1998 ERHS Graduates Celebrate At Drug & Alcohol Free Grad Night

by Barbara Ford

The 1998 graduating class of Eleanor Roosevelt High School was 644 strong. At Grad Night '98, over 500 of those graduates followed a path of lights "On to Oz." The future was placed on hold and good times defined the night. Promising to abstain from alcohol or drugs, the seniors enjoyed hours of music, games, prizes, food and drink, swimming and a host of other activities.

Graduation was held at the US Air Arena on Wednesday, June 3 at 3 p.m. After all the usual pictures and congratulations, the rush was on to prepare for the night's activities. Grad Night Committee Chair Rena Hull and an army of at least 132 volunteers, along with the Greenbelt Recreation Center staff, did a splendid job getting everything in place. There were decorations to put up, food to set up and activities to pump up. A fantastic night of fun was in store for all who came.

The t-shirt (which is the student's ticket to enter) carried this year's theme "On to Oz" on the front and the names of the 1998 graduates on the back. Students and volunteers alike wore them proudly.

A Tradition since 1993

Grad Night has been a tradition at ERHS since the first in 1993. At that time 353 students celebrated to a theme of "Try a Natural High." Five years later, that advice remains. Through

CARES Increases Outreach Program with 24-hour Staffing

by Kate Augustine

The Greenbelt CARES community outreach program recently expanded its services by adding two new half-time crisis intervention counselors. Heather Hartman and Leslie Simms, who began work at CARES in the middle of May, serve as liaisons between Greenbelt law enforcement officials and community residents.

The crisis intervention counselor position was created last year to work with the Police Department in providing mental health services and in following up on police reports. One CARES employee served as the half-time counselor last year, but the position requires someone to be on call 24 hours a day. Hartman and Simms are glad to share the load because "it's a stressful position for one person," Simms said.

Each counselor officially works approximately 20 hours per week, but either Hartman or Simms is on call at all times. They are paged by the Greenbelt Police Department when their services are necessary. Therefore they are required to remain in the general vicinity while on call.

The counselors' services are typically requested in any situation where a mental health professional would be helpful to the Police Department, such as a death notification, runaway situation, persuading a witness to cooperate, cases of domestic violence, and often when children are involved in any circumstance. They strive to decrease the need for repeat calls.

Doctoral Candidates

Both Hartman and Simms are life-long residents of Prince George's County and committed to serving their local community. Hartman graduated from the University of Maryland as a psychology major in 1994, with strong interests in clinical and community issues. She is currently working towards her Ph.D. in clinical psychology at American University, where she has already earned a master's degree. Hartman first volunteered with CARES's Wednesday night family clinic for one year during her undergraduate career. She is glad to return to the program.

Simms graduated from St. Mary's College with a B.A. in psychology in 1994, and has recently completed her fourth year of graduate studies at Howard University, where she is earning a Ph.D. in clinical psychology. Simms called the CARES office out of the blue looking for practical job experience and was pleased to find the opportunity available. Both Simms and Hartman are currently full-time students working on their doctoral

by Sue Krofchik

The Greenbelt Homes, Inc (GHI) board of directors labored almost four hours during a work session June 18, discussing concerns and procedures about becoming a county historic district. By evening's end, a subcommittee was formed to develop a timeline for presenting this issue to the membership. Their recommendations on how and when to proceed are expected to be discussed at the July 9 board meeting.

The whole issue of becoming a county historic district has been actively studied for five years by various groups. In 1993, at the request of the City of Greenbelt, a study was done by the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission (M-NCPPC) to look at the feasibility of establishing a county historic district in Greenbelt. They recommended to the city in February 1994 that county historic district status be pursued.

Although the city is the entity which must make formal request for this designation, it has referred the matter to GHI, the largest property owner in what would become the historic district, for its input. GHI subsequently formed the Ad Hoc Historic District Study Committee to study the pros and cons to assist in making a recommendation to the city. In October 1997, after almost four years of study, the committee unanimously recommended that GHI endorse securing county historic district status. Since then, the GHI board of directors has held several work sessions, the last of which was on June 16, to determine what course of action should be taken.

How to Proceed?

There are a few key issues to be decided before any recommendations are made to the city. Who will make the decision — the board or the members? Although board members have stated individually the decision should be made by the membership, no formal vote has been taken. On June 19, when president Keith Jahoda asked, "Who is against the membership" [deciding]?, no hands were raised. Again, though, no motion was made or vote taken to officially give this responsibility to members.

If the membership does make the decision, how will the decision be made — by vote or referendum? Both methods were discussed, with no decision made. Voting booths are used annually for elections, and referendums have reportedly been held in the past. With the latter, members would vote using a mail-in ballot.

