Bicycle Lanes to be Constructed Next Spring along Crescent Rd.

by Diane Oberg

At its September 12 regular meeting, the Greenbelt City Council approved construction of bicycle lanes along Crescent Road, took the first step in putting teeth into city election requirements, approved installing signs at the city's entrances and received an advisory board report on possible solutions to the closure of a sidewalk near Forestway.

Bike Lanes

Construction of the Crescent Road bike lanes has been delayed until spring to allow resolution of drainage and sediment control problems. At an August 22 worksession, council appeared ready to approve construction this fall. However, in response to concerns raised by Councilmember Thomas White, city consulted with the engineering firm Greenman-Pederson, Inc. The company found drainage problems at Lastner Lane and Northway that require additional hydrology studies. In addition, more soil must be moved than originally expected, triggering need for Soil Conservation Service approval of a sediment and erosion control plan and a county grading permit.

Construction of the lanes this year is possible, City Manager Daniel Hobbs told council. Doing so, however, would require skipping the normal reviews by council and advisory boards, unusually quick approval of two sets of permits and unusually warm November weather. Council approved Hobbs' recommended schedule, under which full review will occur and the project be sent to bid in January. This will allow construction at the earliest possible time this spring.

In another bicycle issue, council approved Councilmember Rodney Roberts' suggestion to send a letter to local bicycle shops asking that they not direct customers to Greenbelt parkland for mountain bike riding. While Roberts said he did not object to mountain biking, the Parcel 1-2 park is attracting groups of bikers, he said, who are creating new trails throughout the woods.

Signage Plan

Council approved installation of 13 signs at city entranceways. Nine will be oblong monument signs on stone bases (approx. $1,200 each). These will be installed on Greenbelt Road west of the city limit, Hanover Parkway north of Good Luck Road, Kenilworth Avenue north at Greenbelt Road near Chef's Secret on the Metro Station property, at the exits off the Baltimore-Washington Parkway (2 signs) and at the exits of the Capital Beltway (2 signs). Pole-mounted signs ($500 each) will be installed on Kenilworth Avenue north of Good Luck Road, Cherrywood Lane at Breezewood Dr., Kenilworth Avenue at Cherrywood Lane and Research Road at the city limit.

Woman Injured in Collision With Car Fleeing Police

by David Morse

A Bowie woman was injured in a head-on collision with a vehicle fleeing U.S. Park Police as she attempted to enter the Baltimore-Washington Parkway using the Southway entrance ramp on Saturday, September 17.

The victim, Shiny Philipose, 24, suffered a broken leg and head and chest injuries and was transported by ambulance to Prince Georges General Hospital. The driver of the fleeing vehicle, Val-tann Ayres, 22, of Landover, was not injured.

Park Police said Ayres was charged with fleeing to elude, reckless driving, driving at unreasonable speed, and other charges. He was taken into custody at the scene and later released on personal recognizance. He is scheduled to appear in the federal U.S. Magistrate Court in Hyattsville November 3.

The Park Police officer who engaged in the pursuit, who asked not to be identified, said that he attempted to make a traffic stop at about 10:15 a.m. on the Parkway near Md. Route 197 in Laurel of a car with no front license plate and illegally tinted windows. The driver of the vehicle refused to stop and took off at a high rate of speed. The officer lost sight of the vehicle "after about a minute," he said, and broke off the chase.

The officer said that he was unaware that the vehicle had entered the Southway exit ramp and would have continued southbound on the Parkway had he not heard the sound of the crash a few minutes later.

The fleeing vehicle apparently failed to negotiate the curve on the Southway exit ramp and crossed the narrow grassy median between the exit and entrance ramps, where it collided with the entering vehicle.

The crash took place just across from the Co-op Service Station, and its aftermath was witnessed by numerous onlookers.

"Everybody heard the tires squeal," said John Westman, a cashier at the station, who saw the accident. "When they hit, it was like a big cloud of dust... It was a hard impact. I was surprised she wasn't hurt (more seriously). The cars (then) spun around... and almost touched rear bumpers."

He said that while the angle of impact was virtually head-on, the vehicles struck each other left of center.

Several Co-op employees said they rushed out to give assistance. One said he comforted a distraught resident who had been driving with her grandson just ahead of the fleeing vehicle on the off-ramp. "She said, 'He just missed me,'" said the employee, who asked not to be identified. "She'd slowed down to 25 miles per hour."

U.S. Park Police Lt. Patrick F. O'Brien, commander of the Greenbelt Park Station, said it was unclear why the suspect fled. "We were concerned about the safety of the officer, and the citizens around here," he said, emphasizing that pursuit was ended early. Investigation of the incident is continuing, he said.

Carolina Godinez Crowned Miss Greenbelt for 1994

by Sandy Smith

Carolina Godinez, a senior at Eleanor Roosevelt High School, is Miss Greenbelt for 1994. She was crowned during the Labor Day Festival in the final evening of the Miss Greenbelt Pageant. She was sponsored in the pageant by the Greenbelt Fraternal Order of Police. As Miss Greenbelt, Carolina will receive $1,000 in scholarship funds as well as numerous prizes and gifts awarded by area businesses and organizations. Carolina was also chosen Miss Congeniality and Most Spirited by the other contestants.

Carolina plans a career as a nurse and has been doing volunteer work with a group called Amigos, providing immunizations to children. She described the pageant as a wonderful experience. Her talent presentation was the song "On My Own" from the Broadway show "Les Miserables."

