Council, APB, ACE to Meet On Middle School Plans

by Elaine Skolnik

The proposed Greenbelt Middle School will be the topic of discussion next Wednesday, March 5 at 7:30 p.m. at a combined meeting of the city's Advisory Planning Board and the Advisory Committee on Education. Prince George's County Public School (PGCPS) staff will attend and will respond to Mayor Judith Davis' October 25 letter in which she raised council's concerns dealing with the middle school. The public is invited to attend the meeting, which will be held in the Community Center, Room 201.

In the letter Davis, on behalf of council, thanked Lawrence Fryer, Jr., of PGCPS and staff for attending council's meeting on October 22 to present the concept for the proposed school. She noted that council had voted unanimously to support the school's design. However, the letter had also indicated that "a number of issues and concerns" needed to be addressed and that the school system had expressed a firm commitment to work directly with the city to satisfactorily address them.

Pleased that the facility will be a two-level green school, which would "lessen its footprint," Davis also expressed council's appreciation for the promise of lighted athletic fields.

Some concerns expressed in the letter include predicted student capacity, the "feasibility of flipping the proposed building/parking layout so that the new school building is closer to the remaining historic building," that the new structure be designed with the "original architectural elements" incorporated within the school and that there be a pedestrian connection between the proposed new school and the remaining historic building.

Council also requested safe pedestrian access to the proposed building for walkers from Berwyn Heights. They asked that a public forum be held in the next month or two to present the school's concept to the three communities served by Greenbelt Middle School - Greenbelt, Berwyn Heights and College Park.

Council also wanted to address reducing the number of parking spaces to provide "planting islands and other means to lessen a 'heat island'" effect. Buffering of the bus lot, "both from Greenbelt Road and from the various uses on the school site" is among the council's concerns.

Historical Society Library Begins Move to Greenbelt

by Virginia Beauchamp

A collection of historical materials has, of course, its own history. And with the move to Greenbelt, the Fred S. DeMarr Library of the Prince George's County Historical Society adds a new chapter to its somewhat complicated story.

Begun as a private collection by the late Fred DeMarr, it soon outgrew its space in his personal residence and was moved to the aging Riversdale Mansion on Riverdale Road in what is now known as Riverdale Park.

At that time the mansion had become the property of the Prince George's County Park and Planning Commission (PGCPPC) and was being used as office and storage space.

DeMarr's collection of books and periodicals and papers were given accommodations in a second-floor room of the building now set aside for exhibit space as a children's room.

The historical society's collection, which was stored in multiple boxes, kept growing and growing.

Soon its very weight became a liability as the ancient floor of this early 19th-century structure began to groan. To save the building, the contents of the historical society collection were quickly moved to the first-floor room at the west end of the structure in its former carriage house.

And here it remained until PGCPPC decided to renovate and exhibit the building as a historic property. The year was 1985.

New Home

As a piece of good luck from the point of view of the society, another historic home became available for the library when a local organization of quilters vacated premises they had been occupying. This was basement space at Marietta Mansion on Bell Station Road in Glenn Dale.

At that time members of the society handled the move themselves, said one-time president "Dusty" Rhodes. Besides Rhodes, they included local historian Alan Virta, Rhodes' son and Herb Embry.

Greenbelt Move

This library is now in the process of moving to Greenbelt into space already redecorated in a cheerful yellow by Petro Design Builders, a company headed by society president John Petro. On Monday this week, movers were carrying in filing cabinets, book shelves, desks, chairs and boxes

GAIL to Hold Four Senior Focus Groups

The Greenbelt Assistance in Living (GAIL) program in conjunction with the Greenbelt Senior Activities program will hold a series of four focus groups beginning in March. The goal of the focus groups is to assess the aging-in-place needs of two target groups. Each focus group, two for each of the targeted age ranges, will meet for a two-hour session. The size of each group is limited to 12 participants.

Ages 66 and Over

The first group, to be held on two Saturdays, March 8 and March 22 from 10 a.m. to noon, is for seniors 66 and over. This group will discuss current programs available to them through the GAIL program and ways to improve them. It will also concentrate on ways to empower these seniors to successfully age in their homes and will focus on barriers to services, mechanisms for service delivery, reasons why they would leave Greenbelt and other life-changing decisions they may encounter.

