City Council Airs Concerns to Hoyer About USDA Development on BARC Conflicts over BARC Land Sales Have Long History

by Virginia Beauchamp

Why had the Congressman not notified the city ahead of time, the Greenbelt City Council wanted to know, when the United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) decided to go ahead with plans to construct an administration building on Beltsville Agricultural Research Center (BARC) land at Sunnyside Avenue? The decision had been made despite Greenbelt's opposition and that of the National Capital Planning Commission (NCPC).

Council members were addressing Rep. Steny Hoyer, as well as two of his aides, at a special noontime meeting on Saturday, July 19 in the council chamber.

The answer to that question, it turned out, was that Hoyer himself had learned about the decision only the day a bill authorizing funds for road construction around the proposed facility reached the House of Representatives. The authorization had been part of a larger piece of legislation called "The Right to Farm" bill. Yet that authorization, Hoyer said, did not specify which roads would be involved—and therefore the location of the facility.

Councilmembers Ed Putens and Rodney Roberts both spoke at length, complaining of difficulties of getting through to Hoyer's office concerning these, and other, developments. Hoyer agreed that communication between himself and the city was important. He then confirmed that commitment by offering his home phone number.

Environmental Impact

Mayor Antoinette Bram went through the city's areas of concern over the USDA action. Pointing out the fragility of the wetlands surrounding the site, both along Edmonston Rd. and at the crossing of Indian Creek at Sunnyside, she emphasized that this area regularly flooded after a heavy rain. It also flowed into the Anacostia watershed—an area currently undergoing significant clean-up efforts. The two impulses seemed to be at cross purposes.

"No private developer," city attorney Robert Manzi agreed, "could get away with such a use of this site." He referred to the many environmental impact studies and mitigation of wetlands removal as well as compliance with adequate public facilities requirements that any builder other than the federal government would be required to carry out before receiving permission to build.

Bram also expressed concern about the necessary impact upon the road system to reach the proposed facility and the fact that the CSX railroad crossing is at surface level and thus frequently closed to road traffic as long freight trains move slowly through the Sunnyside intersection, as they do daily. An unacceptably long response time for an area fire department to reach the site was another concern.

A Function of Past Success

"In a way," Hoyer responded, "I seem to be hoist on the petard of my own success," speaking of his past efforts to preserve BARC. Referring to the years of the Reagan and Bush administrations, Hoyer reminded council of how the Executive Branch, under prodding from farm belt Congressmen, including Senator Robert Dole, had tried to sell off BARC land to private developers. The idea at that time had been to move the research arm of USDA to the agricultural heartland of America.

Hoyer, in response, had introduced a bill, which passed, requiring the approval of Congress before any BARC acreage could be sold. Along with Senators Paul Sarbanes and Barbara Mikulski, he also pushed through a $150 million authorization for what was called the "Renaissance 93" program to renovate and update laboratory facilities at BARC. With a state-of-the-art infrastructure in place, it would be difficult, he pointed out, to justify the closing of the research center.

As another component of his effort in support of the long-range viability of BARC, Hoyer had felt it was also important that top USDA administrators feel "invested" in its future. To that end he had proposed the construction of administrative buildings at or near the site. This was the history behind the idea of the Food and Drug Administration Building, once proposed for construction on Powdermill Road just west of the Baltimore-Washington Parkway.

Then, understanding the city's opposition to "piecemeal" encroachment on the BARC acreage, which would reduce the land available for crop research, as well as diminish the

by Elaine Skolnik

For more than 50 years, a gradual chipping away has seen Beltsville Agricultural Research Center (BARC) land reduced from approximately 14,000 acres to its current 6,582 acres. Pressure by federal, state, county and city officials has played a major role, on the other hand, in preventing the wholesale selling off of BARC's land by the federal government to private parties.

In 1979, a proposal to excess 3,390 acres of the then 8,220-acre Center property drew fire from U.S. Senator Paul Sarbanes and the late Congresswoman Gladys Spellman and others. At issue was a 2,700-acre section east of Soil Conservation Road, which provided buffer zones between BARC and both the abutting Goddard Space Flight Center and the Patuxent Wildlife Preserve.