Issues of Concern

About 25 concerns were identified. After a closer look, they

1997 Outstanding Citizen Shone as City Volunteer

by Joe Timer

The Outstanding Citizen award is presented annually to a Greenbelt citizen who has provided exemplary volunteer service, past and present. Nominations are being sought now. Greenbelt's 1997 Outstanding Citizen — Michael F. Vaccaro — and the 24 recipients of the Outstanding Citizen Award that preceded him have provided countless hours of unpublicized service. Mike was truly a "community person" and a cheerleader for Greenbelt — his adopted home since 1976. In mid-November, 1997, despite increasing pain and physical hardship, he volunteered to participate in a Channel 5 morning show featuring Greenbelt. Four days later, on November 23, he died.

The Fox 5 interview included a tour of the Greenbelt Community Center and an interview with Vaccaro — a cup of coffee in his hand! During that interview, Vaccaro acknowledged that he was Greenbelt's first physically-challenged Outstanding Citizen. While he tried not to notice his limitations, other residents told him that they considered him their spokesman. Vaccaro commented that Greenbelt, despite its growth and current size, maintains its small-town environment.

Michael F. Vaccaro

He noted his gratification each September as young adults and older youth return for the Labor Day Festival.

Vaccaro's volunteer efforts involved youth sports — coaching, officiating and organizing intermural basketball programs. Besides skills development, his focus extended to good sportsmanship, team work and the enjoyment of the game. His volunteer service also involved crime-watch activities, Boy Scouts, playing Santa Claus, various capacities in GHI's Responsibility?

Your readers might be interested in some further information on the current question of GHI members who were cited during the yard inspections for mildew on the vinyl siding of their homes.

A flyer distributed to GHI homes this past week says, "The Member Handbook states on page 37-95, section #4 that mold or mildew shall not be allowed to accumulate on exterior walls." This is true. What the flyer fails to state, however, is that this item is part of a long list that begins on page 35-95, and that at the beginning of this list it says that some maintenance items are the responsibility of GHI and some of the member. The Handbook refers the reader to Section II (beginning on page 32-91) to find out which items are GHI's responsibilities and which are members'. If one then consults Section II, one will discover that on page 33-91, #9, vinyl siding is listed as a GHI responsibility. The Handbook does not state what GHI's function is in regard to vinyl siding, but in the absence of any clear statement in the handbook that members have any responsibility for the siding, GHI can hardly maintain that this is obviously a task and expense for the individual members.

The argument was apparently raised that since this affects only some of the homes, it would be unjust to charge the cooperative as a whole. Well, anyone who has lived in GHI very long will recall many things, from badly draining walkways to moisture in interiors of homes that GHI has taken care of but which do not affect all of the units. One wonders why mildew is different, especially in view of the lack of clarity in the Handbook as to who is responsible in this case. I hope that the GHI board will reconsider this issue, and perform their responsibilities to care for the vinyl siding as stated on page 33-91, #9 of our Handbook.

Shocked

I was dismayed, nay shocked to learn of the intended use of so called "calming devices" on some of the roads in Greenbelt! I thought the use of such draconian measures of treating Road Anxiety Disorder (RAD) were a thing of the past, having been done away with in the 50's. In a research paper published in 1959 by Dr. Hugh "Bumpy" Macadam and Dr. Roger "Oilslick" Asphalt, it was reported that the use of road "calming devices" only served to increase the RAD of the roads studied. They found that it was much more effective to use the newly available road calming drugs such as Nice and Easy (pentoasphaltazine) and Sunday Drive (3-oxiconcreta). These drugs could be easily sprayed on the roads suffering from RAD with excellent calming effects and little or no long term effects.

The research on which this paper was based was funded by the National Institutes of Highway Health (NIHH) and is still available from their archives under the title "Road Anxiety Disorder - Calming Devices - We Think Not!"

I hope that those considering the use of road "calming devices" will reconsider and make use of the modern therapies available to them.

Thanks

This letter is in regard to the Class of 1998's Grad Night. I truly enjoyed myself and felt that it was a great success for both the students and the volunteers, who gave their time and effort to make graduation and grad night a time to remember. I heard comments circulate throughout the night from all the students commenting on how much fun they were having. All the activities and games were enjoyed, as well as the food. I know that all the gifts were appreciated as well, because it was stuff that some of us needed for college, for instance the hampers, stereos and TVs. For the future graduating seniors, I hope that ERHS will continue to have this event, because it means a lot to the class to have one last party together and to say our goodbyes. Thanks to all the wonderful parents and other volunteers who helped give the seniors one last night together. We will all remember it.

Little "Professors" Enjoy Science Class

by Carolyn Price

"The girls were right in there..." is the way teacher Teresa Pullman describes the enthusiasm of her day care science class of six girls and one boy when they tried holding frogs and lizards for the first time.

This hands-on science program Pullman calls "Preschool Professors" offers two and a half to five-year-olds an introduction to the environment at Greenbelt Children's Center in Greenbriar Community Center. She speaks with obvious pleasure, "It's incredible to have mostly girls signed up. It says a lot for the parents and staff at the center that they know how important it is for girls to have a knowledge of science."

