City Council Discusses Local Historic District Designation

by Barbara Hopkins

"To be or not to be" a Local Historic District designated by Prince George's County: that was the question debated by Greenbelt City Councilmembers at the meeting on Monday, February 11, while the specter of county control haunted the proceedings. The question goes back as far as 1991 when Greenbelt Homes, Inc. (GHI) approached city officials with a request for such a designation for GHI.

Current consideration of the issue follows a report by staff from the city's Department of Planning and Community Development after their review of "The Draft Potential Greenbelt District Design Guidelines," a document created by staff from the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission (M-NCPPC). The M-NCPPC draft was based on a three-year study of the Ad Hoc Historic District Study Committee, which had been composed of GHI members.

Celia Craze, director of the Department of Planning and Community Development, went over the report to council.

Background

Greenbelt is currently designated a National Historic Landmark and National Register Historic District, both of which provide a certain amount of protection from projects of the state and federal governments. Primarily, however, they are honorary designations that do not create regulations governing city projects. Local Historic District designation would afford additional protections to the historic characteristics of the designated area through county building and zoning regulations and provide additional tax benefits to property owners as well. The Local Historic District, which is administered through the Historic Preservation Commission (HPC) of Prince George's County, would exert control over design elements of the community.

This same body would grant or deny tax credit applications and approve exterior modifications on property within the zone. It is an advisor to the county planning board on applications for development affecting a historic district.

Craze said that since consideration of becoming an historic district first began, a new 25 per cent tax credit to individual property owners has been developed for historic renovations. She suggested it could present an alternative financial benefit to Local Historic District designation, hopefully one that would not require ceding control to the county.

Staff Recommendations

For multiple reasons the Greenbelt Department of Planning and Community Development staff advise against going for the designation. Craze said the draft document is very vague. She recommends that it be re-formatted so that goals and objectives, guidelines, and regulations are set apart from each other and clarified with more precise language and defined terms.

Since the project has expanded from the original request that would have affected GHI property only to include some properties that do not share the same historic period, the document should have separate sections, she said, outlining what would be re-

BARC Sale Removed from Bill

BARC Acreage Not What It Once Was

by Elaine Skolnik

When Bill S-1731 was reintroduced recently in the U. S. Senate, the provision that would have allowed parts of the Beltsville Agricultural Research Center (BARC) to be sold off had been stricken from the bill. Senators Paul Sarbanes and Barbara Mikulski and Congressman Steny Hoyer had predicted and worked for this outcome. The bill, passed recently by both the Senate and House of Representatives, is currently in a conference committee. After the bill's language is finalized, it will be sent to the President, who is expected to sign the legislation.

Hoyer told the News Review, "I am pleased that Senator Sarbanes was able to remove the provision in the farm bill that would have threatened BARC.

(The following article by Elaine Skolnik is reprinted from the July 25, 1996 issue of the News Review.)

For more than 50 years, a gradual chipping away has reduced Beltsville Agricultural Research Center (BARC) land from approximately 14,000 acres to its current 6,500 acres. Pressure by federal, state, county and city officials has played a major role, on the other hand, in preventing the wholesale selling off of BARC's land by the federal government to private parties.

In 1979, a proposal to excess (declare surplus and sell off or transfer to another Federal agency) 3,390 acres of the then 8,220-acre center property drew fire from U.S. Senator Paul Sarbanes, and Congresswoman Gladys Spellman and others. At issue was a 2,700-acre section east of Soil Conservation Road, which provided buffer zones between BARC and both the abutting Goddard Space Flight Center and the Patuxent Wildlife Refuge.

Agriculture officials feared that "any additional reductions would seriously impair BARC's ability to carry on, jeopardizing its reputation as a national showcase of agricultural research and as the leading, most diversified agricultural research complex in the world."

Throughout the 1980s federal, state and local elected officials resisted the excessing of BARC land. At that time disposal of surplus lands had been accomplished under President Ronald Reagan's Executive Order 1238, dated February 25, 1982. This set up the Federal Property Review Board to screen available land for sale. The executive action was taken in the hope the sale proceeds would help reduce the federal deficit. (The board was later abolished, its functions taken over by the Office of Management and Budget.)

