Weidenfeld Nails Problem Caused By METRO Bus Route Proposals

by S. R. Cherry

Greenbelt Mayor Gil Weidenfeld unleashed a firestorm of criticism on Metro officials over proposed changes to metrobus services in Greenbelt and nearby towns at a public hearing on Thursday, July 8 at Eleanor Roosevelt High School. During his speech, which was interrupted several times by explosive rounds of applause, Weidenfeld told officials to go back and try their planning again, stating, "The success of any transit system is measured by how well it meets the needs of the community. This turnback proposal falls far short of meeting the needs of Greenbelt and other communities as well."

Weidenfeld told Prince Georges County Council chair Hilda R. Pemberton and John P.

Davey of the Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority (WMATA), that the turnback proposals assume the wrong things. He said the proposals assume that all commuters need to go through a Metro station and that replacing express routes with local routes won't discourage use. He also indicated that Metro's proposals don't match the stated goals of the changes.

WMATA planners have proposed a "turnback" of bus services which will affect 31 Metrobus routes in anticipation of the December 11 extension of the Green Line to the Greenbelt station. The bus routes directly affecting Greenbelt bus riders are the F-6, R-11, R-12, R-15, T-15/16. WMATA estimates that the changes will create additional ridership that will increase metrobus revenues by $417,000 and metrorail revenues by $1.6 million annually.

Goals Questioned

Noting that at least two of the new bus routes parallel Metro's green line, Weidenfeld questioned the proposed goal to eliminate duplicative services between the bus and rail systems. Stating that more than half of Greenbelt's bus routes will be eliminated under the proposed plan, he called into question Metro's commitment to improve service for existing riders. Finally, Weidenfeld said that the expressed goal to minimize bus-to-bus transfers would not be achieved under a proposed plan where all bus routes through a Metro station require transfers for riders to reach their destinations.

Weidenfeld told Metro officials that disabled riders and the working poor depend on bus service. He added that some of these commuters are now in danger of losing their jobs under the new plans.

Alternatively, Weidenfeld sug-

Closure of Sunnyside Will Permit RR Crossing Changes

by David Morse

Beginning July 16, Sunnyside Avenue will be closed at the CSX railroad grade crossing for two weekends in July to allow CSX to make improvements to the crossing, according to the Prince Georges County Department of Public Works and Transportation. (See box for specific times.) The roadway will also be widened to accommodate turning lanes into the entrance to be built for METRO's Greenbelt Service and Inspection Yard which is now under construction. Travelers are advised to use alternate routes during the construction.

According to John Groeger, a traffic engineer with the department, the changes will make the crossing more traffic-friendly. The vertical alignment of the road will be elevated and the existing timber trackbed will be replaced with a rubberized material. Said Groeger, "The vertical alignment will be a lot smoother so that there's not such a jolt going over the tracks." He added that because the traffic volume is high (12,000 cars a day on weekdays), the department refused CSX's initial request to close the road for 10 consecutive days.

METRO will be "piggybacking" some other work onto the grade crossing improvements, according to Colin Myers, construction engineer in charge of the service yard project, in order to avoid additional road closures. The roadway will be widened to four lanes east of the crossing to accommodate additional traffic expected at the entrance to the service yard to be constructed there. A left-turn lane will be added for westbound traffic and a right-turn lane for eastbound traffic. Furthermore, all subsurface utilities will be extended across Sunnyside during the July closures.

GEAC Seeks Overpass at Roosevelt

by James Giese

The Greenbelt East Advisory Coalition (GEAC) now officially supports the construction of a pedestrian overpass across Greenbelt Road for student access to Eleanor Roosevelt High School. GEAC President Tim Sechrist of Greenbrook Estates advised the representatives of the five homeowners associations in attendance at the July 8 meeting that five of the six associations, the number required for GEAC to take a position, had concurred that an overpass was needed.