These classes, for which there is an extra charge, are held once a week for half an hour to 45 minutes, or longer if the children are really enjoying it. Pullman takes lots of Polaroid shots of the children participating, so the parents can share in the enthusiasm.

The class subject in April was baby animals and the children learned about hamsters and got to hold them. They also made small stuffed kangaroos, complete with pouches. In May they studied seeds and plants. Chemical reactions is the subject in June, changing liquids into solids, making "goop" and a volcano out of baking soda and vinegar reaction. Each child receives a certificate for the study completed.

Pullman, a Greenbelt resident for eight years, has a degree in early childhood education and has developed her own course plans for this science program, which she teaches in several day care centers, in downtown DC and one in College Park. The Greenbelt Children's Center is the only class to be composed almost entirely of girls.

Kids Animation Class Wins State Grant

The Greenbelt Association for the Visual Arts (GAVA) has received a grant from the Maryland State Arts Council to help fund a series of classes in animation taught by George Kochell in cooperation with Greenbelt Access Television (GATE). The grant allows GAVA to lower the cost of the classes (see advertisement this issue).

The classes will be held from 2 to 5 p.m. every weekday from July 20 through August 7. The program is open to any interested young persons between the ages of 10 and 18.

Christopher Dingman, who will be entering the seventh grade at Thornton Friends School this fall, and Nora Simon, a 6th grade student at Rogers Heights Elementary, both took Kochell's first class in animation in May.

Both Dingman and Simon did stories of the perennial bad guys up to no good being defeated by superheroes. Some of Dingman's work deals with environmental and conflict resolution issues. Simon took some of the creatures from the Book of Kells as models for her characters.

These upcoming classes are a continuation of the series on animation Kochell taught in May. This series will add "claymation" to drawing and collages.

Student animation from this class will be videotaped by GATE and televised on city channel B10.

For information call Barbara Simon at 301-474-2192.

GEAC Discusses Paving, Medical Center, Laws

by Dennis Jelalian

At the Greenbelt East Advisory Committee (GEAC) meeting held at Greenbriar May 7, the paving of Greenbelt Road, a new medical center, new eviction legislation, and the new condo rights law were discussed.

Paving Greenbelt Road

This fall Greenbelt Road will be resurfaced from Hanover Parkway to Lanham-Severn Road. Dorothy Pyles, vice chairman, expressed concern that the part of Greenbelt Road that really needs to be resurfaced is the part from Southway to Kenilworth Avenue. Mayor Judith Davis said that there are plans to resurface that section in the future. She suggested that, if there is strong concern, GEAC should ask the city to write a letter.

Medical Center

The Advisory Planning Board approved Dimension Healthcare's plans to build a two story 28,000 square foot building to be used for ambulatory care and outpatient surgery on the last piece of ground at the Maryland Trade Center.

Golden Age Club

by Dolores Capotosto

Wednesday, July 15, will be the Golden Age Club's monthly birthday party. Solange Hess usually has at least two helpers scheduled. See her if you'd like to volunteer for this or a future month.

"Bon Voyage" to those Goldenagers who will soon visit England, Ireland and Scotland on a trip sponsored by Prince George's Community College.

Marie Kriper of the Golden Age Travel Committee announced that the new bus company seems to be working out well. The next trip is to Longwood Gardens in Delaware and is scheduled for Tuesday, July 28. Members are also signing up for the Panama Canal cruise, February 16-27, 1999. Decisions have to be made, so see a member of the Travel Committee at the meeting and pass the word. Full payment needs to be made by November 9.

On Wednesday, July 22, Dr. Herman Kraybill will speak about the "Effects of the Environment on Health as to Cancer and Other Diseases."

It was nice to hear Irv Siegel complimenting members Alberta Tompkins, Betty Maher and Hilda Yontz for their indomitable spirit in facing adversity. Everyone agreed.

Congratulations also go to Martha Sinden for bringing her 86-year-old mother on the trip to Myrtle Beach. "Mom" lives in Alaska and didn't miss anything that went on; in fact, she put this 72-year-old to shame. Thanks, Martha.

Have fun and enjoy the rest of summer, but keep the liniment handy.

Eviction Legislation

City attorney Robert Manzi is drafting new eviction legislation for New Carrollton which Greenbelt might be interested in adopting. The new legislation would provide that, in the event of an eviction, the owner's possessions would be required to be stored by the owner for a limited period of time rather than simply set out on the street. Costs and storage fees would have to be paid by the owner before the property is released. Mayor Davis and Councilmember Edward Putens said that the city should push for this legislation at the state level. Pyles said 21 states now have similar legislation.

Condo Rights

The Maryland General Assembly recently passed Senate bill 18 (House bill 38). The bill was signed into law by Governor Parris Glendening. The law provides basic rights for condominium owners, including the right to meet, to comment on any part of condominium operation, vote for officers of the condominium association, and to distribute condominium information.

