Community Center Plan OKayed Threat to Close the Library Galvanizes Council, Citizens

by Diane Oberg

The Greenbelt City Council approved the site plan for the Community Center at its regular meeting on Monday, February 13. Council also discussed a city wide bicycle route, crosswalk on Ridge Road and miscellaneous items.

Community Center

Council unanimously approved a site plan for the community center and gave permission for the project to be advertised for bids. The plan provides 165 parking spaces in three lots, with access to the expanded lot near the Youth Center through the lot behind the library. The existing access road from the Youth Center to the parking lot near the pools will be closed, except to emergency vehicles.

Mayor Antoinette Bram stated her continued disappointment at routing so much traffic through the library access road, but joined her colleagues in approving the plan. The $310,000 expected cost of the site plan work exceeds the $250,000 budgeted. As a result, the city will include a variety of options in the bid, to provide some options for cost savings.

Council also defeated a request by the Community Center Task Force that they reopen the issue of moving the offices of the Department of Planning and Community Development to the Community Center. The task force felt that Greenbelt CARES would be more appropriate. A motion to reexamine the issue in two years, as requested by the task force died for lack of a second.

Ridge Road Crosswalk

Now that city parking regulations are being enforced more regularly, council has had a number of complaints. The issue under consideration at this meeting was how to balance a homeowner's desire to park near the end of his driveway with city laws prohibiting parking adjacent to a marked crosswalk.

The crosswalk at issue is that near the intersection of Ridge and Lastner Lane, which comes close to the driveway of 109 Ridge. There had been proposals to move or remove the sidewalk and to change city code limitations for parking near crosswalks. However, Manzi suggested simply changing the law to exempt cars parked in private driveways. (Readers should be aware that the city would still ticket cars blocking sidewalks, even those parked in private driveways.) Council is expected to approve an ordinance incorporating this change at its Feb. 27 regular meeting.

Bike Route

Council approved the Bicycle Task Force's recommendation that a "Cross Greenbelt Bike Route" extending from Hanover Parkway at Good Luck Road to the Metro Station and Greenbelt Road be marked with signs.

Funding Cuts

Council approved letters seeking to restore $24,000 in county funding for arts programming and therapeutic recreation programming. The chances of this protest succeeding may be dim, however. Later in the week, County Executive Wayne Curry proposed sharp cuts in most areas of the county budget.

Boards and Committees

The following appointments were approved: Steven Skolnik - Board of Appeals; Judith Ott - Board of Elections; Kevin Hammit, Hopi Auerbach, Mary Helen Spear - Community Relations Advisory Board; Nancy DePlatchett, Barbara Stevens - Arts Advisory Committee; Marsha Barrett, Tom Simon, Diane Ronchi - Crime Prevention Committee; Kate Brett - Recycling Advisory Committee; Booker Hughes - Betty Timer, Patricia Unger - Senior Citizens Advisory Committee; David Shephard - Advisory Committee on Education, and James Drake - Advisory Planning Board.

Municipal Government Week

Council approved holding an "It's Academic" type of contest for sixth graders at Greenbelt and Springhill Lake Elementary Schools. The contest will be shown on the city's cable channel. Cash and other prizes will be awarded. Last spring, council included $2,000 for Municipal Government Week programs in the adopted budget.

Council Meets to Take Back Streets, Review Judges

by Kuei Shen

Greenbelt may rest assured that community safety is foremost on the minds of Daniel G. Hobbs, Greenbelt's City Manager, and the Greenbelt Police Department as evidenced by their proactive presentation to the City Council at the first of three "Take Back the Streets" worksession on January 26. The first agenda item entitled "Review of Judicial Sentencing" centers around Maryland's new lenient sentencing guidelines which have been put on hold due to public outcry.

It is a topic which has struck a deep chord in the city manager as he has proposed a formal Judicial Watch Program. The Judicial Watch, serving as a task force made up of appointees from Greenbelt and its sister cities (Berwyn Heights, College Park and New Carrollton) would "formally review sentencing decisions made in three types of Class One offenses: murder, rape, and armed robbery committed in the four cities." Action would only take place if the sentence made fell outside of previously established judicial guidelines.