The pressure to stop the excessing of BARC land became intense in May 1987 when an auction date had been set for Parcel 5, a 13.6-acre tract north of the National Agricultural Library and bounded by U.S. Route 1, Sunnyside Avenue and Buchanan Road. Congressman Steny Hoyer intervened, the sale was postponed; and the tract, declared surplus in 1983, was later removed from the government's surplus property list.

These repeated efforts to auction off BARC land for commercial purposes led to the action by Congress, in late 1987, to give the green light to a measure initiated by Hoyer in the House and by Senators Barbara Mikulski and Sarbanes in the Senate that

Dr. Metts Dispute Is Crisis In County School Circles

by Mary Moien

On a daily basis the city and county, indeed the country, seem to be bombarded with news of the educational crisis in Prince George's County. The Superintendent of Schools, Dr. Iris T. Metts, has been fired, reinstated, and is possibly looking for a new position. The State Superintendent of Schools, Nancy Grasmick, reversed the firing, surprising all when she said that only she has the authority to fire county superintendents. The school board members, who fired Metts, are still looking at their options for terminating her position.

Added to this pot are declining standardized test scores, which this year have affected most school districts throughout the state, not just Prince George's County. However, the decline in test scores is one announced reason that the board sought to fire Metts. Another reason they cited was that she signed major contracts with organizations to run Head Start programs without board authorization.

Emergency Legislation

At the same time, legislators in Annapolis are trying to pass a bill that will alter the structure of the county board of education, possibly resulting in the removal of some members and the appointment of some new members. The current board is entirely elected.

At this point the house has passed emergency legislation to set up an oversight panel with authority over major spending and personnel actions of the county school board. Neither of these proposals has yet been approved by the senate or signed by the governor.

Local Response

Although most local politicians are angry and frustrated at the various actions of all involved, there is currently little they see that can be accomplished locally. In fact, Mayor Judith Davis indicated that the council members have varying opinions and would probably not be able to reach a consensus on what actions they would

ACE and Principals Meet To Review Current Status

by Mary Moien

The annual meeting of the Greenbelt Advisory Committee on Education (ACE) with local school principals was held on February 4. Principals and other senior staff were present from Greenbelt and Springhill Lake Elementary Schools, Greenbelt and Robert Goddard Middle Schools, and St. Hugh's School. This meeting was an opportunity for the principals to discuss activities in their schools to bring issues and problems to the attention of the city.

Greenbelt Middle

Three vice-principals - John LaPolla, Maria Bovich and Clifton Coates accompanied Principal Judy Austin, the new principal at Greenbelt Middle School. Austin was proud to announce that their school had done very well on the MSPAP tests. She then described two major needs at the school, tutors and driving assistance. Many students stay after school for tutoring; however, there are no buses to take these students home. Transportation is a major obstacle to tutoring, she said. They would like volunteers who could drive students home in the afternoon.

Austin mentioned that students will be working with Professor James Dixon and interns from Bowie University, who will help students start their own businesses. In addition, the school is starting a stock market project in conjunction with the Washington Post. This project will help with math and reading.

ACE chair, Leta Mach, asked if school renovations had begun. LaPolla commented that it had looked like work was beginning as engineers and architects had come to the school. However, no one has come in several

Memories

When I reached my 80th birthday on January 28, 2002, my children and grandchildren gave me a surprise party. They presented me with oral and written testimonies of what they remembered most about me.

Cam, my oldest child, wrote hers down and although I will always remember all the other nice things said about me, this one I have in print to be read over and over again and to be shared with others.

It brought back memories. I didn't realize how impressionable early childhood experiences can be.

Those were the days when Greenbelt mothers stayed home to care for their children. To do otherwise, made you ineligible to live in Greenbelt as it was first established in the late 1930s.

I Remember Mom

This is about Mom "Being There" . . . I remember Mom during the summers when we lived at 7-K Research making us four little sweaty monsters take a nap every day after lunch. At that time propeller planes used to fly overhead, and to this day, whenever I hear the drone of a lone propeller plane (becoming increasingly rare), I think of naps on hot summer afternoons and Mom.

I remember Mom, after we again got hot and sweaty playing outside after our naps, making us take a bath before Dad came home and puffing us up with talcum powder. Then Mom could present Dad with his precious, sweet-smelling children who would wait for him, playing on the lawn, Marilyn and I twirling in our full skirts. I remember being attached, like a papoose, to Mom's back on the bed, trying to match my breathing to hers, so that we could both take a nap together.

