FOP Irked as Council Delays Discussion of Employee Raises

by Diane Oberg

One of the most contentious issues at the September 11 meeting of the Greenbelt City Council was one that was not even discussed. Gordon Pracht, a city police officer, rose during petitions and requests to object to council's decision to defer consideration of a 2% across-the-board pay raise for city employees. In other actions, council asked the county school board to transfer some students out of Greenbelt Middle School to reduce overcrowding and approved two new additional commemoration options.

Pay Increase

Discussion of the proposed increase was put off until the September 25 meeting so that Councilmember Alan Turnbull, who was out of town on business, could participate in the discussion. The delay will not cost city employees any money as both City Manager Michael McLaughlin and the councilmembers made clear that, if approved, the increase would be retroactive to July 1, the start of the fiscal year.

Pracht urged council not to delay any longer. He pointed out that the Fraternal Order of Police had provided council with information on the city's pay relative to other jurisdictions during the budget discussions this spring. There was no need to delay this item, in Pracht's view, as Turnbull had already "expressed his dissatisfaction with the police department if not city employees in general." This deferral shows council "dragging their feet a bit," Pracht said.

Councilmember Thomas White did not appreciate Pracht's "characterization" of council's position. The issue is much more complex than Pracht indicated, White said. The city's compensation study found that the disparity between Greenbelt's pay scale and that of other jurisdictions varies by position. White said that he does not support the proposed across-the-board increase. Instead, he said, the city should evaluate the study and apply the funds available to the most underpaid positions.

Later in the evening, Greenbelt Fraternal Order of Police (FOP) President Craig Rich distributed a paper summarizing the FOP's view of the salary issue. The item summarizing that night's meeting asked, the question apparently addressed to Turnbull, "knowing that your opinion can be read into the record, what does a continuance really do for the process?"

The sheet concluded with the statement that "Perhaps the meet and confer method used by the FOP for the last 26 years should be scrapped for collective bargaining with binding arbitration. That way we would not have to continue to be subject to continued delays on top of delays for actions already determined."

This proposed pay increase will be discussed at the September 25 regular council meeting.

Middle School

In response to a recommendation from the Advisory Committee on Education, council approved a letter to the county school board expressing concern about overcrowding at Greenbelt Middle School and asking that some non-Greenbelt students be transferred to Robert Goddard Middle School.

Large Group of Children To Leave Local School

by Mary Moien

The Greenbelt News Review has learned that the families of a number of students currently attending Greenbelt Elementary School (GES) may be forced to leave their apartments, and the children from the school, by the end of December. The Washington Post reported briefly in July and in more detail this month concerning the residents of Washington Heights Apartments in Landover.

Greenbelters may not be aware that children living in these apartments have been bused to GES for two decades and have become an integral part of the elementary school. The overall effect of this shift of students both on the school and on the students who have to move is currently unknown.

The Washington Heights Apartment complex consists of 287 units whose rents are subsidized under the Section 8 program. Due to a changing and perhaps improving rental market, a number of area apartment complexes have begun to limit or eliminate their participation in Section 8 rentals.

Dave Thomas, property management director for these apartments, has confirmed that all of the units in the Washington Heights Apartments are subsidized and that "everybody is vacating the apartments" by the end of the year. The original date for vacating was September 30, but this date has been extended to the end of December. These apartments are contiguous to FedEx Field; they border one of the parking lots.

Currently it appears that almost 250 children are bused from this area of Landover to Greenbelt Elementary. A visual review of the addresses from which students are bused to Greenbelt indicates that approximately half of the addresses are townhomes and the other half belong to Washington Heights Apartments. However, data provided by the school system indicates that over 175 of these children live at Washington Heights apartments addresses and may be affected by the forced move.

William Greene, director of Pupil Accounting and School Boundaries for the Prince George's County school system, was asked if he was aware of the pending move of a large number of students. Greene indicated that he had read about the apartments in the paper but had no direct knowledge of the effect on students.

He stated that developers of new communities are required to file information on potential students with the county but that the ramifications of a move of this type are often unknown, as the county does not work with rental agents of existing apartments.

City Man Robbed, Killed by Juveniles

According to MPO George Mathews of the Greenbelt Police Department, on Tuesday, September 19, at approximately 10:12 p.m., officers responded to a report of a man down in the 5700 block of Greenbelt Metro Drive.