Memorial Areas

GEAC discussed plans for a memorial area in Greenbelt East. Chair Sheldon Goldberg suggested that a subcommittee be formed to formulate a plan. Dorothy Pyles, vice chair, and Charlene MacAdams, treasurer, agreed to serve on the subcommittee.

Mayor Davis expressed the view that multiple memorial areas in the city would be a good idea, and beautify the city. All the sites would be for the whole city and paid for by the city. She suggested GEAC write a letter to the Community Relations Advisory Board (CRAB) outlining the proposal. Davis also explained that a bench in memory of Al Herling and donated by the Prince George's Arts Council will be placed in front of the library.

Parking on Hanover

Kay Moomey, of Hunting Ridge, raised the issue of trucks parking along Hanover Parkway making for dangerous turns onto Hanover Parkway. Mayor Davis promised to look into it.

NYLCARE Parking

GEAC members expressed concern that parking for NYLCARE is overflowing into residential areas. Since most of these cars arrive in the morning when residents have left for work, and since the cars are mostly gone when residents return, there haven't been many complaints so far. The consensus was that GEAC would wait and see if any problems develop.

ACE

Putens encouraged all Greenbelt citizens to support the Advisory Committee on Education (ACE) which awards scholarships to students. Anyone wishing to contribute to ACE may send a check to the City of Greenbelt, 25 Crescent Road, Greenbelt, MD 20770.

Our Neighbors

Rangers Seek Youth Helpers

The Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission's Park Rangers are offering a unique opportunity for 13 - 17 year olds who are interested in their work. Participants will work side-by-side with the rangers as they bicycle the parks, respond to injured wildlife, lead outdoor adventure programs, and develop and implement enhancement projects designed to increase the wildlife population.

This youth program is designed to promote leadership skills, instill self-confidence, and increase awareness and knowledge of the environment and its wildlife.

For further information call 301-627-7755; TTY 301-699-2544.

The traditional Miss Greenbelt Pageant is open to teens ages 14 to 19; Junior Miss is for those 11 to 13; and Little Miss for girls 7 to 10. The participants enjoy events throughout the summer, including parties, trips, and community activities. Girls participate in a professional photo session, appear on television, make new friends, learn new skills, participate in make-up and modeling sessions, and ride on a special float in the Greenbelt Labor Day parade.

The Miss Greenbelt Scholarship Pageant promotes education. The winner of the 1998 Miss Greenbelt Pageant will receive a $2,000 savings bond. In fact, each winner will receive a savings bond. Little Miss Greenbelt and Junior Miss Greenbelt will receive a $200 savings bond. Savings bonds will also be awarded to the first, second and third runners-up for Miss Greenbelt, as well as Miss Congeniality, Most Photogenic and Most Spirited. These awards are in addition to the savings bond given to each participant. To sign up or for more information contact Pageant Chair, Natasha Jewell, at 301-352-8665.

Donations and Event Sponsors

The Greenbelt Labor Day Festival is run by an independent, non-profit organization, not the city of Greenbelt. While the city does provide essential services to the Festival, the funds for running the Festival come primarily from donations and support from Greenbelt organizations and the business community and a small percentage of the funds raised by groups participating in the Festival. The Festival must spend many thousands of dollars each year before the Festival ever begins. In a good year, the Festival breaks even. If there's rain and lower attendance, it may lose money. The Festival pays for the on-stage entertainment, for groups that march in the parade, publicity and printing and for other expenses ranging from Jiffy Johns to parade trophies.

The Greenbelt Labor Day Festival, unlike many other major fairs and festivals in the metro area, doesn't charge admission or parking fees, and so the Festival depends upon contributions. Each year, Festival representatives contact local businesses to seek their support. This is a good opportunity for long-standing businesses to continue their support and recognize their place in the community and for new businesses to become better known to citizens throughout the city. Businesses can make a contribution of any size, up to major support for an event. Efforts are made to match the business with the event most related to their customers or interests. Contact Rick Ransom, Festival president at 301-441-1597 or Joanne Hinsley, 301-445-6500 for more information. The Festival will produce a souvenir program again this year and will provide opportunities for businesses to be represented in this keepsake as well as to be acknowledged in the schedule printed in the News Review and in signs throughout the Festival grounds.

Talent Show

An audition for performers in this year's Labor Day Festival Talent Show will be held on July 29, at 7:30 p.m. in the Community Center. The Talent Show is looking for all types of performers — singers, musicians, dancers, magicians, acrobats — single or group acts. Contact Dennis Lewis at 301-552-9078 to sign up. The Talent Show provides an opportunity for beginning and seasoned performers to perform before a live and enthusiastic audience.

Next Meeting

The regular meetings of the Greenbelt Labor Day Festival Committee are open to all who want to learn more about the Festival or to volunteer and participate in any area or any event. The next meeting will be at 7:30 p.m. on Thursday, July 16, at the Greenbelt Community Center.