Among the actions suggested are: writing letters of inquiry, criticizing a judge in public ads, formal complaints, and initiating removal and or recall campaigns against a judge. While Hobbs recognizes that the proposal "may be viewed as too strong," he believes it "is a potential political action strategy" and "should be carefully evaluated by the elected officials."

Take Back Streets

The next agenda item focused on the "Take Back the Streets" policing initiatives proposed by Police Chief James R. Craze. They included projects that the police department had already put in place, would be doing, and/or needed council approval to implement.

One initiative, operation Schoolltime is reminiscent of the dreaded truant officer, but Craze describes his philosophy as "if children are made to be in school when they should be they can't be out doing petty crimes . . . the basis for arrest of most juveniles." Lieutenant John Lann said, "Most of the kids are salvageable" and that the officers "are not stopping them from doing good things." This project has been implemented and Mayor Antoinette Bram wishes to have a progress report a year from now.

"Is the Greenbelt Library in Jeopardy?" So began Mary Bauer, Director of the Greenbelt Library, as she took a position at the microphone early in the regular city council meeting on February 27 during the agenda section devoted to petitions and requests. This was the question, Bauer said, that she hears constantly from library patrons, who are aware that in an effort to cut the Prince Georges County budget, the new County Executive, Wayne Curry, has targeted the library system for possible drastic downsizing.

Although petitions and requests are usually accepted at one meeting and given a full hearing and discussed at the next, Bauer's presentation so caught the attention of councilmembers that they added the item to the end of that night's agenda. What Bauer was hoping for, she said, was a strong letter from council to both Curry and the local County Council representative, Audrey Scott, advocating retention of the entire library system, not just the continuation of the Greenbelt branch.

Branches Interdependent

Bauer's argument was that the closing of any branch would seriously affect the Greenbelt branch as well. She showed how various branches have specialties that patrons of other branches can draw upon—New Carrollton for its song index, Oxon Hill for information about African American experiences, Hyattsville for stock information, Greenbelt for city planning and so on.

During January 28, 1995, as a sample day, she showed that Greenbelters sent 146 items that day to other branches and received 126 items borrowed from other branches. The total of such exchanges for the year to date is 2,995 and 2,496 respectively, she said.

Curry's Proposals

Citing Curry's press conference on February 15 at which he announced a budget shortfall of $108 million in the general fund, Bauer referred to his decision to close six libraries and to reduce operating hours for those which remained. According to Curry's report, libraries possibly earmarked for closing would be Bowie or Laurel, Beltsville or Greenbelt, Magruder or Mount Rainier, Marlboro or Spauldings, and two of three of Accokeek, Baden and Surratts-Clinton.

In the same press conference, Curry said that the county government "will be leaner, it will be smaller and it will do less! Our workforce," he said, "will be at a level comparable to ten years ago," referring to 1986, since the 1996 fiscal year budget is what was at issue.

If the library system were to be staffed at the 1986 level, Bauer said, "we would have to add 26 new personnel." She pointed out that since 1977, library staff within the system has decreased by 37% (from 444 to 291). During the same period five new branches were built and the use of materials almost doubled. She contrasted this record with that of the county in general, in which the total number of employees almost doubled.

She pointed to savings in addition to staff cuts through elimination of the bookmobile program, a hiring freeze, the dropping of many specific events, reduction of hours of service including elimination of Sunday hours, a sharp drop in purchase of supplies and equipment, furlough days, and elimination of staff visits to schools. The library accounts for less than two percent of the county's budget, she said.

Council Responses

Councilmember Judith Davis wondered what would happen to a facility like the Tugwell Room, the repository for the documentation of Greenbelt's history, if the Greenbelt branch should close. Similar repositories are held in other branches as well.

Mayor Toni Bram commented on the importance of public libraries in particular for persons of limited means. "They depend on libraries for the daily paper and magazines."

Bauer concurred. She pointed out as well that they make use of the job listings available in the library. The library is the preeminent educational institution in the county," she said. "We have cut and streamlined and made major changes. We are asking for fairness and justice."