Investigation reveals that the victim was walking from the Greenbelt Metro Station with his wife when they were approached by three suspects. It appears that the suspects robbed or attempted to rob the victim when a struggle ensued, during which time the victim was stabbed by one of the suspects. The suspects fled the scene on foot. The victim, identified as Miguel Angel Teran Encinas, 35, of Greenbelt, was transported to Prince George's General Hospital, where he was pronounced dead.

The following suspects have been arrested and charged with first degree murder and robbery: Andrew Daeyon Savage, 14, of the 6000 block of Springhill Drive, Kareem Olijuwon Jeter, 14, of the 6000 block of Springhill Drive, and Eddie Wilfredo Larosa, 14, of the 7000 block of Greenbrook Drive.

The suspects, who were charged as adults, appeared before a District Court Commissioner, where they were held without bond, and were released to the Department of Corrections in Upper Marlboro.

To Buy or Not to Buy? Council Ponders Theater

by Diane Oberg

Discussions of whether the city should acquire the theater in Roosevelt Center moved into the public eye at the September 11 regular meeting of the Greenbelt City Council. According to a memorandum by City Manager Michael McLaughlin, the issue was first discussed by council in an executive (closed) worksession in April. At that time, the city manager recommended against acquisition due to the city's tight finances.

In his September 7 memorandum, McLaughlin says that the city "has received some unexpected good news in revenues. Now it appears the city will end FY 2000 with revenues and expenditures about $300,000 better than estimated. Given this situation, I am much more comfortable in the city's ability to financially handle the acquisition of the theater."

Council unanimously agreed that there should be a public hearing and a worksession on the proposal. Neither meeting has yet been scheduled.

Behind Closed Doors

Councilmember Edward Putens addressed "the perception that a lot has been going on behind closed doors." He said this was necessary because the city was dealing with an individual's financial situation. Even as council went public with the issue, however, some of their secretive habits remained. Mayor Judith Davis referred to a letter from theater operator Paul Sanchez that she called "a little disheartening."

Even after McLaughlin confirmed that the letter was not confidential, neither she nor he described the contents, despite calls from the audience to "Read it." Finally, when it was Councilmember Rodney Roberts' turn to speak, he disclosed that the letter contained Sanchez's announcement that he may have to close by November 30. Sanchez has since posted a sign on the theater announcing that the last show could be on November 19.

McLaughlin's Recommendation

In his memo, McLaughlin says "Acquisition of this building by the city makes sense from a historic preservation standpoint, as well as for the economic viability of the Center. City ownership reduces the need to generate a profit and makes the property tax exempt, meaning that operating cost pressures are less..."

McLaughlin is not recommending that the city operate the theater. While he and City Solicitor Robert Manzi recommend that the city consider acquiring

The Bus Service to Expand But Sign Lack Criticized

by Betsy Likowski

County transit officials came before the Greenbelt City Council to tell about a new express bus to NASA. In return, they got an earful of complaints about bus signs. The county operates two bus routes from the Metro station through Greenbelt but councilmembers complained that lack of and poor signs made riding The Bus something of a mystery. The good news is that no changes are planned for existing The Bus routes and the new NASA express route will provide faster service for those who commute to NASA. Council met with the county officials at a worksession on Monday, August 7 and expect the express service to start in about a month.

Prince George's County is building a network of bus routes to serve residential areas in an attempt to add to the service the Washington Metro Area Transit Authority provides along the main corridors. Currently Route 11 serves the Greenbelt Metro station, the Greenbelt federal courthouse, and Beltway Plaza. Route 15 goes from the Metro station down Cherrywood Lane, and Greenbelt Road into the Golden Triangle; then through the core of the city via Southway, Ridge Road, Gardenway, and Crescent Road; and then back out Southway to Greenbelt Road. It then goes through Greenbelt east via Hanover Parkway, Greenbrook Drive, Ora Glen

THANKS

I would like to take another moment to say how honored I feel to have been selected this year as Greenbelt's Outstanding Citizen. I truly believe that it is the highest honor anyone in Greenbelt could ever receive. The people of Greenbelt make it the best!

Not Funny

As part of the Labor Day festival, a "pie-eating" contest was held and in the aftermath, this paper printed an article and letter about it that I expect were meant to be humorous.