Greenbelt Day

A Review

The Sound Scene

by Nick Mydra

"More better" is an expression that could have been used to describe "Blackberry." Blackberry is the name of a musical group that plays Cajun music. Formed less than a year ago, the band is made up of five area musicians, two from Greenbelt. The free dance concert was given, sponsored by the city Recreation Department and the Greenbelt Arts Center, to celebrate Greenbelt Day. With dance lessons starting at 7:30 p.m. Saturday, June 6, the band took center stage at around 8:15 p.m. in the gym of the Community Center. What a nice surprise to see a crowd of people on the dance floor when the dance lesson began. I guess it shouldn't be of any surprise if you have ever been out to Glen Echo where Cajun bands play to a packed ballroom.

Jim Briley and son Justin Briley, Greenbelt residents, along with Paula Lucas, the band's organizer, Miles Spicer, and Joel Bailes play Cajun music with some Creole for a change of pace. Paula Lucas assured me that all the songs were Cajun, not zydeco. That is a form that has a different beat, and a more up tempo rhythm. Lucas and Jim Briley did much of the singing. Two-steps and waltzes made up the dance styles.

Overheard while taking a break was someone who said that they were pleased to see couples dancing together unlike what is seen much of the time at rock concerts.

All of the musicians have voices suited for the style of music they were playing. Jim Briley and Joel Bailes played fiddle, with Justin Briley and Miles Spicer on guitar. Paula Lucas did assorted percussion instruments to go along with her singing. They all seemed to have the accent down on all the songs they sang. It has a French, southern Creole influence to it. Having been together less than a year they did well to play together as a group. There were a couple of rough spots, but they can only get better as they get used to playing with each other. Instrumentally they are as good as they are vocally. You could tell the audience liked them by all the applause, and the enjoyment they showed by dancing up a storm. Some couples hardly left the dance floor, and for yours truly it was a treat to watch the experienced dancers show their stuff. There were a couple of couples who were outstanding. They must dance Cajun every chance they get. Those who came to listen to the music were treated to a good band that can only get better, and a nice crowd dancing to the beat on the dance floor. If you missed the June 7 Blackberry dance/concert, maybe next time.

were categorized into four areas — governmental, financial, appearance, and member issues. Many of the issues have both pro and con components, which were identified but not debated.

Some of these issues are the permanence of becoming a county historic district; legal challenges; tax benefits going to the co-op as a whole, not to individual members; and the signing over of some external control of GHI and parts of the city to Prince George's County.

The design guidelines have their own issues. Who will enforce the standards and what are the penalties for non-compliance? What are the real costs in manpower and materials for regular maintenance and replacement items? Would future new materials developed by technology be approved for use?

Since existing homes and their "improvements" would be grandfathered in, the question was asked if becoming an historic district would in a sense be preserving "now," not necessarily the original state of homes.

Subcommittee Goals

The evening's work concluded with the formation of a subcommittee to develop a timeline and make recommendations to the board. It consists of GHI general manager Gretchen Overdurff and special assistant Avis King, GHI board member Susan Ready, GHI members Ray and Barbara Stevens, and Howard Berger, a planner with the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

Also present at this meeting with the GHI board was Jill Yutan, representing the Urban Design Planning Division of M-NCPPC.

Della Donaldson was declared the first place winner for the GHI 1998 Home and Garden Tour on May 9, based upon a vote of tour participants. Earl Kepler, tour chair, presents the award to her at the Greenbelt Community Center.

Eleanor Roosevelt Sings To Celebrate the Spring

by Dennis Jelalian

On May 8 Eleanor Roosevelt High School (ERHS) presented the all-choirs spring concert directed by Dr. Barbara Baker and Judy Moore.

Many excellent pieces were scattered throughout the program. "Sanctus" by Andrea Klouse, presented by the Concert Choir, directed by Moore, got the evening off to a wonderful start. The concert choir had a beautiful crisp sound.

The Men's Choir, under Dr. Baker, offered a lovely arrangement of "Shenandoah," perfectly sung, and a fun version of "Sixteen Candles," with authentic 50s piano played with verve by the multi-talented Chris Fominaya.

The Chamber Choir directed by Dr. Baker was somewhat uneven. They sometimes had pitch problems. And sometimes the words would be hard to hear when the men sang very softly or when the women sang high in their range.

The Chamber Choir more than redeemed themselves, however, with "Pie Jesu" by Andrew Lloyd Webber. The piece began with long resonant notes in perfect harmony. And floating above the choir was another sound so perfect I didn't recognize it as human for a second, nor could I detect the source immediately. The rich resonant sound just seemed to fill the hall. Then I saw that this beautiful sound was coming from Susannah Hoffman, one of the soloists. She was matched by Erin Rada. A perfect pair of sopranos.

World Premiere

Next was the world premiere of "Wood Songs," a suite of three songs. This work was produced jointly by the English and music departments with help from the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission. The music was written by W.G. Pete Stokes. The words were all written by ERHS students. Amy Buchanan wrote "Willow." Rob Harden wrote "Floundering." Zach Speakes wrote "Sunflowers."

