City Will Lose $100,000 If Landfill Rebate Goes

by Betsy Likowski

The Greenbelt city council recently learned that the proposed county budget calls for doing away with a landfill disposal rebate that last year was worth $100,000 to the city. This means that the council must find a way to change the proposed Fiscal Year 1996 budget that council is currently reviewing to make up this shortfall. Council will also review, in the near future, the total range of options for trash collecting and recycling in the city.

The council learned the news at the review of the Public Works Department's budget at a work session on Wednesday, April 5. They took plenty of time for a free ranging discussion on some of their options.

Councilmembers said they wanted information and a look at all the options before they made any decisions. Among options mentioned were: city running the recycling program, once a week trash pick-up, curbside trash pick-up for most or all the city, city expansion of trash service to more sections of the city to bring in more revenues, raising refuse rates charged to residents and privatize service.

Hints of future controversies arose. Recycling coordinator Tracy Vincent stated her belief that if asked to go to curbside trash service Greenbelt Homes Inc (GHI) residents would leave the city trash service to go to a private vendor. Councilmember Thomas White agreed. Mayor Antoinette Bram speculated that some GHI residents, under curbside service, would be dragging their trash cans up to a block in distance. It would look like something out of medieval times, commented Bill Phelan, city horticulturist and GHI board member. If we go to curbside pick-up it should then be for everyone, countered councilmember Ed Putens.

Greenbelt's Own Ombudsman

by Dorothy Sucher

"When you work on the local level, you can't hide from the people. They walk in and yell at you," says Barbara Havekost, who ought to know. She is Greenbelt's Human Resources Officer, of ombudsman—"ombudsperson" is the term she prefers.

Officially, her job consists of working with city employees regarding benefits and disputes of various kinds. In reality, all manner of problems end up in her small, tidy office, where the window sill is crowded with framed photographs of children and grandchildren. People in trouble turn up at the municipal building when they don't know where else to go, and Barbara tries to help although "there isn't time in a regular day. So I do it on my own time. My personal and business life are all intertwined."

Has Had Her Troubles

Maybe one reason she's good at her job is that Barbara has had her share of troubles. Divorced at 30 after a ten-year marriage in which she'd been a full-time housewife—"it was a very Fifties kind of thing, I didn't feel deprived because I wasn't working," she suddenly found herself alone and pregnant, with three young children to support. She started a typing business at home—"back then, you did an original and five carbon copies"—and managed to make ends meet although there were no benefits. When a receptionist job opened up at the city offices, she took it, expecting it to be temporary. That was 25 years ago.

"Sure, it was rough," she says now.

But her hardest year didn't come until 1975, when her father and brother died and her son was so badly injured in an accident that he was bedridden for six months. "A lot of that year is just a blur," she says. She'd returned to college and was in her final semester. "I knew if I had quit, I'd never go back. I had a wonderful advisor, a black man who'd come up the hard way. He really wanted me to finish my education."

Somehow, she did. She recalls getting up at dawn on a child's birthday to bake a pan of brownies. "I left it on the table and waded, 'Happy birthday, I'm outta here.' The kids never let me forget it."

The hard years have not marked her physically. At 60 she is a lively,

County's Budget Woes Increase Tax Bite on Municipal Residents

by James Giese

Municipal officials from Greenbelt and other cities are busy trying to determine the damage to city budgets and city taxpayers resulting from proposals made by Prince Georges County Executive Wayne Curry in presenting his budget for Fiscal Year (FY) 1996. Curry had to slash and change many ways in which the county has been operating in order to make up an originally projected shortfall of $130 million.

The executive's recommendations will result in new taxes and special assessments levied against property owners plus higher tax rates for most municipal residents than those that should have been put in place under a long-standing tax differential formula.

Tax Differential

Municipal taxpayers pay property taxes at a lower tax rate than do property owners in unincorporated areas. The reason is that the county levies property taxes to help pay for services provided only in the unincorporated areas or, in some cases, services provided in some of the county's 28 municipalities but not in others. To recognize this inequity in the use of county tax funds, a tax differential formula was established in 1985. The formula determines the services that the county does not provide in each municipality but does provide elsewhere, the amount of the cost of the service supported by the property tax, and the tax differential rate required to reduce the county tax levy within each municipality for these services not rendered.

Last year, the county expanded its budget and increased the amount of property taxes allocated for services to unincorporated areas. Based on the tax differential formula, municipalities were to receive larger tax differential rates this year to make up for this discrepancy in services. If the tax differential goes up in a municipality, the county tax rate goes down. In Greenbelt, the county tax rate should have dropped for the new budget by eight cents.

However, the change in tax differentials under the established formula would have caused the county to lose $2.8 million in revenues. Therefore the executive has proposed to the county council that the new tax differential rates not be used and that municipal tax rates be frozen at last year's rates.

At a meeting on April 7, the board of Directors of the Prince Georges Municipal Association unanimously adopted a motion opposing the freeze on the tax differential. It is anticipated that the Greenbelt City Council will take a similar stand.