I remember how frustrated Mom would get sewing Easter outfits for Marilyn and me because we had to keep trying them on . . . especially a bright blue taffeta jumper with a yellow gauzy blouse. That yellow blouse was directly related to why I got, and had to wear for the rest of the year, that yellow Easter hat that squeezed and pinched my head. At that time you always had to wear a hat to church.

I remember Mom saying one day that she was going to get a job, and me starting to cry because I wanted her to be home when I got home from school . . . and so she never got that job away from home. Thank you, Mom, for being there.

An earlier effort to sell and auction parts of BARC was made during the Reagan Administration. At that time the move was blocked by Hoyer.

Hoyer also noted that the President's budget included $4.1 million for the so-called Renaissance program for fiscal year 2003. He said he will work hard to secure more funding. This ongoing program began in late 1988 when the Congress approved an appropriation of $14 million for rejuvenating and upgrading BARC's aged structures and providing state-of-the-art research equipment for the laboratories.

USDA's first research activity in Beltsville began in 1910 in a dairy barn. Gradual expansion of the research program followed in 1935 several of the large buildings of Georgian architecture were constructed. In a land swap between the Department of Defense and USDA around the time of World War II, all plant science programs moved from Virginia to Beltsville. (The Defense Department wanted the Virginia land in order to build the Pentagon.)

prohibited disposal of any BARC property without prior consent from Congress.

Among the arguments raised to keep private interests from buying Parcel 5 was the fact that the tract would satisfy potential federal needs to consolidate Agriculture's offices, which were scattered throughout the Maryland, Virginia and Washington, D.C. area. (At the time, land clearing had begun for the USDA headquarters complex on Sunnyside Avenue between the railroad tracks and Tucker Road, a tract just east of Parcel 5.)

Council Supports GHI's Tree Replacement Request

by Barbara Hopkins

Greenbelt City Council-members voted unanimously on February 11 to submit a letter supporting the application by the Board of Directors of Greenbelt Homes, Inc. (GHI) for a Neighborhood Improvement Grant from the Prince George's County Redevelopment Authority. If approved, the grant will give GHI $20,000, which it must match with an equal amount, to remove 94 failing and, therefore, hazardous trees and plant 96 new trees. Bill Phelan, assistant director of Public Works, and the city's horticulturist, has reviewed and approved the plan but not the list of replacement tree species.

Gretchen Overdurff, GHI general manager, told council that tree stumps will not be removed, but will be cut as close to the ground as possible. Overdurff said some of the trees to be removed are in common areas; some are in yards. Where the site is not suitable, a replacement tree will not be replanted, but one will be planted as close as possible to the site of the original tree. GHI members who do not want a tree replaced in their yard will be able to make this request for consideration by GHI management. Members will be given more information as it becomes available, if and when the grant is approved.

Trees Tagged

Trees to be removed have been tagged with yellow tape so that citizens can see which trees will be taken down. The project must be completed within a year of the date of grant approval; and in a letter to the city council, Overdurff said the board intends to plant new trees in the fall within as short a time as possible after the old trees are removed.

Most of the trees to be removed are crab apples. Suggested replacement trees include various cultivars of dogwood, magnolias, serviceberries, hawthornes, red maples, and others. Final selection of replacement trees will not be made until GHI is assured of the grant. Then staff will contact nurseries to determine what is available.

Councilmember Alan Turnbull said he would like to see more enthusiasm in the letter to reflect the community's history as a "tree community." As submitted, the letter is simple and direct. Turnbull also applauded GHI for going for the grant.

Holloway Takes on Jeopardy

by Mary Moien

How many high schools in the United States can claim to have had two Jeopardy winners in one year? Eleanor Roosevelt High School can. Last week, Bernard Holloway, a junior from Mitchellville, outplayed the other contestants and became the winner of the teen championship, including $50,000 and a new convertible. Last fall, Venita Kailasanath won the college Jeopardy championship. She was valedictorian at ERHS for the class of 2000 and currently attends Stanford University.

Not only is Holloway a celebrity at Roosevelt; he is also the county's student representative to the Prince George's County school board. As the student representative, he participates in discussions and is able to vote on topics not related to budget or personnel issues.

Holloway, a Science and Technology student, seemed relatively cool and calm as he appeared on several episodes of Jeopardy over a two-week period. He was selected from more than 1,000 teens who applied for a spot on the tournament.