Runners Up

Jacklyn Hay, sponsored by NationsBank, was first runner-up. She is a senior at Eleanor Roosevelt High School and plans a career in architecture and interior design. Her hobbies are ice-skating and horseback riding. Jenny Parker, also a senior at ERHS, was sponsored by McCarl Dentistry, and was chosen second runner-up. She plans a career in marine biology and is now involved in choosing a college to pursue that education. Deidre Martin, third runner-up this year, was first-runner-up in last year's pageant. She's an ERHS junior and was sponsored by Greenbelt Nursing Center. Her career options include wildlife management. Each of these finalists receives scholarship grants.

Other finalists were Tracey Still, Tara Schwab, Heather Hart and Susie Nelson. Katie Lee and Brandy Altice tied for the highest modelling score. While Katie Lee's award was announced from the stage, Brandy's recognition is being announced now for the first time. Janine Mullings was recognized for the highest semi-finalist interview score, and among the semi-finalists, Lisa Bailey and Ellen Gervasi tied for the highest participation score.

Other contestants in the Pageant were: Heather Durance, Erin Hyde, Erin McChesney, Angie Kowmas and Natasha Ward. The contestants spent the summer months in rehearsals fund-raisers, community events, and special occasions. They had a professional photo session. They appeared three successive evenings on the Labor Day Festival stage — opening evening with a beach theme performance, modeling and talent presentation, and on the final presentation, evening gown and public speaking competition. Miss Greenbelt 1986 Niki Buemi performed sign language interpretation for the Pageant events. Local radio personality, Rick Lee See MISS GREENBELT, page 6

Pool Problems

Since its opening, the indoor pool has had many service problems: dirty pool water and deck, no hot water in the showers, unclean bathrooms and locker areas, improper water temperature, and so on. But I assumed that once the bugs were out, so to speak, the pool would be fine. I was wrong. Now I believe that these problems are not simply minor bugs to be corrected, but symptoms of the failure of the pool's management.

My children cannot tolerate the indoor pool's low temperatures for more than 15 minutes. Despite repeated pleadings from me and others, the indoor pool water temperature is set brisk for power swimmers, not comfortable for kids and seniors and non-athletes. To make matters worse, the lifeguards refuse to close the roof panels or the door behind the guard desk, creating drafts. They leave the panels open during cool nights, reducing the water and air temperature and wasting energy.

The lifeguards know that cold water will keep the pool's usage low and will prevent kids from swimming. This reduces their workload and allows more time for studying etc. The lifeguards also prefer cool air temperatures. Cooler air is comfortable for them, but not for most swimmers exiting an already cold pool. (A lifeguard explained to me that they get uncomfortable if the air gets warm — he was wearing two shirts) Real lifeguards take off their shirts and take a dip in the pool to cool off.) The bottom line for our lazy lifeguards is the fewer the patrons, the easier the job.

I have very little confidence that the current pool managers can improve service. I suggest that the city hire an outside management firm to run the pool. The firm's contract could be dependent on surveys of patron satisfaction or we could give the contractor a share of the pool revenues. Unless something changes, I regret that my family cannot take advantage of the pool that my present and future tax dollars support. We deserve better.

Think Schrom

I have only two words to say about the Labor Day Festival: Schrom Park. It certainly is time for New Greenbelt to share in the excitement and experience of the festival. I believe it would serve to draw the disparate parts of our fair city together. Let's think about this for next year instead of the usual "we've never done it that way before."

SUBSCRIPTIONS AND DEADLINE INFORMATION

MAIL SUBSCRIPTIONS: $30 per year. Alternate View

There are alternative viewpoints to that of Mr. Buzzanco in his letter to the editor published in the Sept. 8 issue of the News Review. My view is that the News Review editorial, which he criticized was intended to encourage more GHI members to participate in the annual GHI budget process. The GHI Board of Directors began the budget process earlier this year, increased the number of meetings involving the budget, and has continuously attempted to elicit more membership participation. A few members have attended, but certainly not as many as anyone would like. Insofar as the News Review article, Mr. Buzzanco's letter, and this letter encourage more participation by the membership, they will have served a good purpose.

Mr. Buzzanco also refers to a turnover in elective offices in GHI during the last election. The membership is free to decide for itself whether there has been an overwhelming change. My viewpoint is that a) two incumbents of the Board were reelected with the highest vote totals, b) one member of the previous Audit Committee was elected to the Board, c) one member who had not held previous Board or Audit Committee office was elected to the Board, and d) two of the three members elected to the Audit Committee had not served on the Board or Audit Committee before, but only one of the previous incumbents ran for reelection. In any case, whatever your viewpoint, perhaps the best purpose to be served by discussion of the last election is to encourage others to consider running for office in future elections.

Open Letter

Honorable Council Members:

The purpose of this letter is to protest the placing of campaign posters in the residential areas in our city of Greenbelt. I thought that Greenbelt had designated certain areas for these hideous campaign posters, but I am seeing them all over the town in yards, on street corners, etc. I would prefer banning them altogether.

My protest is: One: a candidate should not rely on a poster to persuade someone to vote for her/him. The money spent on these posters could be used in other ways, such as hosting public meetings or debates that would define the background and positions of the candidate. Two: a voter should research the candidate and not rely on seeing a name on a poster. It is sad to think that the voters would rely on posters to determine which candidate best fits the position.

Ecologically speaking also, why waste trees on eyesores? Greenbelt does not need the clutter of political posters.

Rita G. Wood

Thanks

As a volunteer with Greyhound Pets of America (GPA) and a proud resident of Greenbelt, I want to thank the Public Works Department for providing such a nice area for our dogs after the Labor Day parade. Over the past three years, I have volunteered hours at different events, such as city days, and craft shows, and my organization has never been accorded such a well-thought out area.

