2004 City Crime Statistics Can Be Called a Mixed Bag

by James Giese

The City of Greenbelt experienced a rate of 70.6 crimes per 1,000 persons population in 2004, according to the recently released 2004 Uniform Crime Report published by the Maryland State Police Central Records Division. This amounted to 1,574 Class I crime offenses being reported as committed within the city by all agencies during the year. The total was down 6.9 percent for the year and the crime rate dropped 7.2 percent due to increased estimates for the city's population. All but 61 of the crimes were reported as having been handled by the Greenbelt Police Department and it is possible that some of the crimes reported as handled by other police jurisdictions might not actually have been within the city limits but rather within the postal area.

While total crime was down, the number of robberies committed was up by 33 percent, aggravated assaults by 17 percent and breakings and enterings by 6 percent. Larcenies and thefts — of which there are many more (834) — were down 16 percent and motor vehicle thefts by 2 percent. Murders (3) and rapes (10) remained about the same as in 2003.

According to more detailed departmental statistics provided in the December 2004 Statistical Report, more than half of the crimes committed in Greenbelt in 2004 (56.7 percent) were in Greenbelt West (Springhill Lake, Beltway Plaza and Greenbelt Metro Station). More than half of the crimes in Greenbelt were larcenies and 26 percent of these were committed at the Beltway Plaza. Although separate statistics are not available, a substantial additional number took place at the Greenway Center shopping center. The Springhill Lake apartment complex, now being planned for removal and replacement, accounts for 46 percent of all the other crimes committed in the city although city population figures estimate that area's population to be only 26 percent of the city's total population.

Total crime has dropped in Greenbelt for the past three years, according to departmental information and continued to drop during the first six months of 2005 (down 12 percent). However, the number of crimes against persons has been increasing for the past two years and continues to do so with robberies up 28 percent and aggravated assaults more than doubled in the first six months of 2005. Off-setting these increases are significant reductions this year in breakings and enterings (down 37 percent) and motor vehicle thefts (down 44 percent).

Craze Comments

In a semi-annual report on police statistics, Greenbelt Police Chief James Craze viewed the crime statistics as a "mixed bag." While he was pleased to see the reduction in stolen autos, he expressed disappointment that crimes against persons seem to be increasing at a rate greater than in years past.

Craze took note of the significant drop in stolen vehicles and gave special credit to the patrol division. "This trend is completely opposite to neighboring jurisdictions where auto theft is rampant and an ever-increasing situation," he reported. Craze said that the department had made several key arrests, including the arrest of one resident juvenile who boasted of having stolen an auto a day prior to his arrest. In a subsequent interview Craze noted that among some juveniles, stealing cars is an "in" thing to do. Craze also felt that although the automobile industry had been slow to include theft deterrent devices, many manufacturers are now doing more.

Craze called the rise in crimes against persons "troubling." However, he felt that the in-

Athletic Fields Lighting Seems Remote Prospect

by Natalie McGill

The Greenbelt City Council agreed at its worksession Monday, November 21 to put the lighting of McDonald Field and Schrom Hills Park baseball and softball fields on the capital projects list as unfunded projects.

The capital projects list is a cost-listing of improvement or construction projects budgeted or unbudgeted for completion in years to come. Field lighting at both McDonald Field and Schrom Hills Park was placed on an unfunded "wish list."

To light McDonald Field would cost $134,000 and for Schrom Hills fields $206,000. Mayor Judith Davis said costs of field maintenance are also factors because the fields are infested with Japanese beetles.

"Maybe this is just something that's too much to afford," Davis said. "It's a big chunk of change."

Members of the Park and Recreation Advisory Board (PRAB) who attended the meeting suggested alternative ways of funding the projects. PRAB Chairperson Lola J.P. Skolnik pitched the idea of starting a group such as "Friends of Ballfield Lighting," to come up with fundraising ideas. PRAB member Marc Siegel suggested getting a bond to pay for the lighting if enough community members favored the idea. Davis reminded Siegel that if that did happen, the money would have to be paid back with interest.

Other PRAB members suggested using the $2 million dollars allotted for recreational use in Greenbelt. Andrew Bronstein, a current Greenbelt Little League baseball coach and former player, conjectured about use of the money for the fields in order to extend the children's fun after it gets too dark outside.