Agriculture officials feared that "any additional reductions would seriously impair BARC's ability to carry on, jeopardizing its reputation as a national showcase of agricultural research and as the leading most diversified agricultural research complex in the world."

Throughout the 1980s federal, state and local elected officials resisted the accessing of BARC land. At that time disposal of surplus lands had been accomplished under President Ronald Reagan's Executive Order 12388, dated February 25, 1982. This set up the Federal Property Review Board to screen available land for sale. The executive action was taken in the hope the sale proceeds would help reduce the federal deficit. (The Board was later abolished, its functions taken over by the Office of Management and Budget.)

The pressure to stop the accessing of BARC land became intense in May 1987 when an auction date had been set for Parcel 5, a 13.6-acre tract north of the National Agricultural Library and bounded by US Route 1, Sunnyside Avenue and Buchanan Road. Congressman Steny Hoyer intervened, the sale was postponed and the tract, declared surplus in 1983, was later removed from the government's surplus property list.

These repeated efforts to auction off BARC land for commercial purposes led to the action by Congress, in late 1987, to give the green light to a measure initiated by Hoyer in the House and by Senators Barbara Mikulski and Sarbanes in the Senate that prohibited disposal of any BARC property without prior consent from Congress.

Among the arguments raised to keep private interests from buying Parcel 5 was that the tract would satisfy potential federal needs to consolidate Agriculture's offices, which were scattered throughout the Maryland, Virginia and Washington D.C. area. Today, land clearing has begun for the USDA headquarters complex on Sunnyside Avenue between the railroad tracks and Tucker Road, a tract just east of Parcel 5.

Council To Act Monday On Proposed Major Cherrywood Lane Changes

by Betsy Likowski

Major changes are proposed for Cherrywood Lane: cut the number of traffic lanes in half, cut the number of parking spaces in half, install a lane divider, and have a bicycle lane on either side of the road. These changes were discussed in detail at a city council worksession about bicycle lanes on Cherrywood Lane held on Wednesday, July 17. The plan is on the July 29 council agenda for formal action.

Cherrywood Lane runs from Greenbelt Road to Edmonston Road (Kenilworth Avenue). Along it are the Giant Supermarket, Springhill Lake apartments, the Greenbelt Metro Station, Capital Office Park and the U. S. District Courthouse.

Under the city staff's proposal, to accommodate bicycle lanes six feet wide on both sides of Cherrywood Lane, the number of traffic lanes would be reduced from four to two between Ivy Lane and Breezewood Drive. There would be turn lanes at intersections and at driveways. Parking would be retained on the side closest to the Springhill Lake Apartments and eliminated on the other. Staff estimates that 60 parking spaces will be lost. There would be a lane divider from Edmonston to Breezewood. No changes would be made to the road between Breezewood and Greenbelt Road.

The proposed layout, as seen from the curbside near Springhill Lake and looking outward would be: a lane for parking, the bicycle lane, a travel lane, the lane divider, and the opposing traffic lane.

There will still be four lanes between Edmonston Road and Ivy Lane, even with the addition of two bicycle lanes and narrow lane divider.

If the lane dividers are painted in, the plan would cost $30,635. If a median strip is built, the cost would be $250,000.

History

The Greenbelt Bicycle Coalition asked for bicycle lanes along Cherrywood Lane. The city's Bicycle Task Force and the Advisory Planning Board have both agreed with this. The city staff presented council with six options at the regular council meeting on Monday, May 13. At that meeting, council directed the city staff to study this option for further discussion at a worksession.

Response to the Property Owners

The property owners along Cherrywood Lane were the least enthusiastic about the proposed bicycle lanes. According to Director of Planning Celia

Wilson, city staff has not spoken to the management of the Springhill Lake Apartments on this issue since before it was discussed at the May 13 council meeting. Springhill Lake's main concern at that time was the desire to retain parking on their side of the road.

Cherrywood Lane is the only access road to the Greenbelt Metro station for local traffic. And all six bus routes that serve the station use this road, (as does a county shuttle bus). Present to speak for Metro was Alvin McNeal, Manager, System Planning Branch, who explained that Metro staff found the traffic data provided by the city staff confusing. Metro was concerned with anything that could diminish full access to the Greenbelt Metro station and diminish the possible development in the area around the station, said McNeal.