Councilmember Ed Putens expressed concern for the important link between the future Community Center and the library, which will form an important campus in the city.

Petition Drive

Barbara Simon, chair of the Steering Committee of the Friends of the Greenbelt Library, spoke about recent communications among all the Friends groups within the system. All these groups have See LIBRARY, page 5, col. 3

Meeting on BARC Project, Widening of Route 201

Concerned Greenbelt residents are invited to attend a town meeting on Friday, March 10, at 7:30 p.m. at the Greenbelt Police Station. The meeting will be a discussion on the proposal to build a U.S. Department of Agriculture headquarters complex in the Beltsville Agriculture Research Center and the proposed widening of Kenilworth Avenue and Edmonston Road.

"Participants will develop a plan for re-directing the project to a positive new neighbor rather than a costly boondoggle that erodes property values and quality of life," said Alan Turnbull, one of the organizers of the meeting. For information call 474-4863.

Save the Library!

Greenbelt without a library? Impossible, you say? Unthinkable?

Due to the county's budget crisis, the new county executive, Wayne Curry, has targeted the library system for drastic cuts and threatened to close six libraries, listing Greenbelt Library as one that could be eliminated. The budget crisis is real, but trying to solve it by closing libraries would be "penny wise and pound foolish," as Greenbelt City Council member Thomas White remarked at the council meeting on February 27. The library system accounts for less than 2% of the county budget, has already been cut back stringently in hours, programs, and personnel since 1977, and provides a whole range of irreplaceable public services. It makes no sense to destroy valuable existing facilities for which tax payers have already paid.

Every library in the county is important, and all are interdependent. But to Greenbelters, their library is a vital link in the developing "central campus" plan for the city's historic center, a concept that emerged from the architectural/planning charettes that have contributed so much to the revitalization of Greenbelt's historic center.

The library is a major anchor of the "campus," helping to maintain the heart of our city as a community for people, not just cars; a place where citizens have reasons to walk and ride bikes; a place that is bustling, civilized, and safe.

If the county closes Greenbelt's library, it would be a disaster. We need a library, not an empty building.

The Friends of the Greenbelt Library has scheduled a meeting on March 8 to plan a strategy to preserve the library. The group is also starting a petition drive protesting the staff and services cuts.

We urge residents to participate in any way they can in the effort to keep Greenbelt's library open.

Greenbelters! To the barricades!

Nearly Killed!

I was nearly killed this morning. At 7:20 a.m. on Friday, February 17, someone nearly ran over me. I was crossing Ridge Road at Gardenway to get to the UM Shuttle bus stop. This intersection has stop signs all four ways. I was in the crosswalk. I had the right of way.

I saw the blue-gray pickup truck coming, and I knew it was going too fast, not only for the speed limit, but also for the wet, icy condition of the road. I just happened to be wide awake. I just happened to make the correct judgment to take a step backward. I waved my arms wildly, from a safe vantage point, in hopes of alerting the driver to the fact that there is a stop sign, and I was there first.

She did not stop. She did not even slow down. She did not even try to brake. Feeling invisible, I shouted, "There's a stop sign, you idiot!" What good did that do? She was gone.

Then it hit me. I nearly died. She could have smeared my brains halfway to the Greenbelt Elementary School. I'd like to use my brain for something more than melting the ice on the road, thank you. I'd like to live long enough to attend my nieces's first birthday.

I'd like to believe in an afterlife, in which people like her are made to face the ones whom they have hurt in life, or whom they could have hurt, like me. What would I say to this woman, if she were made to face me?

"Just who do you think you are? What gives you the right to risk my life, or the life of any pedestrian?"

And since we are not facing each other in the afterlife, I will add this last message:

"Please do me a favor. Give other people the consideration that you would expect to get yourself."

Letters to the Editor

Taking Exception

When the News Review announced its survey on the Northway bumps, my first reaction was "Oh no, not again." As those of you who read the News Review know, I am opposed to opinion polls, where the sample in the survey is self selected. I am a statistician who has conducted surveys, and am well acquainted with the procedures and problems of surveys. Morin, the statistician of the Washington Post has written a number of articles about surveys using self selecting population. His interpretation of all of these was that the data they produced was just garbage.