Similar sentiments were expressed by other GPA volunteers, some of whom were visiting Greenbelt for the first time that day. Sensitive to a concern about the temperature and to the fact that the greyhounds are capable of great speed if they get loose, we were provided with an enclosed area under a sprawling huge tree that provided plenty of shade. The dogs were very relaxed and definitely very comfortable. The enclosed area made it possible for plenty of children, as well as adults, to get up close and personal with the dogs, much to everyone's delight.

I would like to thank the Greenbelt Labor Day Festival Committee for their thoughtfulness as well. Our entry point into the parade was well planned and made a stress-free one for the dogs. In case any one was wondering, the dogs clearly enjoyed themselves. They experienced such a wonderful reception from people, both along the parade route and at the booth afterwards.

Of course, the GPA volunteers were thrilled for GPA to be awarded first prize in the service category. Thank you, Greenbelt, for your support.

Commendations

I commend Janet Parker's "Rebuttal" letter to Leonard Wallace's "Clarification" letter on Sept. 1. I agree completely with Ms. Parker's position concerning GHI committees. Information should be shared "during and after meetings, not before, and with the approval of all members." Also, if one is to think the GHI Resales Issues Committee members are to be independent and unbiased, as implied in Mr. Wallace's letter of August 25, then why does Mr. Wallace send potential committee members information about the committee on his own business letterhead? How unbiased is that?

Unfortunately, it appears his agenda is to assist his own business needs. Good job, Janet Parker, for informing GHI members as to "what's up" with this GHI Committee. We need members like you on the committee to represent the best interests of all GHI members.

Chris Sterno

Open Letter

To Mayor Bram:

I have been worrying for several weeks about your comments regarding the police blotter. I cannot grasp how covering up the existence of crime is going to make it go away or help concerned citizens develop strategies to deal with it.

The days when it was safe for the community to gather to watch a fight appear to have ended sometime between John Wayne's "Quiet Man" (circa 1953) and the killing of an innocent 13 year old spectator shot within sight of ERHS. I fear we must teach our children to leave the scene of a fight, just as we taught them not to get in a car with a stranger.

In addition, a practical matter, if you expect the taxpayers to pay for additional police protection at ERHS, you need to let them know why this is necessary.

You express fear that people will move out of the oasis that is Greenbelt if they hear of crime. Unless they leave the Metropolitan area, just where are they going to go? Into one of the neighborhoods where these "non resident" criminals come from?

Please restore rapid public access to uncensored police information. The public is better able to look out for its own safety when the hard facts of criminal activity are presented in a public media, rather than attempting decisions in a climate of "managed news," rumor, and gossip that is otherwise likely to develop.

Service Swap Program Gets Underway Here

Considerable progress toward the establishment of a Time Dollar/Service Exchange program for Greenbelt was made at the second organizing workshop on Saturday, September 17. Marge Bergemann, president of the city's Senior Citizens Advisory Committee (SCAC), chaired the session.

Representatives of civic and religious groups voted to adopt the name GIVES for Greenbelt Intra-generational Volunteer Exchange Service. J. Davis, city council member; Norman McCarthy, Knights of Columbus; Janet Parker, Gray Panthers; and Leah Warner, Greenbelt Community Church, agreed to serve on a project Design committee. Pot Unger, SCAC vice-president, will convene its first meeting in mid October.

That group will begin to plan the tasks of securing stable funding, recruiting and training of volunteers, registering service receivers, and publishing a brochure. Eleanor Baker and Farrell Didio of the Cooperative Caring Network will assist. CCN is an area-wide service exchange network already in operation.

A 19-minute video is available with a speaker for any city group wishing to learn more about this new way for neighbors to help neighbors. Anyone seeking more information should call Karen Haseley at the Youth Center at 474-6878.

Grace B. Garnand

Grace B. Garnand of Crescent Rd. died on September 16. She had celebrated her 91st birthday in July. A longtime resident of Greenbelt, Mrs. Garnand moved to Greenbelt in 1952.

She is survived by grandsons Linwood, James (Jimbo) and John Leckliter; David, Curtis and Monte Tirey; granddaughters Marlene Carlton and Nina Dietrich; 17 great grandchildren and nine great-great grandchildren. Her children Mercedes Leckliter and Nina Tirey preceded her in death.

Services were held Tuesday, September 20 at Gasch's Funeral Home. Interment was at Fort Lincoln Cemetery.

In Memoriam

Grace B. Garnand, 91 years young, passed away on September 16. She will be missed by many family and friends in Greenbelt where she has lived for 44 years.

She first lived with her daughter and helped raise five of her grandchildren while her daughter worked. Later she lived in her own apartment on Crescent Rd.

She was always there with a big smile and helping hand for all who passed her way. If you needed a friend to talk with or a hot meal or someone to sit with someone who was ill, or a few dollars, Grace was there to help. She helped friends and strangers alike. She never turned anyone down.

Her greatest pleasure was babysitting her many great and great-great grandchildren right up into her nineties.

I have been blessed to have such a wonderful friend. We met at Fireside where we both worked in the 60's. She was loved by everyone there, customers and fellow workers alike.

In all our years we have never met a kinder, more loving lady. A great lady has gone from us but we will all have our own wonderful memories of her.

We all love her and will miss her and send our love and prayers to our dearest friend.

Jaycee's Clubhouse To Fix or Demolish?

The Jaycee's clubhouse, a small building located next to St. Hugh's school, has served in the past as a meeting place for various local organizations (including, of course, the Jaycees). Because in recent years, the building has fallen into disrepair, it does not meet code requirements for any habitable use.