This last statement led Councilmember Rodney Roberts to tell McNeal that Metro's job is to get people to the station and to use the Metro, not development, and directed McNeal to take that instruction back to Metro officials. Metro's interest is to maximize the utilization of Metro, said McNeal, and development is a side benefit of that.

A representative from Beltway Plaza, Kap Kapistan, said they had no position on the proposal. A representative from the Federal Courthouse said he was glad the proposed changes would be done with painting lines on asphalt, so that the concept could be tested. He also expressed appreciation of features for pedestrians, including a striped crosswalk near the

Common Sense

Thank you for your common sense editorial on bike lanes in the July 11 issue of the News Review. Apparently the bike riders have been very active in attempting to promote the expenditure of public funds to support their concept of a "bicycle friendly Greenbelt." In the News Review articles covering City Council meetings, I have not seen any reference to council members' attempts to balance the wishes of the small minority of bicycle riders against the needs of the vast majority of residents to use our automobiles to get to work and to the store. (Have you tried packing a week's supply of groceries, a color TV or a pet Great Dane on a bicycle?) The proposals for bicycle accommodations have not been supported by traffic counts and projections of automobile and bicycle traffic. Through federal and state fuel taxes, automobile users pay toward the construction and maintenance of roads. Bicycle riders pay no such usage taxes and yet have nearly equal access. The bicycle path and access proposals as reported in the News Review have not contained provisions for bike riders to pay any additional taxes. The funding for proposed construction has always been from city revenue derived from all taxpayers.

The letter by Laura Beckert in the July 18 paper seems to imply that Greenbelt "owes" her a bike pathway to the Metro and stores and that the resulting inconvenience to Springhill Lake residents, commercial tenants and automobile commuters is of no concern. At present, most Greenbelt sidewalks have ramps for bicycles, wheelchairs, etc. I think additional public construction or reallocation of existing streets for bicycle access should be a low priority item and, if implemented, should be totally funded by a bicycle usage tax.

Please keep up your excellent reporting as to how our individual elected officials speak and vote on this issue.

Grassroots Civics Activism at Work

The Sierra Club would like to acknowledge the hundreds of Greenbelt residents who signed petitions at our Labor Day Festival booth and who wrote letters and made phone calls calling for protection of the Belt Woods in neighboring Bowie. Last month a deal was struck to save the Belt Woods, known for its old growth qualities and for being home to the highest density of neotropical migratory songbirds ever measured in the U.S.

Greenbelt residents should know that local elected officials responded to their concerns by playing key roles in this historic act of environmental protection.

State Senator Leo Green and Delegate Joan Pitkin were original sponsors of companion bills which raised $500,000 toward the purchase of the woods. Both legislators guided the bills through influential appropriations committees on which they served in the 1996 session.

Delegates Jim Hubbard and Mary Conroy were co-sponsors of the House bill. Delegates Pitkin and Hubbard led the charge in getting many other co-sponsors on the bill from around the state.

In addition, Prince George's County Councilmember Audrey Scott cast her vote for Belt Woods when the council decided to match the state contribution in late April.

Success in saving Belt Woods is an example of grassroots civic activism at work. Thank you to all who showed they care.

Bike Lane Facts

After reading the July 11 News Review editorial concerning proposed changes to Cherrywood Lane, I think the News Review should consider these issues.

Future Development. The News Review states that "planning is now underway on the Transit District Overlay Zone that includes the Greenbelt Metro Station and the unincorporated A. H. Smith property." The fact is that the county has not yet decided what form of planning process will be used in these areas.

The News Review makes many other statements that are obviously based on the opinion of the editorial staff, not on facts. Such as:

"There are proposals for extensive development using air rights above the Metro parking lots." Fact: City Council has not seen or been notified of any such plans.

"The City Council seems to be marching to the beat of a small group of drummers and not considering this proposal in relation to other needs." Fact: Council is following a long-standing goal to provide adequate, safe access to the Metro Station for all modes of transportation: pedestrian, bicycle, auto and public transit.

"Council appears to have turned a deaf ear to the many concerns raised by Cherrywood Lane property owners, perhaps because those owners are not city voters." Fact: Council has made sure that everyone affected by this proposal has had time to comment and to work with city planning staff to make changes in the plan so that in the end everyone's needs will be addressed and met if possible.