My objection is not only in how the sample population is chosen, but in the whole design of these surveys conducted by non-professionals. If the design of questions are so easy, the government and organizations engaged in conducting opinion polls are wasting a lot of time and money in the design and testing of questions used in surveys. I have seen articles in the statistical literature where the author demonstrated that by manipulating the wording of a question, he or she could get any results desired.

With regard to the News Review poll, there is a disclaimer that this is not a scientific study, but the writer then makes statements that indicate that the findings have some validity. Not only that, but the News Review used over 50 column inches reporting on this non-valid opinion poll. If the purpose of this endeavor was to get opinions from residents, there are a number of unbiased methods that could have been used, without resorting to the subterfuge of conducting an opinion poll.

One I would suggest, which would get opinions of people using Northway, would be to station a reporter at either end of this section of Northway, at the stop signs, and ask drivers of their opinion of the speed bumps, after having driven over them. Another would be to do a short telephone survey of randomly selected voters residing in the area that may use Northway. But to use the opinions of those who answered the questionnaire is presenting those with the most bias either for or against these speed bumps.

Although I feel that this is tilting with windmills, I am once again requesting that the News Review, and the city, not engage in these unprofessional opinion polls. These not only waste time and money, but are used by those with a certain point of view—even if they are not valid.

Mr. Myers was born and raised in Brentwood, Maryland. He married Ruth Schwab of Greenbelt. Their first years together were spent in Michigan where he served in the Army. They then returned to Maryland, and soon thereafter, to Greenbelt, where he was a resident for over 40 years. Mr. Myers worked for the C & P Telephone Co. and AT&T. He retired in 1989.

He is survived by his wife of 45 years, his son Gary C. Myers, Jr. and daughter-in-law Victoria B. Myers, his daughter Heidi R. Kurtinez, granddaughter Lilli M. Kurtinez, siblings Virginia Taylor, Zachariah Myers, Marie Daniels, Barbara Clift, Robert Myers, Christin Elliot, Wm. Henry Myers, and sister-in-law (and birthday twin) Marjorie J. Heiner.

His graveside service at Greenbelt City Cemetery was followed by a gathering of friends and family at the Greenbelt Marriott.

Gene Marie Brown

Longtime Greenbelt resident Gene Marie Brown died February 26 after a 20-month battle with cancer. Through her many years as a 4-H leader, she had been friend and mentor to a great number of young people, as well as caring neighbor and caregiver to many others of all ages.

Gene Marie Decker was born January 9, 1927, in Washington, D.C. She worked her way through the University of Maryland, earning a degree in home economics. She met her future husband, Charles R. ("Chuck") Brown at the University, and the young couple moved to Greenbelt in 1957. Here they raised their four children: Susan, Sarah, Charles, and Daniel.

In the mid-1960's Gene Marie became a 4-H project leader, teaching sewing and crafts in her older daughter's club. Later she started a new club, the Greenbelt Lucky Leaves; this group of girls have remained close friends for almost 30 years. Gene Marie and Chuck drove the youngsters to Forestville and Upper Marlboro to demonstration days, 4-H fashion shows, summer camp, and county fairs. For many years Gene Marie provided a luncheon for the judges of the 4-H section of the county fair.

After Chuck Brown died in 1975, Gene Marie enlisted the help of some of the older group of girls in forming a new 4-H club for younger children, this time including both boys and girls. She herself was inducted into the 4-H All Stars, an honorary 4-H society.

Gene Marie is survived by her children, Susan Phillips, Charles and Daniel of Greenbelt and Sarah of Brandywine, and by five grandchildren: Jesse, James and Nicholas Phillips, Nicole Brown, and Caleb Valentich. She is also survived by her brother Keith Decker of Silver Spring, her sister Betty Bohanan of Kentucky, and many other relatives and friends.

A memorial service will be held on March 3 at 1 p.m. at the Community on the Hill, Capitol Hill United Methodist Church, 5th and Pennsylvania Ave. S.E., Washington, D.C.