Am I the only person who finds the whole concept of pie-eating contests wasteful and offensive? In light of statistics that one in three children in the world goes to bed hungry every night, how dare anyone so willfully waste food? If that's not compelling enough, how about our own local food kitchens that might welcome those pies, or the ingredients, or the cash that was spent to make them?

I can already hear the chorus of "lighten up, this is all in good fun" in response to my words. I'm not of a mind to lighten up. The idea of preparing food for the sole purpose of wasting it is beyond me; at best, this is an idea that's time has come and gone. In 2000, people who are fortunate enough to have refrigerators and cupboards full of food should be very grateful and not lose sight of those who don't.

Please re-think the continuation of a pie-eating contest.

Please Show Respect For "Old Glory"

Having just recently moved into "Old" Greenbelt, we would like to express our delight in being part of such a wonderful community. The more we experience our new life style, the more we realize the wisdom of our decision to hopefully spend our remaining years here.

We love the conveniences, the amenities, the friendliness and the diversity of our neighbors and our location.

The Labor Day Festival was a real treat and afforded us the opportunity to learn even more about our town and its people.

There has been, unfortunately, one great disappointment.

During the parade, I noticed the almost complete lack of respect by so many for our nation's flag. Since I was a young child I had been taught to stand, remove my hat and place my hand over my heart, as the flag passed. Is this not taught today? If so, it certainly is not being practiced.

Perhaps this friendly reminder will result in a better showing of patriotism next time.

Meanwhile, thank you Greenbelters for your warm and friendly welcome. We look forward to becoming an integral part of our community.

Peace — Love And Hypocrisy

I thought long and hard before I wrote this letter, usually not one to stir the pot, but I was appalled on Labor Day by the group representing the 50 ft. nuclear missile, and felt that I needed to voice my concerns.

My wife and I arrived at 8:30 Monday morning to get our annual spot on Crescent Road, in front of St. Hugh's, and have our morning McDonalds breakfast with our three small children. We do this every year and our kids look forward to it. My wife has lived in Greenbelt since birth, and has attended nearly every parade, but this one was different. This one we were not able to enjoy because of the hypocrites operating the love/peace missile.

This started when they drove the float down Northway and made a left onto Crescent Road. The older, white-bearded man wearing the old white bicycle helmet directed the driver of the float to "run over them if they don't move." He was referring to my 18-month-old son and me. We were trying to pick up our breakfast and pull up our feet as they pulled the float right up in front of us and only 6-8 inches from the curb. He obviously didn't think I heard him because he refused to discuss the matter with me when I questioned his comment. They parked their 50-ft. float right in front of us, even though the whole street was still vacant. I asked the driver to pull up 15 or 20 feet, as we had positioned our blankets and belongings there 45 minutes beforehand. He reluctantly did so.

During the parade, the thing that shocked me the most was one of their elder members vandalizing cars. There was an older, white-haired lady that seemed to get a kick out of running out into the streets and placing bumper stickers on the back of most cars, including some antique cars that were in the parade. She even put these "Million Mom March" and "Kids and Guns Don't Mix" bumper stickers on the back of police cars. Is there not a law against this? I know that I would not appreciate someone sticking bumper stickers on the back of my car. What kind of message or example was this 65+-year-old lady sending to the children watching her? It's OK to vandalize and deface others' property, including police cars?

This group has a good cause and a good message. The problem is that some of their members are not practicing what they are preaching. The two elder members of the group threatening to run over children, and putting bumper stickers on unsuspecting cars should be ashamed of themselves. They are true hypocrites. If the Greenbelt police are wondering who is responsible for putting these unwanted stickers on your cars, contact the peace group.

Wonderful Festival, Better Smokefree

Kudos to everyone who helped make the Labor Day Festival yet another success despite the weather! This and other events show the world why Greenbelt is truly unique and should be cherished by all. Greenbelt would not be what it is without the hard work by dedicated citizens.

A round of applause should be given to all those who made the weekend a resounding success. The hard-working volunteers deserve all of our gratitude.

For next year, however, my family and I would like to see some restrictions on the smoking in the festival area, particularly by carnival employees. Such smoke keeps those with asthma and cigarette allergies away. Furthermore such smoking in front of numerous children does not set a good model for them.

