Turner, Baker, Mfume: Winners In Greenbelt, but Not Overall

by Mary Lou Williamson

A watershed election, a generational change – whatever the term, Greenbelt will see new faces among its elected officials come January.

Ingrid Turner was the surprise winner in Greenbelt for the county council seat vacated by the popular Doug Peters, but not by much. She garnered 38.4 percent of the vote, Fred Robinson 36.6 percent and Darrell Carrington, 25 percent. The race is so close with Turner up by about 90 votes that absentee ballots may determine the outcome.

For county executive Greenbelt gave strong support to the seeming underdog Rushern Baker. Counted out not too long ago, Baker had been climbing steadily. Baker took 67 percent to Jack Johnson's 32.8 percent. Nevertheless, Johnson won across the county.

The third big decision facing Democrats was choosing a replacement for retiring Senator Paul Sarbanes. While Ben Cardin is the winner across the state and did okay in Greenbelt, Kweisi Mfume did much better – 49.0 percent to Cardin's 38.9. In the county Mfume took 69 percent to Cardin's 19.

William Donald Schaefer fared

no better in Greenbelt than elsewhere in the state with 16.8 percent. Peter Franchot, defining himself as the only real Democrat running for comptroller, handily beat his competition here, with 59.1 percent and won over Janet Owens statewide.

For attorney general Douglas Gansler came in a strong first. One hundred voters ignored the directions handed to them at the door that Tom Perez could not serve in the office and voted for him anyway.

In the battle for register of wills, Greenbelters strongly supported Lynn Skerpon in her fight to keep her job with 65.7 percent. Cereta Lee, who was backed by most Democratic slates, was tops here only in Precinct 8, Springhill Lake, but won easily in the county.

In many races there was no contest: governor, congressman, state senator, state's attorney, sheriff and most Democratic central committee positions.

For delegates to the Maryland House, Greenbelters gave top vote to their own Justin Ross, but also backed the other incumbents Tawanna Gaines and Anne Healey.

Top Vote Getters

Greenbelt's top vote getter was the team of Martin O'Malley and Anthony Brown running for governor and lieutenant governor with 1,970 votes. In second place, with 1,879 votes, was 5th District Congressman Steny H. Hoyer. Hoyer was seen at Precinct 13 talking with voters at 7:30 p.m. checking the numbers. He speculated the turnout – though not great – was not bad in Greenbelt's Precinct 3. Precinct 3 turnout was 28 percent; Precinct 6, 39 percent; Precinct 8, 9.9 percent; and Precinct 13, 21 percent. Election judges in all the precincts seemed pleased with their numbers. Turnout around the district, Hoyer thought, was light. State Senator Paul Pinsky, also unopposed, took third place with 1,818 votes.

Republicans

Registration figures show Republicans represent 13 percent of the registered voters in Greenbelt. There was no competition for the offices of governor, attorney general and judge of the orphans court. There were a number of elective offices for which there were no Republican candidates.

Council and Police Reflect On Sept. 11 Anniversary

by Barbara Hopkins

The Greenbelt City Council meeting began on a somber note on Monday, September 11 as Mayor Judith Davis opened the meeting with reflections and remembrances of that date in 2001. She said that like Pearl Harbor and President Kennedy's assassination most people remember where they were when the attacks occurred.

Davis introduced the Greenbelt Police Department Honor Guard for the presentation of the colors and then asked those present to stand, join hands and offer a moment of silence to remember and honor those who died at the World Trade Center, the Pentagon and in Shanksville, Penna.

She also asked people to remember two Greenbelt residents who had died and the victims of Hurricane Katrina. After the silence, the assembled group recited the Pledge of Allegiance.

Captain Thomas Kemp of the police department spoke about the role Greenbelt police played that day, offering his appreciation not just for those who were deployed to the attack site but also for those who remained behind and worked overtime to cover the city and nearby areas of concern, such as NASA's Goddard Space Flight Center. He called the department's response "truly a team effort."

Kemp said the department has received a first-responder award from the community of Arlington, Va., which he brought to the meeting along with a poster displaying patches from all 43 police departments that helped out at the Pentagon after the attack. The award is on permanent display at

by Carol Griffith

With songs, cheers and a ribbon-cutting, the new Greenbelt Post Office at 7600 Ora Glen Drive was formally opened on Sunday, August 27.