Guarneri Rehearsal

On Tuesday, March 7 at 7 p.m. the Guarneri String Quartet will hold an open rehearsal in the Ulrich Recital Hall of the Tawes Fine Arts Building, University of Maryland, College Park. The quartet will be rehearsing Anton Dvorak's Quartet in F major, opus 96, "The American." The rehearsal is free and open to the public. For information call (301) 405-1150.

placed petitions within their respective library branches, urging patrons to sign, she said. All the petitions, for which Greenbelt's was the model, emphasize the importance of preserving all branches within the system. As she spoke, she presented a copy of the petition to the council members, who each passed it along after she or he had signed.

Sheldon Goldberg of Greenbelt East invited Bauer and Simon to attend the Thursday evening meeting this week of GEAC and to call and place the library concerns on the GEAC agenda.

Council Action

Late in the evening, after previously scheduled agenda items had been disposed of, council returned to the library issue. When you consider the value of libraries, councilmember Tom White stressed, the decision to close them down seemed "penny wise, pound foolish. It would take away an essential part of what makes a healthy community," he said.

Councilmember Davis, a teacher in the county school system, added that she depends on the library for up-to-date information for her classes. Since the school budget has been reduced in recent years, the most recent books in school libraries date from the 1960s and 1970s, she pointed out. She always directs her students to the public libraries for their research, she said.

Council then agreed unanimously to send an urgent letter to both County Executive Curry and to County Councilmember Audrey Scott registering strong support for keeping the library system intact.

sonally. It would allow officers to stop children under 17 and then drive them home if they are out after midnight. Naturally, it would require written permission from the parents, but it is not a curfew law.

Another proposal is for Officers to act as Agents for Property Owners. This initiative allows officers to be representatives of property owners so that arrests for solicitation, loitering or open air drug markets can be made quickly. Another item on Craze's list is Use of Forfeited Drug Money at Chief's Discretion which would allow the Chief flexibility to purchase items unfunded by the city. A proposal made along with Hobbs is to implement a Local Area Network (LAN) to bring "crime fighting into the 1990's."

Wishes were also expressed by the chief and representatives from the Greenbelt Fraternal Order of Police (FOP) to implement a Mountain Bike Patrol. Already over 13 officers in the department are interested.

Craze also presented the idea of an Anti-Graffiti Policy to give Public Works the authority to remove graffiti regardless of where it appears, public or private property. Graffiti is often a sign of gang related activity and as far as Lann is concerned, "There can only be one gang in Greenbelt and that's the Greenbelt Police Department."

And lastly, there was the Adopt a Crook Program which is said to attack the business of crime. It is what the department calls "good old-fashioned police work" where a perpetrator is identified and the officer "stays in his pockets", but within constitutional bounds until he takes his business elsewhere.

Take Home Cars

The FOP, Greenbelt Police Department also requested a change be made in the take home policy on police cars. According to John Rogers, President of the FOP, 12 of the 44 sworn police officers are currently ineligible to take home cars because of where they live. The council agreed that it would be an agenda item at the next council meeting.

Seniors Meet with Council Discuss Pedestrian Safety

by Virginia Beauchamp

Pedestrian traffic safety dominated a work session of the Senior Citizens Advisory Committee with the Greenbelt City Council on Feb. 9. Earlier the seniors had prioritized a list of 25 suggestions gathered at the annual open forum event for all senior citizens in Greenbelt. Begun two years ago, the forum is one part of a program where senior citizens meet for a picnic at Schrom Hills Park, both to socialize and to talk over their concerns.

Pat Unger, who chairs the Advisory Committee, presented as the group's main concerns what she called dangerous walking and crossing conditions at the intersection of Greenbelt Rd. and Hanover Parkway, at Crescent Rd. and Southway, and at Greenbelt Rd. and Eleanor Roosevelt High School. All members of council, with the exception of Ed Putens, were present for the work session.

Hanover Parkway Crossing
The committee noted that a change of the bus stop at the Hanover Parkway crossing to an island made it "almost a target zone," Unger said. In addition, the painted crosswalk had faded and needed to be renewed. City Manager Daniel Hobbs, who had previously responded to this item in a staff report, indicated that the push-button light changer left time enough to cross, although he noted that the "don't cross" sign came on while one was part-way across.

