Parking Lot Expansion Proposals For Community Center Revealed

by Virginia Beauchamp

Suppose every craft shop at the new Community Center (the Center School redeveloped) were busy with working artists, and suppose the projected theater were crowded with an enthusiastic audience. Simultaneously the News Review staff were hard at work in our office space, editing copy and dealing with our clients, and the senior day care center was going full steam in the basement-level space. In the newer wing the preschool kindergarten programs were in full swing

That can't happen, you say? Some of the programs will occur during daytime hours, some at night. Certain activities take place on weekends, others on weekday evenings. Indeed, that's the whole point behind the concept of shared space. Certain rooms will have multiple uses, dividing occupancy by the time of day.

Yet the hypothetical case outlined above—that everything was functioning at the same time—was where Kim Paniatti began in her presentation to the Greenbelt City Council at a work session on Tuesday, May 11. Pa-

Planning Guidelines for Greenbelt Community Center Siteplan

1. Preserve green area to the front of the Community Center
2. Improve geometrics/safety of library parking lot entrance
3. Preservation of specimen trees — Council to walk site
4. Separation of vehicle/pedestrian paths
5. Integrate east side of Community Center to Roosevelt Center
6. Explore possibilities of connecting Library and Youth Center lots
7. Evaluate reducing/eliminating Youth Center access drive for use by vehicles
7. Evaluate linking van access/parking to expanded Library lot in rear of Community Center
9. Signage (directional, regulatory, advisory)
10. Appropriate drop-offs

niatti represented Greenman Pederson, Inc. (GPI), the engineering firm on contract with the city and currently engaged in site design for the parking areas of the Roosevelt Center and the Community Center. Her presentation at the work session, which began after the regular city council meeting had adjourned, dealt with parking around the Center School premises.

If absolutely everything were going on at the same time, Paniatti said, the Community Center would need 284 parking spaces. But of course that could never happen. On a Saturday night, with the theater full, 226 spaces could be occupied. During the day on Saturday, 150 spaces could be engaged.

But even that assumes that everyone using the building would have driven there, someone mentioned. Many Greenbelters habitually walk to the Center.

Without interfering with the greenspace of the building's front lawn, and while preserving all specimen trees around the site, GPI has been able to provide

Hoyer Debates Health Care, Gays, Jobs at Town Meeting

by S. R. Cherry

An analogy between current opposition to gays in the military and opposition to blacks in the military in the 1940's, by Maryland Congressman Steny Hoyer (D-5th District) so angered some Greenbelt citizens at a town meeting on May 10, that the congressman found himself in a shouting match with several audience members.

Hoyer won rounds of applause on the subject when he said "I don't believe that any American ought to be discriminated against . . . America stands, in my opinion, for judging people based upon their performance, based upon their character . . . based upon morality." Hoyer told the crowd that he found it unfortunate, "that gays seem to be the last group in America that it is respectable to be prejudiced against." He then reiterated his opinion that military leaders should base their decisions upon performance rather than sexual orientation.

However, the tone of the crowd turned loud and negative quickly when the congressman, responding to criticism over his support for lifting the ban against homosexuals in military service, compared recent resistance to gays in the military to verbiage used to oppose the integration of blacks as front line army troops in the late-1940's.

Hoyer had scheduled the meeting to outline jobs, the economy, health care and Bosnia as three key issues that Congressional leaders will be focusing their attention on this year.

Bosnia

Hoyer, Chairman of the Helsinki Commission, told the crowd many refugees have been created in Bosnia. He also observed that the Europeans waited far too long to act. The congressional objective of American military intervention is to "bring the slaughter to a halt," Hoyer said. The conflict in the former Soviet territory consists of one unarmed and one armed party at war with each other and the United Nations has imposed an arms embargo on the region.

Health Care

One of the criteria in President Clinton's soon-to-be-released health care bill would allow recipient's to maintain choice of care, Hoyer said, even if the choice is for a HMO. He conditioned the statement by adding, "at least at the outset." The plan would also provide access to care for everyone, and cost containment.

Congressman Hoyer predicted that in the near future the country will probably move to a single payer system. However, he sees managed competition as politically viable as well.

Referring to a recent article an audience member noted that it identified the top three chief executive officers in America are all in the health care industry and said that Hoyer's campaign was one of the top earners from lobbyists during the last election. Hoyer rebuffed the observation, saying "that has been demagogued out the kazoo." But he did suggest that govern-

Hearing Set for Change In Pupil Assignments

Superintendent Edward M. Felegy is recommending to the school board that students residing in Boxwood Village, Lakeside North, Belle Pointe, University Square, and Charlestowne Village be reassigned from John Carroll Elementary School to the new Greenbelt Elementary School commencing August 30, 1993.

The students have been bused to John Carroll Elementary School since the inception of court-ordered busing. Felegy believes that the sufficient number of non-black students on the Science and Math Magnet waiting list will insure that John Carroll does not fall out of the court racial guidelines and will keep the county schools in compliance with the court agreement.

The proposal will be on the May 27 school board agenda as a first reader at which time there will be no discussion of the matter. The resolution's second reader will be June 10, at which time the school board will discuss and vote on the issue. Prior to the regularly scheduled June 10 board meeting, a hearing will be held at 7 p.m. in the Board Room of the Sasser Administration Building in Upper Marlboro. Anyone who wishes to testify on the resolution may contact Cheryl Wilcox, Board Office Manager, at 301-952-6117. Individuals are allotted three minutes and group representatives are allotted five minutes.

