City Expresses Opposition To USDA Office Park at BARC

by Jim Smith

In the opening paragraph of a May 16 letter to the National Capital Planning Commission (NCPC), Greenbelt Mayor Antoinette Bram stated the city's position on the USDA office park construction at the Beltsville Agricultural Research Center. The mayor's letter accompanied the city's official comments to the revised BARC Master Plan, a document which was scheduled for action by the NCPC on May 29. In the words of the letter, "Unless the USDA headquarters is deleted from this document, the city cannot support the plan."

The mayor's letter resulted from the regular May 13 Greenbelt City Council meeting where Councilmember Rodney Roberts and other members called for clear language to express disapproval over developments at BARC toward uses unrelated to the primary mission of conducting agricultural research. Bram's letter highlighted the incompatibility of land uses: "Since the headquarters project is inconsistent with the policies of the master plan, as well as the mission of BARC, we urge that you remove any reference to the USDA headquarters from this document."

The proposed revised Master Plan of BARC shows the office park located on Sunnyside Avenue north of the Capital Beltway and west of Edmonston Road. The maps of the Master Plan present the office park as an existing facility, although the text notes, "The uncertainties surrounding the implementation of this project prevent us from addressing the USDA office complex in greater detail in the 1996 Master Plan Update. The city council, in opposition to urban development at the agricultural research station, fears that the current proposed plan would make the office park a foregone conclusion.

Both the NCPC and the Greenbelt City Council opposed the location of the USDA complex. NCPC wants federal developments, such as the USDA office park, to be developed in the Federal Corridor region of the District of Columbia in accordance with its own plan for orderly development of the District. The NCPC, in this case however, has limited ability to influence the Department of Agriculture's decision because BARC is outside of the District and, therefore, outside the region where NCPC can control the pattern of development.

The mayor's letter applauded NCPC's efforts to coordinate planning among the various federal facilities in the area of BARC. "Without this coordination, the activities of the more intense operations will compromise the research activities occurring in the more fragile natural environments," wrote Bram. She added that the city would be anxious to participate in such efforts.

Bram's letter accompanied reports from the Advisory Planning Board and city staff, which had previously reviewed the BARC Master Plan and made recommendations to council at their May 13 meeting.

NCPC Supports City's View on BARC

by Elaine Skolnik

In its May 29 meeting at which the revised Master Plan for the Beltsville Agricultural Research Center (BARC) was approved, the National Capital Planning Commission (NCPC) showed its solidarity with Greenbelt's position by deleting from the plan the U.S. Department of Agriculture's plan to locate its headquarters complex on Sunnyside Avenue.

According to NCPC spokesperson Robert Cosby, the Commission reiterated its disapproval of the project. They noted that the transfer of employees from the District of Columbia to the Beltsville location would be a move against NCPC's policy of retaining 60% of regional Federal employment in the District of Columbia, the seat of the national government. In addition, in view of current government downsizing, they questioned the need for such a facility.

NCPC also stressed that establishing the complex at BARC is contrary to BARC's mission and master plan and the government's goal of preserving the "Green Belt" of Open Space areas around Greenbelt.

Cosby stated that the Commission will be sending a report on its actions dealing with the USDA complex to the appropriate Congressional committees and to the Secretary of Agriculture.

Since NCPC's actions are only advisory outside of the District of Columbia, USDA could still proceed with the headquarters project.

To Be or Not to Be a Historic District — That Is the Question

by Heather Elizabeth Peterson

"When we were trying to keep green space, there was no question of what side Greenbelters were on, but this is more complicated." Betty Allen's comment came at the April 30 annual meeting of Citizens For Greenbelt (CFG), in which proposed plans for a Historic District were discussed.

The meeting began with the election of new officers to CFG: James Inzeo, President; Harriette Phelps, Vice President and Treasurer; Konrad Herling, Secretary; and Ruth Bond, Membership Chairman. Most of the rest of the meeting was taken up with a panel discussion of the proposal to make portions of Old Greenbelt into a Historic District.

The discussion was begun by

"The Ad Hoc Committee has been considering the benefits and drawbacks of the Historic District designation" — Jack Downs, Committee Member

Howard Berger, an architectural historian and preservation planner, who directed the February 1994 study of this proposal. Berger emphasized that no decision will be made until citizens are given an opportunity for discussion.

The nature of a Historic District was explained by Jack Downs, a member of the Ad Hoc Historic District Study Committee appointed by the Board of Greenbelt Homes, Inc. (GHI). The majority of land which would fall within the Historic District belongs to GHI.

Downs differentiated the Historic District status, which is awarded by Prince George's County, from the National Register of Historic Places. Old Greenbelt was placed on the National Register in 1980; the boundaries for the proposed Historic District are the same as those for the register.

Downs also noted that the city has applied to the National Park Service for National Landmark status; the hearing on this issue will probably take place in September. Downs said that the designation would be purely honorary, with no benefits or restrictions. "It's the equivalent of a Mount Vernon in terms of status," he said. "I think its benefit to the city is that it's going to raise awareness of the historical significance of Greenbelt."