"Wood Songs" proved to be a charming modern choral composition — a worthwhile project for all involved, and a treat for the audience.

The Women's Choir, under Dr. Baker, offered a superb rendition of "Domine Deus." The women's diction seemed better in Latin than in English. But an important factor was the superior arranging skills of J.S. Bach and Felix Mendelssohn.

Next the Massed Women's Choir (Chamber, Women's, Gospel choirs) presented the show-stopping "This is the Day, Rejoice!" which Dr. Baker milked for all it was worth. Such polish and showmanship came as something of a surprise but it shouldn't have, knowing Dr. Baker's excellent work.

Gospel Choir

The Gospel Choir offered four spirituals/gospel songs, in which Dr. Baker shared the piano playing chores with Jernell Reynolds-Armstrong, an extremely talented young man. Tyrone Johnson played bass, Derrick Plummer played drums, and Dr. Baker turned over the leadership of the Gospel Choir to student director David Dupree. They all did excellent work. The only complaint was that the bass and drums tended to drown out the singers, a problem Dr. Baker would probably have corrected had she been listening from out front.

Inevitably a lot of that fine choral sound gets lost back stage, soaked up in the heavy stage curtains. The band shell definitely helps. Next time I suggest that the choral risers be placed further downstage (toward the audience) as far as possible. That way more of the choral sound will be projected into the auditorium.

"I'm Gonna Sing Til the Spirit" pitted three tenors (no, not those three!) Larry Hamilton, David Dupree, and Robert Robinson against the Massed Choir (Gospel, Women's, Men's, Concert, Chamber).

The program closed with a fine rendition of "Everytime I Feel the Spirit," with soloist Frances Edralin singing against the Chamber and Women's choirs.

Throughout the program there were various sign language interpreters, one, two, three, or a whole choir, choreographed by Mia Yamada. Signing for the performing arts has become an art form, a performance in its own right, which Yamada clearly understands. She is an excellent choreographer. The signers' names were not in the program. Although Dr. Baker mentioned them, I couldn't write that fast. My apologies. The tall slim young woman with the cafe au lait complexion who seemed to do most of the signing is a graceful dancer. Her movements were fluid and a pleasure to watch.

Nooshin Sturdivant

Roosevelt Student Attends Conference

Nooshin Sturdivant of Greenbelt participated in the 1998 National Youth Leadership Forum (NYLF) on Medicine from June 28 to July 8, in Washington, DC. Nooshin, in the class of 1999 at Eleanor Roosevelt, was among 350 high school juniors and seniors from across America to obtain the qualifications required to participate in the forum. She was selected because of her outstanding academic achievements and her interest in the profession of medicine.

For the forum on medicine, Nooshin joined her fellow students for 11 days of discovery and mentoring at some of the nation's most prominent and technologically-advanced medical institutions. Intensive day-long concentrations at these institutions allowed students to examine state-of-the-art diagnostic tools and future medical specialties in detail.

Students also had the opportunity to study and learn from some of the nation's most distinguished medical leaders.

Topics discussed included breakthroughs in genetic research, cancer research, AIDS, sports medicine, neonatal and pediatric research, computers in the world of medicine, public health, clinical decision-making and bioethics.

Interested educators, parents and students are encouraged to contact the NYLF Office of Admissions for additional information 202-628-6090 or by e-mail at info@nylf.org. NYLF's website is located at www.nationalyouth.org.

Apply Now for MD College Trust

The Maryland Prepaid College Trust has extended the application deadline for its 1998 open enrollment period from June 30 to July 31. The extension, approved recently by the program's board, provides Maryland families more time to apply for a contract to prepay for their children's future college education.

The one-month extension also allows parents time to determine the impact of new tax legislation signed by Governor Parris N. Glendening on May 22. The two new tax laws eliminate the Maryland state income tax on the earnings when the contract benefits are paid to a college and provide up to a $2,500 Maryland state income tax deduction for each year a family makes contract payments to the program. The earnings are still taxable at the federal level, but at the child's tax rate and not the contract purchaser's.

The Maryland Prepaid College Trust toll-free telephone number is 1-888-UMD-GRAD.

GRAD NIGHT

different themes and increasing numbers, the success of this all night party has become as traditional as Grad Night itself. Dr. Boarman, Dean Reidy and many of the administrators and school staff donned their casual wear and joined the fun, signing year books, lending their support and just being a part of the crowd. The night was safe and secure thanks to the organization of Jim Tilton, Officer Buerger, and a staff of volunteers.

Decorations for this year's theme were created by Deniz Kantor. Along with the colorful decor and characters taken from the Wizard of Oz, were abundant messages of hope and encouragement.

Jan Derry and her volunteers kept the food coming all night long. Pizza, sandwiches, nachos, chips, dip, vegetable platters, brownies, cakes, cookies, cheese cake and more were all part of the menu. One could indulge in soda straight up or mixed with interesting mixers such as pineapple juice, V8 Splash and other combinations, but no alcohol. No one expressed any disappointment over that. After 4 a.m., out came the donuts, bagels and cream cheese, and plenty of orange juice.