Greenbriar resident Dorothy Pyles disputed that there was time enough to cross. "There is not adequate time to get to the median safely," she said. She expressed her dissatisfaction with earlier attempts to communicate with the State Highway Administration (SHA) because in each case, complaints were referred to the same administrator—Creston Mills, whom she characterized as "a bottleneck."

The SHA's first priority is moving vehicular traffic, she said. They are not concerned with pedestrian safety. Yet everyone acknowledged that Greenbelters are pedestrians.

Hobbs suggested that city staff prepare a letter expressing these concerns and asking for a meeting with SHA where they might present solutions. Mayor Toni Bram urged the group to enlist support from other citizen groups as well, including the Greenbelt East Advisory Committee (GEAC) and those involved with school safety. She suggested that State Senator Leo Green and the three House members representing this district also be invited.

Hobbs responded favorably to the idea that a videotape be made showing the pedestrian difficulties at that intersection. He indicated that in the meantime fresh paint would be put down to make clear where the crosswalks were.

Crescent at Southway
A different kind of problem exists at Crescent and Southway, where pedestrians are the violators by crossing Crescent on the east side, across the green strip near the bank, where there is neither crosswalk nor sidewalk. On the west side of the intersection, pedestrians using the crosswalk are never sure which vehicles "may come at them" because there is no light, Unger said.

Councilmember Tom White suggested that strategically placed signs to discourage crossing at the wrong place might be in order. All agreed that an educational campaign, possibly on the city's cable channel, would be useful.

ERHS Crossing
Least amenable to solution is the crossing on Greenbelt Rd. opposite the high school. The main problem is the steep downhill plunge for westbound traffic, which regularly exceeds the speed limit. According to the SHA, someone reported, "People drive at the speed they are comfortable with." On that descent, the comfortable speed seems to be 45 mph.

So far, no solution has been arrived at because different neighborhood groups have different interests, Hobbs said. GEAC, which requires near-unanimity from its homeowner associations (five out of six) before taking action, had not approved a light at that crossing. An SHA requirement that an island be installed blocking left turns, if a light is placed there, has met with opposition from those living along Frankfort Dr., who want to turn left on to Greenbelt Rd.

Crescent at Northway
Following discussion of the top three items, Unger then raised a fourth concern about pedestrian traffic at the flashing yellow light near the crossing at St. Hugh's School. Even though pedestrians have the right of way, as Bram indicated, many present felt that drivers—especially non-residents who increasingly use Crescent Rd as a shortcut around the difficult intersection at Greenbelt Rd. and Kenilworth Ave.—fail to yield as required.

Committee member Tony Pisano said that traffic has increased so much along Crescent that it is "a necessity" to have a light. "A positive move has to be made." He noted that senior citizens and children are frequent pedestrians there. Mayor Bram said that the city had earlier investigated the cost of installing a flashing red light, which the advisory committee was requesting, and that it would cost over $70,000, which in the present budget situation would not be available. White wondered whether the present on-demand flashing yellow might continue to be used, with the bulb changed to red. City staff was directed to look into that possibility. All felt that the on-demand red at Greenridge House, where traffic needs were far less urgent, worked well.

GIVES Report

Turning from the list of concerns, Unger then presented a status report on the program her committee is developing called the Greenbelt Intergenerational Volunteer Exchange Service (GIVES). The group who form the Project Design Committee include, besides Unger, who is convener: councilmember J Davis; Norman McCarthy of the Knights of Columbus; Janet Parker of the Gray Panthers; and Leah Warner of the Greenbelt Community Church. Karen Haseley of the Recreation Dept. acts as city liaison.

The committee has developed a Memorandum of Understanding with the Cooperative Caring Network (CCN), a project of the United Seniors Health Cooperative of the Greater Washington metropolitan area. The project would set up a network within the city to provide an exchange of services. For example, one person might spend time with a shut-in, which would be recorded with a central bank; in exchange, payment might be made by another person who might shovel snow to assist the former helper. CCN has developed such exchanges only among senior citizens. Greenbelt's program

At this point, the committee was requesting only a small amount of space in the Community Building, once it was open. They would need only a desk and space for a computer to record the exchanges, Unger said.