May I suggest a designated smoking area for those smokers who wish to exercise their right to puff away?

The festival was truly wonderful. Yet it can be even better if we promote it as a healthy environment for our children.

Flute and Guitar Duet Featured at Arts Center

by Konrad E. Herling

On Saturday, October 7 at 8 p.m., the Greenbelt Arts Center is the place to be if you have a sensitivity for the environment, respond to a diverse range of music from jazz to classical, and appreciate the dynamic artistry of guitar and flute duet. "Flutar" consists of two outstanding Washington-based artists: flutist, Joseph Culiffe and guitarist, Georgia Cavallaro, each of whom have for years been successfully active performers and educators. They have been performing as a duo for nearly two decades and have consistently received high critical acclaim in the U.S. and abroad.

The music of Flutar is a remarkably eclectic and deeply moving collection of folk melodies, classical repertoire, New-Age and original compositions, which synthesize the pioneering spirit of these musicians. The Flutar Duo was featured in Chicago at the National Flute Association Convention in August 1997 and performed original music by Georgia Cavallaro from their latest release "Journey's Crossing."

The artists' deep personal commitment to environmental issues inspired the concept, writing and recording of "Journey's Crossing," which emphasizes the global crisis and threat to wildlife. The music serves as an immediate message to the delicate issues of conservation and preservation. Flutar gave their third concert tour to El Salvador, performing at three universities, at an historic archeological site of Mayan ruins at San Andres, and at the Festival Perminante de Arte y Cultura '98. Flutar was given the title of "Artistic Ambassadors to the United States" by the founder of the festival, Alejandro Cotto and United States Information Service. Flutar featured new music from their current CD "Journey's Crossing." The title track "Tears Goodbye" from their most recent recording was selected by Oasis recording company to be distributed nationwide to hundreds of radio stations on a CD sampler.

Flutar goes beyond the concert hall with an interest in synthesizing global consciousness and awareness for environmental responsibility, an appreciation for the music of diverse cultures and the potential for healing through sound. They are challenged by a deep commitment to integrate their social consciousness with their respective musical growth and discovery. One may go far and wide to find a community with just such an appreciation for these qualities.

Next week, our article will look at the individual artists, as well as upcoming events featuring Harold Anderson, Greenbelt jazz musician, and Santiago Rodriguez.

Come Plant a Tree By a Local River

Join the Chesapeake Bay Foundation and Anacostia Watershed Society in helping to save the bay by planting trees along the northeast bank of the Anacostia River on Saturday, September 30, from 9 a.m. to noon. Volunteers will meet at the Anacostia River Park off Kenilworth Avenue and Decatur Street (follow event signs). Equipment and refreshments will be provided. Forested buffers (areas of trees and other plants along the water's edge) play a crucial role in reducing the pollution caused by erosion. Root systems anchor the soil and keep it from running off and clouding water where it can destroy fish and plant life. Today, only 53 percent of the Chesapeake Bay watershed's 110,000 miles of streams and shorelines are buffered by riparian forests.

Contact Marcy Damon at mdamon@cbf.org or 410-268-8816, ext. 720, to RSVP and for further information.

Henderson and Council Meet on Overcrowding

by Mary Moien

Prince George's County School Board Chair Jim Henderson will meet with the Greenbelt City Council to discuss the issue of overcrowding at Greenbelt Middle School (GMS). The meeting will be held on Wednesday, September 27 at 7:30 p.m. in the Community Center.

The Greenbelt Advisory Committee on Education (ACE) brought the issue of overcrowding at the middle school to the council's attention in a recent report on the topic. ACE was assisted in these findings by Ann Harris Davidson, chair of the Berwyn Heights Education Advisory Committee. Children from Berwyn Heights also attend GMS.

During the summer it appeared that Greenbelt Middle School would open at about 128 percent of capacity, 1,026 students. However, as school opened, the estimate grew to about 150 percent of capacity. That figure includes at least 120 sixth graders who should attend Springhill Lake Elementary. The sixth grade was moved from SHL to GMS a few years ago to alleviate overcrowding at SHL. Now SHL itself is again seriously overcrowded this year.