Bronstein said, "$134,000 of $2 million is about 5 percent. Now how many people use Greenbelt recreational services? I'd say more than 5 percent of those kids use McDonald Field."

Because the $2 million was intended for use to develop the city's Greenbelt West section, Davis said the only way the project can get underway is if additional funds are found or if money is cut from existing projects and organizations.

"It isn't like we have this $2 million dollars and have extra change out here," Davis said. "That's at least two employees we'd have to say 'bye bye' to."

Objections

Not everyone was in favor of lighting the fields. Greenbelt resident Barbara Osborne spoke

Mary S. B. Smith Granofsky Dies; News Review Editor

by Mary Lou Williamson

Mary Stockdale Battye Smith Granofsky, 88, died in her sleep at home on Wednesday, November 23, 2005. She was born in Huddersfield, England, but spent most of her life in the United States. She was the editor of this newspaper from 1967 to 1972.

After studying home economics in London and trying her hand at teaching, she decided to look elsewhere for a career. In the meantime the family was concerned about Hitler and feared that war was imminent. Opportunities, they thought, would be better in the U.S. The family sold their business interests, homes and property. Mary and her grandfather sailed from England on the S.S. Laconia in December 1938. Grandfather Battye's original idea was to buy a motor car and motor home and travel extensively around their adopted country to find a nice spot to live. Instead they quickly settled in Baltimore where cousins lived. Two members of the family had serious medical problems, leading to a strong association with Johns Hopkins University Hospital. Young Mary Battye was so impressed that she decided to enter nursing school there, studying from 1939 to 1942.

While at Hopkins she had exposure to the ophthalmology department which was then headed by Dr. Allen Woods, a world authority. During Mary's rotation through the eye department she had the opportunity to meet Frances Smith from Fort Worth, Texas, who was a patient of Dr. Woods. Frances Smith and Mary Battye got along so well that Frances invited her new friend down to visit with her in Fort Worth. During her stay, she met the Smith family including the son J. Paul, Jr. It was love at first sight. They were married on March 21, 1942. The couple had four children, two boys and two girls.

But by 1957 the family had separated, with the husband returning to Texas. Mrs. Smith moved to 131 Northway bringing with her the two youngest children Robert and Kathy. Divorce came in 1966.

In 1963 Mary joined the News Review staff. She soon became assistant editor and then editor in 1967, a job she held for over five years. She continued on as assistant editor. During those years she met and married Charles Granofsky, a violinist with the popular Strolling Strings and a public school violin teacher. In the mid 70s they moved to New Carrollton.

After Mr. Granofsky's death in 1991 she moved into an apartment in Chevy Chase. She spent much time with her daughter Kathy and her children and grandchildren. When her daughter Liz was in her Annapolis

Farewell to Mary Granofsky

Some 10 years ago a woman wandered down a short flight of stairs to the basement headquarters of the Greenbelt News Review. Timidly she approached the editor. She didn't like to write and she couldn't type – but she could spell. Did the News Review have any need of such a person?

As often happens, the editor and his assistants were busy handling one crisis involving city council and another involving GHI and another involving controversial letters to the editor. It was a typical Tuesday night and no one talked much to the new person or showed her anything to do so she wandered out again.

It was six months before she returned. A call had gone out urging anyone with an interest in community service to come to the News Review and the woman was spurred to come back. The people were again frenzied and desperate for help – another typical Tuesday night. This time, however, the editor taught her how to count letters for headlines and Mary Granofsky (formerly Smith) carved her niche in the News Review. For the next nine years she taught everyone who came down to work on the paper how to count letters for headlines.

A little over a year later Mary became assistant editor. "Everyone else was having babies," she said. By this time also she was doing the make-up on Wednesday nights and often went down to the print shop on Thursday mornings to read the page proof.

In 1967 Mary became editor. It was a position she did not welcome but one she held for five and a half years, until the fall of 1972, when she again assumed the smaller responsibilities of assistant editor. Mary had not enjoyed the hassles of editorship, the responsibility of handling people whose letters to the editor contained outrageous but cherished beliefs or libelous material. But she was a master organizer and a crackerjack at dealing with what she describes as the "housekeeping chores," seeing that the printer had all the necessary instructions for the next issue and that all the ads were in order. Few spelling errors or mistakes in sentence structure got by Mary's eagle eye and red pencil.