My question is, should the City allow an unsafe situation to exist on Cherrywood Lane for who knows how long, while others decide how they will utilize our city street.

Pom Pom Dispute

We are writing this letter as concerned parents of Eleanor Roosevelt High School (ERHS) students whose daughters were informed the morning of June 7 they were selected for the-ERHS Poms Squad. Unfortunately, there is a dispute concerning the official Poms sponsor. The afternoon of the 7th for the newly inducted Poms (37 total) was an emotional roller coaster ride. School rumors: they made it; did not make it; they would have to try out again; they were not really a Pom; etc. All other teenage insecurities considered, this was totally unnecessary.

ERHS administrators, with the concurrence of Prince George's County School Superintendent Dr. Jerome Clark, selected an ERHS teacher as the 96-97 Poms sponsor. This teacher is an employee of the county with a contract that was negotiated through the teacher's union. She is a certified professional with verified educational qualifications, background, and training. She is also a respected teacher at Eleanor Roosevelt. Her credentials as a Poms sponsor became a matter of record before the Prince George's County Board of Education (PGBOE) on June 17. She has experience and prior successes with Poms and took the Northwestern High School Poms team to National Championships.

We are not familiar with Poms or its politics. Poms is considered a school activity rather than a sport and is overseen by a sponsor rather than a coach. At some point the PGBOE became involved and, over the better judgment of school administrators and the school superintendent, chose the former ERHS Poms sponsor as the 96-97 season sponsor. This decision should have remained at the school level and is a personnel issue the PGBOE should have supported. The PGBOE's decision denies school administrators the ability to give a teacher proper recognition and creates a working environment that only facilitates low morale.

We are not familiar with the woman the PGBOE decided should sponsor the Poms. As the former ERHS Poms sponsor, this individual is probably qualified, but she is not a county employee and is not affiliated with the school system. She is not accountable to the school administrators, the PGBOE, or anyone else. What recourse do parents have if she is negligent or decides to leave in the middle of the season? Most importantly, what then happens to the 37 girls?

Other high school Poms squads have been practicing since June. Our girls are extremely disappointed. They have not practiced nor have they been given the opportunity to attend a Poms camp. The Poms issue has become a political issue centered around adults. It should be centered around the best interest of the girls. Another question, "Who are the ERHS Poms?" Almost 100 girls tried out. Several (16) former Poms did not; two former Poms did and made the 96-97 squad. Are the 16 that did not try out considered Poms? If so, what about all the other girls that did not make the squad but did try out? Is it fair that the former 16 that did not try out be members of the new squad?

The ERHS teacher's qualifications were either not known to or considered by the PGBOE when they voted on the Poms sponsor issue on June 6. We urge them to reconsider and make an impartial, expeditious and intelligent decision concerning the Poms sponsor at ERHS. Anything less will be an injustice to the 37 girls who did try out and made the squad as well as those who tried out and did not make the squad.

We the undersigned are a representation of many concerned parents that concur with this letter concerning the PGBOE overruling of Dr. Boardman and Dr. Clark's selection of the Poms sponsor at ERHS.

Dangerous Ruse

On Friday evening, July 12, a resident of Charlestowne North was robbed by a man posing as a salesman. This event reinforces what we should already know - NEVER open your door to someone you don't know.

The ruse used by the robber might be familiar to apartment dwellers. There were two men in our building that day claiming that they were selling magazine subscriptions. Variations of this scheme have been used in our town before. They sound like such worthwhile causes, but please don't be fooled.

Please also be aware that most, if not all of the apartment complexes in Greenbelt, have a "No Soliciting" policy. If anyone comes to your door trying to get you to buy, sign, donate to or subscribe to anything they are soliciting, do not open the door to them. Do call your rental office or the emergency number provided by your rental office for after-hours problems. They should take care of having solicitors removed from the complex.

And, please, let's all take responsibility for being aware of what's happening in our neighborhood. I saw one of these men in our building earlier in the afternoon and knew he was soliciting. Perhaps if I had reported him to the rental office, my neighbor would not have been robbed.