Attended by about 150 people, the ceremony began with a routine by the Eleanor Roosevelt High School varsity and junior varsity cheerleaders. Timothy C. Haney, Capital District manager for the United States Postal Service, welcomed all to the new "state of the art" post office and introduced members of the city council, previous postmasters John "Foxx" Hyater and Emory Harman, acting postmaster Galo Tolentino and Steny Hoyer, Congressman from Maryland's 5th District, as a "strong supporter of the Postal Service and the City of Greenbelt."

The color guard of the Eleanor Roosevelt High School ROTC presented the flag and Michael Barnes, student at the Duke Ellington School of the Arts and son of city employee Lisa Adams, sang "The Star Spangled Banner."

Haney continued his remarks, noting that the ten-year process of creating the new post office was "worth the wait" and will be a "great new home" for customers, businesses and employees. He then called for a moment of silence for two Greenbelt postal employees, Pamela Pinkney and Andrea Davis, who died during the process of opening the new facility.

Haney thanked the city council for their efforts in making the new facility possible and introduced Mayor Judith Davis. She then recognized Bowie Mayor Fred Robinson for his partnership with Greenbelt in the postal facility relocation and Sheldon Goldberg, president of the Greenbelt East Advisory Committee, for assistance in the process of relocating the post office and Hoyer for his assistance in obtaining funding.

She remarked that "many, many, many years ago," it was known that the old post office lo-

Lewis Elected GHI President

The Greenbelt Homes, Inc. (GHI) Board of Directors met on Thursday, September 7 and elected board treasurer Sylvia Lewis to succeed Julia Eichhorst as president. Sue Ready was elected as vice president and Sheila Alpers was named treasurer by board consensus.

Ready recently was elected by the board to fill the seat formerly held by the late Joyce Abell. The GHI bylaws state that interim board members filling vacancies during a board term are elected by the board of directors after the vacancies are publicized. One board seat remains open as the result of a job relocation by Eichhorst and the board will vote on candidates for that seat at the September 21 board meeting.

Lewis has been active with GHI since 1997 when she became a member of the cooperative's Member and Relations Committee. She has also served on the Audit Committee (chair 1999-2000), Investment Committee and on the board of directors since 2000, serving as treasurer.

Born in London, England, Lewis has been a GHI member since 1968 and obtained her U.S. citizenship the following year.

Letters to the Editor

THANKS!

On Sunday, August 13 the Greenbelt Boys & Girls Club (GBGC) hosted a soccer clinic featuring DC United Forward #20 Matt Nickell and former Metrostar player Ryan Rich, now a sales rep for United, at Schrom Hills Park. The event was attended by more than 80 GBGC soccer players and family members as well as City Councilmember Konrad Herling. Concessions were sold as well as discounted DC United premium ticket vouchers.

As soccer commissioner I would like to thank the following businesses and Greenbelters for their help and donations: Greenbelt Safeway, Giant, Party City and 3 Brothers Pizza, Costco and Wal-Mart. A very special thanks to St. Hugh's Knights of Columbus for grilling for us and Clement Lau and Jennifer Zambrana for helping out from setup to clean up. Greenbelters are the best people.

With this being my last season as commissioner I would like to thank all my friends and family especially my daughter Sarah Paz who helped me for my entire time as commissioner. Even when her friends were out doing other things, she stayed back to earn community service hours by helping the youth of Greenbelt. It has been a great experience for me. I have met many new people and made some really good friends as well as a few enemies.

If you would like to see a professional soccer game at RFK Stadium, I still have some discount vouchers. Please call 301-474-3750.

The Greenbelt Boys & Girls Club has openings on the board of directors along with a need for volunteers for coaching, fund raising, flier production and many other opportunities. The board meets the first Tuesday of every month at 6:45 p.m. at the Greenbelt Youth Center. Feel free to come by. Thank you all again.

Kimberly Paz

Interfaith Gratitude

The Greenbelt Interfaith Leadership Association (GILA) thanks all those who helped make our latest "Healing Hands Strengthen Community" event a memorable way to honor the 5th anniversary of the 9/11 attacks. Last Monday's event (noon to 7 p.m. at the Roosevelt Center plaza) commemorated this emotional day by eliciting donations to two important local relief funds in exchange for soothing therapeutic massages.

