Council Revises Animal Regulations Comments on Middle School Plans

by Marat Moore

The Greenbelt City Council approved revisions to the city's animal control ordinance without additional restrictions on tethering and confinement of pets at its regular meeting on April 22. Council's full agenda also included a discussion of plans to renovate Greenbelt Middle School, the award of a contract for a marketing study of Roosevelt Center, the transfer of a management contract for Green Ridge House, and an ordinance to amend the city code on employee appeals and grievances.

The first item on the agenda was a public hearing on the fiscal year 2003 budget, but since there were no comments, Mayor Judith Davis adjourned the hearing and reconvened the regular meeting. The budget is set to be adopted on Monday, June 3. Another public hearing will be held on May 28 after the council makes its tentative decisions to change the budget proposed by the city manager and staff.

Animal Control

The animal control ordinance was introduced for a second reading and adoption. After a review of regulations of other agencies and model ordinances available through the national Humane Society, at council's direction staff proposed broad revisions, adding definitions and distinguishing nuisance violations from issues of cruelty and dangerous animals. While other fines were aligned with other infractions of the city code, fines for violations involving cruelty or dangerous animals are a minimum of $500 each.

Council agreed to drop "Fowl" from "Animals and Fowl," the title of Chapter 3 of the city code, since a fowl is an animal.

Celia Craze, director of planning and community development, responded to questions raised at the April 8 meeting about whether limits should be set on tethering animals. After review, Craze told the council that staff had concluded that setting limits would not be advisable at this time, and would be difficult to enforce.

Councilmember Rodney Roberts, who raised the issue at the first reading of the ordinance, said he did not want to abolish tethering, but to set "reasonable limits" on it.

"We need to ensure that animals will be kept in humane circumstances, and will be less of a problem," he said. Expressing appreciation for the work of the animal control officer, he added, "We're doing better than the county in finding homes for animals. Maybe it's time to do something more in Greenbelt on tethering."

In response, Craze noted that "tethering is an issue in evolution." She cited the example of Rockville, which has an ordinance that "discourages" tethering but does not prohibit it.

"The issue is not just tethering, it's confinement, regardless of the mode of confinement," she said. "But what is the standard objective period of time? That's the problem." She offered to come back to the council in six months to a year with more information on the local situation.

Councilmember Thomas White asked if Craze's department and the animal control officer could write guidelines discouraging tethering.

"Absolutely," she said.

Davis proposed adding an educational component, perhaps a brochure that could be distributed about the dangers of prolonged confinement.

Council voted 4-1 to pass the

Council Members Laud CARES

by Judy Bell

It has been "a year of accomplishments," reported Carol Leventhal, director of Greenbelt CARES Youth and Family Services Bureau, when she met with city council on April 15 to discuss CARES' budget for FY 2003. Leventhal highlighted the parenting program at Springhill Lake Elementary School and went on to say that she's hoping another $10,000 grant will be received from Prince George's County's Health Department to "continue the process." She further noted that the Crisis Intervention Counselors have been "very busy" in their work with the Police Department. In FY 2001 there were 355 requests for service involving crisis intervention staff. "I've never heard anything but praise for the work that you do," declared Councilmember Alan Turnbull.

As to other funding for the bureau, Leventhal noted that CARES has not received an increase from the state since 1994. Prince George's County has some money available through a Consolidated Youth Grant that could provide funds for extending services outside of Greenbelt. Leventhal commented that receiving some of that money "could be quite manageable" depending on the number of people to be served.

Councilmember Thomas White stated that the Prince George's delegation would be providing a report to the city in May and suggested that council "sit down" with them to discuss the viability of pursuing some of those funds. If she had her "druthers," Leventhal said, she would choose to put it toward the parenting program and the ACE Reading Club. When asked what could be done if more staff were available, Leventhal replied that it would enable CARES to provide in-house services for the parenting program.

She also mentioned that the department needs four computers. City Manager Michael McLaughlin responded that funds for computers could possibly come out of

'Other Funds' in the city budget, and CARES could be "first, second, third in line."

One of the management objectives stated in the Proposed Budget for Fiscal Year 2003 is "to expand CARES expertise to private schools and child care centers located in Greenbelt [through] Invest in Greenbelt Youth." White addressed the related issue of homeschooling and spoke of referring it to CARES staff to discuss with the Advisory Committee on Education. White further stated that he "echoed" Turnbull's comments regarding CARES, saying it's "a service that we would not do without. It provides a safety valve for the community."