Meaning of Designation

The Ad Hoc Committee has been considering the benefits and drawbacks of the Historic District designation, Downs said. One particular concern of committee members has been what sort of regulations the designation would add. The committee noted, for example, that GHI might have to make changes in order to conform with the U.S. Secretary of Interior's guidelines for historic preservation. Joked Downs, "I think that changes will have to be made to the GHI Green Book to comply with the Secretary of Interior's guidelines, because the Secretary of Interior's guidelines aren't going to change to comply with the Green Book."

In response to a later question, Berger pointed out that the federal government does not regulate historic preservation laws. Prince George's County voluntarily adopts the Secretary of Interior's guidelines, but there would be no direct federal involvement in the historic district. Former City Manager James Giese added that the federal government decides matters such as the federal tax credits which GHI members might be able to apply for, while county guidelines would affect work permits within the Historic District.

Downs believed that new regulations might end up being a benefit rather than a burden to the community, since it would help Greenbelters to regulate change. On the other hand, he said, the city might have to add a local advisory committee to review work permits, and this new administrative process might cost money. Downs concluded that there is no "simple yes and no" as to whether the city should ask for a Historic District designation.

James Giese, who drafted the proposal for the National Register, expressed concern that the Historic District status would cause Greenbelt to preserve the wrong parts of its past. Greenbelt's importance, he said, lies in its plan rather than in its individual buildings. He said that an early architectural historian described Greenbelt as "blocks with windows and doors. It's not very distinctive in architecture, and I don't think there's anyone here who would dispute that."

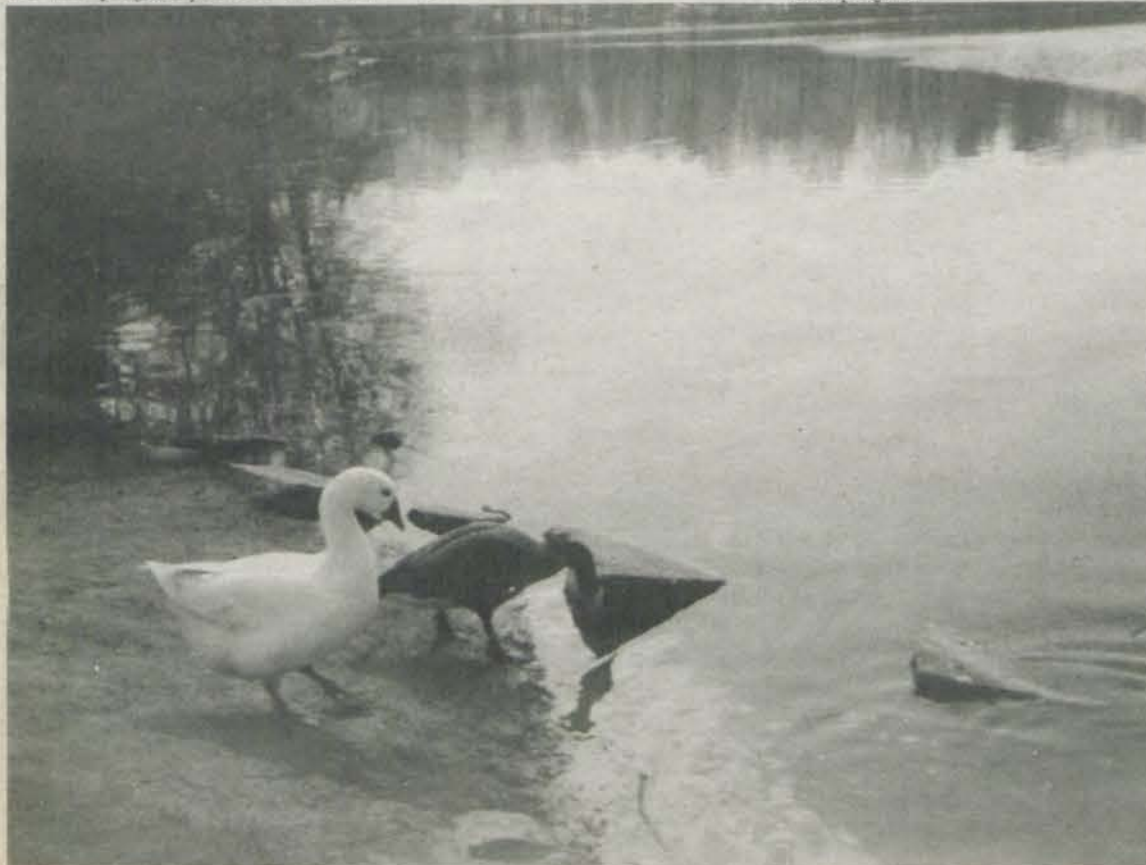

History

Giese noted that Greenbelters have taken part in earlier battles over the question of how faithful the city's original buildings should remain to the past. He said that in the early 1980s, GHI had chosen to find other sources of money for renovation rather than to adhere to historic preser-

Letters to the Editor

They Came

(Residents of Green Ridge House gathered for a goodbye party for their resident manager, Millie Ezzell.)