Refuse Fees

The disposal fees paid by trash haulers at the two county landfills have been used to pay for a variety of county services, including its extensive recycling program as well as the cost of landfill operations. Last year the fees were raised to $72 a ton in order to pay for these programs and the landfill operations, but also to discourage haulers from Montgomery County from using the Prince Georges landfills. Unfortunately the fee rate discouraged more than non-county trash haulers from using the county landfills; haulers within the county also found less costly means for disposing of their trash. As a result, revenues fell instead of increasing and the county was forced to spend more money than it earned for the operations funded by these fees, creating a $5.6 million deficit.

On March 1, Curry ordered the landfill fees dropped to $49 a ton in the hopes that more revenue would be realized in the long run. But he

by James Giese

April, 1944—Franklin Delano Roosevelt, America's thirty-second President, the only President to serve more than eight years in office and, for Greenbelters, the founding father of this New Deal model community, died on April 12. On April 15, Greenbelters turned out to fill the school auditorium to overflowing to memorialize their beloved President.

The Friday evening program was arranged by Town Manager James Gobbel, Band Manager Richard Taylor and Legion Commander Leon Benefiel. Gobbel recalled the time when Roosevelt personally released the first batch of fish to stock the man-made Greenbelt Lake in 1938 and the several times he had visited Greenbelt homes. A prayer was given by Community Church Pastor Wilmer P. Johnston and the Community Band offered several selections. The Army Wives Club arranged the floral decorations.

Town stores were closed on Saturday at 4 p.m., while the theater was closed all day. All the schools in Greenbelt also held memorial services.

The newspaper noted that the tulip poplar was Roosevelt's favorite tree and that he had told Landscaping Superintendent Angus MacGregor about his preference. MacGregor said that after that he had consistently "stuck in a few more" and Greenbelt now had a respectable population of these trees. They were concentrated around the center and in the 60 block of Crescent.

The town paper, the Greenbelt Cooperator, editorialized on Roosevelt's death. It noted Roosevelt's extraordinary interest in the model community. It stated its belief that Roosevelt's concern for the common man "nowhere found a clearer expression than in the Greenbelt communities."

The editorial concluded, "Our town is a living memorial to the spirit and the hopes of the great leader whose departure we mourn. It is our task to keep it a worthy memorial."

Legislature Earmarks

$400,000 for Center

Senator Leo Green announced this week that the Maryland General Assembly has some good news for Greenbelt.

The Assembly approved $400,000 for the renovation of Greenbelt Center School to become the community center. The funds will be used for the restoration, historic preservation, repairs, rehabilitation and reconstruction for the community center, especially to replace the 1937 windows and the roof for the entire building. This grant, in a bill introduced by Senator Green, will save Greenbelters eight cents on their real property tax rate yield. More good news was the passage of an additional $2.4 million for the libraries in Prince Georges County.

Look Around, Nominate For Beautification Awards

The Prince Georges County Beautification Committee will honor those who, by their landscape activities, are contributing to the beauty of the community. The Beautification Committee was established as the citizen advisory group to the county for matters related to street trees, landscaping programs, and to provide for recognition of efforts by citizens in beautifying the county.

Every year the Beautification Committee tries to identify and show its appreciation to some of these citizens. Whether the property is residential or commercial, public or private, efforts for beautification can be seen. Take a look around! Encourage the owners of properties you notice to enter Beautification '94.

All projects will be judged by nationally accredited members of the Landscape Design Critics Council of the National Capital Area Federation of Garden Clubs. Professionally designed and installed projects will be judged separately from owner-designed projects.

All entries must be received by May 13.

Celebrating Diversity at GHI

by Don Comis and Kris White

"We're celebrating diversity, cooperativeness and neighborliness all at the same time," said Janet Parker, speaking of GHI Day, which will occur at Hamilton Place on Saturday, April 22, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Parker is staffing a diversity table at the festival in which she invites members to share their heritage with others. "Display the flag and clothing of your birth country. Treat us to the sound of your native instruments, music and songs, and the sight of your dances. Come meet your neighbors and consider helping to staff the table," she said.

Diversity is a central theme for Parker, who is vice-chair of Greenbelt's Community Relations advisory Board. "Just because we're different doesn't mean we have to be unneighborly," said Parker, who as a GHI pioneer, longs for the diversity of the 1990's to be merged with the neighborliness of the 1940's.

"There are many interesting people who have moved into GHI in recent years but many of us who moved in much earlier don't know how to meet them. Unless people have children in the same school, it's hard to get to know each other. I hope GHI Day will be one way that we can meet," Parker said.

Parker said the advisory board has a broad definition of diversity which includes, race, nationality, sex, sexual orientation, age, politics and personalities.

"We're all in this co-operative together, we're neighbors," Parker said. "I think we've lost a sense of what this co-op is and the value of taking care of each other. I want GHI Day to be one of the ways in which we restore these ideas."

Parker said she sees neighborliness as a solution to today's crime problems. "If you can't feel safe surrounded by neighbors, that's pretty sad."