Acrimony Disrupts GHI Annual Meeting as Slates Fight it Out

by Mary Lou Williamson

"Greenbelt Homes is in the best financial shape it has been in its history," reported Treasurer Chuck Hess at GHI's Annual Meeting May 19. "How is it our financial condition is so good, but our manager is being hounded out of office?" asked an angry member, Susan Ready, after listening to hours of wrangling by opposing slates and their followers.

Things got so bad that Steve Skolnik, parent of two children, spoke as would a disgusted father: "I am appalled at all of you for your adolescent manner. This is unbelievable." He went on to "challenge you future board and audit committee members: set aside your differences, we are all on the same team."

When the voting for board and Audit Committee members was closed at 8 p.m. the next evening, May 20, those who had been loudest in their claims of mismanagement and who had done most of the heckling during this annual meeting and at board meetings during the past two years were not elected. (See box).

The issues that the losing side had focused on were lack of long-range planning, too costly a fee-for-service program, the computer system and the manager. Most of the candidates for office who were successful in the election did not share those complaints. Member Eunice Coxon objected to the statement in the May 13 News Review story, "Two Full Slates Battle for Votes," which said, "With no clear issues dividing the two slates, choices this year will likely be made more on philosophy and experience, inuendo and charge." Coxon said, "Please do not say there are no issues."

Colton's Statement

"This is my ninth, and possibly my last, chance to address the membership of this cooperative." General Manager Ron Colton's first sentence brought a few cheers and applause. His ment has to provide a way for average people to support political candidates and made note of campaign reform measures proposed by the administration.

Predicting national health care by year's end, Hoyer called health care the second most compelling issue in the country. The U.S. is becoming noncompetitive in the global market because of health care, he said. Using the automobile industry as an example, Hoyer said when manufacturing an automobile more is invested in health care, than in steel.

Economy

"My opinion is that the economy is very psychological in many ways," Hoyer said and hinted that psychology of the market place can give birth to an economic recovery. The recent undermining of the economic stimulus package lowered enthusiasm for recovery, Hoyer indicated but reassured citizens that despite the Republican filibuster, the jobs bill is "still on the agenda."

A federal government worker in the audience told Hoyer she felt that Congress has to distinguish between the things "that we need to have versus the things that would be nice to have." She calculated that 14 percent of her income currently goes to pay interest on the deficit and that when she is ready to retire that number could be as high as 50 to 60 percent.

The federal worker cut was a "mean spirited, dumb proposal," Hoyer said he told Office of Management and Budget Director Leon Panetta.

One questioner from the audience asked "when are you guys (Congress) going to take a budget and work with it . . . we all do," referring to raising the federal budget ceiling. He seemed to be accusing lawmakers of pork barrelling — including special projects from their home state interests in the budget. But Hoyer argued that cutting out every project (i.e. infrastructure) expenditure still won't cut the deficit.

Correction

In last week's story on the General Government budget, a decimal place was lost. The Finance and Administrative Services staff will increase by 0.2 full time equivalents.

Host Families Sought

American host families are being sought for high school students from Western and Eastern Europe, Asia, South America and Australia for the 1993-94 school year in a program sponsored by the American Intercultural Student Exchange (AISE).

The students, ages 15-18, will arrive in August, attend a local high school and return home in June, 1994. The students, all fluent in English, have been carefully screened by the local representatives in their home countries and have their own medical insurance and spending money.

Call 1-800-SIBLING for a free brochure if interested in participating in this program.

Wants Walks

I'm a resident of Northway currently on a three-year job assignment in Australia. I've enjoyed keeping up on Greenbelt news through the News Review.

The issue of speeding on Northway was all too familiar. This issue stemmed from a petition of over 200 names for sidewalks on Northway submitted to the council several years ago. The ensuing meeting resulted in the problem being a speeding problem vs providing a safe place for pedestrians to walk.

I was happy to read the sidewalk issue was mentioned at the meeting. The inner walkways are not safe, especially at night. Since I can't attend the meetings, I request the Greenbelt City Council and residents to reconsider installing sidewalks on Northway for the safety of all pedestrians, especially children.

Print Standards

Based on my experience with a recent letter to the editor I wrote concerning GHI issues, I strongly urge you to study all the letters and columns you printed in the past few years within a few months of a GHI election and see if you are consistently applying your standards.

Also, you need to examine your standards and publish them a couple of months before the election. I personally think the guidelines you publish each year before the last edition preceding a GHI election are enough.

But you should not, as was done to me when I submitted a letter to the editor a couple of issues before the last edition apply standards that are not in writing.

The News Review should not confuse letters of endorsement written in the last edition with letters that discuss issues, are submitted for editions before the last edition, and attach candidate names to issues. Nor should they confuse personal attacks on a candidate with thoughtful attacks on where a candidate stands on a particular issue. People elect candidates, not issues, in the end. The News Review should definitely not try to adopt stricter rules than GHI's own Nominations & Elections Committee.

Let this committee decide who is violating fair election procedures.

But whatever the News Review decides, publish the policy for all to see, in time to guide them in writing letters to the editor.

An Improvement Disappointing

Only 507 or 31.8 percent of the membership of GHI voted in the recent election of members to the Board of Directors and the Audit Committee. This is an improvement over last year when only 361 or 22.7 percent of the membership voted. However, this year's vote represents less than one-third of the membership and is disappointing. It would be interesting and informative to know why two-thirds of the members don't vote.