Ages 50 to 65

The second focus group, to be held on Monday, March 17 from 10 a.m. to noon or 1 to 3 p.m., targets 50- to 65-year-old residents. The goal of this group is to determine their future expectations for aging services for the first wave of Greenbelt Baby Boomers, assess their aging-in-place goals and help the GAIL and Greenbelt Senior Activities programs begin to shape the future programs and services that will be offered and modes of delivery. The focus group will discuss the role of technology and how it will shape future programs and services offered by GAIL and the Senior Activities Program Office and how it can better serve residents currently in their homes.

As the graying of Greenbelt continues it is important that residents help the city's senior services shape programs to best suit their needs. Focus group participants will take a pre-test to determine their knowledge of existing programs and services and a post-test. The purpose of the focus groups is to enlist help from residents to identify what is needed for the city's GAIL and Senior Activities programs to continue to provide innovative programs and services to Greenbelt seniors.

Those interested in participating in a focus group are asked to call the Greenbelt CARES office at 301-345-6660 to register. All are welcome.

Rev. Hamlin Earns Scholarship To Political Advocacy Meeting

Greenbelt activist and pastor of Greenbelt Community Church Rev. Dan Hamlin has been awarded a scholarship to attend the nation's largest annual gathering of Christian peace and justice activists, Ecumenical Advocacy Days, in Washington, D.C. The conference trains religious advocates in how to speak out on policy issues to political leaders.

The scholarship, one of 10 awarded nationwide by New York-headquartered Church World Service (CWS), honors local poverty and hunger activists who have shown exceptional leadership in the agency's poverty and hunger fighting campaigns. CWS is a humanitarian relief agency supported in part by 35 Protestant, Orthodox and Anglican denominations in the United States.

CROP Walks

Hamlin has served as pastor of Greenbelt Community Church for 23 years.

He is an avid supporter of the CWS CROP (Communities Responding to Overcome Poverty) Hunger Walks and has promoted and participated in every CROP Walk since he arrived in Greenbelt in 1984.

Each year, some 2,000 communities across the country sponsor CROP Walks to raise awareness and funds for local hunger-fighting efforts and to support the overall work of CWS. During his first year in Greenbelt Hamlin's church turned out 12 walkers. Last year 88 walkers represented the 250-member church and raised $12,912, making the walk one of the top 50 in the United States. Several years ago the church added the "Souperbowl of Caring," a special offering on Superbowl Sunday to benefit CWS.

The conference will cover issues such as immigration, fair trade and the impact of U.S. policies on other countries.

Kudos to Shelter

I want everyone to know of my great experience with the Greenbelt Animal Shelter.

After my husband Rolando had been in a nursing home for six months, I felt hesitantly sort of ready to take on another caretaking job in the form of a cat, my favorite animal after my husband. I left a message on the shelter phone: an older cat, declawed and, if possible, female, fixed of course. The next morning I got a call from Susie at the shelter saying that it was as if Tilly had been waiting one whole year just for me. The actual "doing" of this adoption had me a little nervous. Susie, with many kind and patient words, assured me that if things didn't work out I could certainly bring her back. Meanwhile, take this food and brush and carrier and bring her back next week so that they could take her to the vet for a check-up and distemper shot, all free to me, and, and, and call us at any time with any question.

Well, Tilly has been with me for two weeks now. She is in love with my lap and we have had some great discussions. I am so glad I did what I did. The down side of this experience was seeing how many older cats there are at this "no kill" shelter. They are kept in excellent shape but there are just not enough laps to go around.

I recommend that if you were ever a cat person, be one again. Call Lisa, 240-508-7533. I know you will have the caring attention that I had. No, this is not an advertisement. This is passing on a good experience for two people: me and Tilly.

"Midge" at the New Deal

by John Drago

For those who normally patronize the New Deal Café but did not partake of the performance Saturday, February 16 by a duo named Midge, I'm sorry.