It should be mentioned also, that last spring, ERHS won both the Washington area and Washington, Baltimore and Richmond superbowl competitions of "It's Academic."

like to see taken.

Speaking personally, Davis stated that anyone concerned about the schools must be exceedingly worried about the future.

She indicated further that Greenbelt needs a school board representative who is "responsive and responsible." Although the city council is non-partisan and cannot propose a particular candidate, she indicated that the city may need a new school board representative and if that person comes from Greenbelt, all the better. James Henderson of Seabrook is the city's current representative; his predecessor was Suzanne Plogman of Greenbelt.

ACE Advice

On matters of education, the city council is advised by the Greenbelt Advisory Committee on Education (ACE). The chair, Leta Mach, reported that the committee has not yet put forth a recommendation regarding the Metts-school board affair. The next ACE meeting is February 26 and she expects this issue to be on the agenda.

Greenbelt City Councilmember Tom White stated that the "bottom line is the students" and creating a quality school system. Referring to the competition between the county school board, the State Superintendent of Schools, and Metts, he declared that all of these issues are a huge distraction to education. White was vehemently opposed, however, to the "interlopers in Annapolis" who proposed unilaterally changing the elected school board. "What does that say to any elected board?" he asked.

When asked if county voters could recall the elected school board, he indicated that the state of Maryland has no recall procedures. Some municipalities do, but not Greenbelt. In Greenbelt, voters can "recall" their elected officials every two years in an election. The school board can be recalled the same way.

Dismay Expressed

Allen Elliott is the PTSA president at Eleanor Roosevelt

High School (ERHS) and a dedicated activist in support of education. He indicated that the PTSA board was not inclined to take a position in the ongoing dispute. He sensed dismay among many parents - a mix of anger, sadness and disappointment that grown-ups who encourage peer mediation and conflict resolution in the schools have been unable to reconcile their differences and work together for the good of the schools and the children.

Elliott, who has devoted hundreds of hours on PTSA activities, indicated his personal frustrations on all sides. He commented that Metts had many good ideas but did not have enough respect for the board to keep them informed. In turn, the board may have neglected their first responsibility, which is to the students. He added that the underfunding of the school system is another issue and the county may be holding the schools hostage to try to overturn TRIM.

Like the true parent and PTSA president, Elliott concluded his remarks by directing attention to the very positive outcomes that are overlooked in the "maelstrom," the many outstanding accomplishments of ERHS students - including two Jeopardy winners and the It's Academic superbowl championship, all in one year.

Greenbelt Youth Honored For Community Service

Today at FedEx Field in Landover hundreds of area youth, including Greenbelters, were recognized for their hard work, dedication and community spirit at the second annual Redskins All-Stars Award Ceremony. Redskins players, along with Redskins cheerleaders, joined the Washington Redskins Leadership Council to present 11 winning youth organizations with over $50,000 in grants.

Receiving $2,500 as a fourth place winner, the BUILDING Mentoring Program of Greenbelt restored the outdoor basketball court and the entire playground at Springhill Lake Recreation Center. The group members, under the leadership of Brian Butler, removed 60 bags of leaves, repainted the backboards, changed the rims and bought new nets. They also painted the BUILDING Mentoring Program logo on the court. With the earned prize money, the youth hope to add lights to the newly refurbished basketball court.

The Redskins All-Stars program is designed to recognize and encourage community service, dedication and teamwork among area youth. Groups of children in Maryland, Virginia and the District of Columbia, between the ages of 5 and 18 years, were eligible to participate with the assistance of youth leaders, teachers, coaches or parents. This year over 25,000 youth from 200 organizations including schools, Boys and Girls clubs and Boy and Girl Scout troops, registered to participate in the 2001 Redskins All-Stars program.

To encourage these community service projects, the Washington Redskins Leadership Council provided each registered group with a $100 voucher good at participating Home Depot locations in Maryland, Virginia and the District of Columbia to help defray the costs of project related expenses such as paint, trash bags and building supplies. Grants were awarded to organizations whose community projects demonstrated creativity, uniqueness and a strong sense of community pride.

The Redskins All-Stars program is an initiative of the Washington Redskins Leadership Council, a Redskins charity, which combines the influence and popularity of the Washington Redskins with the resources and assets of 40 Washington area corporations. The Council consists of 40 CEOs who help shape and define the philanthropic efforts of the Redskins to achieve a significant impact on communities throughout the region.