When so few vote it means that a small minority is determining the leadership of the co-op and its programs. I have faith in the will of a majority of the members of GHI. I am concerned when a small minority, whatever its philosophies, gains control.

I hope that the larger turnout this year is the beginning of a trend. Membership in our co-op carries with it rights and privileges but also responsibilities. We should all make it our business to learn how the co-op is being managed and have a greater input. We should volunteer for committees, attend Board meetings and tell management what we like and what we think needs improvement.

In any case we should be informed members and vote in greater numbers, well over a majority, to reflect our judgments on the performance of management and our elected officials at election time.

I think the Nomination and Elections Committee did an outstanding job. I thank them for their efforts to recruit well qualified candidates and for their conduct of the election procedures.

Thanks to Voters

I would like to take this opportunity to thank the members of GHI who voted for me in the recent Board elections, and to thank everyone I met during the campaign for their part in making it an exceptionally enjoyable experience. Win or lose, three cheers for democracy!

Walter Morse

Thank you for your support in the GHI election. I truly appreciate your warmth, support and votes.

I came away from the general meeting with a feeling that there would be some healing and positive forward movement.

Sure enough, you turned out one of the highest votes in years! You demonstrated that you cared!!

Now, those of us on the new board will try our best to deserve your vote of confidence and do what's best for GHI and its owners.

Please come to meetings and support us.

Kathy Weber

I want to take this opportunity to thank all of the members who voted for me in the GHI election last week for the vote of confidence. I pledge to the entire GHI membership that I will continue to work, as I have in the past, to make GHI an even better community than it is today!

Alan Frens

I would like to thank the many families who came out to vote in the GHI elections. The turnout was wonderful.

I would like to especially thank those of you who voted for me.

Virginia Moryadas

I thank those who voted for me in the GHI election and those who worked for my election. As always I will try to be worthy of your trust. At the same time, I congratulate the other winners and express my respect for those who did not win. The election campaign was hard fought and brought out an intense spirit of competition. Now let us have "a time for healing." None of us possesses all knowledge and wisdom. Not one of us really has all of the answers. We do have these requirements—to be informed about the issues, to consider a variety of alternatives, to make decisions based on what we believe to be best for our cooperative, and to respect the opinions of others.

I also would like to express appreciation for the services of Margaret Hogensen and Betty Deitch, who are leaving the Board of Directors.

Margaret has influenced everything that has happened in GHI for the last 20 years and her legacy will continue to affect GHI forever. She also has been effective in promoting other cooperatives within our community and region and in supporting the cooperative movement throughout the entire country.

Betty has served GHI in numerous ways, including several years as secretary to the Board. She has always been persistent in insisting that all members, especially the elected officers and staff, adhere to the highest ideals of cooperative living. She has worked, often unheralded and in the background, to improve the life style and living conditions of the membership of GHI.

Steel Band Concert

The Trinidad and Tobago Steel Band will perform outdoors at the Greenbelt outdoor pool on Saturday, June 5, at 8 p.m. as part of the Greenbelt Day weekend festivities. There is no charge for this fourth annual Moonlight concert sponsored by the Greenbelt Arts Center.

The Trinidad and Tobago Steel Band plays calypso, reggae, soul sounds, and popular Island melodies in concerts throughout the Washington area.

Formed in the late 1960s with students who came from Trinidad to study at Howard University, the group is comprised of 11 members who play the steel drums as well as traps and tumbas, the percussion instruments.

The steel drums were developed in the Caribbean Islands, probably accidentally, when workers were creating a rhythmic beat to help them work. Steel drums originally had only a few notes; now each has 26 distinct notes. The steel drums are associated with the carnival celebrations throughout the Islands and have a special brand of exuberant, joyful music which goes well with the party atmosphere.

Reservations are not required but for more information call the Arts Line at 441-8770. Refreshments will be available for purchase prior to the concert, so individuals and families can plan an evening at the pool. The steel band is the last performance of the 1992-93 Music Series of the Greenbelt Arts Center. This last concert is traditionally a free performance held on Greenbelt Day weekend to thank the community for its support of activities throughout the year.

GEAC MEETS

Randy Eigenbrode, Susannah Hoffman, and Teresa Healey-Conday appear in Shakespeare's "A Midsummer Night's Dream," presented by the Greenbelt Arts Center on Greenbelt Day weekend.

Child Thespians to Perform
"Midsummer Nights Dream"

by Sandy Smith

Shakespeare's "Midsummer Night's Dream" is the 1993 annual children's production of the Greenbelt Arts Center. The play will be performed by Greenbelt and area children, Saturday and Sunday, June 5 and 6, at 2 p.m., at Greenbelt Center School. After two years of Alice in Wonderland and Goldilocks, the children requested a more sophisticated production said Director Virginia Zanner, who has worked with the children for the past several years. Several of the children and teens in the children's production have also appeared in the productions which are part of the Arts Center's annual play series.

Zanner sees the children's productions as a means of promoting the artistic development and interest of the children and encourages them to take both the dramatic and technical roles. Many of the children have performed for the past three years and as Zanner says, "when they return, year after year, we must be doing something right."

Large audiences have come each year to see the children's production, now an integral part of the Greenbelt Day weekend celebrations. There is a special family discount rate for tickets. Call the Arts Line at 441-8770 for reservations and information.