I think you missed a subtly unique and rewarding music style of two musicians, a man on guitar and back-up vocals but not actually singing lyrics and a woman singer/songwriter playing electric piano or guitar.

Her performance could perhaps be characterized as somewhat reminiscent of a torch singer with a slightly timid, almost fragile stage presence. Many of her songs had that barely noticeable undercurrent of heartache or unrequited love present. She was a woman and yet a girl, still able to tear up over the lyrics to a song . . . a refreshing alternative to the angry material so much of today's music contains. I fell in love with her emotions as she tapped into my own predisposition toward romanticism.

Midge is scheduled to return to the Café on March 29 and I fully intend to return for their performance so I can fall in love again.

While the music of Midge massaged my heart, "Chef Don" provided sustenance for my body with a glass of wine and the house special. The house special consisted of an individual-sized platter containing cheese and crackers, olives, artichoke hearts, mushrooms and sundried tomatoes slathered over slices of Italian bread, a bit of Italian cold cuts rolled up, roasted red peppers and even a spare slice of bread to soak up the olive oil and herbs left on the platter when it was empty.

My platter was taken away only after I had consumed every morsel except the olive pits. If the Café repeats this special again, I recommend you try it.

Now I believe I will step out for a Passeggiata and one of those Greenbelt greetings.

Young Entrepreneurs Seminar on Saturday

A young entrepreneurs seminar will take place on Saturday, March 1 from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Camelot, 13901 Central Avenue in Upper Marlboro.

Business experts will lead workshops. The day will also include mentoring opportunities, a networking luncheon and a business plan competition offering scholarships and grants.

The program is sponsored by Prince George's County Councilmember Ingrid Turner in partnership with the Prince George's Community Foundation.

Corrections

In the front page article on the Greenbelt Foundation Awards last week we incorrectly identified the person who spoke for the Farmers Market in appreciation for the grant. It was actually Kim Kash.

No Dr. Seuss character costumes will be made during Sunday's Artful Afternoon puppet workshop as we mistakenly stated in the March Artful Afternoon article on page 2. The organizers hope people will come costumed as Seuss characters for the event; it is those costumes which will be judged at 3 p.m. for the craziest. More information is available on page 3.

School system official Jose Riggins, who lives in Greenbelt, took it in good spirit when his home phone rang off the hook over the weekend in response to the announcement for Springhill Lake Head Start registration. The correct number to call for further information is 301-408-7100.

The Garden Club meeting announcement in last week's paper mis-matched date and day of the week. The meeting is at 7 p.m. on Thursday, March 6 at the police station.

The News Review regrets the errors.

On Screen

Sisters Vie for Henry's Favor

Based on the novel by Philippa Gregory – first in her series on the Tudors – "The Other Boleyn Girl" imagines a complex relationship between Anne Boleyn (played by Natalie Portman) and her sister Mary (Scarlett Johansson). The story blames their father for pushing the sisters into competition for the attention of Henry VIII (Eric Bana). The cinematography takes advantage of the swirling fabrics and rich colors of a good period piece while staying true to the dark corners in a world before electric lamps.

The movie opens nationwide and in Greenbelt on February 29. Runtime is 115 minutes; rated PG-13 for sexual themes and violent images.

"Importance of Being Earnest" at GAC

"The Importance of Being Earnest," a comedy written by Oscar Wilde, will be performed at the Greenbelt Arts Center (GAC) this weekend by the Rude Mechanicals.

The Rude Mechanicals have been performing classic theater in the Washington, D.C., and Baltimore areas for over eight years. Their goal is to keep theater alive by reexamining and questioning old assumptions, often through resetting the original works into other eras.

"The Importance of Being Earnest" is, on one level, a satire of the social mores of Victorian England and on another, entertainment for the gay community of the times. For this production, the Rude Mechanicals have changed the time and place of the play to Hollywood in 1935.

Reservations for the play may be made through the box office or by calling 301-441-8770. Performances will be held on Friday, February 29 and Saturday, March 1 at 8 p.m.