They came big and small
There were 61 in all
They came with walkers
They came with canes
They came in wheelchairs
They came holding each other up as
They could not walk alone
And when we asked them to give
They gave
The love was so thick in that room
You could cut it with a knife
All for one person — Millie
You will be missed by lots of us.

It Takes a Village

Two weeks ago, my younger son ran out between two cars and smashed into a moving car while playing in our front yard on Woodland Way. My 6 year old ran into the house screaming that his brother had been hit by a car. It is amazing the amount of thoughts that can go through your mind in split-seconds — one of which was that I should not move him when I saw him lying face down on the street. But none of my "Mom" genes would let me leave him lying there. So when the very kind policeman arrived responding to my neighbor's 911 call, I was holding a screaming child with what seemed to be (and thankfully turned out to be) just a smashed and bloody lip. Pvt. Barrett spoke to Nicholas immediately. He got Nick's attention by talking about his own run-in with a baseball bat when he was about Nick's age. And shortly another officer arrived, Cpl. Schinner, who also spoke to Nicholas and kept his attention while I gathered my wallet, my shoes, and my wits so we could go on our first ambulance ride. The officers were with us til we left and later, as we waited for the 10 or 15 stitches to put Nick's lip back together, the two heroes/officers arrived at the emergency room with a toy car for Nicholas and an invitation to visit the Police Station.

I know we have a wonderful community. I grew up here and brought my boys here to live so they could have the same experience that I feel so grateful to have had. But it always feels good to have one's ideas — ideals — decisions — substantiated. For it seems that even our Police Department feels as I do that "it takes a village to raise a child."

Thank you,

Susan Brown Phillips
Nicholas and Jamie

P.S. Thanks also to the Rescue Squad, neighbors and friends who were there when I needed them.

Trash Problem

On May 23, Alan Freas wrote a letter to the editor. He made the point that central collection areas for trash look "trashy." People are careless about putting materials in the proper container, and the containers cannot handle the volume, so the trash piles up and overflows the containers.

This is exactly what is happening at the trash collection point just outside the Community Center. Trash is starting to overflow the trash area and blow down the hill towards the parking lot. To paraphrase Freas, we don't need this trashy look in Greenbelt.

I believe most people will make some effort to get the materials in the right container if there are enough of them and they are clearly marked. We need at least twice as many containers for paper and recyclables. I encourage the City Council to double the size of this trash collection area and to provide the needed additional containers — properly marked.

Let's clean up our act and keep Greenbelt green.

Lost Flute Found

My Memorial Day weekend was saved by two very nice people who found my lost flute. Those two people were Officer Lauer of the Greenbelt Police and the lady who found my flute. The policeman made a lot of phone calls to find me. It's great to live in Greenbelt where the people are so nice!

Let's Work Together

Your coverage of the City Council meeting of May 13 was most welcome. Even more welcome, however, was the unanimous vote of the City Council to endorse the Advisory Planning Board's recommendations for Cherrywood Lane. These beautification and traffic safety measures will ensure that residents and office workers along Cherrywood Lane share in Greenbelt's heritage as a garden community.

Greenbelters will also welcome the offers of our neighbors on Cherrywood Lane to cooperate with the city as they develop their properties. If the massive traffic flows they predict their plans will generate actually materialize, cooperation now to keep our roads safe is more urgent than ever.

The owners of the A.H. Smith property, for example, implied that their development of this wetland will require six lanes of traffic compared to the existing four. Capital Office Park said that its planned expansion requires the maintenance of all existing capacity on Cherrywood Lane. Because the street is already wider than U.S. Rte. 1, which carries 56,000 cars a day, these predicted traffic counts, if accurate, would mean a minimum 8-fold increase in traffic from the current 7,000 cars per day. The proposal to turn Greenbelt Metro parking lot into a fringe parking lot for the University of Maryland could also contribute to increased traffic flows.

Fortunately, city staff actually anticipates only a modest increase in traffic — to a level comparable to Crescent Road. No studies were introduced at the council meeting to contradict this estimate. Even this modest increase, however, means we must all work together now to ensure that pedestrian and bicycle safety around the Greenbelt Metro station, the Springhill Lake Recreation Center, and Springhill Lake Apartments is not jeopardized.

Finally, on behalf of the Greenbelt Bicycle Coalition, I pledge our cooperation with the city, other civic organizations, and our neighbors on Cherrywood Lane. Let's work together to make Cherrywood Lane an attractive and safe entrance to our community.

Lawrence and Alberta Shanahan celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary.

Thanks

Thank you Mayor Antoinette M. Bram and the citizens and City Council of Greenbelt for the lovely plaque in honor of our Golden Anniversary which we celebrated May 19 at Fergies Restaurant in Edgewater, Md. Over 100 relatives and friends surprised us, coming from far and wide. It was truly a wonderful day with great food, music and dancing. Special songs were sung by Pastor Arnold McQueen; Bill Dent, who also played the accordion; and Billy Dennis, who sang the Anniversary Waltz. A duet by Margie Brunatti, our daughter, and Bill Dennis was most special.

We have lived in Greenbelt since 1953 and raised three children, Jim, Margie and Patrick. We also helped out with some of our grandchildren who also were raised in Greenbelt.