And Mary points with pride to some minor but momentous events which occurred during her stewardship. "The last time the News Review office was cleaned was when I became editor," she boasted. "Also it was the second to last time that the ice box was cleaned and the furniture was moved around." Nothing has been changed since.

Another memorable moment in Mary's editorship was "The Night of the Open House (in 1971) when the lights went out."

However, Mary describes one of the biggest events in her life as the News Review lawsuit. The News Review fought a four-year and $1,000,000 lawsuit filed against it by real estate developer Charles Bresler. The case went from the lower courts, which held for Bresler, to the Court of Appeals, which sustained the circuit court decision. But the paper was finally vindicated in the U.S. Supreme Court. The litigation took many staff hours and Mary Granofsky gave much of her time during those four years to proofreading the briefs filed in the courts. "I consider that I've done two really good things in my life," Mary explained, "and they were raising good children and working on the News Review suit."

Mary's love and dedication to the News Review were clearly evident over the decade of service. Of recent years, however, she had become discouraged by the criticism aimed at the paper. "We always bent over backwards to be fair," she proclaimed, "but we were always being accused of being a monopoly or of not printing letters or of not printing what everyone said at a meeting."

With her move to New Carrollton in recent weeks, Mary has resigned from the News Review. She knows she will miss the paper just as she already misses Greenbelt. In her new surroundings she cannot find a vinegar cruet at Ben Franklin, a crossword puzzle at the tobacco shop, go to the post office, the food store and the bank all in one stop – always while meeting people she knows.

"Greenbelt was the best place to raise children . . . and the News Review is the best thing for the town," Mary observed. "I got to know how the town worked . . . I lived in Greenbelt for 16 years . . . it was tough to leave."

It is tough for the News Review to say goodbye to Mary. We will miss her good work and her London accent. We will miss her.

Florida Greetings

I am in Lakeland, Fla., for the Thanksgiving holidays. My name is Leander Aulisio; I grew up in Greenbelt while living at 2-B Northway in a row house. My parents, who are still living, are Leo L. and Helen Lee Aulisio. Both are doing well and are in their 90s. I think it was the wild mushrooms they ate while living in Greenbelt that provided them with a long and healthy life.

My brother George and his wife Cindy live in Lakeland also. They have three children. My youngest brother Julius also lives in Lakeland. He and his wife Terri are raising three girls. My only sister Rosemarie and her husband of 31 years Robert Garcia live in Lakeland. They enjoy flying their small plane.

Best to all in Greenbelt.

GIVES Annual Holiday Meeting

GIVES, Greenbelt’s local organization of “neighbor helping neighbor” (Greenbelt Intergenerational Volunteer Exchange Service), will hold its annual Christmas get-together, which is also a quarterly meeting, on Saturday, December 10 at 10 a.m. in the Community Center. For example, someone may currently need leaf raking and would be willing to do some typing for someone else. Or someone may need a ride to a medical appointment which could be exchanged with telephone messaging on a regular basis with a shut-in member. Such exchanges may be arranged through the GIVES office at 301-507-6580. The office is staffed from 10 a.m. to noon on weekdays. Messages may be left at other times.

Two issues will be open for discussion at the business meeting on December 10 – possible changes in policies regarding the provision of transportation and respite service for caregivers.

Peace/Justice Group Holds Pilot Meeting

The Prince George's Peace & Justice Coalition (P&J) will hold a pilot meeting and workshop on Saturday, December 3 at 2 p.m. at the Bladensburg Community Center, 4500 57th Avenue in Bladensburg.

Billed as a county-wide campaign to broaden the horizons of young people beyond those presented by military recruiters, veteran peace activist John Judge will outline alternative career and scholarship information that P&J advocates can carry to county youth most vulnerable to the reality of the "economic draft."

The goal is to spread knowledge of non-military alternatives to low-income minority young people and impair the ease with which military recruiters access high school students. While the intention is not to prevent young people who freely choose to explore military career options, the intent is to broaden their career horizons. Similar campaigns are underway in Virginia and other Maryland counties.

Sometimes life gets hard and we wonder why things go wrong, but let's not forget the greatest of virtues - patience.