Berwyn Presbyterian Offers Ceres Concert

Ceres, a women's chorus, will perform at Berwyn Presbyterian Church as part of the celebration of International Women's Day on Saturday, March 8 at 7:30 p.m.

This concert was previously presented at the Renwick Gallery of the Smithsonian American Art Museum as part of the exhibit "Going West! Quilts and Community."

Admission is free; donations will be accepted.

Learn About Islam

GIVE THANKS

Every breath that we breathe is a blessing from God and we learn from the Prophet Solomon (peace be upon him) to recognize these blessings each day. The Holy Qur'an tells us how he never forgot to be thankful to God. He is quoted to have said, "This is by the grace of my Lord, to test me whether I am grateful or ungrateful! And if any is grateful, it is (a gain) for his own soul; but if any is ungrateful, truly my Lord is free of all needs, supreme in honor."
— The Holy Qur'an, 27:40

Count your blessings every day. For more information about gratefulness from an Islamic perspective, call 301-982-9463 or email info@searchislam.org or visit www.searchislam.org.

We were sorry to learn of the death of Frank Hutson on February 25, 2008, who had served as Greenbelt's chief of police.

Greenbelt NASCAR fans are sending jubilant congratulations to Roy McCauley, crew chief for Penske car No. 12, driven by Ryan Newman, which won the Daytona 500 on February 17. Roy received his mechanical engineering degree from the University of Maryland. He is the grandson of the late Mary Schubert and nephew of Joe Mack Schubert; his parents, Kirk and Sue McCauley, grew up in Greenbelt.

Best wishes to Abby Wilcher of Plateau Place for a full and speedy recovery from surgery.

Two special performances to benefit work against violence aimed at women will be presented at the Greenbelt Arts Center (GAC) on Saturday, March 8. The 8 p.m. show is sold out. There are still tickets available for the 5 p.m. show.

educated millions about the issue of violence against women.

Performed mostly by Greenbelters, this special event will raise money for the Prince George's County Family Crisis Center. The cast includes Gena Wilson, Amityyah Hyman, Misha R. Kingsley, Hopi Auerbach, Susan Harper, Karen Irving, Michelle Johnson, Greta Ehrig, Kenya Fairley, Ann Elsen and Amethyst Dwyer, who is also directing the show.

For tickets or more information, call the GAC at 301-441-8770.

Greenbelt Animal Control Pet of the Week

Meet this Week's Pet of the Week, Our boy, George!

George is a stunningly handsome, white neutered male with grey tabby markings. His perfectly coiffed 'do is matched only by his mesmerizing eyes.

George is very quiet and mellow, and enjoys lounging in the cat tree, as well as a cardboard box. He gets along well with other cats, and loves to be held and snuggled. We have yet to hear him utter a single peep. Instead, he prefers that we do all the talking. He really enjoys it when we sing to him, and never complains when we are off-key. So here's your chance to be a singing star. You may never make it on American Idol, but George will enjoy all of your songs, AND be your biggest fan!

Book Club Meets Friday, March 7

On Friday, March 7 at 7:30 p.m. the College Park Arts Exchange monthly book club discussion of literary nonfiction by women will be held at the Old Parish House, located at 4711 Knox Road in College Park. The March 7 meeting will feature "Persepolis" by Marjane Satrapi. This is an opportunity to enjoy discussions of literary nonfiction by women in a casual, relaxed setting. The group reads books by women from a variety of backgrounds, meeting one Friday evening per month. For those who may want to begin reading the next book, at the following meeting on April 18, the club will be reading the biography of "Eleanor Roosevelt, Volume Two 1933-1938," by Blanche Wiesen Cook.

GAVA Receives County, Foundation Grants

The Greenbelt Association for the Visual Arts (GAVA) was awarded a grant of $1,000 by Prince George's County at the recommendation of County Councilmember Ingrid Turner, who represents the 4th district including Greenbelt, to support arts education programs for children.