Pastor Ferguson of Assembly of God Church renewed our marriage vows.

Everyone enjoyed the music of the 40's and 50's. Our favorite gift was a portrait of our 10 grandchildren and two great grandchildren. Congratulations were also received from the Governor of Maryland, President Clinton, Congressman Steny Hoyer, the American Legion, and Veterans of Foreign Wars for Larry's four years in the Army Air Corps during World War II. We also heard from the Ambassador of Ireland, where the Shanahan family came from long ago, as well as Andrea Roane and Gordon Peterson from Channel 9. Thanks for all the tributes.

A special tribute, "Thank You with Love", was written by Margie to her Mom and Dad. Everyone in our family feels Greenbelt is the most wonderful place in the country to live, and we all hope to have many more years here.

Thanks again, dear children Jim, Margie, Patrick and grandchildren, who made this wonderful surprise party for us so special. Thanks to all the wonderful folks in Greenbelt who make Greenbelt so great, and thanks to all the lovely folks at the News Review.

Art Center's "Canticle" Is Based On Award-winning Sci-Fi Novel

by Denis Jelalian

The Greenbelt Arts Center will present "A Canticle for Leibowitz" written by Walter Miller, Jr. and adapted for the stage by Richard Feltnagle, for three weekends beginning June 14.

Walter Miller, Jr. began writing in the early 1950's. In 1955, his short story "The Darfsteller" won a Hugo Award, science fiction's highest honor. "A Canticle for Leibowitz" was originally published as a serial in Fantasy and Science Fiction magazine from 1955 to 1957. After revisions, "Canticle" was published as a novel in 1959, and won Miller his second Hugo Award in 1961.

"A Canticle for Leibowitz" is set in the future after a nuclear war. The story is told in three episodes, each separated by hundreds of years. Rather than picture a bleak future for the human race, "Canticle" raises intriguing questions about the nature and paradoxes of humanity, technology and religion.

Suzanne Zappasodi, who is directing "Canticle" for the Greenbelt Arts Center, did research for two years before undertaking this assignment. Zappasodi pointed out that the monastic tradition in "Canticle" is related to current scholarship that Irish monks, particularly on the island of Iona, preserved Western civilization during the Dark Ages; a theme discussed by Sir Kenneth Clark in his television series "Civilization."

Zappasodi said, "Writers from Hawthorne, Jules Verne, and H. G. Wells to all the modern writers of science fiction, have been fascinated by humanity's use and misuse of technology. Science historian Edward Tenner of Princeton University, a Woodrow Wilson Fellow, Smithsonian lecturer, and author of "Why Things Bite Back", asks why technology, designed to help, often has such negative effects. The wood-burning stove which is supposed to keep us warm, pollutes the air with greenhouse gases, depletes our wood resources, and deprives us of needed oxygen. The automobile which should liberate us and give us mobility, instead depletes natural resources, causes massive air pollution and generates accidents, traffic jams, and physical apathy. And, perhaps, most notable of all is nuclear energy, which may provide cheap power, but it also provides nuclear bombs and nuclear waste. Can we ever learn to use technology wisely and avoid the bite? "Canticle" deals with all these issues and more.

The Greenbelt Arts Center

production of "A Canticle for Leibowitz" stresses the possibility that humanity can preserve its faith and still learn to use technology wisely. "We portray a society that sees no racial distinctions, a society that has leveled all social classes, a society that prefers mental acuity over physical perfection."

"A Canticle for Leibowitz" will be at the Greenbelt Arts Center Fridays and Saturdays, June 14, 15, 21, 22, 28, 29 at 8 p.m. and Sunday, June 23 at 2 p.m. Copies of Miller's novel of "A Canticle for Leibowitz" will be on sale at all performances. For information, directions or reservations, please call (301)441-8770.

Jerry Kaigler, Sr. Speaks At Imani Celebration

by Barbara Likowski

Imani means faith. That's what the Imani group of third through sixth grade boys and girls at Greenbelt Elementary School is all about- faith. Meeting once a week from 3:45 to 5:45 the students learned through working and playing together to have faith in themselves and in one another. They were encouraged by mentors to make choices about how they would live, learned to work hard, and to be proud of themselves and their achievements. They learned that there are positive ways to settle disputes and they had help with their homework.

On Friday, May 31, an Imani Celebration was held at the school. Welcoming visitors and students was Principal Carolyn Goff. Members of the Imani group were staff members: Chairperson Arcelius Brickhouse, fourth grade teacher and Co-chairpersons, Chante Gregory, first grade teacher, Jerry V. Kaigler, third grade teacher and Chontell Richardson, third grade teacher, who presented awards.

Jerry Kaigler, Sr.

The speaker was very special to the students because he was Jerry Kaigler's father. He was Jerry Kaigler, Sr. Proudly introducing his father the younger Jerry Kaigler called his father, a loyal, loving, caring, and hard working man. Born in Bogalusa, Louisiana, he later served four years with the marines in Vietnam before coming to this area where he married and raised three children (two of them are now teachers like their mother.). After serving for 26 years, he retired as a sergeant in 1994 in the D.C. Police Department. But he's still working, his son said, for now he works with his church giving food to the homeless.