In 1992, Director of Public Works Carl Hirsch estimated that it would take $44,800 to bring the building up to code. During its deliberations on the city budget for fiscal year 1994-95 (which runs from July 1, 1994 to June 30, 1995), the city council discussed whether to make the necessary repairs to bring the building up to code or whether to demolish the building. Council decided that while the city government does not have use for the building, private organizations in the community might be interested in having a meeting place such as this and would be willing to put time and money into restoring it in return for exclusive use.

In the fiscal year 1994-95 city budget, the city council appropriated $10,000 for the Jaycee clubhouse. These funds are to be used in one of two ways: 1) If the city is contacted by an organization willing to renovate the building, these funds will be provided to assist this effort. The renovated clubhouse will then be leased to the organization for a nominal fee. 2) If no such organization is found, these funds will be used to demolish the building.

The city is eager to hear from any organization that might be interested in such an arrangement with the city. Interested parties may contact Eric Berlin at 474-8000.

Lenore Thomas Photos Donated to the Museum

Descendants of Lenore Thomas Strauss have recently donated a series of black and white photos to Friends of the Greenbelt Museum. The photos depict Strauss sculpting the Mother and Child statue in the Center Mall and the friezes on the Community Center. Biographical information among the documents recounted how Lenore Thomas, a native of the Chicago area, after moving to Washington was hired as a sculptor by Adrian Dornbush, Director of the Special Skills Division of the Resettlement Administration.

"The carving for the (Greenbelt) town center was done in my studio in Accokeek," she wrote. "One of Tugwell's last acts as Administrator was to procure the stone for this carving . . . I worked alone on (the statue) for more than a year . . . The government paid $7.00 a day to rent the air compressor I used and my WPA wage was $5.40.

Festival Marks Farm Heritage

The sixth annual Prince Georges Farm Heritage Festival is like stepping back in time for a glimpse of life on the farm. This unique two-day event, held September 24-25 at the Prince Georges Equestrian Center in Upper Marlboro, is a celebration of the county's agricultural heritage.

Festival events include jousting, tractor and horse pulls, a "Parade of Power" featuring hundreds of antique tractors, trucks, cars and horse drawn wagons. For children, the festival offers barnyard games, a kiddie pedal tractor pull, petting farm and free hayrides. Also featured are more than 30 hands-on demonstrations and displays, ranging from quilting and herbs to a live insect zoo, arts and crafts, food, musical entertainment and the "Scare Crow Barnyard."

For information call 627-2270, TDD 699-2544.

I was grateful for the work and felt privileged to do this carving."

Mondo Greenbelt 2 Is Now Available

The second issue of Mondo Greenbelt—a slightly off-beat magazine that features humor, nostalgia, and commentary on the Greenbelt scene—was published in time for this year's Labor Day Festival. Bill Cornett, Mondo Greenbelt's publisher, editor and just about everything else, said that the publication has sold over 300 copies so far, and it is on sale now in Co-op and several other stores in the Roosevelt Center.

This issue of Mondo Greenbelt features a cover story on "Hang-in' Out at the Center", as well as stories on what it's like to marry a Greenbelter and then move him out of town, a day in the life of a Greenbelt Police officer, shooting rats at the old Greenbelt Dump, restaurant reviews, and other commentary and humor.

Cornett plans to put out at least two issues a year. "I hope to do one for Labor Day, and one for Greenbelt Day, but this has been so successful that I may do one around Christmas as well."

In order to fill those issues, he is looking for contributors. "I am willing to look at anything than can be printed—stories, cartoons, photographs, whatever—that either makes a lighthearted comment on the city or is informative."

Contributors can send material for consideration to Image Excellence Communications, P.O. Box 912, Greenbelt, MD 20768, or call or fax Bill Cornett at 301-989-3362.

Greenbelters Semifinalists For Merit Scholarships

Three Greenbelters, Shi Kim, Regina E. Nelson and Aaron K. Roth, are among thirteen students of Eleanor Roosevelt High School named as semifinalists in the 1995 Merit Scholarship competition.

About one-half of one percent of each state's high school graduating class is represented in the pool of semifinalists. To enter the program juniors took the Preliminary SAT/National Merit Scholarship Test (PSAT/NMS-QT) in 1993. The highest scorers in each state were designated semifinalists in numbers based on the state's percentage of the national total of graduating high school seniors.

To advance to the finalist level, a semifinalist must fulfill additional requirements: have an outstanding academic record, be endorsed by the high school principal and earn SAT I scores that conform to the student's earlier PSAT/NMSQT performance.

Finalists will be considered for National Merit Scholarships and also scholarships given by corporations, foundations and other business organizations, as well as from colleges and universities.

A Greenbelt Gardener

by Rosie Rhubarb

This is the time of year when nature seems to try hardest to brighten up the open, natural spaces around us. The vacant lots, grassy fields, roadsides, and stream valleys are filled with goldenrod, yellow tickseed, and white boneset flowers. Though they are considered weeds and untidy by many people, their rugged beauty brightens up spaces usually filled with just greens and browns.

It seems like the yellow goldenrods can be seen everywhere. That is because there are many varieties of it and they have many different shapes. Some bloom early and others late so their yellow is seen for weeks from the end of July onwards.

Goldenrod is mistakenly believed to cause hayfever this time of year, but it is actually ragweed which is the culprit. Goldenrod is so much more visible, since ragweed flowers just look like tiny green balls lined up on a stick.