We are especially grateful to generous Gwen Vaccaro and her staff at Pleasant Touch Spa and to the dozens who came by and donated throughout the day. The total raised ($1,082.69) will support the Emergency Relief Fund (eviction prevention) and the Good Samaritan Fund. (Contributions can still be made at any time. Send checks to the City of Greenbelt.)

In addition to generating material support for people in need, the 9/11 event also created a lot of good will. Visitors expressed appreciation that a potentially depressing day was being marked with positive action. We hope that community service can become an increasingly appropriate and effective way to respond to this annual date.

Revs. Dan Hamlin
and Jaco ten Hove, for GILA

THANKS

On behalf of the Labor Day Festival Committee, I would like to thank everyone who attended this year's Festival despite its "late start." We hope everyone had a great time. We were able to "weather" Ernesto as best as we could and we thank everyone for sticking with us through all of it.

A big thanks to the community and school group volunteers who had booths and tables – without them there would be no Festival. We welcomed both returning groups and new ones to this year's Festival – their hard work and dedication is truly appreciated. A big thanks goes to Public Works – without their support and work there would, at a very minimum, be no booths. And thanks also for their hard work prior to, over the weekend itself and afterward. Ernesto made the first part of the Festival an especially challenging one. And a big thanks goes to the Recreation Department for their support and assistance through the various weather conditions and for all of their wonderful activities.

Thanks to the Police Department for their participation and support. Tom Gaylin and Rose-dale Attractions brought us top-notch rides and game booths – a better carnival company cannot be found. The entertainers brought us talent and professionalism which resulted in great stage shows. Thanks to the Arts Center for great Shakespeare. Thanks also to the Eleanor Roosevelt National Honor Society for their invaluable assistance in this year's Festival and their improv group for a great 24 hour show. The parade participants deserve thanks for strutting, playing or driving "their stuff!"

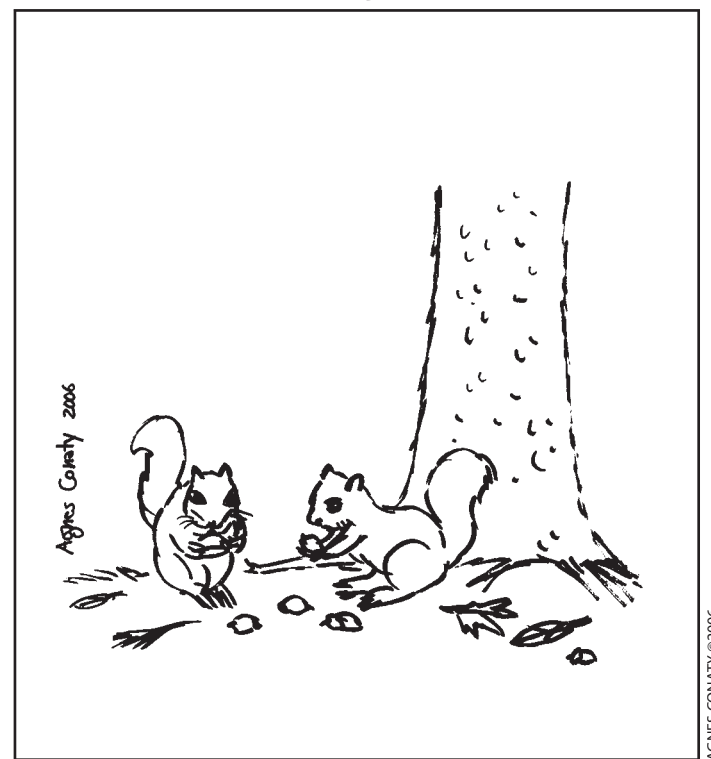

A very special thanks goes to the Greenbelt Co-op for being the vendor for the wristband vouchers and always supporting the Festival. Thanks also to the Greenbelt Marriott for providing rooms for the out of town entertainers.

Last, I would like to thank the wonderful members of the committee, whose hard work and dedication is beyond measure. From the bottom of my heart, thank you, thank you, thank you.

See you next year.

"Freedom 76" Comes To Greenbelt Legion

American Legion Freedom 76 is the official American Legion race car. The red, white and blue stock racer is a Chevrolet Monte Carlo. The car and race team will be here in Greenbelt between races in New Hampshire Saturday, September 16 and in Dover on the following Friday, September 22.