Councilmember Rodney Roberts, serving as Mayor pro tem in Judith Davis' absence, praised CARES: "You're doing such a good job of doing so much with such a small budget," he observed.

Other Funds

Concerning other areas of the FY 2003 budget, McLaughlin advised council that "We don't know about the final year of the grant" for the curator at the Greenbelt Museum. Roberts noted that volunteers performed 5,000 hours at the museum and com-

Volunteers Plant Grasses, Lay Stones for Earth Day

by Al Geiger

The Earth Day "celebration" at Greenbelt Lake was a huge success, with many volunteers and professionals working to protect and improve the local environment through plantings and other erosion control practices.

Under the leadership of Neal Barnett, chairman of the Recycling and Environmental Advisory Committee, and Bill Phelan, city horticulturist, flagstone walks and a waterside bench were installed over the last few weeks. Work is continuing. Between and around the paths volunteers planted native grasses and taller native plants such as swamp roses and elderberries with interspersed black-eyed Susans, columbine, poppies and other perennials. Phelan was seen knee deep in the mud showing volunteers how to plant aquatic vegetation. The lakeside paths and stone benches were made possible through a grant from the Chesapeake Bay Trust and are accessible to the disabled. Educational panels are planned.

Mayor Judith Davis and the entire city council were present to dedicate the project. State Senator Leo Green and county council candidate Doug Peters also joined in the work.

Kamilah Abdul-Wakil, age 9, designed the winning Greenbelt Earth Day T-shirt. Hers was selected from many designs submitted by area children (see photograph).

Many volunteers from all backgrounds and all parts of the city participated. Among them were girls from Girl Scout troop 4816 and the seventh grade class of St. Hugh's School.

After the dedication, Davis and the city council grabbed shovels and helped plant four disease-resistant hybrid elm trees in honor of Arbor Day.

Letters to the Editor

THANKS

The Greenbelt Recreation Department and the American Red Cross express their thanks to the many people who donated blood at the blood drive of April 19. The large turnout was especially gratifying in view of the severe thunderstorm which swept the area and disrupted traffic to Greenbelt. Many people who had made appointments for the late afternoon could not get to the Youth Center on time.

Our usual appreciation is extended to the volunteers and the Red Cross personnel for their outstanding work in making the blood drive a success. The lights went out during the storm and the blood drawing continued with the aid of flashlights.

The next scheduled blood drive is on June 21, from noon to 6 p.m. at the Greenbelt Municipal Building. Please remember the date. Those who missed the April blood drive and those who donated blood on April 19 are eligible to donate blood on June 21.

There is a great need for blood during the war on terrorism.

You will be reminded of the next blood drive by a News Review ad or telephone call. To make an appointment call Janet Goldberg at 301-397-2212.

Bt Needed to Fight Gypsy Moth Menace

In response to the letters regarding Bt spraying:

Greenbelt currently has sections of woodlands with severe gypsy moth infestation levels. If no spraying with Bt is done this spring, we could well lose the mature oaks in these areas. The oak trees in these areas sustained severe defoliation last year. This year, with the large number of egg masses that are present, they will undoubtedly again suffer severe defoliation. This will send the trees into decline and make them susceptible to infection from lethal plant pathogens.

Not only do we stand to lose the mature oaks, but the gypsy moths pose a quality of life issue and financial issue as well. Let me paint you a picture of my backyard and that of my neighbors.

Once the caterpillars hatch, a steady rain of caterpillar excrement and shredded leaves begins. Last year we had over a 3 inch layer of caterpillar excrement and shredded leaves coating everything under the trees. Thick enough to plug up the gutters, so when the rains came water was forced into the house, doing damage. The back yard was unuseable, one could not hang out laundry without it being fouled. One could not sit in the yard without being sprinkled with droppings and falling caterpillars. Mature caterpillars can reach an inch and a half – they march everywhere. One cannot sit or walk without crushing them. gypsy moth larvae can take up to 7 weeks to mature. Seven weeks of excrement rain and shredded leaves.

Of the oaks, a few that suffered defoliation last spring are already in decline and will need to be removed when they die, for they are close enough to the house that they constitute a falling damage hazard. Removal of trees is expensive.