The intensely yellow daisy seen in patches along roadsides is tickseed. Big patches of this occasionally form and are quite a sight. The two pronged seed (which gives it its name) can be scattered in the informal part of the garden and will come up, but not in a predictable manner.

The tall yellow daisies can be seen along streams, such as the one near the intersection of Crescent Road and Kenilworth Avenue.

The white flowers of boneset are not much to speak of when seen close up. But from a distance their white combines with goldenrod and tickseed to give a pretty display.

The hardiness, reliability, and late bloom of these flowers is valued by some plant breeders and they have developed some varieties of these flowers for the home garden. So in the future we may see more derivatives of these wildings in our home gardens.

Bicycle Lanes

The city's capital improvements budget provides $20,000 in the current year's budget for the signage program. The signs will be constructed of wood with metal inserts of the city's logo.

This is the first stage of a three-stage city signage plan. Phase Two involves street signs and Phase Three the installation of directional signs to key facilities in the city.

Forestway Pathways

The Community Relations Advisory Board (CRAB) report on the closure pathways in the Forestway area was accepted for discussion at an October 13 worksession. In late summer 1992, a property owner constructed a fence that blocked a sidewalk on his property. After receiving complaints from citizens who previously had used the sidewalk and considered it public property, council referred the matter to CRAB.

CRAB stayed away from the legal issues and examined the problem from a community relations standpoint—how could the issue of community access be addressed. The board noted that council may take a different position based upon legal considerations.

The solution proposed by CRAB is to move a fence and extend an existing stone path to the parking lot of the Greenbelt Community Church. This solution would require construction of a footbridge across a small gully.

According to the CRAB report the homeowners affected have agreed to this proposal if the city does the construction work and provides liability insurance and maintenance for the property which will be used by the public.

Election Regulations

Council unanimously approved a charter amendment revising the city's campaign finance reporting requirements. During the last election City Solicitor Robert Manzi determined that under current law, council cannot remove a candidate from the ballot for failure to comply with reporting requirements.

The new law requires candidates to certify their residence within the city and produce documentation of residence if requested. It also makes filing contribution reports a requirement for appearing on the ballot. The resolution will take effect November 1, unless petitioned to referendum. Further legislation will be required after that date to implement these requirements.

Legislation

Greenbelt now has the authority to install parking meters and to ticket violators. Council, on a 3-1 vote, passed legislation drafted in response to the Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority's request that the city monitor the meters at the Metro station. City Manager Daniel Hobbs argued for passage of the legislation, noting that the budget provided for hiring a parking enforcement officer. Since the meters already exist, Hobbs said, he prefers that the city get the revenue.

Councilmember Rodney Roberts voted against the measure, stating his general opposition to parking meters and fear that meters will be installed elsewhere in the city. Hobbs pointed out that the legislation gives council only, not the city manager, authority to approve meter locations. Separate legislation is still required to recognize the Metro meters.

Later in the meeting, council approved a job description for the parking enforcement officer. This position is a civilian post on the Community Development staff, not a police position. Hobbs expects to fill the position within six weeks. He told council that he plans to have this officer concentrate on the commercial areas of the city, specifically mentioning Greenway Center and Beltway Plaza, rather than on residential areas.

Other Actions

Advisory Planning Board Report 94-8, recommending that council "favorably review" the proposal for a Chevy's Restaurant in Greenway Center, was received by council and placed on the agenda of the September 26 regular meeting. In an August 22 worksession, councilmembers voiced approval and support for the new restaurant, which replaces PepsiCo's previous proposal for an "All-In-One" restaurant.

Council accepted the resignations of Lynne Tucker from the Youth Advisory Committee and of Kim McCarl from the Arts Advisory Committee.

Investigation revealed that the man had shot at his own vehicle and then placed the gun inside it. Police recovered a handgun from the vehicle and arrested the man, charging him with carrying a handgun and discharging a handgun. The man, a 21 year old resident, appeared before a District Court Commissioner and was released to the custody of his mother pending trial.

On Tuesday, Sept. 13, a pizza delivery person was attacked by a man with what appeared to be brass knuckles and then robbed. The delivery person had just dropped off a pizza at a residence in the 5800 block of Cherrywood Lane and was walking back to his vehicle. Grants for Student Plans To Fight Crime in School

Maryland high school students TO FIGHT CRIME IN SCHOOL who have ideas about how to combat crime and violence in their schools can get help to implement their plan through a small grant program sponsored by the Center for Political Leadership and Participation at the University of Maryland at College Park.

Through its "Get Ahead" grant program, the Center will fund proposals for activities designed to address any of the problems that contribute to crime and violence in the schools. Grants will range from $50 to $1,000 to be used during the 1994-95 school year.

Effie Lewis, coordinator of the project, said the grants will empower students to take a leadership role in finding solutions for the problems that concern them such as racial unrest, hate crimes, sexual harassment, verbal and physical abuse, date rape, vandalism, and drug and alcohol abuse.

Applicants should provide a short description of the need for the proposed project, a summary of the proposed activity detailing the grant amount requested and how the funds will be used, an evaluation process to determine the success of the project and the name of a faculty sponsor.

For additional information or a grant application, contact Effie Lewis, the Center for Political Leadership and Participation, University of Maryland at College Park, College Park, MD, 20742-6111, (301) 405-5751. Applications must be submitted by Sept. 30.

Council OK's Site Plan For Community Center

by Diane Oberg

The city continues to progress towards the opening of the community center, expected to occur next year. Greenbelt has received a $182,000 grant from the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission for center operating expenses. Of this amount the city expects to use $113,200 for equipment, $28,800 for a security system and $40,000 for the phone system.