Labor Day Festival A Volunteer Effort?

by Konrad Herling

The Labor Day Festival is truly a community effort. Some of you may already realize that over 25 volunteers arrange for all stage activities, from the Outstanding Citizen Ceremony, to Miss Greenbelt, to the wonderful array of music performers. Some of you may already recognize the efforts of the City's Public Works Department, which builds the booths and wires them for lighting and our Police Department which provides for security and keeps potential "hot" spots from getting "hot." And there are the volunteers who are there every year, e.g., Ken and Gail Voigt, Terry and Kathy Fominaya, Steve Hooper and Lenny Wirtz who provide the sound and lighting for all stage activities year after year. But beyond the labor support from volunteers and financial and labor support from the City itself, the festival also receives a helping hand from the business community.

This year, Sandy and Ray Smith are lining up business contributions to help defray the costs of the festival. After many years working the publicity angle for the annual fest, the Smiths are already pursuing assistance from the commercial community. The first contribution came within one day after Ray Smith approached the Greenbelt Auto and Truck Repair. Doctors Epstein & Cohen, Berkowitz Seldeman & Bergen P.A., and Goldman and Jaffee have also added to the coffers. Contributors are acknowledged in a variety of ways, from Labor Day Festival advertising in the News Review, to stage signage, to announcements made by moderators of the various stage programs. If interested in making a contribution, contact Sandy or Ray at 301-474-6127.

GEAC Discusses Street Lights

by Kerana Todorov

Charlene MacAdams, of Greenwood Village, at the Greenbelt East Advisory Committee (GEAC) meeting July 11, told the two City councilmembers present, Thomas White and Judith Davis, that street light installations on Hanover Parkway should have priority over the ones near the vicinity of Greenspring.

MacAdams said this was a matter of fairness because the work on Hanover had been requested before that for Greenspring. MacAdams said she was disappointed to see a June 17 memorandum from Office of Planning and Community Development's John Lowe to outgoing City Manager Daniel Hobbs mentioning the city's intention to prioritize the project near Greenspring. MacAdams said the longstanding project on Hanover was more urgent, because drivers pulling in and out of Hunting Ridge could not see well.

GEAC members also discussed the city's plan to have police officers act as agents. The police would be able to arrest repeat trespassers without the presence of the condominium's manager or owner. Sheldon Goldberg of Windsor Green, and GEAC's chair, said that the association's attorneys were closer to an agreement in this regard with the city.

Goldberg also voiced his opposition, on principle, to the petition to close the Baltimore-Washington Parkway pedestrian overpass. Goldberg said he would recommend that his board vote against it because such a closure would cut one part of Greenbelt off from the other.

According to City Clerk David Moran, the petition, with 252 signatures, had been brought to city council by Irene Hensel at its June 10 meeting. It will be listed on the July 29 council agenda, he said.

Public Hearing to Be On Cable Television

The city of Greenbelt will hold a public hearing on cable television on Monday, July 29 at 7:30 p.m. in council chambers. This hearing is required by the Federal Communications Commission (FCC), as part of the renewal period process. The purpose of this meeting is to gather information on future cable needs and to hear any concerns about the city of Greenbelt's current cable provider, Maryland Cable. Under FCC regulations, unless there are significant unmet proposals in the current franchise or an inability to meet future needs, renewal with Maryland Cable will likely occur.

The city's franchise with Maryland Cable is currently under review as part of the renewal process. This process should be completed by April 1998. Although the company has changed owners several times over the past 15 years, it has been operating under the same (original) franchise agreement.

The city is interested in hearing comments about residents' experiences of current service and their expression of future cable needs. Representatives from Maryland Cable will be present to answer questions. Those unable to attend this meeting may submit their comments to Beverly Palau, Public Information and Communications Coordinator, 25 Crescent Road, Greenbelt, MD 20770.

OBITUARIES

Carl Rose, Jr.

Carl Rose, Jr., 88, died on Wednesday, July 17, at the Greenbelt Nursing Center. He had pneumonia and chronic obstructive pulmonary disease.