In short, I live directly in the area that would be sprayed with Bt. I happily advocate that they spray. The gypsy moth population NEEDS to be brought under control or severe damage to our woodlands will result. The imagined risks posed by inert/inactive ingredients in Bt formulations is no reason to let this invasive insect destroy our mature forests and the quality of life for those that live on the woodland borders. Bt formulations are tested by the EPA for safety (inert ingredients and all), and are categorized as one of the safest control methods. Bt is used by organic

New Group Supports Advocate for Elderly

The Friends of the Resource Advocate (FORA), a new group dedicated to enabling senior Greenbelters to stay in their own homes as long as possible, was organized to support the work of the city's Community Resource Advocate, Ann McKenzie, who provides referrals to the appropriate services to assist seniors with their problems. Her work, the Greenbelt Assistance in Living program, is sponsored jointly by the City of Greenbelt and Greenbelt Homes, Inc. It is funded through a grant from the Naturally Occurring Retirement Community Supportive Services Center.

During this meeting the activities of MacKenzie and of FORA will be detailed, as will the ways in which Greenbelters can participate. Everyone is invited to attend.

The meeting will start with an introduction by MacKenzie, who will be followed by Jackie Shabe Rochefort, FORA's volunteer coordinator. Rochefort will outline how volunteers can assist MacKenzie in such areas as community outreach, public relations, the gathering of resource information related to the needs of seniors, and the researching of funding resources.

Other speakers, Mayor Judith Davis, and Kate Connolly of GIVES (Greenbelt Intergenerational Volunteer Exchange Service), will outline how GIVES and the Resource Advocate work together and share volunteers. To conclude the program, Helen Geller will discuss future plans to involve University of Maryland graduate students and Leonie Penney will discuss plans to lower the costs of home health care.

Robbery

After obtaining money and the victim's cellular telephone, the suspects fled. They are described as two black males wearing black ski masks and two other black males, no further description available.

6100 block Cherrywood Lane, April 14, 3:59 p.m., an eight-year-old Greenbelt boy told police that while he was at the Springhill Lake Recreation Center he was approached by two older boys, who took his basketball. An argument then ensued, at which time a nine-year-old boy allegedly punched him in the face, and a 12-year-old boy pointed what was later found to be a cap pistol at the victim's head and threatened to shoot him. The youths were located and arrested before being released to parents pending action by the juvenile justice system.

Assault

One of them then became disorderly, shouting profanities and approaching a police officer in an aggressive manner. Arrested were a 26-year-old resident of Brentwood and a 25-year old resident also of Brentwood. After treatment of one suspect at an area hospital, both were arrested and then released to the Department of Corrections for a hearing before a District Court Commissioner.

Beware Fraudulent Foreign Appeals

Master Police Officer George Mathews warns residents to beware of letters, faxes or e-mails purporting to come from Lagos, Nigeria, that ask for assistance in the transfer of money from overseas to the U.S. In exchange for assistance rendered, the sender promises to give the victim a percentage of the money but requires that the victim provide bank account information and/or "good faith" money.

Man Beaten, Robbed In 16 Court Ridge

A male resident walking his older dog in the 16 court of Ridge Road was attacked and beaten by an unknown assailant on Sunday evening, April 21, at about 7 p.m. According to neighbors, a car drove into the parking area of the court, after which a man got out and approached the victim, asking the victim to give him change for a dollar. It is thought that the change was supplied, but as the victim was walking away, neighbors said, the man hit him, beating him to the ground and removing his wallet before jumping into a car and leaving the area. It is not known at this time if others were also in the vehicle.

From inside her house, a neighbor heard yelling which she first thought was children playing. However "when I heard something metal [possibly the striking object] fall to the ground, and then heard a car skidding off, I knew something was wrong," she told the News Review.

The victim on the ground still had the dog's leash in his hand, she said, as he repeated, "They hit me, they hit me." Neighbors applied first aid to the man's head. Police responded quickly, and the man was taken to the hospital for treatment. He had not been released at the time of this writing, his injuries are reported to include a broken shoulder and head wounds.

Witnesses described the car involved as a silvery blue Thunderbird of older vintage, possibly the 1980s. Anyone with information is urged to call detectives at 301-474-7200.