Lisa McDonald plays Oberon the King in Sunday's performance. Cheryl Connor takes the role Saturday, Lisa also plays Peter Quince and Cheryl is a member of the singing chorus. Randy Eigenbrode is Bottom, works as choreographer, is lighting director, and is responsible for much of the publicity for the production. Teresa Healey-Conway plays Flute and Thisbe. Trina Fisher is Snug and the Lion and Chelsey Lagerwerff is cast as Snout and Wall. Susannah Hoffman is Starveling and Moon. Maverette Smith, who played the rumor-mongering child in "Children's Hour" earlier this year, now plays Lysander. Lynn Hull plays Helena. Laura Ann Fisher is Demetrius. The Fairy Queen Titiana is Lauren Zambreny. Chris Logsdon plays a Court Attendant and Karen Mealey plays Oberon's attendant.

Carrie Burchick plays Hippolata and Quinn Brece is Master of the Revel, Philostrate. Egeus is played by Abby Logsdon. Puck, the chief mischief maker, is played by Sarah Wolf who also appeared in "As You Like It." Sarah Taylor is Flower Dew. Giselle Hendy is Pease Blossom. Janet Hagelgans is Cobweb and Wendy Hagelgans is Moth.

Free Child Care Offered During Job Search

The Childway Center in College Park is offering free child care to parents who are looking for work.

The Center, which is located near Route 1 and the Beltway, has programs for children aged two to 12 years. It is open year around, M-F, 7 a.m. to 6:15 p.m.

Childway's president, Mrs. Berdie Giattina, says of the new program: "We know there are many parents who are not able to get a job because they have no one to care for their children when they go out for job interviews or do other things needed for an effective job search. Our program will be flexible and, we believe, helpful."

There will be no obligation to Childway once a parent gets a job.

The Childway College Park Center is located at 9038 Cherry Hill Road. Additional information on its job search program is available by calling 301-474-3355.

Realty Raises Funds In Charity Drive

Each year ERA member Brokers from all across the country work to raise funds for the Muscular Dystrophy Association through numerous events. Paul Sinkovic, sales associate at ERA Nyman Realty's Greenbelt office was put in charge of his office's events for this national effort. He enlisted his wife, Truman, to guide, promote, and work on the projects. Together they organized a car wash for April. Although they had been promised volunteers from a local high school, none showed up to work. Undaunted, the Sinkovics washed cars all day. Confident that Truman could "sell anything," they next planned to be part of the Greenbriar Condominium Yard Sale in late April. Items were donated by Nyman's Greenbelt office. Pricing was done and everything was set to go when fate intervened again. One of the Sinkovic children needed emergency surgery in Florida. Truman left immediately, leaving Paul with the Saturday yard sale. Emergency phone calls went out. Manager, Odd Blorstad and Gail Nyman came to the rescue. They helped Paul set up and manned the table with him. In record time, all of the "white elephants" were sold. On May 1, the Sinkovics were

by Virginia Beauchamp

At the regular city council meeting on May 11, councilmembers were asked to respond to a request for transfer of a liquor license for beer and wine carry out for use by the Greenbelt Variety Store. Options before the city were to support, oppose or take on position.

It became at once apparent, however, that only one option was available—to strongly oppose. "It would be in violation of state law," Mayor Gil Weidenfeld said. As council was already aware, the Beijing Restaurant owners were waiting until the Center School property was officially closed as a school facility before their request for a liquor license could legally be granted. All Roosevelt Center commercial enterprises are within the range surrounding a school within which alcoholic beverages cannot be sold.

Council member Toni Bram said that the applicant would also have to show community need for the granting of such a license. Were their hours different from those of the Co-op, for example, which was merely a few yards away? Would population density be a justification?

City attorney Robert Manzi said he felt it was "unusual" for two liquor licenses to be granted for stores that were so close.

Speaking for the Co-op board, Jim Cassels said that the Co-op was doing "a responsible, adequate job serving the needs for off-site sale" of beer and wine.

He noted that the store was open seven days a week. "We've been responsible about not selling to minors," he emphasized.

On a motion by council member Rodney Roberts, council unanimously voted to oppose the liquor transfer request.

Haz-mat Contract

Council unanimously endorsed a city staff recommendation to approve a bid by Greenhorne & O'Mara, Inc. to devise a hazardous materials management plan for Greenbelt Center School before its renovation can occur. Because the actual scope of the work cannot be defined until the contractor gets into the building and examines it more thoroughly, G & O could not provide a definitive cost estimate. They did provide a not-to-exceed amount, in a worst-case scenario, which they set at $25,000. Probable estimates were in the area of $15-18,000.

Besides asbestos, which was used as installation material around heating pipes at the time the school was built, other possible hazardous materials could include lead paint, radon and PCB's—the latter in the ballasts of fluorescent lights.

Other Bids

Council also accepted a bid by Applicators, Inc. of Laurel in the amount of $44,840 to renovate four tennis courts. The firm has previously carried out considerable work for the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission, all of which was deemed satisfactory.

On the recommendation of the city manager, council approved a bid not to exceed $11,247 by Atlantic Door Control, Inc. of Elkton to install eight automatic controls on various doors at the Aquatic Center and on the front entrance at the Youth Center. The controls will meet ADA compliance for persons with disabilities.

A new salt storage shed will be constructed in the Public Works Department facility where salt is currently stored. Designed a year ago, the shed will have three sides, concrete walls, and a shingled roof. The bid of $49,956 was granted to Suburban Builders and Remodelers, Inc. The additional cost of $3,300 for materials for a drainage system, to be installed by city workers, was also authorized. The drainage system is required by EPA regulations.