In addition, on September 12 council approved a memorandum of understanding with the Commission in which the Commission agrees to support city arts programs and programs for individuals with disabilities. In return, the city must submit a variety of reports and acknowledge the Commission as a contributor in all publications that reference a recreation program sponsored by the city.

Site Plan

At its September 12 regular meeting, council approved a revised site plan for the center. The plan, which the Advisory Planning Board reviewed and supported in report 94-7, features a larger lot near the Youth Center; better "drop-off" provisions at the west entrance and at the Adult Day Care entrance; and connecting paths between the Youth Center and the Community Center. The plan also eliminates use of the basketball court for parking.

The number of parking places has been reduced from 210 to 166 in three lots, including the library lot. However, since the city has deferred construction of a theater at the center, the city's projected peak parking demand has dropped from 226 to 149. Since the county zoning ordinance requires more spaces than are provided, a waiver must be obtained. When unusual events occur, the plan provides for parking along the drive aisles and possibly the access road.

All traffic would enter through the library parking lot entrance. This lot would connect with the expanded Youth Center lot. The Youth Center access road exit near the fitness center would be closed off to vehicles, although it would remain accessible by emergency vehicles.

The councilmembers raised some questions about pedestrian access and traffic flow. Director of Planning and Community Development Celia Wilson noted that this concept stage of the site plan process does not address those issues in detail. She and Kim Paniati of Greenman-Pedersen, Inc. described how they expected these issues to be addressed. Wilson noted that council would later receive a detailed site plan and traffic management plan for the center. Paniati also assured those present that bicycle access will be addressed in those more detailed plans.

BARC Spring Spraying Damages Trees in City

by Betsy Likowski

More than five hundred trees were damaged when herbicide being sprayed in the Beltsville Agricultural Research Center (BARC) drifted into Greenbelt in an incident this spring. The most visible sign was the leaves on trees near Research and Ridge Roads curled up along the edges. According to BARC officials, there was no health risk to humans and most of the trees should recover.

The fields in BARC adjacent to Greenbelt are occasionally sprayed with herbicide. In late April, Banvil and 2,4-D were being used on the fields nearest to Greenbelt - just beyond the wooded strip near Ridge and Research Roads. A turn in the weather brought this into Greenbelt.

The morning started out cool but temperatures rose rapidly into the 80 degree range. The herbicide volatilized (which is analogous to water turning to steam when boiled) and the spray drifted on a light breeze into Greenbelt. A temperature inversion then kept the spray from dispersing quickly.

Area Affected

The spray drifted over the playground near 73 court, then across Ridge Rd.; to the corner of Ridge and Research Roads; and over the Farmgate development on both sides of Research Road. It did not reach the Greenbelt Elementary School property.

The spray made the leaves that had already come out curl on the edges. Worried about what this might mean residents tracked down the cause.

Concerned residents met several times with officials from BARC. A representative from Congressman Steny Hoyer's office also attended. BARC officials surveyed the damage on the ground and from the air. Representatives of the companies that manufacture the herbicides examined the tree damage as did independent arborists.

And the opinion reached was—the trees would probably be fine, but to be on the safe side property owners should give them extra tender loving care (TLC). For trees TLC means getting at least an inch of water a week. An arborist will deep feed the trees in November.

Condition of Leaves

Some leaves have been curled all during the growing season this year. Some trees dropped their leaves early and developed new leaves in their place. This reduced the leaf surface area on the affected trees, the leaf canopy from normal levels. Reduced leaf canopy means less area devoted to the production of food for the trees. The light tree canopy can be seen when walking under these trees, for it seems lighter and more open to the sky.

BARC officials will meet with residents in the spring. BARC will pay for the fertilizing and water used by the residents on the trees. BARC officials "have responded to everything we asked for," said Muriel Balzer, whose property was affected by the spray and who has been involved in setting up the meetings. They "have been very cooperative," she said.

One must look closely to see the damage now. There are some dead or dying trees in the yards closest to the BARC gate on Research Road, but no one knows if this is a result of the spray incident or a result of building the homes, as sometimes happens. At the playground on Ridge Road leaves are curled up on many oak trees.

Soon the leaves will drop and what then in the spring? Hope is offered by the fact that trees can stand a year of defoliation by gypsy moths and be fine.

BARC officials have decided to not mass spray the four fields next to Greenbelt unless they absolutely have to. Regular mowing and spot spraying will be used instead.

Senior Softball

by Jerry Conway

The Greenbelt Senior Softball team played a game with the Bowie 60's for first place in the nine team Baltimore Beltway League. We lost 4-8. The Bowie 60's played the best players they had among forty qualified players under age 64, whereas Greenbelt's team ranged in age from 63 to 74. Bowie played their best fielding and hitting, and Greenbelt Seniors had an off-day, with only nine hits in nine innings. We also had four infield errors in the first inning, which helped Bowie score four runs in the first inning. The Bowie 60's won the first and second half of the 32 games, and Greenbelt came in second among the nine teams in the league.

Greenbelt will play in the Maryland Senior Olympics at Glen Burnie, in the 60-64 age group against seven other all-star teams, including the Bowie 60's. We will use ten new players in that age group for our team.

On September 19, 21, and 26, the Greenbelt Beltway League team will play a round robin playoff for the Baltimore Beltway League Championships of 1994. These games will be played on the four softball fields in Columbia, Maryland from 9:30 a.m. till 1 p.m. This event will conclude the 1994 season.