Sheldon Goldberg, Windsor Green's representative, noted that there was a caveat to his association's endorsement. It wished to see plans for the overpass since Windsor Green property would be involved on the South side of the highway.

Dorothy Pyles of Greenbriar indicated that it was important to relate the overpass to the trail plan for Greenbelt East set forth by the Maryland-National Capital Parks and Planning Commission staff in its study of new Greenbelt and old Greenbelt.

The next step is for GEAC Secretary Dan Lowery of Greenwood Village to prepare letters to each and every political figure who might be able to assert some kind of influence over the decision to construct the overpass.

Information is also needed on the number of students crossing the highway. Goldberg pointed out that there weren't just students at the school had a number of adult educational programs and activities. Pyles noted the school was in use all but six days of the year.

Metrobus Route Changes

It was noted that the hearing on bus route changes was taking place that same evening. GEAC had agreed to send a letter expressing concern but had not yet done so. It was agreed that the letter should be sent during the period of time the record for the hearing would be kept open.

Sechrist noted that many in Greenbelt East would want to continue to use the New Carrollton station. Lowery noted that a Greenwood Village board member expressed the view that the city didn't need two bus hubs next to each other — the Greenbelt station and the Beltway Plaza.

The Lake

Margaret Powell of Greenbrook Village read a written report prepared by Patty Morris about Greenbrook Lake or Schrom Hills Lake—the lake planned as a storm water retention facility in Schrom Hills Park. According to the report the city engineers have completed their survey and determined that the previous delineation of wetlands was essentially correct.

Morris reported that city staff expects to meet soon with the Corps of Engineers, after which city engineers will prepare a revised design with various permitting options for council's approval. Morris's report noted that water is ponding in the lake area and that open water is not considered to be wetland area that will need to be replaced. However, in the current dry spell, the size of the ponded area has shrunk significantly.

(According to Celia Wilson,

Director of Planning and Community Development for the city, the meeting with George Harrison of the Corps of Engineers was scheduled for July 14. The city seeks maximum permissible disturbance of the wetland area in order to enlarge the pond

July 22 Hearing On Parking Waiver

A notice of a public hearing has been posted on the front lawn of Center School near the parking lot entrance advising of a public hearing to be held by the Prince Georges Planning Board of the Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission on a request by the city of Greenbelt for a parking waiver. The hearing will be held on Thursday, July 22 at 8:30 p.m. at the Council Hearing Room at the County Administration Building in Upper Marlboro.

The waiver is for 77 parking spaces out of 287 required for the planned community center in accordance with county parking standards, which vary depending upon building size and use.

The city plans to increase parking availability by redesigning the library lot, constructing additional spaces to the rear and utilizing the existing basketball courts for overflow parking. It does not however intend to provide the 287 spaces required.

For further information, call the MNCPPC Zoning Section at 953-3280.

Nearby Lake Artemesia Offers Recreation Alternative

by James Giese

Greenbelt Lake now has a rival — a somewhat bigger rival known as Lake Artemesia. Located next to the Metrorail tracks and the railroad tracks in College Park (on the Berwyn Heights side), Lake Artemesia was created in conjunction with the construction of Metro and is now operated by the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission (MNCPPC).

Like Greenbelt Lake in Buddy Attick Park, Lake Artemesia has a path encircling it, a boat rental stand and a peninsula. There the similarity ends.

Lake Artemesia is newly constructed and lacks the wooded shoreline of Greenbelt Lake, although the land east of the lake is wooded. While there are extensive tree plantings along the shore, the lake will never achieve the natural woodland ambience of Greenbelt Lake as the trees are evenly-spaced.

Election Is Over

Virginia, the election is over. The membership has rejected statements of gloom and doom regarding GHI's management.

Today, GHI's financial status is the healthiest that it has been since 1953. We have necessary reserves that are fully funded except for the masonry contingency reserve. The Cooperative has no debts except for the mortgages resulting from the financing and rehabilitation program of the early 1980's.