The city council invited Henderson, who is also Greenbelt's representative on the school board, to meet with them to discuss the overcrowding problem and a possible solution. The solution proposed by ACE involves the shift of some students to nearby middle schools that are less crowded. According to the report, Robert Goddard Middle School is operating at less than 50 percent capacity and is close to neighborhoods from which students are bused to Greenbelt Middle School.

The city seeks a fast solution to the overcrowding problem in order to minimize the disruptions to students who would be affected by a school transfer.

According to information assembled by Greenbelt CARES, Greenbelt Middle School has a capacity of 802 students. Current enrollment is somewhere between 983 and 1,200, depending upon whose data is used. Robert Goddard has a capacity of 1,049 and a projected enrollment of 489, the lowest usage ratio in the county school system.

Memorialization

Council has long struggled with how to officially commemorate individuals who have made significant contributions to the city. Resolution 774, passed in April 1992, established general criteria for submitting and reviewing nominations for official commemoration but left the nature of the commemoration up to council. The resolution did state that city facilities should only be renamed for individuals who have made "significant and outstanding contributions to the city."

At the September 11 meeting, council introduced a resolution that would establish the planned Wall of Honor in the Community Center as the only option for official city commemoration of individuals.

Later in the meeting, council approved two new individual commemoration options. Similar to the Adopt-A-Tree program, these programs would not involve official recognition by the city or by council. Instead, they provide an opportunity for individuals and families to commemorate others. The new options are Adopt-A-Bench, and Adopt-A-Brick in Schrom Hills Park. City staff will develop guidelines for future council review for these two programs.

Alzheimer's Patients Sought for Study

Researchers at the National Institutes of Neurological Disorders and Stroke, National Institutes of Health (NIH), seek adults diagnosed with Alzheimer's disease (AD), for a research study. Scientists want to find out if a new experimental drug improves memory and/or slows the progression of the disease.

Adults age 50 to 89 who have a diagnosis of AD but are otherwise in good health may be eligible to take part. Study participants must have a companion who is able to monitor their progress in the study.

The study takes place at the NIH Clinical Center in Bethesda. There is no charge to take part. For more information, call 1-800-411-1222.

Beltsville Garden Club Invites Public

The Beltsville Garden Club will meet Wednesday, Sept. 27, 7:30 p.m. at the Duckworth School, 11201 Evans Trail.

Liz Whitmore, a landscape architect who works for Maryland-National Park and Planning Commission, will speak. Her topic will be the North Carolina Gardens of Pinehurst, Sandhills Community College and Biltmore.

Admission is free and the public is invited. Refreshments and door prizes will follow the meeting. For information call 301-384-2415.

Drive, Mandan Road, and then to NASA, and the Maryland Corporate Center. It returns to the station on the same route.

The proposed express Route 15 would go from the Greenbelt Metro station, down Greenbelt Road, and into NASA. It would run through NASA and stop at the visitor center and the main gate. Transit officials anticipate it will start next month and slowly increase in ridership. Mayor Judith Davis said that council had asked for an express bus to NASA. "I think it should have been implemented by now," opined councilmember Rodney Roberts. The feeling is that this route, over time will be a success, said Chief of Transit, Office of Transportation James Raszewski. We are "having a slow, but steady increase in ridership on Route 15" he said. Currently it is at 38% of projected ultimate ridership. We are anticipating ten people per hour, said Raszewski. Route 11 ridership is 40% of estimated projections. Ridership numbers are much better on some other routes, explained Chief of Transit Planning, Division of Transit, Franklin Bell. For example the Capital Heights Route 25 is getting 100% of ridership projection. The problem with Route 15, Bell explained, is duplication with existing Metro routes.

Signs

The city council had plenty to say to the county officials about signs and spent the bulk of the meeting doing so. There are no signs at the bus shelter indicating what bus route comes by or at what times it comes by, said Davis. "It's like this big mystery - where is it going and... will I get home" taking this bus?, she continued. Davis said that if she xeroxed the map handed out at that meeting and stuck it up on the bus shelter it would do more good for riders than anything else, because at least they would know where the bus will eventually go.

Signage is a problem throughout the transit business — Metro has this problem and county has it, said Raszewski. The first priorities are maintenance and drivers and then comes signage. The funds and staff are not there to maintain signs, he said. For example, one little schedule change means all the signs need to be changed.