More Auto Thefts Cited In Parts of Greenbelt

In a recent report on auto theft from June to November, 2001 prepared by Police Chief James Craze, an increase of 52 percent was noted over the previous year. Auto thefts for five years from 1997 to 2001 increased 119 percent from 199 to 435.

Craze cited the detailed analysis of police Sergeant Carl Schinner, which finds that most cars are stolen from the area west of Kenilworth Avenue, that the Honda Accord is the most popular target, that Chrysler vehicles are the most easily stolen, and that most vehicles are stolen from Thursday through Sunday nights.

In addition, Sergeant Schinner finds, the most frequently stolen Chrysler product in Greenbelt is the Dodge Neon. Second in popularity to Chrysler products are GM products, such as the Chevrolet Caprice, and older Buicks, Oldsmobiles and Pontiacs.

Springhill Lake sustained 112 auto thefts from June to November, while Beltway Plaza suffered 21 during the same time period.

Shinner states that Mandan Road in Greenbelt East is an auto theft hot spot, suffering 28 vehicle thefts during the reporting period. There were 13 car thefts on Hanover Parkway and 19 in other parts of Greenbelt East.

Calling auto theft "an epidemic" in the county, Chief Craze noted that Laurel and Hyattsville as well as Greenbelt are experiencing increases. He also noted that auto theft suspects do not receive much punishment in court, and that "fleeing and eluding" police is a misdemeanor, not a felony, in Maryland.

Craze also said the department is preparing a special plan to deal with the increased auto thefts.

The Department is offering a reward of up to $500 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of a suspect in any of the unsolved crimes reported in the blotter. Citizens may anonymously report suspected drug activity by calling the Drug Tip Line at 301-507-6522. Victims of the theft of lawn ornaments, tools, lawn mowers, etc., should contact Criminal Investigations at 301-507-6530. Some items have been recovered and police would like to return them to owners.

Robt. Goddard Middle

Lori Taylor, vice principal of Goddard Middle School, described tutors from Goddard Space Flight Center who volunteer at the school. Their school is under transition as it is slated to become a French Immersion and Montessori school next year. The fate of the current staff is uncertain and Taylor indicated that the staff is being encouraged to apply for transfers.

LaPolla added that Greenbelt Middle will lose its French Immersion students to Goddard but will gain Greenbelt students who will transfer from Goddard. He feels the shift will not be traumatic as friends of many students in the Greenbelt East neighborhood already come to Greenbelt Middle.

Greenbelt Elementary

Katherine Curl, principal at Greenbelt Elementary School, described their Outward Bound programs. Last year, multiculturalism was the focus and the year's highlight was the multicultural dinner attended by 700 to 800 people. This year the focus is on "math in the real world." The National Conference on Outward Bound is meeting in the area in March, she said, and some participants will visit the school. Mayor Judith Davis will be visiting the 4th grade to describe what it's like to be mayor.

The school has already lost about 90 students who moved to Landover schools last fall. Next fall, about 60 more who live on Capital View Drive will move to a neighborhood school. About 150 Greenbelters who currently go to Magnolia Elementary School will transfer to Greenbelt Elementary.

Curl commented that there is now a pre-kindergarten class affiliated with Greenbelt Elementary but physically located in Greenbriar.

tary but physically located in Greenbriar.

Springhill Lake

Principal Linda Sherwood was accompanied by vice principal Mary Stephenson. Sherwood began by stating that their MSPAP scores were the worst they have ever been. She does not know what happened, as the teachers are very supportive of the program and students from Maryland help tutor the children. Stephenson commented that the school is very crowded, the majority of students do not speak English, and the student population is very transient. The turnover rate is 60 percent a year.

Looking over records, they calculated that in one third grade class, only 8 of 130 students had been in the school since kindergarten. It is possible that the school will be given a "reform model" project to try to improve the test scores, but the school has heard nothing to date.

Springhill Lake will be losing students who will transfer to neighborhood schools in the fall. Then the sixth graders who were moved to Greenbelt Middle School several years ago to alleviate overcrowding will come back to the Springhill Lake Elementary School. They expect to have the same overall number of students next year.