The stay over here will give Greenbelters, Legion members and race fans an opportunity to see Freedom 76 and meet and greet driver Jerick Johnson. Johnson will be driving in both the Bush East Series Sylvania 125 in New Hampshire on Saturday and the Dover 150 on Friday. Instead of traveling back to North Carolina between races, the race team plans to stay over in Maryland.

On Wednesday, September 20 from 4 to 9 p.m., Johnson and the Freedom 76 team will be at Greenbelt Post 136 to conduct merchandise sales, speak to members and guests, sign autographs and show off the car. This is the actual race car in which Johnson will compete (complete with bumps and bruises should that happen in New Hampshire). The stay here is a one-time opportunity to see the Legion's race car and meet the driver in person. Everyone is welcome.

Boys and Girls Club Website Launched

The Greenbelt Boys and Girls Club has a newly-designed website.

The official website, designed by Aldo Zambrana, is intended to improve the club's communications and provide organizational history and mission information. Legion Holds Talk On Identity Theft

Following a brief general membership meeting at 7 p.m. at the American Legion Post #136 on Thursday, September 21, there will be refreshments, followed by guest speaker Nicholas C. D'Adamo, director of Community Outreach for the Maryland Transportation Authority police. D'Adamo will address the group about "Identity Theft." The community is invited to this free program, along with Legion members and guests.

For those who may think they are safe from identity theft problems, this may be an eye-opener. Identity theft is a new crime, facilitated through established, underlying crimes such as forgery, counterfeiting, check and credit card fraud, computer fraud, impersonation and pick-pocketing.

This presentation will describe identity theft, review factors that increase the risks and, hopefully, prevent attendees from becoming victims. At the end of D'Adamo's presentation, there will be a question and answer period.

Local Writer's Book Featured at Tribute

"The Lizard King Was Here: The Life and Times of Jim Morrison in Alexandria, Virginia" is the latest book from Greenbelt author Mark Opsasnick. A 1980 graduate of Eleanor Roosevelt High School and a 1984 graduate of the University of Maryland, he has written six books including "Capitol Rock," a history of rock and roll music in the Washington, D.C., area and "Miscellaneous and Unknown," an examination of unusual information and cultural artifacts in Prince George's County.

The subject of "The Lizard King Was Here," Jim Morrison, was best known for having been the lead singer of the popular 60s rock and roll band "The Doors."

"The Doors" released six critically acclaimed studio albums for Elektra Records from 1967 to 1971. The singles broke the Top 40 eight times, including the number one hits "Light My Fire" (July 29, 1967) and "Hello, I Love You" (August 4, 1968). Morrison died of heart failure in July 1971 at the age of 27.

Opsasnick became interested in the music of "The Doors" in 1972 as a 10-year-old fifth grader at St. Hugh's School, first reading about the band in various rock and roll magazines at the Greenbelt Library and later noted that most of the published books on Jim Morrison/"The Doors" – more than 50 in all – skipped right over the singer's teenage years in Alexandria.

Opsasnick interviewed dozens of Morrison's former high school classmates and uncovered a wealth of never-before published information, including a wide range of experiences that motivated his later poetry, lyrics and work as a performing artist with "The Doors."

Opsasnick will be discussing and signing copies of his book "The Lizard King Was Here" at "The Jim Morrison Tribute," a free event to be held at the New Deal Café on Sunday, September 17 at 1:30 p.m. The afternoon will also feature Greenbelt guitarist-vocalist Geff King performing the music of "The Doors" and other 60s rock bands.

Do you feel restless, like you have lost your peace of mind?

That we don't know what to do and where to find satisfaction? Our Lord has the answer to all our problems, as He tells us that, "... He guides to Himself those who turn to Him in penitence, those who believe, and whose hearts find satisfaction in the remembrance of God. For without doubt in the remembrance of God do hearts find satisfaction."

2006 Labor Day Softball Tournament a Success, Despite Uncooperative Weather

The 2006 Labor Day Softball Tournament was scheduled to be played on Saturday and Sunday, but due to the heavy rains associated with Ernesto, the tournament was pushed back a day. Not wanting to cancel the traditional tournament, Recreation and Public Works staff worked hard to repair the fields from the rain and get them ready for play beginning Sunday. Games were played all day Sunday at Northway fields. The double-elimination tournament was played on Monday, with games finishing up at Braden Field. In the end, No More Cuts, formerly known as Custom Cuts, was crowned as the champions of the tournament. No More Cuts entered the championship from the loser's bracket and had to defeat the defending champions, Clyde's, twice to win the tournament. They had no problem achieving this task as they handed Clyde's a ten run loss in the first game and a fifteen run loss in the final game. The tournament was an overall success with highly competitive games.