Mr. Rose was a retired professional photographer and long-time radio personality when he moved to Greenbelt in 1979. He was one of the first residents at Green Ridge House where he lived until 1994. He brought with him the theatrical talent he had shared throughout the southeastern United States for more than three decades. Mr. Rose appeared locally in "Nightwatch", the first Greenbelt Players production to be offered at the Utopia Theater. He was also editor of the Green Ridge House Newsletter until it was replaced by a management company publication. Mr. Rose was a member of St. Hugh's Catholic church.

Born in New York City and raised in Westchester County, New York, Mr. Rose began acting at the Pittsburgh Playhouse shortly after the Depression while he was attending Carnegie Tech (now Carnegie Mellon University). He continued to perform at the historic Dock Street Theater in Charleston, South Carolina and the Kanawha Players and Charleston Light Opera Guild in Charleston, West Virginia. He was best known in Charleston for his show-stopping portrayal of Alfie Doolittle in the Guild's 1965 production of "My Fair Lady."

Mr. Rose was a professional portrait photographer for many years in Charleston, West Virginia until failing vision forced him to close his studio. He continued to do free-lance work while he developed a twenty-year career in radio journalism and special interest programs in several southern markets including Savannah, and Atlanta, GA., Charleston, SC and Charleston, West Virginia.

Mr. Rose is survived by his daughter, Valerie Siegel of Maplewood Court, his son, CDR Kenneth C. Rose, USN of

Mr. Rose was buried at the Turner Cemetery in Greenbelt on Saturday, July 20. A Review
The Sound Scene by Nick Mydra

Now that the Olympics are here, for many it is "Georgia on my Mind." At the New Deal Cafe last Saturday night it was "Back Home in Indiana." The July 20th evening featured a guitar player named Steve Brumbaugh, a former native of Indiana. Billed as a "lyric-oriented acoustic rock" player Steve Brumbaugh says his songs reflect life's hardships and joys.

He was performing with a cold which made it harder to hit the high range, but also gave his voice a more mellow quality. Now an Alexandria, Virginia resident, he performed two sets, ending the evening at 10 o'clock.

I had a chance to talk to him between sets. He said Sting is the best writer of songs today. Steve likes opera and enjoys composing his own songs. He feels that the lyrics and music should complement each other, yet the lyrics should be able to stand alone. Having tried rock and then jazz, he is now doing acoustic rock. The set-up included two speakers on stands that stood about seven feet tall with a mixer panel to adjust the quality and sound of his instru-

Cohen-Konowe

Rhea and Leonard Cohen announce the marriage of their daughter, Yael Rachel Cohen, to Adam David Konowe on July 20 in Reston, Virginia. A native Greenbelter, Yael is a senior graphic designer with the Pensare Design Group in Washington, D. C., and Adam is the assistant director-producer of the BizNet television studio in the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, also in Washington. Adam is the son of Judika Konowe, of Ossining, New York, and Lee Konowe, of Reston. The couple will make their home in Reston, Virginia.

Residents of the Lakewood subdivision for thirty-one years, the Cohens have been active on the local scene. Yael designed the logo for the New Deal Cafe. Rhea, an environmental program manager for the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers, was a member of the 1971-73 Greenbelt City Council. Leonard, recently retired from the solar physics department of Goddard Space Flight Center, is an actor in community theater.

When asked to play an instrumental number Steve said he didn't do any. That might come later. Judging from Steve's technique on the guitar I think he feels more comfortable singing and playing than he would just playing the guitar. His voice had a richness which was helped by the cold - it helped lower his more normal tenor range a bit.

As always, if you missed it - maybe next time.

courthouse and a median strip that could serve as a refuge for people crossing the lane.

Attorney Nancy Slepicka spoke on behalf of her clients, A. H. Smith, Jr. and Harry R. Smith, who own the wooded property that abuts Cherrywood Lane. According to a letter Slepicka wrote on their behalf, reducing the number of traffic lanes will "compromise the carrying capacity of Cherrywood Lane" and limit the developability of his property. The development of high quality employment areas near the Greenbelt Metro station is an important goal for the county, said Slepicka. Smith opposes reducing the number of travel lanes from four to two.

Slepicka also represents Capital Office Park, which opposes reducing the number of traffic lanes.