She said the Community Relations Advisory Board plans to study conflict resolution techniques as a way to help people stay neighborly.

"Within our diversity, we plant the seeds of neighborliness, peace, acceptance, and a habitable world," she concluded.

Highways in Greenbelt Subject of Dems Meeting

At its regular meeting on Friday, April 21, the Eleanor and Franklin Roosevelt Democratic Club will explore traffic and pedestrian problems on two of the major highways which criss-cross Greenbelt. The discussion will follow a short business meeting, which begins at 8 p.m. in the Terrace Room of the Greenbriar Community Building on Hanover Parkway.

Two state-maintained highways slice through the city of Greenbelt. One is Greenbelt Road (Rt. 193) that goes east and west and is judged by many to be neither pedestrian nor bicycle friendly. The other is Kenilworth Avenue (Rt. 201) and its proposed extension to Powder Mill Rd. (Rt. 212). The planned Inter-County Connector (ICC) would link this end of Prince Georges County with parts of Montgomery County.

Some students of these plans think that the extension of Kenilworth would connect with the eastern terminus of the ICC, giving trucks and more traffic a straight path through Greenbelt from the District of Columbia to Baltimore and western Maryland.

The panel of speakers will include Steve DelGiudice, a present member of the Prince Georges County Council and past chair of the transportation committee of the Council of Governments (COG). Plans for the ICC will be explained by Joe Anderson, Planning Coordinator of the Montgomery County Planning Committee, and, Prince Georges County government will be represented by Vicky Greenfield of the Environmental Policy Branch of the Department of Environmental Resources.

Not included for this presentation is the Baltimore-Washington Parkway (Rt. 295), which is now maintained by the federal government.

The general public is cordially invited to attend. A question and answer period will follow the speakers' remarks, so come to argue with the experts! The evening will close with a social hour and refreshments will be served. For more information call J Davis at 345-3243 or Pat Unger at 474-1052.

Exploring New Plants

Dr. Hammerschlag will be explaining how she has used tissue culture to get disease resistance and propagation as well as developing new types of ornamental plants.

Dr. Hammerschlag has been with the Department of Agriculture in the Agricultural Research Service for 25 years. Since 1979 she has been developing and utilizing tissue culture and gene transfer techniques to improve fruit tree species. She has authored and co-authored 96 publications and has presented both nationally and internationally.

Greenbelt Art Center Holds First Annual Awards Event

by Alex Barnes

The Greenbelt Arts Center (GAC) held its first annual awards ceremony on Sunday, March 12, after the annual meeting. The awards recognized off-stage contributions made by the many volunteers to GAC. Following the annual meeting and awards ceremony, the audience was treated to a preview of GAC's next show, the musical Taking My Turn.

Greenbelt Arts Steve Blais, GAC vice president, hosted the awards ceremony. He began by announcing several records for audience size which had been set during the past season: for a Sunday performance - Cemetery Club, 75; for any performance of a play - Jigsaws, 106; and for all performances - Celtic Evening, 130. In addition, the average overall attendance increased from 31 to 52 per performance compared to the previous season.

Jo Blais presented awards earned by GAC's production of Jigsaws at the 1995 Maryland Theater Festival. These were Best Ensemble, which recognized the excellence of the entire performance, and Outstanding Performance to Judy Holland of Greenbelt. Jigsaws was produced by Jo Blais and directed by Steve Blais.

"Unsung Hero" Award
Next, Keith Brown presented the "unsung hero" award, which is named in honor of Bill Fedorshik, who died this past September. Fedorshik, in addition to giving many fine performances on stage, worked behind the scenes building sets and props. Brown, who had worked for Fedorshik for nearly all of his 16 years in community theater, said that if a director ever needed an obscure prop or setpiece built, they would go to Bill to get it. Nominated for the Bill Fedorshik award were Hopi Auerbach (Merry Wives of Windsor, Cemetery Club, Play It Again, Sam), Liza Linder (Alice in Wonderland, War of the Worlds), Laura Seng (Jigsaws), Woman in Mind), Jenny Thompson (Jigsaws, War of the Worlds), Mark Zaffino (Jigsaws, Evening with Friends 2), and the winner - Lou Yakstis (Play It Again, Sam, Cemetery Club).

Steve Blais then presented the Golden Stage awards, which "go to the people you'd want to have on your crew if you were producing a show." For set construction, Mary Seng and Lou Yakstis received the Golden Paintbrush and Screwdriver, respectively. For lighting Technician and designer, the Golden Wrench and Pliers went to Mark Zaffino and Matt Elliott. Hopi Auerbach was awarded the Golden Scissors for costuming, and Alex Barnes the Golden Bottle for props. For stage manager extraordinaire, Trix Whitehall received the Golden Flashlight. For crew chief, the Golden Hammer went to Bob Thompson. The Golden Hanger (personal wardrobe lent to shows), T-Square (measuring) and Mirror (make-up) were given to Jo Blais, Keith Brown and Steve Cox. Finally Golden Hogs went to both Lloyd Rawley and Steve Cox for having the most appearances on stage during the past season.