Thanks to all teams that participated. See you next year!

Harvey Geller: A Life in Constant Motion

by Marat Moore

Ask Harvey Geller, 85, about his life, and he can measure the decades in the games and sports that have brought him pleasure through the years – and a level of physical prowess that has won him many awards, including his latest, a place in the Maryland Senior Olympics Hall of Fame.

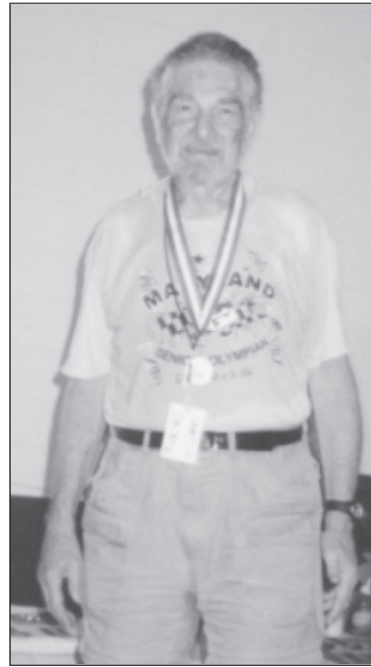

As a boy in the Bronx, Geller began with urban games – stickball, hide-and-seek, Three Feet Off to Germany, wall-board, boxball, Hit the Penny, Triangle (a punch-ball game on a triangle course) and roller hockey. Then came the year-round sports of youth: softball, summer-league basketball, sandlot football. In high school and college he earned varsity letters in soccer and in track and field.

"I have half-written a book called 'Games of My Youth,'" said Geller with a smile.

Perhaps he should consider a sequel. In his active adulthood – the last 60 years – he has competed in cycling, racewalking, running, swimming, basketball, golf, tennis, volleyball and table tennis events, to name a few.

"It's like an addiction," he said. "If I was in training and got hurt or if it was raining, I would still cycle 30 miles a day in my 60s and 70s."

Among his longest events are his more than 10 "century" bicycle rides – 100 miles in a day, including one from Salisbury to Assateague Island and back. "If you do that much, you can feel bad. But I'm very rarely sick and have had no debilitating diseases. I have had broken bones – the kind you get when you play sports."

Harvey Geller

Geller came to Greenbelt in 1957 and began work as a statistician with the National Cancer Institute, where he was involved with the early development of the use of high-density films to detect early breast cancer – a technique which evolved into today's mammography. In his free time, he took up racewalking which became his favorite sport along with cycling. Since then he has played with the senior softball team and in his 70s he also obtained his scuba-diving certificate.

After he retired in 1980, he traveled with his wife Helen in a small motor home to places of natural beauty, where he cycled for miles. He also has enjoyed Elderhostels that offer canoeing, cycling, rafting and kayaking.

In 1981, he began "competing" – he says it's more cooperative than competitive – in racewalking, track and field, cycling, and swimming events in the Maryland Senior Olympics. In the 25 years he has participated, Geller has won more than 100 medals, more than half of them gold. He has set age-group records in racewalking and cycling and still holds the record for the 75 to 79-year age group in the 5K and 10K cycling time trials.

Beyond the state senior Olympic events, Geller has won 15 medals in national-level competitions. "I've gone to eight nationals in places like Disney World, Baton Rouge, St. Louis and San Antonio," Geller recalled. His most recent national event was 2003 in Hampton Roads.

Even on the national level, Geller says the Senior Olympics "are more about people helping each other than being overly competitive. It's not just about winning."

Other active Greenbelters have also participated in the Maryland Senior Olympics in various categories, including racewalking and track and field.

Geller and other senior athletes selected for the Maryland Senior Olympics Hall of Fame will be honored at a "Celebration of Athletes" on September 21 in Towson. The honorees were selected for making "exemplary contributions to the Senior Olympics through their accomplishments and support at the state and national levels."

the police department.

Officer Barry Byers also shared his memories of that time. He said Greenbelt officers were first sent to the U.S. Treasury building, then to the Executive Office Building, Arlington Cemetery and ultimately to the Pentagon grounds later on the night of September 11, 2001.