Music and Games

There was no room for boredom. Tom Ahlquist and his host of volunteers provided non-stop entertainment. Music played all night. The Bungee Run, Velcro Wall and Sumo wrestling were among the favorite activities. While waiting for a chance to indulge in those activities, one could try Virtual Reality, jousting, having their palms read or get a temporary tattoo. Bingo was a quiet challenge. Trying the interactive goggles simulating what it is like to be in a drunken state was an awesome experience, demonstrating drinking and driving definitely do not mix. Some seniors went swimming most of the night, playing water games, others played basketball, and when it was time to just "chill" the outdoor patio provided a great atmosphere to do so.

Grad Night 1998 was a tremendous success. Any parent would be so proud and pleased to see or even be a part of this wonderful experience. What great memories this event provided for the graduating class. None of this would be possible without the unlimited generosity of all those involved with its success. Each year the Greenbelt Recreation Center has extended its facilities to Grad Night, showing its support and commitment to the area's youth. The staff is to be commended for the wonderful job they do before, during and after the event to make sure all goes well.

Year-round Fundraising

Grad Night is an expensive event and could not occur without an extensive year-long fundraising effort. Parents and volunteers worked a concession stand at UMD, delivered phone books (in the rain), had bake sales, sold pizzas and mulch, and solicited donations from parents and businesses, whose generosity was impressive. The committee chairpersons assumed their individual responsibilities and worked tirelessly. Thanks to all: Becky Ahlquist, prizes, Tom Ahlquist, activities; Jan Derry, food; Deniz Kantor, decorations; Rose Mary Remsberg, volunteers; Jim Tilton, security; Judy Simkovitz, tickets; Terry Enfield, Rosalind Willis and Kathy Hackett, donations; Millicent Potts, t-shirts; and Anne Stratton, treasurer. Rena Hull took on the challenge of keeping it all together.

It is hard work, but Grad Nights are now as much a part of a senior's year as graduation itself. The precious memories derived are well worth the time spent all year to make this possible. To the ERHS Class of 1998, "On to Oz," a land and time where all things are possible if one only believes. (It is also a land where there is no space or tolerance for drugs or alcohol.)

Eleanor Roosevelt H.S. Grad Night 1998 wishes to thank the following donors and many others for their kind generosity in contributing to the tremendous success of our graduates' night out.

the Labor Day Festival, including leadership roles related to the parade and the carnival, a role in the formation of the Greenbelt East Advisory Coordinating Committee, plus orchestrating events for his building in Greenbriar.

Mike Vaccaro did not just participate in a given organization. His enthusiasm and his encouragement of others helped make everyone feel welcome and committed to the cause. A leader in the Greenbriar Community Association, he was particularly adept at building consensus.

How to Nominate

The Outstanding Citizen award is bestowed annually during the opening ceremonies of the Labor Day Festival. While a committee selects 1998's Outstanding Citizen, that selection is made from nominations submitted from the community. Nominations are due this year on August 10. History indicates that many of Greenbelt's Outstanding Citizens have been nominated several times before their selection. The Committee encourages nominators to be persistent! While only one person is designated as Greenbelt's Outstanding Citizen, there is no doubt that the other nominees (13 in 1997) are special.

Help the Committee identify 1998's outstanding citizen by submitting a nomination explaining why that individual deserves recognition. Attach a brief statement listing the organizations and/or activities of the nominee specifying the accomplishments, length of service, impact on Greenbelt or its residents, and personal qualities that make this person special. Greenbelt's Outstanding Citizen award recognizes volunteer (un-paid) work only. Nominations must be signed by the person submitting the nomination; include your phone number and address and submit it to Ed Birner, chair, 13-N Ridge Road, Greenbelt, MD 20770-0706.

Greenbelt CARES

Greenbelt CARES Youth & Family Services Bureau was singled out as a recipient of a semi-finalist award. Finalist awards are expected to be announced by the end of June. Carol Leventhal represented the agency in receiving the award.

Dana Rabois, the coordinator of the Hooplaw 4 on 4 Basketball Tournament, met with Austin Gibbs from the Recreation Department to continue planning of the event. dissertations. Hartman said that "working with the police has been great" and that she has come to a keener appreciation of the work that law enforcement officers do. In addition to their direct involvement with the police, Hartman and Simms assist with family therapy groups on Wednesday nights, addressing issues of communication, parenting skills and dealing with emotions.

Simms facilitates a domestic violence group for women currently involved in or recently removed from abusive situations. This twelve-week group meets on Thursday nights at the police station. It still has room for new members.

The position was increased from one half-time employee to two half-time employees to decrease the demands shouldered by one individual. Simms and Hartman enjoy working as a team; however, Simms commented that "there must be a need for the work we're doing because we're staying awfully busy."