God explains to us, in the Qur'an: "Be sure we shall test you with something of fear and hunger, some loss in goods or lives or the fruits (of your toil), but give glad tidings to those who patiently persevere; who say, when afflicted with calamity: 'To God we belong, and to Him is our return.' They are those on whom (descend) blessings from God, and mercy, and they are ones that receive guidance."

- The Holy Quran 2:155-157

This is the guidance sent forth to humankind by the Prophet Muhammed (peace be upon him) nearly 1400 years ago. And it is still relevant today. For more information about the Qur'an, call 301-982-9463 or email us at searchislam@mail.com or visit www.islamguide.com.

creased rate could not be attributed to any single cause. Instead, the rise mirrors that of Prince George's County in the first six months of the year and at 17 percent of all reported incidents is remarkably close to the state-wide average of 16 percent. While a number of stabbing incidents related to gang activities have recently been reported in other jurisdictions, Craze said that there was no indication of organized gangs in Greenbelt at this time.

Other Jurisdictions

Greenbelt's crime rate was slightly less than the rate experienced by Prince George's County as a whole (72.8 per thousand). The county rate was up very slightly over the previous year with increases experienced in murders (8 percent), rapes (2 percent), aggravated assaults (6 percent), larcenies (2 percent) and motor vehicle thefts (5 percent). Offsetting these increases were reductions in robberies (1 percent) and breakings and enterings (12 percent).

The crime rates for College Park (67.3 per 1,000), Hyattsville (63.5), Laurel (61.9) and Riverdale Park (60.7) were slightly below that of Greenbelt, while the rates for Berwyn Heights (46.8) and Bowie (23.7) were significantly less. Only neighboring New Carrollton (81.9) and the smaller towns inside the Beltway experienced higher rates with the highest rate for a municipality in Prince George's County being Bladensburg (150.7).

Other adjacent counties in Maryland experienced lower crime rates with the rate for Montgomery County being 26.7, Charles 36.8, Howard 28, and Anne Arundel 39.7. All experienced some decline in crimes committed. Baltimore City at 76.2 crimes per 1,000 and almost no decrease in crime continued to be the Maryland jurisdiction with the highest crime rate.

The Greenbelt police claimed a clearance rate (crimes solved by arrest, declared unfounded, etc.) of 10 percent for 2004. This was significantly below the 18 percent clearance rate for the previous year and the clearance rate for the larger municipal police departments in the county, but well above the 6 percent clearance rate of Prince George's County.

Departmental arrests were up 4 percent from the previous year of which 70 percent of those arrested were adults and the rest juveniles. However, in the first six months of the current year, the number of juvenile arrests was less than for the previous year, although higher than the number for the first six months of 2002 and 2003.

There was increased activity by the police over prior years in issuing traffic summons, parking tickets, warnings and equipment repair orders according to 2004 departmental statistics. For the first six months of 2005 there was another significant increase in traffic summons being issued, although the number of other citations had declined somewhat as compared with the first six months of 2004.

Other good news in the statistical reports is that there was a decrease in both the number of reported traffic accidents and number of personal injuries in 2004 as compared to the previous year. For the first six months of 2005, accidents were down slightly more but personal injuries were somewhat greater. There were three fatalities in 2004 and there have already been another three this year.

In his comments on the semi-annual statistical report Craze notes that calls for police service have increased 41 percent since 2001. In that time the only change in staffing, he said, was the recently added Community Policing Officer in Springhill Lake. "The police department's staff is stretched as far as it can be, resulting in response to calls being delayed or 'stacked,'" he said. At this time, the department's complement of uniformed officers is at full strength, according to Craze.

against the project. She said there is no need for lighting during the spring and summer playing months and the temporary lighting used in past seasons comes directly into her living room window.

Osborne also expressed concern about how late children should play into the night.

"Those [are] kids during school nights that don't need to be out that late," Osborne said.

PRAB member Larry Hilliard said lighting Schrom Hills fields allows them to serve a larger population but had concerns similar to Osborne's about late games.

"If [the fields] are enabled by lights, those 10- to 12-year-olds are staying up on school nights," Hilliard said. "We have to keep those things in the back of our mind."

Despite the funding issue, Davis does not deny the importance of helping out a much-storied program such as Greenbelt Little League, especially in a historic spot like McDonald Field.

"It's really an integral part of that whole neighborhood," Davis said. "It is a neat field."