The Department is offering a reward of up to $500 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of a suspect in any of the unsolved crimes reported in the blotter. Citizens may anonymously report suspected drug activity by calling the Drug Tip Line at 301-507-6522. # COUNCIL continued from page 1 ordinance, with Roberts voting against because he felt the ordinance lacked needed regulation on tethering and confinement.

Middle School

Councilmembers reviewed four schematic plans for renovation developed by the Prince George's County school system as part of a feasibility study, and heard a fifth option offered by the Advisory Committee on Education (ACE). Leta Mach, chair of ACE, proposed construction of a new building and renovation of the 1937 and 1945 portions of the existing school, which would be connected to the new school and used for administrative and related activities.

"Our goals are having more space, an up-to-date facility, and getting it built quickly with minimal disruption to students," said Mach. ACE is concerned that the county projects a population of only 882 students for Greenbelt Middle School, and has cited the case of Springhill Lake Elementary, which was recently renovated and is still overcrowded.

"Given the history of overcrowding, we felt that the projection was too low," said Mach.

Included in the county's proposal were Scheme A, which renovates the existing building; Scheme B, which demolishes 25% of the building, replaces this portion with new construction, and renovates the remainder; Scheme C, which tears down about two-thirds of the building, replaces that portion, and renovates the rest; and Scheme D, which builds an entirely new building between the existing school and Breezewood Drive.

All four schemes would result in less space than the school currently has—134,421 square feet.

The county's preference appears to be building an entirely new school, but that does not meet the state's preservation requirements. The ACE plan would add to Scheme D the renovation of the historic portions of the school, and connect the old and new buildings.

The final plan needs to "do a better job of wrapping the new around the old" building, said White. Roberts addressed the need to preserve existing woodland areas, and suggested that the council schedule a field trip to the school before making a final decision.

Building a two-story school would expand the school's space while preserving woodlands, said Councilmember Alan Turnbull, adding a single-story building would be "a big mistake."

"We should be calling for a space-intensive two-story building," which would "spare trees, energy, and space for ballfields." To minimize parking space sprawl, he said planners need to think "out of the box" and utilize the bus depot lot if possible.

Council voted to send a letter, with the ACE proposal attached, to the county's school system informing it of the city's goals and preferences for a two-story building, preservation of woodlands, and of the planned site visit.

Roosevelt Center

Council awarded a contract to Urban Information Associates (UIA) of Baltimore to conduct a market study of Roosevelt Center, to determine how it can maintain and enhance its economic vitality. The contract will be paid by a $25,000 grant provided as part of a $1.3 million federal allocation for the revitalization of the Route 1 corridor and the Anacostia Trails area.

The market study will involve interviews with merchants, shoppers' surveys, demographic research, and community meetings. Special attention will be given to the Old Greenbelt Theatre, but the market survey will encompass the entire commercial area of Roosevelt Center.

Appeals and Grievances

Council considered an ordinance that would provide procedures for employee appeals and grievances for second reading and adoption. The Employee Relations Board submitted the proposed revision, which defines the differences between an appeal and a grievance, and clarifies that appeals are limited to dismissal, suspension, and demotion. The revision also provides a more detailed grievance procedure, including a statute of limitations and a clear endpoint.

Council voted 4-1 to pass the ordinance. Councilmember Edward Putens voted against. At a previous discussion on this issue, he said he believed the procedures for appeals and grievances should be handled the same way in terms of whether the employee has a last recourse to council.

Other Action

Council unanimously approved staff's recommendation to transfer the management contract for Green Ridge House from Home Properties to Community Realty Company (CRC) of Greenbelt, effective July 1. CRC managed Green Ridge House for most of its history until 1999, when Home Properties bought the property management operations of CRC. Now Home Properties is divesting and CRC has decided to resume its residential management business.

In other action, Davis received a $500 check from Julia Eichhorst of the Greenbelt Home and Garden Club, to support the city's restoration of the historic garden at the Greenbelt Museum.

The mayor also read two proclamations. On Friday, May 3, the city will celebrate Bike-to-Work Day. Several rides are scheduled. Also, a city proclamation honors Municipal Government Week beginning April 22, marked by a special flag outside the Municipal Building. Beverly Palau, the city's public information and communications coordinator, is coordinating a school competition related to municipal government.

The council's next regular meeting will be held on Monday, May 13.