President's Awards
Marie Tousignant, GAC President, announced her President's Awards. The President's award for Office Design and Construction went to Bob and Mary Seng for building GAC's new office (which had previously been in Tousignant's home). The President's award for Vision and Moral Support went to Steve Blais. Bob Holloway received the President's Award for Outstanding Production of a Music Season. Finally, the Presidents Right Hand Award went to Fann Kash.

Fann Kash, GAC's treasurer and volunteer coordinator, presented the Volunteer of the Year Award to Lesley Kash. Also nominated were Judy Goldstein, Betty Otero, Jo Blais, Carol Mealey, Alex Barnes, and Mary Lou Fisher.

The GAC Board of Director's Award, recognizing people for significant contributions to GAC during the 94-95 season, was presented to Fann Kash by Marie Tousignant. This award was fittingly named after Tousignant. Other nominees nominated for the award were Alex Barnes, Bob Thompson, Trix Whitehall, Mark Zaffino, and Ginny Zanner.

The final two awards acknowledged excellence in producing music and drama performances. Bob Holloway, chair of the music committee, presented the Producer's Award for a Music Show to John Ward and Trix Whitehall for the Celtic Evening concerts. Mary Lou Fisher, chair of the theatre committee, presented the producer's Award for a Drama Show to Jo Blais for Jigsaws.

A Greenbelt Gardener

by Rosie Rhubarb

It is still too early to plant summer flowers and vegetables. Vulnerable to frost, you would have to cover them when night temperatures drop into the mid-30s or risk having them killed. Also, heat loving plants like impatiens, marigolds, tomatoes, and peppers don't like nights in the 40s and will shiver rather than grow.

The average last frost date for our area is in late April. Wait till then to buy and plant heat loving plants and save yourself effort.

Spring Vegetable Garden

The summer time favorites of tomatoes, peppers, and squash won't be planted till May, but cool weather vegetables can be started anytime now, whenever the soil is workable. Cabbage, broccoli, leafy green vegetables, lettuce, spinach, peas, and radishes are just some of the vegetables that thrive in cool weather.

Plants and seeds are on sale now at local garden stores. Some cool weather vegetables can be started from seed: spinach, radish, peas, lettuce, and leafy greens. For others, such as cabbage and broccoli, buy little plants and plant them anytime now. Remember to keep the seeds and little plants moist - do not let them dry out.

Now that the temperature is right for these plants, the determining factor for when to plant is when the soil is dry enough to work. An old-fashioned test is to pick a handful of soil up, squeeze it a bit, drop it, and if it breaks apart, it is ready for planting.

Tax Time Warning

Maryland State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein said taxpayers seeking professional help with income tax returns should use care in choosing a tax preparer. Taxpayers remain responsible for their tax returns regardless of who prepares the form.

"About half of Maryland taxpayers prepare their own income tax returns, but those who use professional tax preparers should look for individuals with ties to the community who will be available to help them after April 17," Goldstein said.

Among the warning signals consumers should watch out for are: Tax preparers who guarantee a refund without seeing the taxpayers records; tax preparers who ask that the refund be sent directly to them instead of the taxpayer;

Photographer Andrew David-hazy is exhibiting "Images in Time," at the Montpelier Cultural Arts Center through April 26. His unusually large 20-foot long photographs have a surreal, dreamlike quality. The process he uses, based on strip camera technology, allows for manipulation of the subject matter through altering angles and times. For info (301) 953-1993.

WSSC Open House

County Budget

still is short of money to pay current bills, including revenue bonds outstanding. It is not anticipated that revenues from the fees will be sufficient to pay for all expenses. Recycling is a particular problem, because the more successful it is, the less trash is generated for the landfills and the smaller the amount of fees to be earned by the landfill itself.

To bring in more money, the county executive proposes to assess home owners new fees to pay for the recycling program ($55.60 per household per year) and for the capital costs and debt service of the county landfills ($50 to $70 per unit). These new fees, totaling over $100 a year, will be added to the county tax bills for all homes.

A third fee for bulky trash service will not be charged to Greenbelt residents because the county has not been and will not be providing the service within the city. Even so, Greenbelt will be impacted because in the past the city has received a rebate from the county from landfill fees since the city was providing this service for its own residents. Now the county will eliminate the rebate.

The city staff had not anticipated this reduction in revenues when its budget was prepared, and the loss of this revenue to the city's refuse operation will be about $100,000. Thus, before adopting its budget, the Greenbelt City Council must figure out a way to offset this loss of revenue in its refuse collection operations.

Telephone Tax

City residents could have suffered another hit on their pocketbooks if the state legislature had given the county the authority to levy a tax on telephone bills. This tax as proposed would have amounted to 12% of telephone bill charges essentially over and above the base service cost. Thus long distance users would have seen their bills go up for the toll calls by 12%.

However, the state legislators, in the session which ended on Monday, April 10, turned down the count's attempt to impose this new tax.