"Keep the Imani faith in your mind and heart", the senior Kaigler told the Imani members. "Remember," he cautioned, "trouble is easy to get into but hard to get out of." Always say no to negative people, places and things. Kaigler explained that he had never let his children be negative or think negatively about themselves.

Get in the habit of making valuable use of your time, he urged. Be positive about it.

Kaigler encouraged the students to practice during the summer what they had learned in the Imani group and hoped that sixth graders would keep the Imani faith and values in their new school.

When he was growing up, there was no Imani group but he belonged to the Boy Scouts where he learned about values. It is the same thing, he said. It has to do with living positively. "Keep the Imani faith in your mind and heart," he said once more.

Awards were then presented to members of the group and as each child came forward to receive his/her award, they hugged Goff and some of their mentors or proudly shook hands with them.

Awards

The Most Improved awards were presented to Charmira Pollard and Darrell Braxton. Named Most Outstanding Imani for social skills, behavior and academic achievement were Tiara Orange and Ricardo Montague. All members who completed the Imani training received a certificate and pin. Beside the four awardees they were: Shawn Adams, Leo Addison, Latasha Allen, Anthony Brown, Dayshawn Brown, Cherelle Curtis, Dexter Curtis, Natasha Pelzer-Wade, Stephen Eaves, Dominic Evans, Eric Evans,

Traditional Date For Memorial Service

by Mary Moien

The sun shone brightly in Greenbelt on May 30, the traditional Memorial Day. May 30 is the date that remains Memorial Day in the minds and memories of members of Greenbelt Post 136 of the American Legion, sponsors of the celebration held each year at Roosevelt Center near the war memorials. Close to 100 people participated in the ceremonies this year, the audience comprised mainly of veterans and spouses of World War II and the Korean War. In addition, there were a few younger men who served in the 1970's and 80's. The youngest participants, from Eleanor Roosevelt High School, participated as the Junior ROTC Color Guard and as singers.

The program, which was led by Herbert Rosenberg, included many local dignitaries, including American Legion Post Commander Jerry Dushane; Rodney Roberts, representing the Greenbelt City Council; State Senator Leo Green; and County Council member Audrey Scott. The ERHS Junior ROTC members who led the color guard included David Hermes, Reginald Lowndes, James McClelland, and Rachelle Caffey. Members of the Legion, the Auxiliary, and the Disabled American Veterans filled out the color guard ranks. ERHS Chamber Choir member Sarah Baker sang the National Anthem. The three singers, Baker, Sam Carnegie, and Miriam Lemus, later performed the "Battle Hymn of the Republic" and "This Land is Your Land."

Post Commander Dushane led with the Pledge of Allegiance, then made a few comments on the youth of the area. Working with them in the past year, he said, let him know that they still have a very high sense of patriotism. Rosenberg told the group that they should not weep for those who had died but be proud of what they died for. He urged others "to do our share and keep our vigilance so that what they fought for can be realized." Councilman Roberts presented a proclamation from the mayor and the city commemorating Memorial Day. Colonel Wade, responsible for Junior ROTC at ERHS, stated that Junior ROTC has become the largest elective activity in the Prince George's County High Schools and is continuing to grow. He expressed his pride in these students.

Senator Barbara Mikulski was unable to attend, but her assistant in Prince George's County, Asuntha Chiang, a 1987 ERHS graduate, was present to address the gathering and bring the Senator's greetings. State Senator Leo Green applauded Greenbelt for keeping the original date and meaning of the ceremony. He noted that he had just attended his daughter's college graduation and that she is being commissioned an ensign in the Navy. Three of his eight children have served in the military. Green expressed gratitude for those who have made the supreme sacrifice. He then briefly reviewed the history of veterans from the Battle of Lexington to Desert Storm - over two million deaths. He stated, through a quotation from Thornton Wilder, that our best remembrance of the dead is not grief, but gratitude.

County Council Member Audrey Scott, a member of the Greenbelt American Legion Auxiliary, thanked all of the veterans' organizations which take the time and make the effort to keep the ceremonies alive. She reminisced about her childhood, growing up near Lexington and Concord, and about her father, who was a World War I veteran. She said in those days there was always a parade and the children would visit the cemeteries and decorate the graves.

The chaplain, Sam Hofberg, then read the 39th psalm as the wreaths were carried to the war memorials. Sarah Baker played taps and Sam Carnegie sang "Amazing Grace," followed by the retiring of the colors. It was a true Greenbelt day.

Sponsors of the program included Zack Berry, coordinator of mentoring programs in the Prince George's County Public Schools, Carolyn Fox from the National Zoo, (her granddaughter, Nicole Harris is a member of the Imani group), Jasper's Restaurant in Greenbelt, Black Entertainment Television, Greenbelt Elementary School faculty and staff and Bruce Mangum. HISTORIC DISTRICT

vation guidelines requiring that the original homes retain their casement windows. Giese said that this year's GHI Home and Gardens Tour also revealed landscaping which was not in the original tradition. Giese concluded, "It's a question of individual (homeowners) doing things differently as opposed to preserving the way things were" at the beginning of Greenbelt's history, "which was everyone doing everything uniform and alike."