The signage will come in time, but the county needs to grow the system, said Raszewski. Councilmember Thomas White urged that the county needs to promote ridership. It seems that with a minimum of expenditure there are things that can be done to make the bus system more rider friendly. White said, for example in Europe there are graphics at the bus stop. The county can not maintain something like that, Raszewski responded. "I think you're missing the bus," said Sheldon Goldberg. Expand more slowly and put more money into signs, think less of putting more machines on the road and more about serving the riders with signs, he continued.

Councilmember Alan Turnbull said he did not think it was a money issue — just drill a couple holes in the concrete at the Greenbelt Metro station and put up a sign. The market is there, he said, it is just a matter of if only people knew how to ride The Bus, he said. There are placards at some of the major stops throughout the system, said Bell. If the city wants to contribute money for signs Raszewski said he would be willing to accept it.

Miscellaneous

Another bus route is planned for Greenbelt — Route 14. County officials plan to later have a worksession with council on this and then a public hearing.

too early, Raszewski said it was a problem the county tries to minimize; it does not happen with any degree of regularity, and that drivers have been dismissed for doing it.

the theater, they also recommend that an agreement be worked out with Sanchez or another operator that contains incentives, such as profit-sharing, to make the theater profitable and that the city seek grants to help with renovation costs.

McLaughlin closes his memo with the note that "should the movie operation ultimately fail, I believe the theater can be modified to become a performing arts center and home of the Greenbelt Arts Center."

Council Comments

Putens said that the city has an opportunity to save a significant portion of Roosevelt Center. If the city were to acquire it, it would become very viable for many organizations, not just the city.

The economics of the offer must be evaluated, Council member Thomas White said. However, "when my barber asks me when is the city going to buy the center, it requires my attention." Councilmember Rodney Roberts inquired "Does he use a straight razor?"

It is not a good idea to have a large part of the center go dark, Davis said, adding that more specific information would be provided at the public hearing.

Roberts declared that he is in favor of acquiring the theater. He said that it would be really foolish to pass up this opportunity. Citizens should come out and dig really deep into the issues, Roberts said.

Public Comments

Konrad Herling cautioned that if it only looks at the theater, the city will risk making an investment that does not bring back the results council is looking for. Putens replied that even if the city wanted to acquire more than the theater "I can't make you sell me your house."

In order to get good use out of the theater, Dennis Jelalian told council, it needs a curtain, stage lights, and a television projector.

"I'm so excited," Gwen Vacarro, of Pleasant Touch, declared. "This is what the merchants have been talking about for a long time." However, she said that she did not want to see the city become a renter of the theater. She also urged council to recognize the interdependence of the theater and the rest of the center.

Costs If You Do

Taking over the theater would not be cheap, however. First the city would have to forgive $150,000 in missed payments and interest on a 1991 special assessment agreement with the current owners, George and Lisa Christacos, plus grant an unspecified reduction in future payments. Then, the city would have to make improvements to the theater. City Supervisory Inspector

James Sterling prepared a "ball park cost estimate" for work that may be required. Some items are needed to resolve property maintenance violations, others are required to permit a change of ownership. (For example, some standards apply to government owned buildings that do not apply to privately owned buildings.) Sterling's estimates for the work he had identified total $141,500. If, as Sterling believes likely, there is asbestos in the building, there would be additional costs for its removal or containment. The city has not yet had a mechanical contractor in to evaluate the condition of the mechanical equipment nor has it conducted an environmental inspection.

There is also a legal question to be resolved. At present, according to Sterling's May 10 property evaluation report, "It appears...the city cannot purchase just the theater, as its floor plan exists today... The city may have to purchase the whole fire area the theater is enclosed within, which is still not determined at this time." Sterling said that currently, the entire section of buildings from the dry cleaners to the beauty shop and Pleasant Touch are listed as one building.

Sterling told the News Review that he wrote his report on the assumption that the city would also acquire the area occupied by the dry cleaners.

Costs If You Don't

There would also be costs to the city if the theater were to close. The city collects approximately $12,000 in admissions and amusement tax from the business. In addition, McLaughlin noted, the theater helps keep the center economically viable by bringing an evening and weekend presence. Other businesses, such as the New Deal Café and the Beijing restaurant benefit from the customers attracted by the theater.