With the exception of the special education students and a few students who may go to the newly re-opened Berwyn Elementary, all students will be able to walk to school in the fall. Springhill Lake Elementary also has a pre-kindergarten this year that is located in a building about a block from the school.

Within one winter season, temperatures have ranged from a low 17 degrees to a high 76 degrees Fahrenheit. Whelan asked ACE for assistance in obtaining a gate to be installed in the driveway next to their school. They are writing to the city with this request. Students have been in danger from several cars speeding through that driveway during recess including one involved in a police chase.

The ACE Educator Award program will be held on March 11. The ACE Student Award ceremony will be held on May 13.

As written, the document is heavily weighted toward GHI concerns. Yet all owners of properties within the historic district would be required to request a Historic Area Work Permit (HAWP), administered by the county, to modify the exterior of their properties, whether they are historic or not. Owners of those properties within the historic district that are not of historic significance may seek to opt out of the district, but permission to opt out may be denied by the county.

Another concern, which several councilmembers shared with Craze, is that the larger community, those not in GHI, had not been sufficiently involved so far in the process. Mayor Judith Davis called for a public hearing on the topic, but Craze said that in its current form the document is too vague to be of much use to the public, and it should first be revised.

Conflicts between the regulations of the HPC and city code are also possible, Craze said. City code requires compliance within 30 days, but if a review by HPC is required, that could take 45 days.

County Control

Of great concern, said Craze, is the fact that local historic designation would result in transfer of control over city-owned properties from the city to the county, which city officials have long felt does not always act in the city's best interests. Several current projects were reviewed by staff to determine if they would fall within the proposed guidelines. While existing structures would be "grandfathered in" when local historic designation took place, Craze cited the restrooms planned at Buddy Attick Park, perpendicular parking on Ridge Road, and city signs as projects that do not conform to the proposed guidelines.

Craze also said of all the trees proposed by GHI to replace those they hope to remove, only one species on the list would be approved in Greenbelt's proposed local historic district.

The report also listed future projects that would be impacted, such as Public Works expansion, an observatory at Northway Fields, the skateboarding park, and others, as well as active traffic calming devices like speed bumps, rumble strips, or circles.

Because the city currently does not have zoning control over Greenbelt, the program must be administered through Prince George's County. If Greenbelt is successful in obtaining zoning control, then overlay control of the historic district would be included. In other municipalities nearby that have historic districts, such as Laurel, Takoma Park, and Annapolis, the city administers and oversees the historic district.

Limit Designation

Since benefits of the designation fall primarily to GHI, staff would support pursuing designation with more limited boundaries to include GHI properties only. The report states that "this option would somewhat obviate the concerns that pursuit of local historic district would be contradictory with the city council's efforts to be removed from county zoning control." There would still be a need to prevent or resolve conflicts between the HAWP process and city code enforcement procedures and timeliness. Staff also recommends that prior to pursuing this option, the GHI Board of Directors should take an official stand on supporting the designation and guidelines. Julia Eichhorst, GHI president, spoke on this issue. She said that the board did not take a position because GHI members had voted so strongly in favor of the designation, making an official board position unnecessary. Sixty-eight percent of those voting were in favor of it.

Benefits of Designation

Craze prefaced all of her remarks by acknowledging Greenbelt's historic treasures and the need to protect them. This designation would grant the city an additional form of protection, she said, though such protection would not be absolute. Federal and state authorities must consider the impact of projects using their funds, but they also have the final word on their projects. She said that some level of protection is already in place and that more could be established in ways that would keep the city in control of its architecture and infrastructure, instead of passing it on to the county, which lacks local accountability.

The main benefit would be financial incentives to GHI. According to the report, the Ad Hoc Committee estimated that GHI would be refunded up to $80,000 a year on property taxes. The savings would be achieved through a ten per cent tax credit for approved rehabilitations.

Council Debates

Councilmember Rodney Roberts disputed the suggestion that GHI's proposed tree replacement project would not be approved by the HPC, saying "It is hard to believe we couldn't plant trees." He agreed the document is not perfect, but thought the city should move ahead with seeking the designation.

Regarding the new tax credit program, Roberts asked whether GHI would get a benefit from overall work done every year, and Craze said she did not know.

Councilmember Alan Turnbull supported going for the designation for the added protection it would afford the city's historic assets. He noted that the city does not always have the resources to take proper care of what it has. In his opinion, seeking the designation would support the city's attempts to achieve zoning authority over itself because it would indicate to county officials that "we would use zoning law in a sophisticated way."