Former Tugwell Room curator Betty Allen said that she was worried about the impact of new regulations on GHI members with limited incomes. "Anything you can do to preserve Greenbelt is a good thing," she said, "but I want to know exactly what we're doing."

Discussion Period

The four-member panel then answered questions from the audience. Several people asked about the procedure for becoming a Historic District. Downs said that his committee was responsible to the GHI Board but noted that non-GHI members in the proposed district ought to be represented. The Board, he said, will want to be sure that "substantial numbers" of GHI members are in favor of the Historic District before they proceed with the designation request; however, the procedure for determining members' opinions had not yet been decided.

Giese added that the county is sensitive to the opinions of the entire Greenbelt community.

As far as regulations were concerned, Giese said, non-historic buildings such as the Roosevelt Center's medical building would not be affected. Berger pointed out, "Should a district be designated, everything that exists as of that day is grandfathered." No changes would have to be made to Greenbelt buildings as a result of the designation.

Downs said that small changes to buildings, such as the additions of decks or patios, would not be regulated. A local advisory committee would review major changes.

The possibility of these regulations worried Tom Stutzman, who noted that homeowners already go through an administrative process in order to make changes. What are GHI members gaining with the designation? he asked. "I agree, a Historic District is great, but we've got to live here. Williamsburg is great, but nobody lives there."

Berger responded that the designation is a "planning tool. . . . The question for Greenbelt is, 'Is a Historic District the appropriate tool for managing planning?'"

In reply to a question by Alan Turnbull, Berger said that "nobody wants to freeze the houses to what they looked like between 1937 and 1941." Greenbelt's homes, he said, should have "historic meaning to the community but also be useful to the community."

City Councilmember J Davis agreed that the city needs regulations to prevent changes from the original community plan, but, like many others who spoke that night, she worried about whether the Historic District designation was the appropriate manner in which to do so. She concluded the meeting by asking where other historic districts are located.

Replied Berger in a mockingly ominous manner, "They are everywhere." He cited Broad Creek as an example, but added, "There is no parallel to Greenbelt in Prince George's County, and I can't think of any example in Maryland or even beyond for you to look to for a model." That fact, he said, shows the uniqueness of Greenbelt.

Fast Lane was invented for the simple reason that, to someone in pain, there's no such thing as a "minor" emergency. Even though small abrasions, cuts, sprains and colds aren't life-threatening, life's not much fun when you're enduring them.

That's why every emergency is top priority in the Fast Lane.

Call 552-0044 to talk with one of

The Greenbelt Museum is one of the 16 historic sites in Prince George's county that is part of the county's tricentennial "Passport to History" celebration. A passport is available at each of the museums, including the Greenbelt Museum, where it is stamped. People who visit all the museums are eligible for a drawing, with the grand prize being a trip to England. The Greenbelt Museum, located at 10-B Crescent Road, is open every Sunday, 1-5 p.m.

Greenbelt Museum Notes

by Sandra Lange

Residents of Greenbelt for 53 years, Mike and Myrna Burchick are the newest members of the Greenbelt Museum's "Roosevelt Club." The Burchicks recently presented the Friends of the Greenbelt Museum (FOGM) with their tax-deductible $500 contribution. Their names will be engraved on the Roosevelt Club membership plaque which hangs on the wall in the Museum.

The Burchicks came to Greenbelt in 1942 when they moved into their "defense" home at 9-H Research Road. Mike had a job with the War Department, earning $1,000 per year. The Burchicks now reside in a home which they built on Woodland Way for their family of five sons and one daughter.

Greenbelt artist Dan Kennedy provided FOGM with a watercolor drawing of the Greenbelt Museum. His drawing is on the new Museum brochure. It is also featured on note cards available for sale at the Museum.

The "Deco Time" clock exhibit is now on display at the Museum. Throughout the Museum are clocks and watches that were

Life Experiences Of Polio Survivors

The National Rehabilitation Hospital Research Center seeks to interview persons 45 years or older who had polio and recovered, either with no disabilities or with disabilities which have remained stable throughout their adult lives.

The purpose of the interview is to learn about the life experiences and opinions of people who had polio, in order to help health care professionals improve how they meet the psychological and social, as well as medical, needs of people who experienced a bout with polio.

The study is not medical in nature and provides no treatment. It consists of a confidential interview with a researcher about the individual's firsthand experiences in dealing with polio. A $30 honorarium is provided for the person's time in granting the interviews, which are scheduled at the person's convenience.

Using Good Manners Can Also Be Fun

Greenbelt Elementary School's cafeteria was transformed into a dining room on Friday afternoon, May 24. The occasion was the After School Program's dinner. Young ladies in pretty dresses and young gentlemen in suits and ties were about to put into practice what they had been learning and practicing for weeks—good manners.

Fifth and sixth graders set the tables with white tablecloths and place settings. These older students also had made tissue paper corsages for all and centerpieces for each table. They helped to serve the younger children before they themselves were seated.