The cooperative has well conceived short and long range maintenance programs. In addition to responding to members' daily maintenance calls which 97% of the members who respond have evaluated as being good or excellent, the cooperative does ongoing preventive maintenance work.

In an obvious reference to me in your letter to the editor—"one former Board member who attended meetings only in warm weather," you reach a new low. For personal reasons I have been going south for the three months for more than the last 10 years.

Letters to the Editor An Eyesore

For the Pits

I am trying to get new horseshoe pits installed in Greenbelt, but I need to know how many people are interested. Persons of any age and either sex are welcome and no skills are necessary.

However, the Council needs to know if there's a sufficient number of persons interested before they will assist in the formation and development of a horseshoe group.

Air Quality Public Forum

The 1990 Clean Air Act Amendment (CAAA) requires the Washington region to reduce emissions that contribute to unhealthy air by 15 percent by 1996.

This set of measures will be reviewed and discussed at a series of public forums. The forum scheduled for this area will be held on Wednesday, July 21, at the University of Maryland Center of Adult Education in the Volunteer Firefighters Room.

The forum will begin at 6 p.m. with a one-hour information session followed by a presentation on air quality issues at 7 p.m. Public comments will follow at 8 p.m.

clustered as to variety and separated by large open areas in which are planted large clusters of a wide variety of shrubs as well as open areas of grass, some cut and some allowed to grow naturally.

Paved Paths

Except in one section where the path is a combination of gravel, grass, dirt and mud walls, the circumferential path is paved asphalt, 14 feet wide. It is 1.4 miles long around the 37 acre lake as compared to about 1.1 miles for the path around the 23 acre Greenbelt Lake. The path is well suited for bicycling, and about half of the users were on bikes. Many of the bikes were equipped with baby seats or training wheels to accommodate the younger members of the family. On the peninsula there are concrete and brick walks as well.

A large peninsula divides the lake in two, leaving only a narrow waterway between the end of the peninsula and the eastern shore of the lake. An arched bridge connects the walk on the peninsula to the eastern shore and connects with the park entrance from the nearby Anacostia trail which follows alongside Indian Creek. This pathway is also paved and suitable for bicycling.

Restrooms

The boat rental facility, which has public restrooms, is located at the foot of the peninsula. At present, it does not sell food. Besides space for a park attendant's booth, the small building offers some storage and workspace for park maintenance. The area around the pavilion is ornamentally paved in brick and concrete as are several other areas on the peninsula. A wooden boat dock encloses a small corner of the lake where water lily and other ornamental water plantings have been placed.

Further out on the peninsula is a gazebo over the water and another plaza with ornamental paving and numerous benches. Many benches have been placed throughout the park. At the gazebo, a large snake was observed in the water, and a frequent park user commented that the snake was there before the gazebo had been built and that it lived among the shore rocks.

Trophy Bass

Lake Artemesia has been stocked with bass and other fish by the Maryland Department of Natural Resources. A fishing license is required, as is the case with Greenbelt Lake which also has been stocked with fish from time to time. The lake has been designated a "Trophy Bass Fishing Area" which means, according to a parks spokesperson, that if the stocked fish manage not to be caught, they will eventually reach trophy size.

There were about a dozen fishermen at the lake. The north side of the peninsula was the favorite spot.

Lake Artemesia lacks waterfowl — no ducks or geese or swans. I did see what I think was a lone red-throated loon feeding along a weedy section of the shoreline. What appeared to be bluebird houses have been placed along the perimeter fence line, but I saw no residents.

The lake area is entirely fenced and has gates at the two entrances that can be shut when the park is closed. Park supervision was much more prominent than at Greenbelt Lake. There was a weekend attendant at the main gate near the parking lot. Another attendant was at the boat dock. As I left, a MNCPPC Park Police patrol officer drove into the park.