Programs

GAVA currently conducts two programs: the Home School/After School Arts Classes at Mowatt Methodist Church and the animation program which is co-produced with GATE (Greenbelt Access Television). The Home School/After School program holds classes Tuesdays during the school year. The home school portion includes a singing class taught by Greenbelt musician Melissa Sites, which emphasizes American folk music, and an art class taught by Greenbelt artist Barbara Simon. The art class is also offered in the afternoon after school program and consists of painting classes in the fall and printmaking classes in the winter/spring.

The GAVA/GATE Animation Program, which holds classes year round for young people ages 10 to 18, is taught by George Kochell at GATE's studios in the Greenbelt Community Center. For the past six months, the animation created by its students has been included in "Greenbelt In Focus," the monthly program shown before each movie at Theatre 1 at Beltway Plaza. This year marks the 10th anniversary of the animation program and a celebration is planned for the public, as well as students and their families, for this coming June.

The Greenbelt Community Foundation just awarded the program a grant to produce the celebration. The latest addition to the animation program is its partnership with Pathways Schools, which started last month. Pathways Schools students are brought to GATE's studios each week to learn animation as part of the schools' work-based program. Pathways Schools provide integrated academic and vocational services through community-based programming for teens who need more intensive services than public schools can provide.

Their partnership with the GAVA/GATE Animation Program was funded by a grant from the Prince George's Arts Council.

Planetarium Program For Four-year-olds

The next planetarium program at the Howard B. Owens Science Center is on Friday, March 7 at 7:30 p.m. and was designed especially with four-year-olds in mind. "Shape Up!" has the audience challenged to find simple shapes in the stars (triangles, squares, rectangles and ovals) through song and chant, guided by Freddy the Frog. These simple shapes are the foundations to modern day constellations.

The science center is located at 9601 Greenbelt Road in Lanham. Parking is in the lot at Catherine T. Reed Elementary School. There is a nominal fee, reduced for students and seniors. Call 301-918-8750 during school hours to confirm topic.

Pioneers of Aviation Featured at Museum

College Park Aviation Museum presents "Heroes of the Sky: Adventures in Early Flight 1903 to 1939" through April 30. In the early years of flight the sound of airplanes passing over a house wasn't as mundane as the ringing of a telephone. Then, courage, ambition and ingenuity sustained the fledgling industry and one was likely to look skyward with a sense of wonder as an airplane flew by.

Using historic artifacts, photographs, multimedia and interactive panels, this exhibit introduces visitors to the Wright Brothers, Henry Ford, Donald Douglas, Glenn Curtiss, Jimmy Doolittle, Bessie Coleman, Admiral Richard Byrd and other inventors, explorers, record breakers and entrepreneurs who made their marks on the history of aviation.

Call 301-864-6029 for more details or special accommodations.

Comcast Customers Notified of Change

Comcast Cable has officially notified the city of its recent letters to local customers requiring removal of the A/B switch on digital boxes that had been installed on the back of their television sets. The A/B switch must be removed by March 19 or the box will stop working, the letter says.

According to the letter, customers have four alternatives to carry out this operation – to do it themselves, with mailed or oral phone instructions; to bring in the box for an exchange to one of three payment centers; to schedule a paid visit with a cable technician; or to self-install a digital kit, while assuming shipping and handling costs.

Full instructions have been posted on the city's cable channel, according to City Manager Michael McLaughlin.

The Green Life

A little patience when ordering items online could cut the shipping carbon footprint by half or more. Rather than have each item shipped separately as soon as it becomes available, ask that the order be grouped into as few shipments as possible. It might take a few days longer but why have two or three big brown trucks stop at the curb when a single one can do the job?

New Sign Language Invented to Teach Yoga

by Kim Kash

Teachers, interpreters and students create a fun, accessible class for deaf and hearing students alike every Friday evening at Greenbelt Om Community Yoga in its second floor studio over the movie theater in Roosevelt Center. The energy runs high but the decibel level is really low when the weekly sign-interpreted yoga class begins.

While teacher Joel Moodie guides hearing students through a normal level I yoga class, sign interpreter Jamie Yost or Folami Ford addresses the growing group of deaf students in the class using American Sign Language and pointing out specific things on Moodie's body – the alignment of a knee, the angle of a foot. Yost and Ford, both yoga students themselves, often get quite a workout just trying to stay within the line of sight of the deaf students as the students move into postures that turn their heads in a different direction or fold themselves forward (which inverts their gaze and points it to the back of the room.)