According to Greenbelt CARES Director Carol Leventhal, CARES provides a wide variety of services in addition to the contributions of the crisis intervention counselors. The program offers formal counseling for individuals and groups, information and referral services for other counseling needs, and educational and support groups at Springhill Lake Elementary and Eleanor Roosevelt High School. Leventhal hopes to offer similar services at Greenbelt Middle School one day. A year-round GED class and tutoring assistance are also offered.

With the exception of GED classes for non-Greenbelt residents, all CARES programs are free of charge. Counseling services are restricted to Greenbelt residents because the demand is so great.

History of CARES

Leventhal said that the CARES program originated in the early 1970s as the brainchild of Dr. Leo Walder, a Greenbelt resident and member of the faculty in the Department of Psychology at the University of Maryland. Because of his lifelong interest and research regarding the problems of aggression and violence in children, Walder was hired by the Anne Arundel County Council to teach children to make simple behavioral changes to reduce aggressiveness. One day while he was making photocopies at the local bank, someone suggested to Walder that he begin a similar youth program in Greenbelt.

CARES began humbly as a walk-in clinic on Wednesday evenings in the basement of the Greenbelt Community Church. It was run by Dr. Walder, his wife and some psychology graduate students. The Wednesday night family clinic that Simms and Hartman facilitate has barely changed from its origins under Walder.

During the Nixon administration, Walder wrote a proposal to the Law Enforcement Assistance Agency to grant money for a youth services bureau in Greenbelt. Funding for the program began on March 5, 1973. The official title of the program has changed from the Greenbelt Cares Youth Services Bureau to the Greenbelt Cares Youth and Family Services Bureau, but it is still familiarly known to all residents as Greenbelt CARES.

Leventhal began her tenure at CARES when the program was launched in 1973. She had just earned her master's degree in social work from the University of Maryland in 1973 and was hired by Walder as a part-time social worker. Leventhal has served the

Arts Council Seeks Artists for Awards

The Maryland State Arts Council (MSAC) is accepting applications for its fiscal year 1999 Individual Artist Awards. The program, which is designed to assist Maryland artists with their pursuit of artistic excellence, awards grants of $6,000, $3,000, and $1,000.

The Individual Artist awards will be offered in the following categories: Choreography, Music Composition, Playwriting, Fiction, Poetry, Visual Arts, Crafts, Visual Arts, Photography and Three Dimensional, including Sculpture and Installation. To apply, artists must be at least 18 years of age and have lived in Maryland as a primary residence for at least six of the 12 months preceding the date an application is submitted. All entries will be judged anonymously by out-of-state jurors whose decisions are based solely on artistic merit. Jury meetings are open to the public and are scheduled to take place at the MSAC offices in the fall of 1998.

Grant applications may be obtained by calling the Maryland State Arts Council at 410-767-6555 or TDD/TTY 410-333-4519.

Miss Greenbelt Reign Is "Extremely Exciting"

by Sandy Smith

Genette DonBullian, Miss Greenbelt 1997, is just about to complete her reign as the latest in a long line of Miss Greenbelt Pageant winners. In fact 1997 was the 60th anniversary of Greenbelt and Genette said that this glimpse into the history of the community was one of the most enjoyable aspects of her year in office. Her grandparents — the DonBullian and Siehl families — are original Greenbelt pioneers, but she had not experienced directly the sense of community and history until she became Miss Greenbelt and became very involved in the community.

Her community involvement consisted of participating in holiday events, community programs, activities for children and seniors. She handed out awards, took part in community celebrations, and represented the Pageant and Labor Day Festival at many official occasions. She was a visible symbol of the youth of the community — dedicated to making the community better through participation and achievement.

Busy Year

It has been a busy year for Genette. She's a student at the University of Maryland, a full-time employee, and Miss Greenbelt. She said that "learning to balance career, school and community responsibilities" is something she has learned from the Pageant during the past year. She described the year as "extremely exciting and a great opportunity to learn more about myself." She describes the Pageant as a very positive, creative activity and just a lot of fun.

Genette encourages other girls to enter the Pageant. She says that the rehearsals, car washes, parties, modeling and makeup sessions, community events and other activities held over the summer are fun. Girls begin as participants in the Pageant and end up as friends, she says. She sees the Miss Greenbelt Pageant as a benefit to young women who are deciding on career choices, eager for new experiences and willing to try something new and exciting. She credits Pageant organizers with expanding the Pageant, focusing on scholarships and adding savings bonds awards for all participants this year. In fact, Genette is helping to organize the Pageant, particularly working with the Little Miss Pageant girls in learning modeling and presentation techniques.

The Miss Greenbelt Pageant is open to girls from 7 to 19 who live, go to school, work or volunteer in Greenbelt. The Miss Greenbelt Pageant is held as part of the annual Greenbelt Labor Day Festival. Pageant participants are introduced the first night of the Festival and appear each evening on the Festival stage, with the final crowning of the winners on Sunday night of the Labor Day weekend. Pageant participants appear in the Labor Day parade. For more information contact Natasha Jewell at 301-352-8665.