Creek, the Anacostia Trail, which begins at 57th Avenue in Berwyn Heights just off Greenbelt Road and goes south to Calvert Road and beyond. The park was built as an environmental park. There is no traffic through the park and it is intended that many of the users will walk or ride to the facility. Additional parking is available at the Ellen Linson Swim Center on Calvert Road with access via the nearby Anacostia Trail. This necessitates a walk of more than a mile to reach the lake.

The lake and park, including the facilities, were built by the Washington Metropolitan Tran-

Lake Artemesia as viewed from one of the plazas along the south shore of the peninsula. The gazebo is in the distance.

A small parking lot for the lake is to the left and well signed. On a nice day the lot quickly fills to overflowing. There is about a block walk to the lake from the parking lot and the main park facilities are a couple blocks further. Near the parking lot is a foot bridge over the Metro and railroad tracks to provide foot access to College Park.

The lake also can be accessed from the pathway along Indian sit Authority (Metro) which needed to build the lake in order to construct the Metro E line to Greenbelt. The park was turned over to MNCPPC last July. MNCPPC had been closely involved with the planning and design of the park. Since assuming responsibility, MNCPPC has added the water lily pond and more plantings.

BUS ROUTES

gested that Metro add later evening and Sunday service and that officials continue direct service to the New Carrollton station, Beltway Plaza and the University of Maryland. He also advocated using smaller buses for routes with low ridership instead of eliminating them. Most importantly, Weidenfeld implored WMATA planners to make no changes to bus routes until 90 days after the green line has opened.

State Senator Leo Green (who represents Greenbelt), is a member of the Maryland General Assembly's Budget and Taxation Committee, which considers appropriation of funds for public projects. Green suggested the establishment of a preliminary advisory committee to pre-empt potential problems.

Bus Changes

Route R-11, the Greenbelt express line between Beltway Plaza, Springhill Lake, Central Greenbelt and the New Carrollton Metro Station, would be eliminated. Riders would have to use the local T-15 route that runs between Greenbelt and New Carrollton Metro Stations. Similarly, the R-15 express line from Greenbelt East to New Carrollton Metro Station would also be discontinued and part of the new R-12 would be similar to the R-15.

According to Dianne Niedner, an R-15 commuter, the proposed changes represent a decrease in services which will produce a decrease in ridership. Niedner said the proposed rerouting to the Metro green line will create three transfers to her daily commute in each direction. The T-15 in its current configuration is approximately a half hour longer than the current R-15 route in the direction of New Carrollton's orange line. The green line which connects to the red and yellow lines will also be accessible by the T-15.

The T-15 route would be a renaming of the current T-16 route. The portion of the route between Cherrywood Lane and Ivy Lane would be replaced by Routes 87 and 89. T-15 service into Beltway Plaza would be eliminated.

Not on Sunday

None of the proposed bus changes include Sunday service or evening service to the seven day per week Green Line which, like the rest of Metro, will remain open until midnight. Irene Hensel, representing the Greenbelt commuter organization Save Our Buses, complained to officials about the lack of Sunday service. She argued, "What good is having the train if we can't get to the train."

Paul Gilden questioned the logic of Metro's stated intent to provide incentives for commuters to conserve energy by using public transportation rather than driving. He pointed out that Metro doubled bus fares to suburban Maryland stations a few years ago and eliminated fare reducing rail to bus transfers more recently. The increased fares and lack of transfers means that local commuters now pay $2.00 more per day to get to their destinations. However, Gilden added, the rail transfers can still be used to reduce parking fees at lots at rail stations. Using the transfers drivers can park at stations for $1.50 per day. The policy, according to Gilden, translates to a subsidy for people who drive to stations and a premium for those who commute by bus.

Casual Dress Helps Cerebral Palsy Soc.

Thousands of workers throughout Prince Georges and Montgomery Counties dressed a bit more casually on June 18 to support United Cerebral Palsy. Over 100 participating businesses and organizations permitted casual dress to be worn by employees contributing five dollars to United Cerebral Palsy (UCP). Dress varied from tieless to shorts to sporting the latest message tee-shirts.