City Notes

Trees and shrubs were planted in the Greenbelt cemetery, at Ryan Way, the Springhill Lake Recreation Center, and Schrom Hills Park. About 250 saplings were planted in the buffer strip between Schrom Hills Park and Hanover Parkway. Seeds were planted in the Public Works greenhouse for later planting.

Riding animals in the playgrounds were repainted. Crescent Road was repaired. A pot hole at the library was patched.

Twilight Concerts

Ombudsman

attractive woman with short, silvery hair, and on the day of this interview she wears a bright red business suit with a handsome silver pin on the lapel. The early-morning walks she takes with a co-worker help keep her fit and trim. The blue eyes behind her glasses laugh easily and often, and her face reveals the feelings shifting rapidly between humor, thoughtfulness, and once or twice the verge of tears.

Greenbelt was Supportive

She lives two blocks from the city office. "I used to go home for lunch every day, and spend a half hour yelling at the kids. But I never worried about their safety. It's tougher now, it's a different world. I never locked the doors. Greenbelt was a supportive community for a single parent. Neighbors looked out for your kids and asked if you needed a ride. People who move say they miss the closeness here. I don't know why Greenbelt seems to be so different. I live near a playground, and I see grown people bringing their kids back here to swing on the same swings."

Jim Giese (Greenbelt's former city manager) was a wonderful mentor, and encouraged me. We worked together for 21 years. He's a tremendous person, and took a personal interest in all his employees. My kids used to stop in after school, and I never felt he disapproved, even though he didn't have kids of his own. He was incredibly understanding."

She has been fortunate in all her mentors: her college advisor; Giese; Dan Hobbs, the present city manager; and in her teens a librarian she describes as "one of the greatest people in Cumberland, Maryland, a single woman who mothered everyone. And I used to read everything I could get my hands on."

Barbara grew up in Garrett County and spent "18 years plotting how to get out of there." She came from a large Catholic family that included many priests and nuns, and was educated in Catholic schools from which she was expelled three times for being "a little mouthy to the nuns. They're like the police—they carry all the weapons. You should be polite to them." She gives her characteristic laugh. Yet despite her educational ups and downs, she later sent her children to Catholic schools. It was a religious decision, she says, and she felt the discipline was good.

Her father, a schoolteacher who became an insurance salesman, was "very straight, and considered stern. But I was the baby of the family, the youngest of six, and I could wrap him around my finger. My mother was a wild woman, a flapper who was the first woman in Garrett County to bob her hair. She was daring, she used to ride bareback—she'd left home at 15 to work. She was part English and part American Indian. My kids say, "How could a swinger like grandma have a straight kid like you?"

As the youngest of her grandparents' 68 grandchildren, she felt sure she was their favorite, but later learned that every child felt that way. "There has to be a special art," she says, "to being able to love that many kids."

After her father died, her mother moved to Greenbelt. During the last ten years of her life, mother and daughter grew closer. When her mother died in 1985, Barbara's co-workers planted a Japanese maple outside the municipal building, in her memory. We take a walk outside to inspect it, and we admire the buds that have just begun to swell. She lays her hand on a branch, lightly, like a caress.

Thinks for Herself

There's a streak of the rebel in Barbara. She thinks for herself and likes to speak her mind, although the years have taught her a certain discretion. When the subject of religion comes up, she chooses her words with care. A deeply religious woman, she is a member of the Catholic Community of Greenbelt, a group that broke off from St Hugh's in 1985 to found an independent congregation, despite what she describes as a "strained relationship" with the bishop.

"This isn't something you do without thinking a lot," she says. "But it's been one of my most fulfilling experiences. Everyone does everything, except say mass—a function performed by visiting Jesuits and members of other religious orders. When it comes to charities and social work, there is no bureaucracy: "you just give."

Greenbelt is integral in Barbara's life. "It's a wonderful place for kids and old people," she says. "And the level of volunteerism is incredible, the number of hours people give to the community. Right now some young people are trying to start a coffee house. That's a very Greenbelt thing to do."

"Of course people are busier now—there used to be a network of housewives, if you needed a ride to the doctor you could get it. In my day, women didn't work unless they had to. Yet I don't regret having worked. I've had a much fuller life. Nowadays more things have to be done on a commercial basis, and Greenbelt does a lot to fill the gap. Greenbelters demand a high level of service, and they get it."

Her work with the Greenbelt Museum—she serves on the board of directors—has been a major focus of her own volunteerism, and she feels the museum has been "more successful than we dared to hope." She would like to see it become a department of the city some day, when economic pressures ease.

The city, she feels, is in good shape economically, due largely to years of careful budgeting by Jim Giese. "We've never lived beyond our means. We've never padded our payrolls, we hire people who are needed. The community center is the big 'if' in cost. It's a marvelous idea, but the decision was made in the late Eighties, when we didn't know this recession was coming." But Greenbelt, she feels, will work things out. "I just turned 60," she says, "And this is the best time of my life. I have a job I enjoy very much. My kids are reared and doing well, and I have the world's greatest grandchildren. I've gotten through my whole life with humor. If you can't fix it, laugh at it."