Labukas Receives Employee of Year Award

by Joan Quinn

On October 18 Elizabeth Labukas of the Greenbelt Nursery School staff accepted the Employee of the Year Award from the Prince George's County Department of Family Services and the Commission for Individuals with Disabilities. Accompanying Labukas at the ceremony were her housemate Lois Funk and their house manager Yemisi Eugnlayi. Labukas is a life-long resident of Greenbelt.

Labukas' work history in the county began in 1976 when she graduated from the Bowie Special Education Center and began working as an aide in summer preschool programs sponsored by the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission. Before long, Labukas was able to supplement her summer job and began working during the school year in her own Greenbelt neighborhood. Labukas walks to her job, rain or shine and has an excellent attendance record. As a program aide she has a variety of "hands on" duties, from telling stories to the children to setting up the room and cleaning the art supplies.

Liz Labukas, center, receives her Employee of the Year Award at Martin's Crosswinds. Labukas has worked for the Greenbelt Nursery School for 25 years. On the left is house manager Yemisi Eugnlayi. Housemate Lois Funk is on the right.

Liz Meyers, director of the Greenbelt Nursery School, reports that Labukas is a cheerful presence at the school and is very missed when she is on vacation. Labukas has worked at the cooperative nursery school for 25 years. The school is an early childhood memory for more than two generations of Greenbelt children.

She gives an excellent impression to any child or adult who has never met someone with a developmental disability. With the help and loyalty of her sister Kathy Labukas, also of Greenbelt, church members, employers, recreation leaders and other professionals and neighbors, Liz has made great contributions to the many lives she has touched. Liz Labukas is another outstanding Greenbelter.

by Barbara Hopkins

On November 15 Greenbelt joined in the ninth national celebration of America Recycles Day. This day recognizes the importance of recycling and of buying and using recycled products.

As part of Greenbelt's celebration the Recycling and Environmental Advisory Committee (REAC) and the Public Works Department sponsored their annual "Recycle Right" contest in which REAC members and Public Works staff inspect the recycling bins in each of the city's four residential recycling routes and its one commercial route for compliance with recycling guidelines. REAC Chair Neal Barnett announced the winners at the November 28 meeting of the Greenbelt City Council. Prizes include a personalized recycling bin and America Recycles T-shirts, drink containers and Frisbees.

Barnett explained to council that this year instead of continuing the time-consuming process used in past years of reviewing all of the bins set out along each route, winners were selected from among those recommended by the collection crews.

Winners of this year's contest were: Jeffrey Owens of Burkhart Court, Tom and Lynn Lubey of Greenhill Road, Irene Pavlish of Lastner Lane, Chris Hoerr of Vanity Fair Drive and Anne and Fred Hutchinson of Plateau Place.

Cesar Morata and Chris Hoerr of Vanity Fair Drive were among Greenbelt citizens awarded a personalized recycling bin in the "Recycle Right" contest. Mayor Judith Davis, Councilmember Leta Mach, REAC Chair Neal Barnett, Councilmember Rodney Roberts and Cindy Murray from Public Works participated in the presentation.

Botanic Garden Holiday Show

This holiday season the U.S. Botanic Garden Conservatory's Garden Court will be transformed into a replica of the National Mall, a treasured national park. The holiday exhibit will run through January 8.

This miniature National Mall will feature model trains chugging past familiar Washington landmarks, just as real trains did during the mid-1800s. Many of the buildings will be lit from inside, creating a dazzling display.

Yule Party At Snow Hill

Spend an afternoon enjoying a very special holiday celebration on Saturday, December 10 from 3 to 6 p.m. at Snow Hill Manor, 13301 Laurel-Bowie Road, Laurel.

Carolers, a Victorian Santa and traditional decorations will recreate the spirit of the season. Light refreshments will be provided. This is a free activity open to the public.

For information call 301-725-6037, TTY 301-725-1472.

The Department is offering a reward of up to $500 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of a suspect in any of the unsolved crimes reported in the blotter. Citizens may anonymously report suspected drug activity by calling the Drug Tip Line at 301-507-6522.

Blood Donations Are Badly Needed Now

The Greater Chesapeake & Potomac (GC & P) Blood Services Region of the American Red Cross is issuing an urgent plea for immediate donations from people with Type O blood. Type O is the universal blood type and is also the blood type most commonly needed by local patients requiring transfusions.