APB, Council Discuss Goals

by Margaret Hogensen

Members of the Advisory Planning Board and the City Council Met recently to discuss the goals of APB and the scope of their activity. Celia Willson, Director of Planning & Community Development, was also present.

Chairman Roberta McCarthy emphasized that APB needed to know the concerns of the Council. She felt that the role of APB was to raise and develop issues and to provide technical planning advice. Development in Greenbelt has slowed down somewhat and she thought APB should perhaps begin to anticipate future trends.

Mayor Antoinette Bram suggested that beside responding to Council's referrals APB should also be free to initiate ideas on their own. There seemed to be general agreement with this idea, although Councilmember Rodney Roberts felt strongly that APB should maintain an independent point of view.

More Planning

Councilmembers brought up the need to develop a plan for Greenbelt West, especially the future use of the property of A. H. Smith in that area. APB members were concerned that a project of that kind required more time than its members could give and the hope was expressed that Celia Wilson could return to spending all her time on planning. She is currently spending part of her time in code enforcement. The possibility of hiring a consultant was suggested, but Hobbs pointed out that utilizing a consultant or adding staff takes money. He suggested expanding the length of time for projects to be completed and prioritizing APB's goals in order to accomplish what is most important.

Several APB members were concerned with troubled neighborhoods in Greenbelt and how Council could discover their needs and help them solve problems. Bram expressed special concern about public safety as one of these neighborhood problems.

Linkages

Concerns were also expressed about keeping as much land open and undeveloped as possible and working with federal agencies to achieve this goal. APB member James Drake, recently returned from a year in Germany, hoped that Greenbelt would develop linkages, paths with necessary underpasses and overpasses, to connect various parts of the city as he had seen done in Munich.

Councilmember Thomas White hoped that the city could recapture zoning authority so that Greenbelt could control its own destiny. McCarthy pointed out that the proposed historic site designation while providing protections also contained restrictions and she felt Greenbelt needs to have specific limits on these restrictions. Transportation issues, pedestrian safety, Beltway Plaza development, and a site for the proposed dog park were also discussed.

Coed Senior Softball

A new team, consisting of men and women, 59 years and older, is forming for daytime games.

Rosters are needed soon, so ball players and couch potatoes who want to reform should call Burt Kerr at 474-9498.

Police Blotter

Based on Information Released by the Greenbelt Police Department

As a woman was walking towards a building in the 7800 block of Mandan Rd around 8:45 p.m. on Monday, Feb. 20, a car pulled up beside her and a woman got out and called to her. Thinking that the woman who got out of the car might need directions, the walking woman turned towards her and saw the other woman's handgun. The woman with the gun then demanded the woman's property, and the victim dropped her book bag and groceries on the ground. The other woman picked up the bookbag, got back into the car, and took off southbound on Mandan Rd., towards Greenbelt Rd. She is described as black, in her 30s, about 5'4", 120 lbs., dark complexion, wearing a white sweater and burgundy sweatpants. The car is described as a silver gray Dodge Colt, tags possibly VA ZSY3248 (which had been reported stolen). The driver of the car was described as male, black, in his 40s, possibly bearded or unshaven.

Around 7 p.m. on Saturday, Feb. 18, an officer stopped a vehicle for a traffic violation in the 5800 block of Cherrywood Lane and observed a person in the back seat putting something under the front passenger seat as (s)he approached. Investigating the situation, the officer found that the passenger in the back seat was wearing a bulletproof vest and that there was a loaded 9mm semi-automatic handgun under the front passenger seat. That passenger, a 20-year-old nonresident man, was arrested and charged with transporting a handgun. He appeared before a District Court Commissioner and was held on $2,000 bond pending trial.