HealthPlus Donates To Poison Control

HealthPlus Inc., one of the region's largest health maintenance organizations, recently made a $10,000 contribution to the National Capital Poison Center of the Washington metropolitan area to help keep the center in operation for another year.

In spite of first-time state funding and lean operation, the center predicts a potential shortfall of $270,000 this fiscal year — money necessary to treat an estimated 32,000 people who will use the center this year.

According to recent Congressional testimony by Dr. Ted Miller, a health economist with the National Public Services Research Institute in Landover, Maryland, every dollar spent on a poison center saves at least $7.75 in unnecessary health care expenses. Poison Centers can eliminate office visits, hospital admissions, and ambulance runs.

HealthPlus is an individual practice association (IPA) model health maintenance organization based in Greenbelt, Maryland. Its managed care programs serve more than 275,000 members throughout Maryland, Virginia and the District of Columbia. Founded in 1979, HealthPlus is a subsidiary of Sanus Corp. Health Systems, a New York Life company.

TV Commercial Wins

A television commercial produced for New York Life/HealthPlus by Adams Sandler and Lewis Pictures has been named a winner in the 16th annual international Telly Awards, which honor creative excellence in television commercials. The Telly Awards competition drew more than 8,000 entries from across the nation.

New York Life/HealthPlus, based in Greenbelt, provides health insurance for 300,000 people in Maryland, Virginia and Washington, D.C.

New Buyer Agent At Weichert Realtors

Weichert, Realtors, has announced that Pam Harris, a sales associate at the Greenbelt office, has been named a Certified Buyer Agent after having successfully completed the Weichert, Realtors' Buyer Agent Training Course.

Buyer agency, a relatively new procedure in the real estate industry, occurs when sales associates agree to represent the buyer instead of the seller throughout the home buying process. To ensure that all of the company's associates know their legal and ethical responsibilities to home buyers and sellers when buyer brokerage is involved, Weichert, Realtors requires that all sales associates become certified through approved courses before they can act as buyer agents.

POLICE BLOTTER

Based on Information Released by the Greenbelt Police Department

A hit-and-run perpetrator led a chase from the area of Southway and Greenbelt Rds., where the accident occurred, through the intersection of Kenilworth Ave. and Crescent Rd., south on Kenilworth Ave. and eventually to the 9100 block of Springhill Ct. Police tried to stop her several times, but the driver refused to pull over and drove around police vehicles in an attempt to elude them. Once the officers saw that there was a child in the vehicle, however, they stopped trying to pull her over and just followed her without lights or siren. When the driver finally stopped, she refused to release her seven-month old son to the officers when she was being arrested, and she kicked an officer in the face when they were placing her inside a police vehicle. The infant was not injured during the commotion and was turned over to his grandmother. The driver, a 32-year-old resident, was charged with assault and battery of a police officer, and driving with a suspended license. She appeared before a District Court Commissioner and was incarcerated in lieu of $500. The incident took place around 4 p.m. on Wednesday, April 5.

A quantity of suspected phenylhydrazine (PCP) was recovered when members of the Patrol Division, the Narcotics Unit, the Tactical Unit, and the K-9 Unit served a search and seizure warrant for controlled dangerous substances at an apartment on Parkway around 10:15 p.m. on Thursday, March 30. A 30-year-old resident woman was arrested and charged with possession of PCP with intent to distribute and possession of PCP. She appeared before a District Court Commissioner and was held on no bond.

A quantity of suspected marijuana was found in a vehicle during a search incident to arresting the driver for driving with a suspended license. The driver, a 28-year-old nonresident man, was then arrested and charged with possession of a controlled dangerous substance, too. After appearing before a District Court Commissioner, he was released on personal recognizance. The incident occurred in the 6000 block of Greenbelt Rd. around 8:15 p.m. on Wednesday, March 29.

Two nonresident youths, aged 17 and 19, were arrested and charged with possession of drug paraphernal after an off-duty police officer saw the younger one smoking something that smelled like marijuana in the AMC 8 theaters around 1:30 a.m. on Saturday, April 1. Both youths were released on citation pending trial.

A 22-year-old resident man was arrested and charged with possession of drug paraphernalia after he behaved in a disorderly manner in Beltway Plaza and the officer dealing with him saw a hypodermic syringe in plain view in his pocket. A search accompanying that arrest revealed another syringe and some other paraphernalia in the person's sock. The young man was released on citation pending trial. The incident occurred around 8 p.m. on Saturday, April 1.

A 16-year-old nonresident youth, who had formerly attended Eleanor Roosevelt High School and is currently suspended from another high school in the county, was arrested by the School Resource Officer and charged with trespassing on school grounds (Eleanor Roosevelt) around 1 p.m. on Wednesday, April 5. The teenager was then incarcerated at Boy's Village pending juvenile court action.