Tree Grant

The city has been selected as recipient of a matching grant of $10,758 by the federal Small Business Administration to aid small businesses that supply and plant trees. The grant will be used to revegetate the areas of the two lake forebays that were disturbed for sediment control projects.

CDBG Program

The city agreed to continue its participation for the next three fiscal years in the Prince Georges County's Community Development Block Grant program. Generally this program has made available about $125,000 annually for street projects.

Community Center

a total of 197 spaces in the immediate vicinity of the library and Center School, Paniatti said.

Parking Expansion

The site plan Paniatti brought did not differ markedly from the present distribution of parking at the site. By redrawing the design of parking configurations in the library lot and by expanding it slightly to the west, the firm showed how 54 full size cars and 32 compact vehicles could be accommodated (as compared to the present 66 spaces). This design change would require removal of the four spindly trees currently in the lot. All four are stunted locusts, as described by city horticulturist Bill Phelan. All four could be replaced by more appropriate trees in new locations.

Leading directly back toward the Youth Center would be a new driveway paralleling Lakeside Drive. At a location approximately opposite the newer wing of the school, this would open out to the east and the west to accommodate 19 compact cars and eight full size vehicles. Both broadened out "wings" would be notched to avoid interfering with two specimen trees. One nice but not specimen quality pine in the school playground would have to be sacrificed, Paniatti said.

Continuing to the north, the driveway would give vehicular access to the two asphalt basketball courts, which would provide overflow parking at high-use times for the Community Center. The courts would not be marked off but could accommodate 30 cars.

Further to the north, the driveway would connect with a reconfiguration of the present parking area to the west of the Youth Center. It would end in a loop for easy return of cars toward Crescent Road. Within the loop would be spaces provided for eight cars.

Although the driveway would connect with the present roadway across the front of the Youth Center, access would be closed to most traffic by a chain barrier. On special occasions, or for service and emergency vehicles, the drive could be opened.

Closing off or reducing traffic to the Youth Center from the driveway alongside the swimming pool had been one of the guidelines given earlier by the city council to Greenman Pederson. By eliminating frequent traffic in front of the Youth Center, the site engineers would be able to design a pedestrian walkway from the Community Center straight back to the Youth Center. This would involve a graduated ramp as well for handicap access.

Wheelchair access to the Youth Center would be available from the driveway loop to the west and from a redesigned and improved sidewalk and entry. With senior citizen activities in the future assigned to the Community Center, handicap access to the Youth Center — while mandatory under the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) — should be less frequently needed than at present, when senior activities occur regularly in that space.

East Side Parking

Although council had asked Greenman Pederson to integrate the Roosevelt Center with the Community Center, Paniatti explained the consultants' view that this could not easily be done except for improved pedestrian access. Paniatti suggested a wide pathway directly to the school door, with bollard lights.

The parking lot at the east side of Center School could be redesigned, however, to accommodate more parking spaces. With a new configuration, but without expanding asphalt, a total of 31 full sized cars and eight compacts could find room. Along the driveway to the kitchen at the rear, two other sets of five and three spaces could also be created.

Currently a widened area off the driveway to the kitchen holds a dumpster. When queried by council about future plans, Assistant City Manager Mike McLaughlin said the dumpster issue was unresolved. Conceivably a regular city garbage collection could be instituted instead.

Food waste will be generated by the adult day care facility, which will be located at the basement level of the building. Medical waste must be disposed of separately. McLaughlin pointed out. Van access to the adult day care center will be available adjacent to the kitchen.

Library Driveway

Among council's guidelines for the parking plan was to improve the safety and sight lines for the library parking lot exit to Crescent Road. This topic took up a good deal of council's attention near the start of the meeting. It remained unresolved at the end.

For appropriate sight distance for a left turn out of the driveway, Paniatti said, seven on-street parking spaces would have to be eliminated. Since the whole purpose of the redesign was to add, not to subtract, parking spaces, none of council was happy to hear this suggestion. They wondered if cutting back the curb line in some way could not reduce the need to eliminate so many spaces. Paniatti said she would take a new look at possible solutions.

APB Response

Before the meeting with council, Paniatti had earlier presented the Greenman Pederson plan to the Advisory Planning Board. Troubled by so many small pockets of parking access along the driveways to the west and east of the building, APB had asked if larger main parking lots could not be increased in size in order to "preserve green space."

Paniatti indicated where this might be done—by cutting into the playground space at the west of the building by adding to the library lot. Unfortunately some fine trees would have to be eliminated. The asphalt area could also be increased to the east of the building. She did not recommend either alternative because of damage to shade trees. Council concurred that patching in parking spaces where feasible because of land contours seemed the better alternative.

Recycling Corner

Is your recycling bin too large for your household? The Department of Public Works can make available a limited supply of eight gallon buckets to replace the larger 15 gallon container. These buckets are yellow and clearly marked for county recycling. Please call 474-8004 if you would like a smaller bucket.

Greenbelt Center to Host "Farewell" Open House

by Mary Wade

Parting is such sweet sorrow. And so it is with the closing of Greenbelt Center Elementary School. To give people one last chance to remember and reminisce about their experiences at Center School, a reception will be held at the school on Saturday, June 12 from 2 to 4 p.m. All interested members of the community are invited to attend and bring memories, memorabilia from the school and photos to share.

Initially called the Community Building, it was used as a school during the weekdays, a place for meetings, adult education and recreation in the evenings and as the townhall for large meetings and for church services on weekends.