The local Casual Day was part of a national fundraising activity by UCP. Close to $2,000,000 is estimated to have been raised. At least $25,000 is estimated as having been donated by local supporters in Prince Georges and Montgomery Counties.

Employees of county governments in both Prince Georges and Montgomery Counties participated, as did employees from businesses, both large and small. Customers at banks throughout the area were in some instances greeted by tellers in shorts wearing their Casual Day buttons. Attorneys, accountants and

by Jerry Conway

The Greenbelt Senior Softball team ended the first half of the league's 28 games with seven wins and seven losses. In the last three games of the first half the Greenbelt Seniors defeated Howard County 24-10 and Montgomery County 12-5. Jerry Conway slammed two homeruns and two triples in the game against Howard County. Wortha Maye scored two triples, and pitched a good game. All other of the 17 players had good fielding and hitting. We lost a close game to Catonsville 8-10.

On July 7 Greenbelt lost a close game to Dundalk 8-12. Joe Murray and Sonny Raley each made a double play, and Lonny Raley hit his first triple. Dundalk scored three homeruns in this game at Dundalk where the temperature was in the 90's. This was the first game of the second half in the Baltimore County League, and we hope the remaining games have cooler temperatures.

Jim McGann, Bill Bevan and Harry Maloney will play in the All Star game at Parkville on Monday, July 12. They will represent Greenbelt Seniors, and the other Greenbelt team members will practice on Braden Field along with other interested Greenbelt Seniors who come to practice. We hope to do as well or better in the second half of the season.

while the Corps seeks minimal. That portion of the area determined to be open water is not part of the impacted area. If disturbance to wetlands involves less than an acre, the city can obtain a "nationwide permit" from the Corps, a simple permit procedure.

The city is considering as a design alternative a series of small ponds along the drainage channel. These other ponds would not be in wetland areas, but would bring a water view to more of the homes in the Greenbrook Village area.)

Other Business

In other business:

—Pyles and Lowery agreed to prepare a report on the problem of roaming students from the high school. Pyles noted that many students had different school hours because of work-study programs and facetiously wished that these students could wear specially colored clothing to distinguish them from kids playing hooky. Complaints noted were a recent police report incident of assault and theft on the Spellman overpass, use of Greenbriar recreational facilities by non-residents, "making-out" in a residential parking lot and an attempted carjacking.

—Goldberg reported that Windsor Green had held an election of officers and he was now the association's president.

—Trees have been removed to clear the land area for Greensprings II subdivision along the south-west side of Hanover Parkway. Concern was expressed that areas were cleared that shouldn't have been. (Celia Wilson advised that the work is being monitored by city inspectors and that she is not aware of any designated "save trees" areas being disturbed.)

—A "For Sale" sign has been erected at the end of Mandan Road on property outside but next to the city limits. Its effect on the extension of Mandan Road was questioned. It was understood that two small parcels are involved, zoned for town homes, with a maximum of 13 units permitted on the larger lot.

—Hunting Ridge is still seeking an easement for parking for a portion of the land to be dedicated to the city by the developers of Greenbrook Manor, according to that association's representative, Jim Hartman. This can't be done until the development is ready to go and the owners are prepared to deed the land to the city. Greenbrook Manor is located to the south of Hunting Ridge, but the land to be deeded is to the north along Hanover Parkway. (Wilson anticipates dedication at the time of final subdivision expected in the early fall with construction work to begin in the fall. The city has not agreed to granting an easement and will not do so until Hunting Ridge furnishes a plan designating the area to be used for parking.

—Pyles advocated getting homeowner association resident managers to be authorized to take voter registrations for the upcoming city elections. "You have to get your ducks in a row," she stated.

—The next meeting will be on Thursday, August 5 at the Windsor Green Community Center. The September meeting, scheduled for the Greenbriar Community Center, will be postponed from the first to second Thursday of the month, September 9, because of the Labor Day weekend.