An item reported stolen during a burglary of a residence in the 5800 block of Cherrywood Terr. on March 26 was reported found, in the residence, on Friday, March 31;

Young Woman Killed In Auto Accident

A motor vehicle accident in the 9100 block of Edmonston Road in Springhill Lake left one passenger dead and two others in the Prince Georges Hospital Center. All three were Greenbelt residents. According to Pfc George F. Mathews, information officer for the Greenbelt Police Department, the single car involved was a 1987 Chevrolet Celebrity 4-door sedan traveling north at 10 p.m. on Sunday, April 9, when the driver lost control of the car on a curve. The car struck a utility pole.

Police report that the passenger, Nicole Viola Scoggins, of the 6100 block of Breezewood Court, was confirmed dead at the scene. She was 20 years old. Police report that a preliminary investigation showed that she was not wearing a seat belt. The driver, age 27, is listed in serious condition. The other passenger, age 13, is in critical condition.

apparently the item had merely been misplaced and the residence had not been burglarized.

Raw eggs were thrown at a residence in the 7800 block of Emlyns Way on Wednesday, April 5; some window screens were damaged.

A wallet containing several credit cards was reported stolen from a desk in an office suite in the 7500 block of Greenway Center Dr. on Tuesday, April 4

Cellular phones and accessories were reported stolen from an open office area in an office building in the 7800 block of Walker Dr. on Wednesday, April 5.

A stolen 1986 Toyota Camry was recovered in the 7400 block of Frankfort Pl. by an officer responding to a report of an abandoned vehicle, and a stolen 1985 Mazda 626LX was recovered in the 6000 block of Springhill Dr. by an officer on patrol duty who noticed a suspicious vehicle with damage to the passenger-side door lock. Both cars were found on Tuesday, April 4.

Reported stolen: a white, four-door, 1990 Honda Accord, MD tags XWY869, and a burgundy, four-door, 1990 Honda Accord, Oregon registration REX533, both from the 7400 block of Frankfort Pl. on Monday, April 3.

Vandalisms to, thefts from, and attempted thefts of vehicles were reported in the following areas: the 6100 block of Breezewood Dr., the 5800 block of Cherrywood Lane, the 6000 block of Greenbelt Rd., the 7200 block of Hanover Dr..

CFG Meeting Discusses Open Space, Environment

by Beth Alegret

"The environment is under siege," said city council member Rodney Roberts as one of three panelists invited to the Citizens for Greenbelt (CFG) Annual Meeting held on Tuesday, March 21. Roberts was joined by Jean Snyder, Founder of the Friends of Greenbelt National Park, and Roberta McCarthy, Chair of the Greenbelt Advisory Planning Board, to discuss Greenbelt's declining open space areas and the effects of over development on the environment.

BARC

Members of CFG expressed strong concerns about the U.S. Department of Agriculture's proposed development of the Beltsville Agriculture Research Center and consequently the widening of Edmonston Road. According to Roberts "we stand to lose 300 acres" of farmland to development by the USDA and now, possibly, the Food and Drug Administration. McCarthy felt that citizens must convince government agencies that BARC and other open space areas are an important resource to not only Greenbelt citizens, but to citizens of all of Prince George's County and DC. CFG feels that the increased traffic along Edmonston, which would accommodate approximately 1500 USDA employees, will be harmful to Greenbelt.

Roberts agrees. "It's a quality of life issue," Roberts said, concerned that with increasing development Greenbelt will suffer from increased crime levels. He noted a recent study that showed "that areas lacking in open space and recreational facilities had a higher crime rate than did areas with adequate open space and recreational facilities. Roberts is also concerned that additional development and increased population levels will place more burdens on the school system.

CFG has suggested that a "March for BARC" be held to preserve the 300 acres of farmland. One CFG member suggested that the USDA build at a site close to Metro in order to facilitate commuter access and to preserve the farm and nullify the need to widen Edmonston.

Parkcrest

Also discussed at the CFG meeting was parkcrest, the 7.76 acre planned parcel of land off of Goodluck Rd. planned to house 31 homes adjacent to Greenbelt Park. Snyder has worked for the past year trying to save the parcel of land from development. She and supporters have formed picket lines at the site as bulldozers were cutting trees and the first home was eventually built.

Ralph Drees, a Kentucky developer who owns the land, has offered to sell it to Snyder and preservationists for $1.8 million, but told her that they would also have to buy out several individuals who have already purchased homes for approximately $200,000 a piece. But Snyder said that on March 26 the Vice President of the developer, Ryan, Jim Spangler, told her that Ryan wanted to discontinue its involvement with Parkcrest and that if they could get $300,000 in ten days it would satisfy the deal. Snyder said that Ryan is spending $3-4,000 per month to keep the sales office open.

Snyder said that she contacted County Executive Wayne Curry who told her that he would contact Drees to negotiate a better price, but Snyder has not heard back from Curry.

Snyder sent a letter on March 21 to Anne T. MacKinnon, Chairman of the County Council of Prince Georges County as a "last minute push" to save the land. Snyder's letter requested the County use a portion of the approximately $4.6 million set aside in various land acquisition accounts. "Program Open Space," to purchase Parkcrest. MacKinnon has not yet responded to Snyder's Letter.