Byers said the cooperative spirit of the people he met reminded him of Greenbelt. Ordinary citizens came to offer support, bringing food and personal care items. He feels the experience has had a lasting effect on all who went there.

Davis thanked the police for their service. She thanked the fire department as well, saying they too had been first-responders and made sacrifices on that day.

Greenbelt Guard Fires Bombardment

Battery B of the 2nd Battalion 110th Field Artillery, located at the Greenbelt National Guard Armory, fired a commemorative bombardment at Fort McHenry on Saturday, September 10. The bombardment, reenacting the bombardment of Fort McHenry during the Battle of Baltimore, was fired with blank artillery ammunition with the Battery's 105mm howitzers under pyrotechnics "bombs" fired from offshore.

Battery B also provided cannon fire during the playing of the 1812 Overture by the U.S. Army Field Band. Chris Horton, a captain in the Maryland Army National Guard, is commander of the National Guard artillery unit. The unit is a battery of the 2nd Battalion 110th Field Artillery, with its battalion headquarters in Pikesville.

County Planning Board Reconsiders SHL Plan

At its September 7 meeting, the Prince George's County Planning Board agreed to schedule a hearing to reconsider the Springhill Lake Preliminary Plan of Subdivision. According to Celia Craze, director of Planning and Community Development for Greenbelt, the Planning Board set no schedule or time limit.

At the meeting Robert Manzi, city solicitor, reminded the board there are still issues to be resolved between the city and AIMCO, the owner-developers of Springhill Lake. Manzi challenged the process by which the Prince George's County Council eased the rules under which the Planning Board had rejected the Preliminary Plan last spring.

But, Craze reported, the fact that the Planning Board was not agreeing to approve the plan but only agreeing to reconsider their prior disapproval, that provided a reasonable basis for the city to agree with the request for reconsideration.

Manzi and Craze then met briefly with Pat Teagarden of AIMCO and their attorney Andre Gingels, to identify the school and recreation issues yet to be resolved. They further recommended that AIMCO contact Terri Hruby, the city's assistant planning director, for further discussion and, perhaps, to draw up a development agreement to spell out terms.

ation was too small for customers and employees and that for safety and security reasons a new post office was necessary. The city offered five parcels of land to the Postal Service and with the choice of the present site, the "sunrise property" also was obtained for the city. GEAC assisted with the design and placement of the facility, ensuring there was a wooded buffer and approving entrance and egress traffic patterns.

Davis noted that the Postal Service continues to work with the city in providing the mobile van at the municipal building and that it is working to open a postal facility in Roosevelt Center.

Hoyer was the next speaker and began by joking that the parking lot was supposed to have been air-conditioned but the funding was cut, in reference to the very warm day. He thanked Haney, Davis and the council for "caring so much about the city." He then stated that post offices are "more than just buildings - they are community-binding facilities," which connect residents with their families and friends.

After Barnes sang "America the Beautiful" and Haney presented framed Chesapeake Bay stamps to participants in the ceremony, Haney, Hoyer, Tolentino, Davis and the council lined up to cut the ribbon tied between the posts of the entrance.

Refreshments were served by the cheerleaders in the lobby and tours of the facility were offered by postal employees. Tolentino explained that he has been in charge of the Greenbelt facility since December 2005 in the prolonged absence of postmaster Elgin Cooper. He has been a postal employee since 1981 and resides in Charles County, Calvert County.

The new facility is two-and-one-half times larger than the facility beneath the Co-op, enlarging from 8,000 to 20,000 square feet and the number of post office boxes has increased from 900 to 1,700. Tolentino added that at present the number of employees has not yet been adjusted to the needs of the new facility but that he is working hard to add employees. Customer service representative Damien Hatcher noted that revenues at the new facility are up 26 percent over this time last year, possibly because businesses that did not use the old facility because of its size have returned to Greenbelt's new post office.

Tolentino gave a brief demonstration of the automated postal facility in the lobby, which weighs letters and parcels and dispenses postage and sells stamps, using credit or debit cards. He stated that passport services will be added soon. The tours also took participants behind the public areas to show how mail is sorted and prepared for delivery. Participants were shown the mail slots for their residences, which adjust to the volume of mail delivered there. Mail carrier David Kremnitzer demonstrated an uncanny ability to, when given a street address, name all residents at that address.

Haney stated that the Capitol District ranks fourth in the nation for prompt delivery of first-class mail and has received the Five-Star Customer Service Award twice.