The elementary school was opened in 1937 and received local attention as a progressive school. Unlike most of the county public schools, the children "learned by doing." This meant that rather than structuring lessons around several class periods, reading, math, science, and so on, they were taught as needed while working on projects. And, instead of letter grades, the children were marked satisfactory or unsatisfactory.

Greenbelt Center is proud to remember its notable history. It was the home of Prince Georges County's first kindergarten. First Lady Eleanor Roosevelt, made several surprise visits. And this year the school received the National Blue Ribbon Award for its excellence in education.

In 1968 an addition was added. It had larger rooms and bathrooms adjacent to the six classrooms on the main floor. The upper floor housed the library, two classrooms and several smaller rooms suitable for offices or storage, etc.

In 1981 when the town no longer had enough enrollment for two schools, North End School was closed and the children were transferred to Center School.

In the 80's the need for renovation of Center School became apparent. The school board proposed building a new school within the city. A proposal to build the school on 10 acres of vacant 72-acre surplus school board land near Hamilton Place was protested by many Greenbelters who hoped that eventually it would be parkland. The school board withdrew that plan. (The land was later deeded to the city for parkland).

School officials then narrowed the choice down to two, the renovation of Center School or the building of a new school on the site of the old North End School. Costs would be similar with Center School costing slightly more. The school board and city had to weigh the advantages of having the school in the social and historical center against a better educational facility at the North End.

After much citizen input, surveys and voting on a bond issue to support a community center in one of the buildings, the North End site was chosen. (Voting results were close).

Greenbelt "Lifer" and Center alumnus, Brian Yorke remembers the traffic signal in the cafeteria used to maintain a quiet eating environment. Apparently, it really worked. To this day, he still quiets down when approaching a yellow light.

Another one of Brian's memories involves poring into the library, downstairs, to view rockets crashing into the moon.

Although it is sad to see the school leaving such a prime location with the library, recreation center, pool and lake so close by, we are fortunate to be moving into a large, well-equipped building within walking distance of the Center via Greenbelt's well-planned pathways and underpasses.

As we say good-bye, let's remember that we are bringing with us our most valued possessions; our teachers, students, support staff and, of course, our memories. And we are leaving behind a legacy of Greenbelt's strong community spirit and art-deco architecture.

Somehow we've managed to have it all.

So come join us on June 12 as we celebrate the end of an era. Bring along your memories and good spirit and enjoy our hospitality.

There will be an ongoing slide show of the history of Greenbelt Center, refreshments (pot-luck style) and a brief ceremony at 2:30 p.m. in the school auditorium. See you there!

Increased Traffic Problems Discussed at GEAC Meeting

by S. R. Cherry

Members of the Greenbelt East Advisory Committee met on May 6 to discuss increased traffic problems at the site of construction on the Baltimore Washington Parkway.

Greenbelt City Manager Daniel Hobbs sent GEAC officials a correspondence indicating that the city is working on the issue. According to Hobbs' letter, city staff have met with state and federal highway officials to analyze and discuss steps to improve the situation. City staff members are considering proposals to reschedule construction to night time hours; using flagmen or off-duty police officers to direct traffic; or utilizing a reversible middle lane based on traffic flows.

The letter was in response to a petition from Greenbriar residents. Committee members said that the worst congestion occurs during morning rush hour and at lunch time. Dorothy Pyles said that the cause of many of the backups are due to cars trying to make a left turn onto Greenbelt Road from Hanover Parkway. She suggested that one possible solution would be to change the timing of the traffic lights at the intersection.

Hanover Office Park Request

Sheldon Goldberg reported that management of the Hanover Office Park has requested permission to convert the property from commercial to medical offices with a waiver from the city's requirement that they create additional parking spaces. He noted that a traffic impact study of the property is underway and management representatives are required to present verification of the findings to the city council soon. Group members acknowledged the difficulties in filling commercial office space in the area and seemed to understand the reason for the developmental change. However, they also noted that visitors to nearby businesses are already parking on Ora Glen Drive.

Right Turn

Bus Service Concerns

The group also voiced concerns over proposed cancellations and changes to Metro bus services on the T-15, T-16 and R-15 bus lines. Group members noted that planned cancellation of the R-15 line could completely cut off commuters between Ora Glen Drive and Hanover Parkway and incorporating the T-16 and T-15 routes into the R-12 would cause a much longer commute.

The next GEAC meeting will be held at Hunting Ridge on June 3, at 7:30 p.m.

CHANGE IN SCHOOLS SUPPORTED by COUNCIL

by Diane Oberg

Summer's on the way! At its May 24 regular meeting, the Greenbelt City Council accepted a $7,100 bid for fireworks for the July 4 show. Council unanimously agreed to support a county school proposal that would reassign some Greenbelt elementary school students.

School Proposal

Council learned that county school Superintendent Edward Felegy is recommending that students in Boxwood Village, Lakeside North, Belle Pointe, University Square and Charlestowne Village be reassigned from John Carroll Elementary School to the new elementary school on Ridge Road beginning this fall. The proposal will be introduced, without discussion, at the May 27 school board meeting. A hearing on the issue is scheduled for June 10 at 7 p.m. at the Sasser Administration Building in Upper Marlboro. The school board is expected to vote on the issue at the board meeting that will immediately follow the hearing.

Parking Waiver

In another action, council authorized staff to apply for a departure from county parking standards for the community center. The staff estimates that, when fully functional with a theater, 226 spaces will be needed for the community center. Current plans will provide just 195 spaces.

