with the problem at Greenhill and Orange Court, where traffic speeds through stop signs at the intersection. Why not create a traffic circle there to slow down the cars, a resident suggested. Hirsch indicated that engineering such a solution would be quite possible.

As a result of the broader questions raised by the meeting, and with these new suggestions to ponder, City Manager Daniel Hobbs expressed staff willingness to revisit the problem. The evening's presentation had been Draft #2. They were quite willing to prepare Draft #3, he said. All agreed that another work session is called for.

Less Trash Hauled Offsets Price Rise on Hauling Trash

by Betsy Likowski

The cost of hauling away garbage is predicted to increase in fiscal year 1993/94 as is the amount of refuse being recycled. Predicting that an estimated 38 percent of the refuse will be recycled, would mean that Greenbelt would run ahead of the county recycling average of about 21 percent of the waste. These refuse and recycling comments were just one part of the Worksession on the Public Works Budget held on Tuesday, April 27 at the Municipal Building.

In 1992 the city picked up refuse from 2195 customers, took 2318 tons of refuse to the landfill and averaged 1.06 tons of refuse per household. This is a drop from 1.21 tons of refuse per household in 1990. A slight increase in the number of customers and tonnage is predicted for the 1993/94 fiscal year.

Land fill fees will rise from $62 to 68 per ton this year, meaning the cost of dumping trash will rise by $19,000 to $175,000.

The good news is that Greenbelt continues to recycle — accounting for the drop in tonnage per household. Twenty-three percent of waste was recycled in 1990, 36 percent in 1992, and 38 percent is estimated for 1993. This is way ahead of the 21.48 percent of the waste recycled by county residents.

It is estimated that the 1993 recycled totals will be: 670 tons of newspapers, 490 tons of glass and plastic, 26 tons of cardboard, 115 tons of yard waste, 5500 gallons of oil, and 400 gallons of antifreeze.

Highlights

Highlights of recycling activities in 1992 were the hiring of recycling coordinator Tracy Vincent; telephone books collected at the Recycling Drop-Off Center at "Buddy" Attick Lake Park; and a plan for old mattresses from Mattress Discounters in Greenbelt to be taken by the Salvation Army.

The Drop-Off Center will be improved and expanded when it is temporarily closed at the end of June and re-opened in early July. And starting then magazines, catalogs, and junk mail will be accepted at the Center.

Vincent explained that by separating yard waste out of the special trash stream the city can save about $10,000 a year. One of two special trash trucks will pick up only yard waste and take it to a yard waste company.

Council member Thomas White said, "I'm continually frustrated we are not doing more" with recycling. He said he would like cans collected at curbside and wondered if he could recycle his cereal and cracker cardboard boxes. All cardboard except pizza boxes, can go in the corrugated cardboard bin at the Drop-Off Center, replied Vincent.

Recycling Corner

Recycle magazines and catalogs this Saturday, May 8 from 8 a.m.-noon at Holladay-Tyler Rd. in Glenn Dale. Take Greenbelt Road toward Bowie, pass Rte. 564 and make next left to Holladay-Tyler Road. Follow signs. For more information call 925-5963.

County Schools to Hold Kindergarten Registration

Registration for children who will enter kindergarten in September 1993, will be held at all elementary schools in Prince Georges County on May 10, 11, 12, 13, and 14.

The Maryland State Department of Education requires that all children in the State of Maryland attend kindergarten or an alternative program setting.

In July 1992, the state law lowered the minimum compulsory school attendance to five years of age and affects all children who are five by December 31, 1993, and requires that children attend kindergarten before entering first grade.

While parents may register their kindergarten age children at any time, it is hoped that they will make a special effort to register them on these dates. Proof of residency, immunization records - including a second measles inoculation, and birth certificate are prerequisites for admission to the Prince Georges County Public Schools. Parents/guardians, who are new residents of the county or who are registering a student for the first time, must complete an Affidavit of Disclosure, to establish proof of their legal residence.

For additional information people should call their local school.

Bearded Iris Show

The bearded iris show of the Chesapeake & Potomac Iris Society will be held on Sunday, May 16, from 1-5 p.m. at Behnke Nursery auditorium, 11350 Baltimore Avenue, Beltsville. There is no charge. The public is invited.

THE NOMINATIONS AND ELECTIONS COMMITTEE IS LOOKING FOR A FEW GOOD PEOPLE...

The Nominations and Elections Committee (N&E/C) is one of two elected committees in Greenbelt Homes, Inc. The committee consists of five GHI members elected at the annual meeting by the membership.

How important is the N&E/C? For starters, the committee prepares the nominations slate for the annual elections in May; counts the votes on amendments during the annual meeting; conducts fair and expeditious elections in the annual elections, and any other referenda requested by the Board of Directors; and presents the certified results of the annual election to the membership.

JOE'S TIPS OF THE WEEK
Hello again !!!
Not everyone is aware that automatic transmissions and transaxles have filters that guard against harsh contaminants. To make sure that your transmission fluid has survived the winter, check its level. Inspect the color of the fluid. It should be reddish or pinkish, not dark like motor oil. It should not smell burnt or overheated.
Remember that the transmission or transaxle is a separate component of the engine and has to be considered in preventive maintenance servicing for long and faithful service.
TILL NEXT TIME
THINK PREVENTIVE MAINTENANCE !!!