Many Competitors Help to Promote A Successful Labor Day Festival

by Sandy Smith

The 1994 Greenbelt Labor Day Festival is over. The four-day community event appears to have been a big success—with larger crowds than ever, a new layout with more room for booths and carnival rides, and entertainment that pleased all. The Miss Greenbelt Pageant had more contestants this year than any other in the past decade and offered more scholarship money than ever before.

A full financial accounting will be made when all revenue and expenses are in but so far the financial picture looks good as well. Although non-profit, the Labor Day Festival must raise enough money by the end of the weekend to start planning and handle expenses for the next year's Festival. Because the Festival serves as the primary fundraiser for many community groups, attendance and participation are important for these organizations.

If the overall Festival was a winner, so were many Festival participants who took part in the many activities, from parade to the pet show to the art and photographic exhibition.

Parade Awards

In one of the largest parades in quite some time, the South West Virginia Cloggers won the award for Best in Parade. They were also the winners of the first place award for professional groups appearing in the parade. They clogged their rhythmic dance to "Rocky Top" and got the audience clapping for and with them. The previous day they had pleased the crowd with an innovative stage act featuring the entire company, as well as special dances for the teen, young adult and adult dancers. The group, led by Dana Suthers, traveled almost 300 miles from Rural Retreat, Virginia, to appear in Greenbelt's Labor Day Parade.

Judges reviewed all of the parade entries and made awards in numerous categories. In the automotive category the first place award went to the University of Maryland's Hybrid Electric Car and second place to Potomac Thunderbirds. In the community group, the Greenbelt Girl Scouts won first place followed by the Greenbelt Boys and Girls Club and the Greenbelt Pooper Scoopers in second and third places.

In the drill competition, the Eleanor Roosevelt High School Pom-Poms won first place. The ERHS Air Force Jr. ROTC received the second place award and the Beltsville VFW and Col-

TV "Washingtonia" was judged third in that category. Service is another category for judging, in which the Greyhound Pets of America received the first place award, second place winners were the Central Maryland Amateur Radio Club. In the youth competition, K-company majorettes were first place winners. Second place was awarded to the Greenbelt Lions Trikes and Bikes and third place to the Greenbelt Nursery School.

or Guard came in third. In the category of performing groups, the Greenbelt Dog Training won first place. Their performance included a circle of patient dogs whose owners marched around them giving various commands which were virtually uniformly obeyed. The Alpine Dancers received the second place award and another dancing group, the Laurel Area Square Dancers, were awarded the third place prize.

The Police/Fire entry was won by the DARE organization, which seeks to prevent drug abuse in the community. While the Southwest Cloggers were first place winners in the Professional category, the P.G. County Police Pipe Band was second and SG-

Show was organized and directed by the members of the Girl Scout Cadette Troop 3030, which has been responsible for the pet show for the past three years. The show featured 32 animals of all types who were cheered on to victory by their families and observers. The first-place winners in the cat category are: Audrey Briansky's cat Connie, judged the friendliest; Michael Faherty's cat Shadow, the furriest; Amber Massey's cat Euchre, the cutest and Christopher Bond's cat, Nikki, the prettiest. Among the dogs the winners were Dolly Friend-Gomez's dog Snowball, curliest fur; Chelsea Brianisky's dog Sadie, the liveliest; Chiystal Hawk's dog Sheeba, the most unique bark; Sammy Marionni's dog Stepper, the cutest ears; Katrina Schwartz's dog Kozey, the oldest; Brian Faherty's dog Hank, the friendliest; Jill Foh's dog Spencer, the most obedient; Lauren Scriber's dog Benny, the smallest; Joseph Saule's dog Taz, most unique; Joey Starne's dog Mikey, the most colorful; Donna Ditoto's dog Bell, the cutest; Bridgette Lippert's dog Bear, the wildest and biggest and Billy Wilson's dog Poochie, the quietist.

The show was not limited to dogs and cats but featured many other types of animals. For those the winners were Heather Holland's bird Precious, the nastiest; Jill Friend-Gomez's Hermit crab Bubba Cliffhanger, best crustacean; Shinae Gaili's guinea pig Timbo, the cutest; Jinae Gaili's gerbil Jasmine, the smallest ears; Ari Goldberg-Strassler's frog, Fred, the best hopper; Jesse Goldberg-Strassler's turtle Sove, the fastest; Dena Goldberg-Strassler's turtle Ben, the shortest tail; Wendy Hagelgans' rat Kate, the tamest rat; Jen Logdson's hybrid gerbil Shad, "O" most beautiful; Matt McLaughlin's rabbit Tinker Bell, the most adorable face; Dru Baldauf's hamsters the Barthol-

Carnival Booth Winners

Each year the carnival booths are judged on how well they are decorated and how well those decorations and design match the theme of the booth and purpose of the organizations. The 1994 Festival first place award was given to the Greenbelt Arts Center booth. It featured a theater marquee design to reflect the Arts Center's music and drama program brought to the Greenbelt stage. Incorporated into the design were flyers and programs for the 1995 music and theater

Second place was awarded to the Committee to Save the Green Belt. That booth was a giant strawberry and promoted the booth's strawberry coolers. The Anacostian watershed Soc. won third place in the booth competition. Its booth featured photos of the Anacostia River and illustrated amply why the organization is working to clean up the river by the year 2000. Fourth place was garnered by the Eleanor Roosevelt High School Students Against Violence booth. The booth was liberally plastered with lemons to promote its peppermint lemons.