Slepicka expressed concerns about part of the report produced by city staff and city-hired consultant Kimberly Paniati, of Greenman and Pedersen, on how traffic would be affected by these proposals, both at the worksession and in a letter to the mayor. At the worksession, Slepicka said that if asked to give her opinion on the spot, the traffic information provided does not seem to support the conclusions drawn from it. Mayor Antoinette Bram asked city staff to meet with Metro officials and Slepicka about the traffic report and data.

For the Bicycle Lanes

"Greenbelt has always had the philosophy of alternate means of transport," stated Bram. And councilmember Judith Davis echoed this sentiment later on when asking if Capital Office Park still had a shuttle to the Metro station, saying "we're trying to encourage and promote alternate means of transport." Putting bicycle lanes on Cherrywood Lane will be a real model for other communities, enthused Bill Kelly, member of College Park Bicycle Coalition and various committees on bicycle issues at the state level.

Some saw the proposed changes to Cherrywood Lane as a means to stop development in the surrounding area, said Davis. When she asked Celia Wilson if the proposal would deter development, Wilson said it would not. There were several groups upset by the proposals, continued Davis, such as Metro, Capitol Office Park, Springhill Lake, and Beltway Plaza. Wilson replied that staff believes the proposal has met their concerns.

"This plan will not cause a hardship in Springhill Lake," stated Roberts. He said he never saw the parking lots full. Bram agreed with this line of thought saying that she never saw cars parked along Cherrywood Lane across from Springhill Lake.

Other Issues

In coming from the Giant Supermarket store toward Springhill Lake, traffic in the rightmost lane of Cherrywood Lane will have to turn right at Breezewood Drive, said Joe Wilkinson. Where are you going to notify people of this, he queried. Councilmembers Bram, Davis and Roberts assured him it can be done.

Wilkinson also commented that he would not use a crosswalk on Cherrywood Lane "for anything in the world." Or for that matter anywhere in Greenbelt, he continued, unless he could see each way for 200 yards, for, he said, he did not trust drivers.

Bram hastened to say that was why traffic calming measures were needed on that road. For Cherrywood Lane is between two major state highways, she said. Roberts said the road is so bad even his mother got a speeding ticket there, for a person can't do 35 mph on Cherrywood Lane.

Traffic

The traffic analysis prepared by and for the city shows that reducing the number of travel lanes to two will not adversely affect operating conditions on Cherrywood Lane. It found that when Capital Office Park is fully the BARC "Renaissance 93" renovation program. The ongoing program is designed to rejuvenate BARC by upgrading aged structures and laboratories with state-of-the-art research equipment.

USDA's first research activity in Beltsville began in 1910 in a dairy barn. Gradual expansion of the research program followed and in 1935 several of the large buildings of Georgian architecture were constructed. In a land swap between the Department of Defense and USDA around the time of World War II, all plant science programs moved from Virginia to Beltsville. (The Defense Department wanted the Virginia land in order to build the Pentagon.)

Some of BARC's 6,582 acres are shared with other governmental agencies, including the Agricultural Marketing Service, Food Safety and Inspection, Food and Drug Administration and Environmental Protection Agency. These agencies lease land from USDA. About 1600 persons are Agriculture Research Service personnel at BARC.

built (three more buildings are planned) and Metro operating at full capacity, the level of service can remain good on Cherrywood Lane if a right turn lane is built feeding into the new buildings and there is a traffic signal at the intersection of Ivy and Cherrywood Lanes.

The traffic analysis shows that reducing travel lanes will not reduce the road's capacity to handle existing and approved future development. But it will approximately halve the road's capacity to handle additional future development.

Greenbelt Playwright At Baltimore Festival

The Baltimore Playwrights Festival will continue its 15th consecutive season on August 2 at the Vagabond Players with a new comedy, "Keeping It Aloft" by Greenbelt playwright John Morogiello.

Morogiello returns to the BPF for the second time. The resident dramaturg at Howard County Community College's Stage Rep Company, Morogiello was named "best up and coming new playwright" by Baltimore Magazine. A recipient of the Kennedy Center's prestigious fellowship of the Americas, he recently spent a week at Toronto's Canadian Stage Company where one of his plays was given a workshop.