Young gentlemen seated their female classmates as though they did it every day. It didn't seem to matter that these were the same girls they had teased just the day before. Practice really did make perfect here.

It was interesting to see a young man decide that since it was "good manners" to try everything, he would take the plunge and taste an olive. Looking very pleased with himself, he nevertheless had to admit he really didn't like it.

The children showed through words and deeds that they were having a delightful time. Conversation was in low tones and interesting. Good manners abounded and children discovered that using good manners didn't interfere with having fun.

Before they left their tables, the centerpieces were given as prizes to the child who was fortunate to have a flower pasted under his or her seat.

After dinner the children gathered in the gym for dancing. Hokey Pokey and the Limbo drew enthusiastic participants. Good manners carried the day.

A Tribute to My Mom & Dad
Happy 50th Anniversary

Dear Mom & Dad,
 Fifty years somehow have quickly passed
 Your loving commitment was sure to last Chicago the Excitement, you took it all in Hockey games, football, fights—Dempsey would win.
 Working in Restaurants, a friend you would find
 Frank Sinatra a singer, quite unknown at the time
 No one seemed to like him, no one seemed to care
 But you Mom, and Frank many dinners you'd share.
 Dad was so busy working for "Kraft"
 To work he would go, Al Capone he would pass.
 The streets of Chicago the friends you would meet
 Leave a lifetime of memories I'm sure buried deep.
 The fun you had when you were so young
 Was soon to be blessed by your first son
 Jimmy was a joy right from the start
 One look at him and he stole your heart
 With big blue eyes and a dimple in his chin
 Your heart he would capture, your love he would win.
 The family of three would soon be a bliss
 A daughter named Margie to cuddle and kiss
 Her long blonde pigtails you would braid in the sun
 Until her friends thought she looked better with one.
 To Greenbelt you would move a family of four
 To your great surprise the stork knocked on your door
 Pat, with his white hair, "Dye it Green" you would say
 After all, he was born on St. Patrick's Day.
 The years that would follow our family would grow
 Dad & Mom always there to help us you know.
 Ten grandchildren all with something to say
 With you love and happiness on your golden day.
 The story of your life never ending you know
 Two great grandchildren with endless love to bestow
 Our family so special because of you Mom and Dad
 I thank God for the memories and the love I have had
 If I had just one wish, I know what it would be
 To wish everyone the happiness that you both have given me.
 I love you Mom and Dad

Margie

GHI May Test Methods of Flat Roof Replacements

by Sandy Smith

Election of officers, training, and organizational issues occupied the Greenbelt Homes Inc. Board of Directors at its May 23 meeting. At the first meeting following the annual meeting and the elections, the Board re-elected Alan Turnbull as its president; Keith Jahoda, as vice president; Nat Shinderman as treasurer. Betty Deitch was elected secretary, a position she has previously held. Board Members taking their seat at the meeting included Dorothy Lauber, John Taylor, and Charles Hess. Don Comis, Carole Levin, and Terry Rutledge were honored for their service as members of the Board of Directors; Comis was there to receive a plaque in appreciation for his years as Board Member, 1990 to 1996 and as Board Secretary, 1993-96. The Board also recognized Joanne Guthrie as an Outstanding Committee member for her work on the Resales and Marketing Committee.

The once-a-month summer meetings have been set for June 27, July 25, and August 22. To avoid holidays during the Fall, the Board then accepted a management suggestion that the remaining regular meetings be held on the first and third Thursday of each month for the rest of the year.

Training and Guiding Principles

General Manager Gretchen Overdurff unveiled a framed set of Guiding Principles adopted earlier by the Board to "help us all." The Principles will hang in the Board Room. Board Members then discussed training for the new Board. They decided to defer a session on strategic planning until after a session on team building and some basic issues are covered. Over the next several months they will tackle ethics, organizational structure, and reserves. Turnbull spoke of the value of team building to set the stage and create an atmosphere for subsequent work by the Board.

Organizational Issues

The meeting began with a report from the Nominations and Elections Committee certifying election results. Overall some 290 votes were cast. Julia Eichhorst from the N&E Committee answered "absentee ballots" in response to a question by Betty Deitch when the vote count from each machine did not equal the overall total. The Board thanked the N&E Committee for its work. At the first Board meeting after the election, it is necessary to designate the GDC stockholders. The Board passed a motion that the Board of Directors be granted proxies for GHI's shares in GDC. Next, the Board set its schedule for summer meetings.

Contracts and Replacements

The Board approved for first reading a contract with McNully Heating and Air Conditioning Company to replace central air conditioners and thermostats at six of the larger homes. The Board had earlier approved replacement of eight air conditioners and voted to extend the project to cover additional air conditioners to take advantage of Pepco rebates now in effect. Although the air conditioners are being replaced somewhat ahead of schedule, the rebates, a price lower than the replacement price anticipated, and greater energy efficiency made this an attractive proposition at this time.