Two Greenbelters Apply For School Board Seats

by Mary Moien

An appointed school board is expected to be in place in Prince George's County in June. The board members will be appointed by Governor Parris Glendening and County Executive Wayne Curry. Residents of the county have until the end of April to apply for appointment to the new board. Leta Mach, chair of the Greenbelt Advisory Committee on Education (ACE) and Eva Griffin, an ACE member, have both indicated that they will be applying for positions.

Nine members will be appointed, with emphasis on various types of expertise including that involved in managing a business, non-profit or government entity. Other members will be selected based on a high level of knowledge and expertise concerning education. At least one member will be a parent of a student enrolled in a Prince George's County school and at least one member must possess knowledge and experience in the education of children with disabilities. This latter member could be a parent of a child with a disability. In addition, there will continue to be a student member on the board.

Two Applicants

Leta Mach, ACE Chair since its inception, has indicated that she is applying for a position on the new board. Mach is director of education for the National Co-operative Business Association. She taught at Suitland High School and was PTA president at both Greenbelt Elementary School and Eleanor Roosevelt High School. She is also on the board of directors of the Greenbelt Museum. Mach was Greenbelt's Outstanding Citizen in 2000.

Eva Griffin, who is also applying for a board position, is a relatively new Greenbelt resident who is a member of the Advisory Committee on Education. Griffin is Director of Teacher Education for the American Association of State Colleges and Universities. She has a doctorate in education from George Washington University and was in charge of reading and developmental education at the Community College of Baltimore County, Dundalk Campus. Griffin has also been a consultant in professional development with the Baltimore city schools and is both a reading specialist and an English teacher.

Advisory Board

The new legislation also provides for the establishment of a parent and community advisory board to the new school board. This advisory board will consist of 13 members appointed from lists of applicants submitted by organizations within the county, including the PTAs, the Committee of 100, Title I liaisons, and other parent and community groups. This advisory board will be appointed by the Chief Executive Officer, once appointed, with the approval of the board.

"Reel Page Turner" Animation Class

The GAVA/GATE Animation Program will be producing free animation workshops for young people ages 12 to 17 at the New Carrollton Branch Library on Saturday, May 4. There are two "A Reel Page Turner" workshops, one from 10 a.m. to noon and one from 1 to 3 p.m.

Annual Crop Walk Set for May 5

by Jim Giese

Some 400 area church members are out and about seeking sponsors and donors for the 2002 22nd annual Hyattsville Area Crop Walk to be held on Sunday, May 5 at Lake Artemesia. The event is a fundraiser for Church World Services, which provides relief and development assistance to 80 different countries. The Hyattsville Crop Walk donates its local 25 percent of the proceeds to Help by Phone in Prince George's County.

Last year there were 92 walkers from the Greenbelt churches - Greenbelt Baptist, Greenbelt Community and Mowatt United Methodist Church - who raised over $7,000 of the $28,000 total for the Hyattsville walk.

Participants do a 2.5-mile walk at Lake Artemesia (other routes are available). Parking is available at the Linson Pool/Wells Ice Rink off Paint Branch Parkway (formerly Calvert Road).

Anyone wishing to join in the walk may contact any of the Greenbelt churches or call Martha Folk at 301-552-9329 or on the web at www.cropwalk.org.

White addressed the issue of expanding the hours for the museum. McLaughlin responded that staff is considering the possibility of using a small part of the theater lobby for a kiosk and staff person as part of a proposed Greenbelt Visitor's Center.

The Non-Departmental Budget provides a line item referring to transfer money to the Capital Improvements Fund. In the budget document, it was proposed "to budget a dollar amount, $400,000, that can be adjusted in future years." White said, "If memory serves me, council has agonized over this every time in the last three or four budgets ... I think it ought to be four cents [on the tax rate] in the budget for capital improvements," which would amount to $482,000.

White also commented on the Cemetery Fund, asking if any sites were available. Assistant to the City Manager David Moran replied that there is no cleared land available and to provide more sites would involve removing "a significant number of trees." He added that there is an unofficial waiting list which could be used if, for example, a plot owner chose to sell back to the city, or to "another person" such as a Greenbelt resident or someone with a "family connection." The possibility of urn plots was mentioned, with White commenting that they would measure "10-1/2 inches by 10-1/2 inches by 10-1/2 inches."

Regarding the Special Projects Fund, Councilmember Ed Putens asked McLaughlin for a breakdown on how money is allocated for the red light camera program.