A very contemporary farce about social values, infidelities and mistaken identities, "Keeping It Aloft" continues at the Vagabond Theatre, 806 S. Broadway, until August 18. Performances are on Fridays and Saturdays at 8 p.m. and Sundays at 7 p.m.

For reservations, call 410-752-1225. For information on the Baltimore Playwrights Festival, call 410-276-2153 or 410-488-2404.

POLICE BLOTTER

Based on Information Released by the Greenbelt Police Department

A man responding to a knock at the front door of his residence in the 8100 block of Lakecrest Drive late Friday afternoon, July 12, found two men attempting to sell magazine subscriptions. After the man told them he wasn't interested in buying anything, the two salesmen asked to use the bathroom. The man said no, but one of the salesmen entered the apartment and went to the bathroom. As the first man left the bathroom, the second entered the apartment, closing the door behind him. The first man grabbed a fork from the kitchen and threatened the resident. The second man also threatened the resident with a knife he grabbed from the kitchen. The suspects frisked the man, taking his wallet and wristwatch along with a VCR and AM/FM stereo cassette player.

The man was sexually assaulted by one of the suspects, bound and gagged, and a towel thrown over his head. The suspects left the residence and are believed to have left the area in the man's rented car in an unknown direction.

On July 17, the Criminal Investigation Unit (CIU) arrested an 18 year old nonresident man in connection with the robbery. The man was charged with breaking and entering, armed robbery, and third degree sexual assault. The man appeared before a District Court Commissioner and was held on $50,000 bond pending trial.

The second suspect was arrested on July 18 by the CIU. The 20 year old nonresident was charged with breaking and entering and armed robbery. After appearing before a District Court Commissioner, he was held on $15,000 bond pending trial.

A man paid for a television with credit card at a department store at Beltway Plaza on Saturday afternoon, July 13. He then gave the card to a woman to pay for her merchandise. The cashier became suspicious when the signatures on the receipts did not match the one on the credit card. As a store security detective was speaking with the woman, the man returned to the store. The detective requested some identification from the woman, and was told it was in the her car. The man left the store, returning a short time later claiming he could not find the woman's identification.

The woman was escorted to her car by the detective to obtain the ID. Upon getting into the car, the woman started the car and drove away, dragging the detective alongside a short distance. The woman turned the car around and attempted to hit the detective. The man ran from the store to the front of the mall, where he was picked up by the woman in the car. Both suspects were last seen traveling westbound on Greenbelt Road.

The credit card was confirmed as stolen. The detective suffered minor injuries during the incident.

The suspects are described as: 1) a black man in his thirties, 6'0", 150 lbs., short black hair, brown eyes, light complexion, wearing a beige shirt and pants; and 2) a black woman in her thirties, 5'8", 135 lbs., black hair, brown eyes, wearing blue jeans, a gray T-shirt, and carrying a black purse. The vehicle is described as a black over burgundy 1978-80 Cadillac four door with damage to the driver's door.

A 14 year old resident was walking his 10 week old black and white pit bull puppy in the 7800 block of Hanover Parkway when he was approached by two men. One of the men picked up the puppy and pulled the leash from the victim's hand and ran away. The suspects are described as: 1) a black youth, 16 to 18 years old, 5'5", 160 lbs., black hair in plaits, a dark complexion, wearing a black T-shirt with a green face on it, and was carrying a black backpack; and 2) a black youth, 16 to 18 years old, 5'10", thin build, black hair, and a light complexion. The incident occurred on Friday evening, July 12.

A man was reported loitering in the laundry rooms in the 5900 block of Cherrywood Terrace. The man left the scene prior to the arrival of officers. The officers found someone had tampered with several of the machine coinboxes. The man is described as black, 35 to 38 years old, 6'1", 170 lbs., short hair, wearing black jeans and a black T-shirt.

A man was observed placing a wallet in the trash can in Beltway Plaza mall on Friday afternoon, July 12. The wallet was recovered and the owner located in a nearby store. The owner stated the wallet had been taken from his fanny pack and that money was missing from the wallet. The man, a 35 year old nonresident, was arrested, charged with theft and released on citation pending trial.

A man entered a store in Beltway Plaza on Saturday, July 13, and purchased some food with a $100 bill. The man asked the cashier to recount his change and began talking to confuse the cashier.