Council also hired a new firm, Keller Bruner of Frederick, Maryland as the city's auditors.

Police Blotter

Based on Information Released by the Greenbelt Police Department

A 23-year-old nonresident man was arrested and charged with possession of drug paraphernalia after a pipe such as is commonly used to smoke marijuana was found on him. They are described as (1) male, black, 13 years old, 5'5", wearing a white shirt and blue pants, and (2) male, black, 13 years old, 5'5", wearing a dark shirt and dark pants.

On May 16, a breaking and entering of a residence in the 6000 block of Springhill Drive was reported. A cam corder was stolen. There was another breaking and entering of a residence in the 7600 block of Greenbrook Drive where a video games and a player were stolen.

GHI Annual Meeting

statement was interrupted so frequently he stopped to tell the members: this is what I'm talking about, this is what goes on at board meetings. He spoke frankly about the "atmosphere of ridicule and sarcasm, rumor mongering, executive session leaks, and threats of law suits."

He spoke with enthusiasm about his experiences in the Ukraine, where he may spend two years as a housing consultant, "When I stood in Freedom Square in Kiev and showed photos of GHI homes to Ukrainian friends, a crowd of 50 people gathered and were in awe of what we have in GHI."

He reminded members that their "most important duty is" to elect leadership to translate their expectations into goals for their Greenbelt Homes community. "It is my duty," he continued, "to provide your elected leaders with independent, professional judgment, to provide stewardship of the assets with which I am entrusted, and to implement policies." The co-op's founders, he said, "were wise in separating the responsibilities for policy making and policy implementation."

He responded to critics of the fee-for-service program, long range planning and the computer system, explaining and defending how they operate and their achievements.

Replacement Reserves

Reviewing the exchanges at the GHI Candidates' Night he had had with board candidate and audit chair Virginia Moryadas, member Nat Shinderman asked Treasurer Chuck Hess to respond. The Ad Hoc Reserves Committee set up a long range program in 1987, reported Hess. During board of directors training sessions in 1991 and 1992, the board and staff reviewed the plan, which was most recently revised on July 30, 1992.

He listed some of the replacement components of that plan accomplished this year: 450 feet of sewer—main, water heaters, electric ceiling fans, larger home roofs, 16 frame home roofs, 93 front porch roofs, 50 frame porch decks, masonry home porch roofs—all of which were planned for in the budget that had been discussed at a half dozen board meetings, plus a special membership budget session. The 1993 budget shows a balance in the replacement reserves of over $950,000, he said.

Moryadas offered "a different side of the story." The 1987 Reserve Plan "comes closest to a review of long range planning," she said, but then claimed that the board had "not examined the plan in six years." She'd heard "some discussion," she said, "and seen some results," but sees "lacks in the program. We do not have a data base." She said she had received no written plan as a member of the Audit Committee, and that the membership had not been included in any long range planning.

Employees' Salaries

A more difficult issue is whether or not to follow last year's membership vote asking for full disclosure to all members who seek it of the compensation paid the general manager and all GHI employees. The manager's salary and the range of pay for each employee position were made available during the year, but not the specific amount each employee is paid.

Board member Carol Levin spoke on the issue as she saw it. She found that the board majority's refusal to make this information public "violates the bylaws. Your right has been denied you," she told those present. Her personal effort to examine the financial data for the annual budget had also been thwarted when she requested the salaries and benefits information. "I began to wonder," she said, "who was in charge, the board or the manager." She summed up by saying: "Looking ahead — the new board will face many challenges. We cannot begin to adequately address them without respecting you the membership, the bylaws and each other."

Mat Amberg was "troubled" by Levin's statement. He pointed out that "members of any board may be sued for non-feasance if they have not conducted the affairs of the corporation prudently." He asked for comment by the general manager and president, President Al Freas, who was not yet president at the time, confirmed that the board did vote not to allow that information to be given to board members.

Colton explained he had asked for that policy decision from the board. "The board," he said, "sets its own policies, based on past precedents. Not in its 40 year history has the board ever had access to personnel data — only ranges for positions and benefits packages." When asked by Levin for such information, Colton said, he turned to the board for an answer.

While Tom Stork thought asking for employees' salaries was a "bad idea," the membership had voted for it last year. What was the rationale of the board to refuse? Freas responded, "I make my decisions and votes in the best interest of the corporation. Releasing detailed salary information is not in the best interest of GHI." State statutes say that it is "my duty to act that way," he said.

Member Joe Todd did not find that answer sufficient. Freas then added, making public the information about specific pay would cause "dissent among the employees and loss of morale." Irv Siegel was not satisfied either as he charged: you have "refused to give us that information in violation of the bylaws."

A member from 20-Q Ridge Road said that members do not need that information, but board members do. Norman Weyel spoke. He had "spent 16 years on the board and never had any reason to know." Member Paul Gilman asked whether any board members had access to the information.

Wayne Williams, board member and past president, said "No. All members are denied information on individual salaries. Both opinions are proper under the bylaws." (He was referring to those who claim that the board violated the bylaws in refusing access to the information and the board majority's opinion that their duties require them to act in the best interest of the corporation).

Nat Shinderman pointed out that the proper place for this discussion is a special meeting planned for this fall to approve a complete revision of the bylaws. "We are delaying the progress of this meeting," he said.