Although the rubber membrane roofs on the block homes do not yet show a general pattern of deterioration, some problems have been noted. The roof systems which were installed in 1981 are showing some signs of wear, especially at the seams. GHI would now like to take the opportunity to test methods of flat roof replacement. The same EPDM rubber roofing would be used but with different technical approaches to its installation. A new technology sealing system employing pressure sensitive tape is now used. The tape is less susceptible to moisture breaking down the seal. Technical Services Director Jay Freidman described the plan of replacing these roofs, checking to see how they weather a season, and then using this information to form a final plan for replacement of all flat roofs when that is necessary. The Board approved for first reading a contract with Browne and Merry Construction Company for replacement of the EPDM roof at 23 A-F Ridge Road and 2D-G Eastway at a cost not to exceed $34,400.

Other Business

The Board discussed again subleasing procedures but took no action. The Board also reconstituted the Member Complaints Panel, with Board Members Keith Jahoda, Betty Deitch and Bill Phelan agreeing to serve. Finally the General Manager brought up for discussion some modification in the after-hours on-call procedures. During the Visitors and Members portion of the meeting, Sherry Garten again made her request for access to all work orders in the past year which involved electrical work. When she was told that it would not be possible to just get electrical orders she requested access to all orders. Manager and staff had spoken to her of the difficulty in responding to this request, since the works orders are filed in each member's file, to which she would not have access due to confidentiality concerns. When members request information which isn't routinely available or available with only minimal work, the member is asked to place the request in writing for an estimate of the staff time and charges to provide the information. Garten complained that this was against the open book policy of GHI. Turnbull responded that GHI can make existing information available but cannot create "new" information without considering the impact on the corporation in terms of staff time and costs.

Second Graders Win Big with Photography

by Millie O'Dea

Second grade students at Greenbelt Elementary School were chosen by the Greenbelt Kmart to represent the area as participants in a photography contest. Kmart and Eastman Kodak Company have joined in sponsoring an educational project to teach second graders about photography and the environment in a fun and creative way. Using "My Beautiful World" as a theme, the program encourages children to think about what is beautiful in their environment and what needs to be improved.

All 110 second graders received one-time-use cameras provided by Kodak. The Greenbelt Kmart developed the pictures courtesy of Kmart's photo processors. This is the third year for this event. "It is a nation wide program," said Kenneth Caldwell, Manager of the Greenbelt Kmart. "It is a pleasure and an honor for Kmart to participate in an event enjoyable to the students and to Kmart."

The judges of the contest were the second grade teachers at Greenbelt Elementary: Christine Coyle, Kelly Noxon, Linda Weiner and Carolyn Anderson. The winners were announced in May and two 35 MM cameras were awarded as prizes.

Peter Stamos won first prize for the most beautiful scene photo, a snapshot of several ducks on the edge of Greenbelt Lake. Peter wrote a poem expressing what he saw in his photo. "I saw a pretty duck go hop, hop, hop. I said pretty duck won't you stop, stop, stop. He put his head down to say How do you do. Then he shook his tail and away he flew."

Derick Griffin's first prize picture showed what needed improvement, with his photo of an old abandoned building. Derick wrote, "I think this building in this picture needs to be improved because there are a whole lot of homeless people out there that need homes. They are out on the street and they don't have any food, water or clean clothes. They have to face a lot of people that look at them funny because they are homeless and some are on drugs and drink. I fill [feel] sorry for all the homeless people. I wish I could build this all over again so the homeless people could have a place to live instead of them living on the streets."

Honorable mentions went to Lareese Brown for a photo of a plant "that will always remind me of Uncle Keith because he gave it to my family and he died in 1995," and Lawanda Brown for a photo of flowers, "Because the flowers look beautiful."

The photographs were displayed on the bulletin board at Greenbelt Elementary School. Congratulations to the second graders.

Greenbelt Family Day At the American Legion

by Sandy Smith

The grounds of the Greenbelt American Legion Post #136 was a fine place to enjoy good music, food, weather and friends on Sunday, June 2, the 59th Greenbelt Day. The American Legion promised a fun Family Day, and it delivered. There was music from a variety of performers, games for children, community information, and food grilled on the premises. Picnic tables were scattered about and family groups and friends visited and enjoyed the beautiful weather. Mayor Pro Tem J Davis, substituting for Mayor Antoinette Bram who could not attend, opened the program and introduced dignitaries and guests.

Miss Greenbelt America was the emcee for the Variety Show which featured musical selections from other Pageant winners, including Miss Greenbelt Labor Day, Miss Teen P.G. County, and Miss Lanham. Junior Miss Greenbelt was to have performed but was sidelined by a broken violin string. The Greenbelt Police Department Ceremonial Unit presented the colors and the Greenbelt Concert Band played the National Anthem. The Concert Band then entertained with selections from Sousa Marches to a medley of songs from South Pacific. The Concert Band, lead by Tom Cherrix, includes members not only from Greenbelt and Prince Georges County, but from throughout the metropolitan area.

Children bounced through the afternoon in the Moon Bounce, wore snakes and flowers on their faces courtesy of the face painting booth, and tried their skill at the zoo dip and fish pond. A few adults were seen vying for the stuffed animal prizes and a few were victorious. There was also Bingo in the Main Hall. A portion of the proceeds from Family Day will be donated to the Greenbelt Adult Care Center and Eleanor Roosevelt High School Grad Night.