Many visitors enjoyed the 1994 Art Show. This year there more adult entries than last year and about the same number of children entered the show this year as in 1993. Winners were recognized by categories. First prize in oil/acrylic painting category was awarded to Marjorie Fugate for her oil painting "Cherry

Festival Special Contests Fun for Kids of All Ages

by Karen Yoho

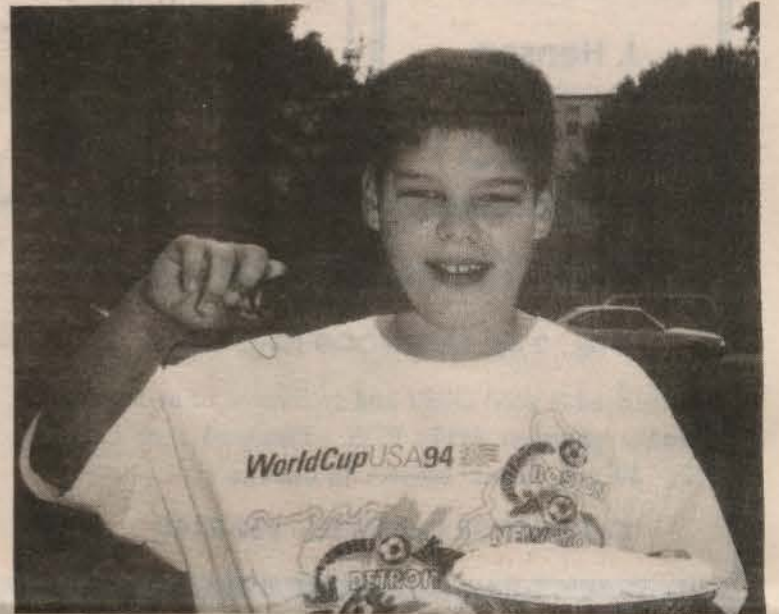

With sunny skies and cool breezes, this year's Labor Day Festival Special Contests provided tons of fun and miles of smiles for Greenbelt Youth.

In the Diaper Derby, Brandon Wetzel crawled his way to the top, with a blue ribbon performance. Close behind were Alex Lin in second place and Samantha Seek in third place. For walkers, Tyler Penn took the first place honors and welcomed some fierce competition from second-time second place winner Kevin Townsend and third place winner Connor Hibbs.

The soda can pitch reminded four to six year olds that recycling CAN make a difference to Greenbelt. Joseph Soule came in winner's circle with partner Kate Stratton for the water balloon toss. In second place was Katie Broderick and Shannon Odum and in third place, Maureen Clun and Christy Osborne. Reports from the event said the winners were "all wet!"

The grand finale for this year's special contests was a messy one, complete with cream pies. Michael Bond remains victorious, as he returned for a second year to claim first place. The second place winner was Christy Osborne, followed by Nicole Osborne

The 1994 Labor Day Festival Special Contests were organized by Shannan Odum and Kate Stratton, member of Cadette Girl Scout Troop 2065 in Greenbelt, with the help of Karen Yoho, Emily Crossed and Denise Troeschel. The committee would like to thank those people who participated in the contests and their fans, as well as local merchants who donated prizes, including Fireside Restaurant, Jasper's Restaurant, and Taglio for Hair.

After 32 years Labor Day Race still in the Running

by Larry Noel

Something new was added to spur interest in the 32nd annual Greenbelt Labor Day Festival 15 kilometer (9.3 mile) run conducted by the D.C. Road Runners Club on September 4: Money.

For the first time cash awards of $100. and $50. were given to the first and second place male and female runners, and to both male and female "masters" (40 years and older) winners. In addition there were T-shirts and many age group medals awarded. There was, however, an increase in entry fees.

The number of entrants increased significantly (from 80 to 132) from last year, and winners for both sexes, as well as other runners, posted some of the fastest times in recent years. With the exception of first mile (a concession to runners who still pace themselves in miles) the course was marked in kilometers to promote "thinking in meters" The course starting point was changed to St. Hugh's School parking lot for safety reasons and to gain greater control of the start. The first mile is now about 70 yards after the turn off Ridge Rd. onto Research Rd. Maps of the newly measured and certified course, as well as race results, may be seen at the Youth Center.

The winner was Michael Wilson, 29, of Arlington, VA, who ran the course in 49 minutes and 54 seconds and who led from start to finish. Wilson had a 1:27 lead over George Alterl, 36, of Columbia, who finished in 51:21. Peter Kirk, 37, Rockville, was third in 52:22, slower than his two previous wins in 1992 of 51:59 and 1993 of 51:26 Wilson's time was about the best in 10 years but nowhere near the record of the great Bob Scharf of Bethesda, who ran the course in 46:07 in 1970 and 46:15 in 1967. The first master was Bill English, 43, New Carrollton, in 56:00. The first woman was Bea Marie Fritsch, 27, Baltimore, who ran probably the second fastest time on this course of 56:32, outpacing Win Rincon, 34, Alexandria, VA who timed at 60:12. Last year Rincon won in 66:15, but in 1980 the remarkable Mary Walsh, 19, of Silver Spring, ran 55:23 for the record. The first master woman was Joan Decarli, 44, Bowie, in 1:16:11.

Greenbelt Winners

Only a few Greenbelters finished: Joe Broderick 56, in 1:25:41, Clay Harmon, 42, in 1:40:15 and Shelly Gigliotti, 30, in 1:30:31.

A number of organizations and individuals cooperated to make the race a safe and successful part of the Labor Day Festival: the Beltsville Agricultural Research Center (BARC), REACT (the radio communications group which lets race officials know how runners are doing on the course), the Greenbelt Police, the Festival Committee, the CO-OP Store and the Mid-Atlantic Coca-Cola Co. The recreation Department provided a room in the Youth Center so the Road Runners Club could reg-