Absentee Ballot

The only item of business on the agenda was a bylaw change providing members with a way to vote by absentee ballot if they were "unable to cast their ballot on election day" because of "extenuating circumstances." Rules were to be drawn up by the board of directors. The membership, dissatisfied, referred the bylaw amendment back to committee on a motion by Kathleen Smith. Board candidate Walter Morse and others thought the language too open-ended. Member Eunice Coxon, a past chief election judge, also took issue with the proposal. Nominations and Elections (N&E) Committee member Pearl Siegel responded that the membership last year had directed the committee to make getting an absentee ballot as easy as possible to encourage more voting. Mat Amberg, and others, thought the board should not make the rules. He said that only the N&E Committee and the Ad Hoc Bylaws Committee in consultation with GHI's attorney should be involved.

Hearty Applause

The heartiest and longest applause was reserved for retiring board member Margaret Hogensen, as she was honored for 17 years of service to GHI, and, earlier, to the staff given recognition by Colton. In an atmosphere of sarcastic statements by some members, Colton said, the staff has the duty to carry out sometimes unpopular policies. "But the staff have persevered, and given many more hours of service to their duties than the personnel policy requires or the board or manager have a right to expect." He thanked them and through their applause the members did too.

Margaret Hogensen and her late husband, Ben, who became members in 1972, had begun her contributions as a member of the Audit Committee, 1976-77. She then moved on to serve on the board for the next 16 years, five as president. She has also served on the boards of the National Association of Housing Cooperatives, the National Cooperative Business Association, the National Cooperative Bank Development Corporation, the National Cooperative Bank and the Eastern Cooperative Housing Organization.

Hogensen related a story. When she first ran for the board, a past board member said he would vote for her if she would work toward establishing adequate reserves. "We have," she said. "We have long range planning and we do it caringly and efficiently." She is proud of those accomplishments, she said. Hogensen then chided everyone: "Let's stop the name-calling. Everyone has ideas."

Other Awards

Bill Phelan, board candidate, received the outstanding committee member of the year award for his work on the Woodlands Committee.

The Charles F. Schwan, Jr., award went to Robert Levine of Eastway, a senior at Eleanor Roosevelt High School who wrote a winning essay on cooperatives. O'Reilly, who has been with GHI for only three years, began as a laborer. This summer, as a carpenter, he is in charge of the frame porch roof replacement program.

16 Hazardous Waste Sites At BARC Listed by EPA

by Elaine Skolnik

The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) proposed on May 10 to add 16 sites in the Beltsville Agricultural Research Center (BARC) to the National Priorities List for Hazardous Waste (NPL). According to the May 10 issue of the Federal Register, "The identification of a site for the NPL is intended primarily to guide EPA for determining which sites warrant further investigation to assess the nature and extent of public health and environmental risks" and to determine what Superfund-financed "remedial actions, if any, may be appropriate."

Since federal agencies cannot draw funds from the $8.5 billion Superfund, the Department of Agriculture will be responsible for finding governmental resources to finance further sampling of sites and any required cleanup projects.

Kim Kaplan, a spokesman for the Department of Agriculture stressed: "There is no imminent threat to human health or the environment on an emergency basis. The listing means a potential exists for problems and that a specialized investigation needs to be done to confirm what is there. BARC will conduct that investigation."

Nick DiNardo, remedial project manager for the Superfund program said, "With what we know now, it's not what we would call a screaming emergency." He noted that "things need not be done immediately but that there's a potential there, and that's what we have to identify."

Over the years EPA regulations have become more complex and stringent. Superfund legislation was passed in 1980. To meet revised environmental regulations, BARC employed an EPA contractor in 1986 to conduct preliminary site assessments, which were then submitted to EPA.

Kaplan said, "Of the 44 sites studied, 16 had enough information to warrant further evaluation and 28 were dismissed out of hand." Any contamination of the sites would have occurred decades ago. At the time the sites were originally used, no Federal or State hazardous waste disposal regulations were violated.

METRO Site
Only one site was later evaluated in detail—a three to four acre site that was to be part of the 75.3 acre tract being transferred to the Washington Area Transit Authority for use as a service yard at the terminus of the Metrorail Green Line. An investigation undertaken by BARC to support the land transfer was completed in December 1990.

Cleanup is already underway on the affected site which, from the 1940s to about 1975, was used to dispose of biodegradable wastes such as tree limbs and grass clippings, construction debris, glassware and general refuse. Several small empty containers that may have been used to store waste chemicals were also found.

The EPA said that tests of surface water revealed contamination with solvents, PCBs, pesticides and a number of metals, including cadmium, lead and mercury.

A public hearing on the BARC Metro site cleanup was held on January 26.

JOE'S TIPS OF THE WEEK

Hello again !!!

A few complaints we've had this past week concern when vehicles stopped at traffic lights overheat, but then start to cool down when driven away. Yes, these are primarily the problems that result when an electrically controlled fan circuit does not operate. Most of these conditions are related to front wheel drive vehicles, because they have no conventional fan assembly. It is replaced by an electronically controlled cooling fan assembly that is activated by coolant temperature. And, if so equipped, when the air conditioner is turned on, this is supposed to activate the cooling fan circuit. The main condition develops when you are caught in traffic, and the fan circuit does not come on. Then the engine starts to overheat, and then, well, you know the rest!! The most common fault found with these systems is the controller sensor that is located in the cooling system. This tells the circuit how hot the engine coolant is and, when it gets to its designated temperature setting it grounds the circuit through a relay and turns the fan on. If you have an overheating condition only related to stop and go traffic, this could be a related factor. This condition will affect the air conditioner output when in traffic due to the fact that there is no air flow across the radiator and condenser areas.