Turnbull acknowledged that the staff report has raised some serious issues and noted later that it did not address any fiscal impact of the designation on the city. The city might lose revenue due to lower taxes, but might gain it later if properties within the historic district here appreciate at a higher rate, as they have in some other historic districts nearby. He does not want to defer action, however. He wants the revision of the documents to be part of seeking designation, and to re-initiate public involvement of all property owners, not just GHI. He said the process needs to bring all of the government-built town into the system.

Councilmember Edward Putens indicated he wanted more clarity on some of the issues raised by the staff report before going forward, although he said he is in favor of obtaining the designation. Davis felt there was need for a public hearing before going forward with seeking designation. She also expressed serious concerns about the role of the city and about involving properties without historic significance.

White favored the option to defer pursuit of local historic district designation while city staff works with HPC staff to revise and modify the document to address staff concerns, then return the document to council for review and "consideration whether to proceed, proceed with modifications, or opt out of the local historic district designation process." Approval of the revised guidelines should be sought from the GHI Board of Directors. He said he wants clarity on resolution of conflicts between the city and the HPC, an evaluation of the fiscal impacts to the city and to property owners.

White moved to defer action on the designation and authorize city staff to work toward revising the document for clarity and re-formatting, as they recommended in the report; identify city projects and describe to what level they would be subject to HPC review; ensure that the document contains no conflicts between the guidelines and other enforceable regulations; and to consider other alternatives like the new tax credit program Craze spoke about. The motion carried four to one, with Roberts casting the sole dissenting vote.

OFFICIAL NOTICE RESOLUTIONS TO REVISE GREENBELT CITY CHARTER

At its regular meeting on January 28, 2002, the City Council adopted two resolutions to amend the City Charter. As required by state law, these resolutions will be posted in their entirety for forty (40) days, until March 9, 2002, at the Municipal Building. They can also be found on the City's Web site at <http://www.ci.greenbelt.md.us>. Copies may also be requested from the City Clerk. The charter amendment resolutions will become effective on March 19, 2002, unless a proper petition to submit the amendment(s) to the voters on a referendum is filed as permitted by law. This notice is to provide a fair summary of both resolutions.

Charter Amendment Resolution No. 2002-1

A Resolution of the City of Greenbelt, Adopted Pursuant to the Authority of Article XI-E of the Constitution of Maryland and Section 13 of Article 23a of the Annotated Code of Maryland, (2001 Replacement Volume as Amended), Title "Corporations-Municipal," Subtitle "Charter Amendments," to Amend the Charter of the City of Greenbelt Found, in Whole or in Part, in the Compilation of Municipal Charters of Maryland (1983 Edition as Amended), as Prepared by the Department of Legislative Reference Pursuant to Chapter 77 of the Acts of the General Assembly of Maryland of 1983, by Repealing and Re-enacting with Amendments Section 55 (a), Titled "Bonds-Issuance, Authorization."

The purpose of the above-titled resolution is to revise the statement of the City's debt limitation in order to conform with the new state law, Ch. 80, Acts of 2000, also known as the Truth in Taxation law, which changed the real property assessment law from a program of fractional property assessments to a system of full market value assessments. Limits previously stated as ten (10) percent of valuation will be amended to four (4) percent of valuation, in order that the City's actual debt limitations will remain essentially unchanged.

Charter Amendment Resolution No. 2002-2

A Resolution of the City of Greenbelt, Adopted Pursuant to the Authority of Article XI-E of the Constitution of Maryland and Section 13 of Article 23a of the Annotated Code of Maryland, (2001 Replacement Volume as Amended), Title "Corporations-Municipal," Subtitle "Charter Amendments," to Amend the Charter of the City of Greenbelt Found, in Whole or in Part, in the Compilation of Municipal Charters of Maryland (1983 Edition as Amended), as Prepared by the Department of Legislative Reference Pursuant to Chapter 77 of the Acts of the General Assembly of Maryland of 1983, by Repealing and Re-enacting with Amendment "Elections" Section 14(b), Titled "Referendum."

The purpose of the above-titled resolution is to correct a typographical error in Section 14(b) to clarify that the Council may place on the ballot at regular or special elections not only questions required by law to be submitted to the voters but also such questions as Council may wish to submit to the voters.