Snyder invited CFG to encourage citizens to call MacKinnon to demonstrate support of the purchase.

Recently, Snyder has made invitations for corporations to purchase the land. She said that a corporation, or a group of corporations, could enjoy a company park for picnics or other recreational activities

A main concern of Snyder and preservationists is pollution. Snyder said that development of the land would cause toxic waste materials from lawns to contaminate the creek that runs through Greenbelt National Park and empties into the Chesapeake Bay via the Anacostia Watershed. Snyder said that a representative of the enforcement branch of the PG County Department of the Environment has determined that the creek is part of the U.S. Water system. The Army Corps of Engineers is expected to conduct an evaluation.

1995 Civic Award

IRS Warns Against Fake Agents

Beware of people impersonating Internal Revenue Service (IRS) employees who try to collect money for what they claim are unpaid taxes, IRS Internal Security cautions. "Be especially wary of anyone who insists on cash," warns IRS Regional Inspector Walter D. Duvall. "Federal tax should be paid by check or money order, with 'Internal Revenue Service' spelled out to protect against check altering. Taxpayers should also report any business that falsely claims to be affiliated with the IRS; federal law now prohibits the misuse of Treasury names and symbols."

IRS Inspectors in the Mid-Atlantic Region investigated 23 complaints last year from taxpayers who had been contacted or victimized by impersonators of IRS employees. Nationwide, IRS impersonators have proliferated, from 140 cases in 1990 to 218 reported cases in 1994. Schemes surface year-round, with older persons, minorities and small businesses most frequently targeted by con artists. Many incidents go unreported, since victims either never learn that the IRS "agent" was an impostor, or are reluctant to admit that they were duped.

Criminals also pose as IRS employees to obtain social security, credit card and bank account numbers, or other personal or financial information. With such vital information, criminals have opened credit card and checking accounts in their victims' names and looted their bank accounts.

The impersonation of a federal official is a serious crime. Those convicted face a possible three years imprisonment and fine. IRS Regional Inspector Duvall offers people these tips to protect themselves from this fraud:

• If someone contacts you in person, IRS Internal Security advises you to ask to see the person's credentials. IRS employees carry distinctive identification and must show it when meeting with taxpayers.

• If contacted by phone, don't release your credit card numbers or social security numbers unless you're sure the caller is a legitimate IRS rep. Confirm his/her employment by calling the IRS office. If there is no record of the alleged IRS employee, or if you have been the victim of an impersonation, call IRS Internal Security in Washington, DC at 202-874-0021.

Rep. Hoyer Helps Turn Back Civil Service Bill

Congressman Steny Hoyer (MD-5) helped stop an attempt in the House of Representatives to increase taxes on federal employees.

The House Government Reform and Oversight Committee on March 15 was debating legislation which would increase the annual payments by 2.5% over three years for both the Civil Service Retirement System (CSRS) and the Federal Employee Retirement System (FERS). The proposal would have also increased the computation of an annuity requiring the highest-5 paid years versus the current highest 3-paid years.

Though Hoyer is not a member of the Committee, he wrote every member of the Committee opposing the legislation, attended the Committee mark-up and talked with members during the debate. "This legislation not only violates the good faith contract we made with federal employees when they were hired but the proposals, if adopted, would have amounted to a tax increase of almost 10% on the back of a middle-class worker," Hoyer said.

In celebration of Women's History Month in March, Janelle Aquilera, a fourth grader at Greenbelt Elementary, and Malik Moody, a sixth grader at Springhill Lake Elementary, wrote essays on women they consider to be the "unsung heroine" in their lives. Janelle wrote about her mother Ramona Aquilera, and Malik wrote about her fifth grade teacher, Mrs. Phyllis Klopach. Their essays along with others from the County will be printed in a booklet for distribution.

Samm Tyroler-Cooper, a member of Kids Against Junk Food, recently had the opportunity to give a special "Lifetime of Irresponsible Achievement Award" to food companies and broadcasters who promote unhealthy foods to children on Saturday morning television. Samm gave the award at the National Press Club. She was joined by members of other groups, who handed out "lemon awards" for the most irresponsible ad campaigns of 1994.

Tax Mail Deadlines Till Midnight Monday

Since April 17, when income taxes are due, falls this year on a Monday—always the busiest day of the week for the post office—the U. S. Postal Service has made special arrangements to handle the volume of mail expected to be deposited that day.

Postal customers can easily avoid a trip to Washington by mailing their returns or extensions requests early in the day at any of the post offices, stations, branches, or collection boxes throughout the greater Washington Metro area. Tax filers should however, double check the pick up schedule if they elect to use a streetside collection box to ensure that their tax documents will be collected and post-marked before the deadline.

To avoid forcing area customers to drive all the way down to the main post office in the District of Columbia on Monday night, a number of other service centers have been established for tax filers who cannot meet ordinary cut-off times at local post offices. Greenbelters will find their nearest facility which will be open until midnight at 324 Main St. in Laurel. Window service will be available to provide cancellations.