A 16-year-old resident youth was arrested and charged with possession of a concealed deadly weapon (a .122 caliber rifle), possession of marijuana, and possession of drug paraphernalia (a pipe such as is commonly used to smoke marijuana) after an officer patrolling the area of Greenbelt Rd. and the beltway around 12:30 p.m., Feb. 21, stopped a suspicious vehicle and saw the gun and the pipe, and found the suspected marijuana. The juvenile was released to his mother pending trial.

Two nonresident male juveniles were arrested at the Greenbelt Metro Station around 4:45 p.m. on Sunday, Feb. 19, for throwing rocks at pedestrians from the overpass. They were charged with disorderly conduct and released to their parents.

Two resident male juveniles were arrested around 1 p.m. on Saturday, Feb. 18, for throwing snowballs at vehicles from the Spellman Overpass onto the BW Pkwy. They were charged with throwing missiles at vehicles and were released to the parent of one of them. No vehicle was reported damaged.

After two male shoppers argued while in a check-out line at Safeway (7500 block Greenbelt Rd.), one of them followed the other to his vehicle, continued arguing, punched him in the mouth and pushed him to the ground. The assailant then got into a car and fled in an unknown direction. He is described as black, 25-30 years old, 5'7", 150 lbs, black hair, brown eyes. The car is described as black, late model passenger car, MD tags AWD453. The incident took place around 9:45 p.m. on Thursday, Feb. 23.

A 20 year old nonresident man was arrested and charged with possession of a controlled dangerous substance (CDS - suspected hallucinogenic psilocybin mushrooms) and possession of CDS paraphernalia (a pipe such as is commonly used for the ingestion of a CDS) around 8:30 p.m. on Sunday, Feb. 19, after he was stopped for a traffic violation in the 9100 block of Edmonston Rd. He appeared before a District Court Commissioner and was held on $500 bond pending trial.

A burglary was reported at a residence in the 8100 block of Mandan Terr. on Thursday, Feb. 23. Someone had forced open the back door and had stolen a VCR.

A purse was reported stolen from Jasper's Restaurant (7401 Greenbelt Rd.) around 5:15 p.m. on Monday, Feb. 20. The victim had placed her purse under a barstool and noticed it missing when she was ready to leave.

A theft of a wallet from a purse was reported at the Giant Food Store (6000 block Greenbelt Rd.) around 3 p.m. on Friday, Feb. 17. The victim believes that another female shopper purposely engaged her in conversation in order to distract her while another person removed her wallet.

As an employee of Greenhorne & O'Mara arrived for work (in the 9000 block of Edmonston Rd.) on Monday, Feb. 20, he observed someone flee the stairwell exit on the third floor and called the police. The individual got away before the officer's arrival. The employee then found that numerous office desk drawers had been gone through and left open. The suspect is described as male, black, in his 30s, about 6'0", 180 lbs., with a light complexion, wearing a green three-quarter length khaki jacket and blue jeans.

A theft of a wallet and a checkbook from a purse in an office cubicle at the Greenhorne & O'Mara building (9000 block Edmonston Rd.) was reported on Wednesday, Feb. 22. The theft had occurred the day before while the purse was left unattended under a desk.

A theft of a wallet from a locker at the Holiday Spa (7400 block Greenbelt Rd.) was reported on Wednesday, Feb. 22. There was no damage to the lock nor any sign of forced entry into the locker.

A 36-year-old nonresident man was arrested and charged with forged prescription around 3 p.m. on Friday, Feb. 17, after he tried to obtain prescription medication with a stolen prescription blank at F&M Pharmacy (6000 block Greenbelt Rd.). He appeared before a District Court Commissioner and was released on personal recognizance.

On Friday, Feb. 17, vandalism at the ballfield east of the intersection of Mandan Rd. and Ora Glen Dr. was reported; someone had driven a vehicle on the ballfield and destroyed a large portion of the landscaping.

When an officer stopped a vehicle for not displaying a registration plate in the area of Kenilworth Ave. and Crescent Rd. around 4:15 p.m. on Saturday, Feb. 18, (s)he found that the tag that was eventually produced had been reported stolen. Consequently, a 27 year-old resident was arrested and charged with theft under $300, and then released on citation pending trial.