Moodie has observed that the deaf students in his classes often "get" new postures more quickly because they are so adept at minute visual observation of the poses as he demonstrates them.

Yost and Ford, both employed by Gallaudet University, are kept busy refining their interpretation techniques, along with plenty of help from a core of dedicated deaf students. The interpretation method they use is a collaborative work in progress.

Greenbelt Om provides the only sign-interpreted yoga class in the Washington, D.C., metro area. For more information contact Kim Kash at kkash@greenbeltom.com or call 301-220-0084.

The writer is the owner of Greenbelt Om.

Proposed WSSC Budget Ups Fees for Pipelines

The Commissioners of the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission (WSSC) have submitted a preliminary budget for Fiscal Year 2009 (FY09) that targets aging infrastructure and addresses increasing operational costs.

WSSC proposes a $1.01 billion Capital and Operating Budget for FY09. Included in the proposal is a 9.5 percent rate increase to pay the escalating costs of operational necessities such as power, chemicals and fuel. This rate increase will add approximately $4.47 per month to the average residential customer's bill.

In addition to the rate increase, the proposal calls for the creation of an infrastructure renewal fee dedicated to the replacement of water and sewer mains and other parts of the infrastructure. The fee is fixed depending on the customer's meter size and would not change for 10 years. Monies collected would be held in a separate fund that could only be used to pay for water and sewer infrastructure replacement. For the average residential customer, the fee proposed would be approximately $20 per month.

Basis of Fee

The proposal for the infrastructure renewal fee is based on the WSSC 30-Year Utility Master Plan being developed in cooperation with Montgomery and Prince George's County officials. The first phase of the plan was released earlier this year and findings were used to create a 10-year fiscal plan designed to increase infrastructure replacement while spreading the cost over time. The FY09 budget proposal accounts for the first year of the 10-year fiscal plan.

Among the major findings of phase one of the master plan:

Approximately 50 percent of the entire water distribution system will reach or exceed its useful life by 2025, including over 85 percent of smaller diameter cast iron pipe. Out of the nearly 5,500 miles of water mains, almost 1,400 miles are more than 50 years old and approximately 2,500 miles are between 25 and 50 years old.

Additionally, three types of sewer pipes are in poor condition and several drainage basins will require significant attention over the next 30 years.

Track Record

WSSC is the 8th largest water and wastewater utility in the nation, serving nearly 1.8 million residents in Prince George's and Montgomery counties. WSSC operates and maintains seven water and wastewater plants, nearly 5,500 miles of fresh water pipeline and over 5,300 miles of sewer pipeline. In its 89-year history, there has never been a drinking water-quality violation.

"No one looks forward to raising utility rates," said Andrew D. Brunhart, WSSC general manager. "Aging infrastructure is a nationwide challenge affecting us all. We need to renew our water and wastewater systems at a much faster rate to ensure reliability and availability of these vital services for ourselves and future generations. This is about ensuring continuous service of safe, clean water – something we often take for granted."

WSSC Engineering Scholarship Open

The Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission (WSSC) Commissioners are offering a $1,000 scholarship to a college student from Prince George's or Montgomery County who majors in water/wastewater engineering.

A maturing WSSC workforce and the ongoing need to replace and maintain an aging infrastructure will create many opportunities in the water and wastewater profession, especially in engineering.

In addition to the $1,000 cash award, the scholarship winner will be offered the chance to gain valuable on-the-job experience while working as a paid summer intern.

To qualify for the scholarship, students must attend a Maryland college or university, have a permanent home address in Prince George's or Montgomery County and be enrolled in an engineering degree program.

To obtain an application for the scholarship, forward a letter of interest to Charlett Bundy, Esq., Corporate Secretary, Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission, 14501 Sweitzer Lane, Laurel, MD 20707 or email cbundy@wsscwater.com. Applications must be postmarked by June 30. The winner will be announced at the August WSSC meeting.