Both local and national inventories of this critically-needed blood type have continued to drop in the days following the Thanksgiving holiday. Donors are needed immediately to ensure that patient needs can be met in the days to come. Appointments are available by calling 1-800-GIVE-LIFE.

As a special token of appreciation, the GC & P Region is offering participants a limited-edition

"Authentic Lifesaver" T-shirt. Further information about donating blood and a listing of all American Red Cross Blood Donor Centers and community blood drives are available at www.my-redcross.org.

Donors must be: in generally good health, at least 17 years of age (or in Maryland 16 years of age with parental consent), weigh at least 110 pounds, not have received a tattoo within the past year and not been a whole blood donor within the past 56 days.

In addition to asking individual members of the community to donate blood, the American Red Cross strongly encourages businesses and community groups to schedule and organize blood drives. Any group interested in scheduling a drive or obtaining further information is asked to call 1-800-787-9282, ext. 4925.

Toy Drive Kicks Off Holiday Season

Top photo, Mayor Judith Davis rides in a classic Thunderbird in Beltway Plaza's parade to kick off the holiday season. The Lions Club and Beltway Plaza merchants sponsor an annual toy drive. In its 14th year, the goal is to raise over $20,000 worth of new toys to be distributed to needy families. Toys will be collected until Sunday, December 18 in the mall's center court. New Wits & Wagers Game At New Deal Trivia Night

by Mary Halbe

Starting December 5 from 6 to 9 p.m., the first Monday of every month will be Trivia Game Night at the New Deal Café. This free event for friends and families will feature prizes from local Greenbelt companies.

The New Deal Café and North Star Games are teaming up to sponsor Trivia Game Nights in the city. Games buffs will remember the local buzz when North Star previously introduced their Cluzzle game here. Now North Star will introduce its new game, Wits & Wagers, to Greenbelt players.

Trivia Game Night prizes will be awarded to several winning teams in a chance to unplug from the digital world and have fun interacting with friends, family members and neighbors from the Greenbelt community.

Wits & Wagers

Unlike trivia game nights found at many D.C. bars, customers at the New Deal Café will participate in a huge game of Wits & Wagers, the latest release from Greenbelt board game company North Star Games. The best part about Wits & Wagers is that a player can win the game without correctly answering a trivia question. This means the game will be fun even if there are no trivia buffs on a particular team.

In Wits & Wagers every team answers every question, so all teams are constantly involved. Teams will be asked to come up with educated guesses to numerical questions, so players do not need to provide exact trivia facts. The teams' answers will then be placed on a big green betting mat. Each team will wager points on the answer they think is closest to the correct answer. Teams that successfully bet on this winning answer will get paid out by the house. To make things more interesting, some answers will pay out at higher odds than others, depending on how different the answer is from that given by the other teams. Go to <http://www.northstargames.com> to get more information about the game.

The key to Wits & Wagers is partly in what the team knows and partly in how well a player knows the other team members. As the evening progresses, participants will get a better idea of which teams are good in the various subjects, which will sway opinions about what answers to bet on.

While the point of the evening is to have a good time with friends, there will also be a few prizes to heighten the fun and excitement, including gift certificates for the New Deal Café and copies of Wits & Wagers. Naturally Greenbelt's North Star Games and its founder Dominic Crapuchettes hope local players will become a part of history as Wits & Wagers becomes the next blockbuster board game to sweep the nation.

Filipino Christmas Concert Offered

On Saturday, December 3 a free Christmas concert will be offered by Filipino-American chorale groups and a native string band at the Pope John Paul II Cultural Center from 5:30 to 7 p.m. Admission to the concert is by voluntary donation; parking is free. The center is located at 3900 Harewood Rd., NE, Washington, D.C.

The Paskong Pinoy concert, sponsored by the Embassy of the Philippines, will include the Filipino Choir of St. Columba, Chosen Few, Buklod Kaibigan, El Shaddai Choir and the Northern Virginia Rondalla. Written explanations of the songs performed will be available for the audience.

Paskong Pinoy is the 22-day Filipino Christmas season celebration, lasting from mid-December through the first Sunday in January with the celebration of Tres Reyes, the Feast of the Three Kings.
