Major Storm Creates Much Havoc, Damage throughout the City

by James Giese

Greenbelters experienced the worst windstorm of recent memory on Sunday, June 25 when a fast-moving cold front passed through the area bringing thunder, lightning, down pouring rain and strong wind gusts, some of hurricane force. Damage was extensive with tree branches and limbs down throughout the city, apartment building roofs blown off and giant trees falling on homes.

Falling trees and limbs knocked out power service to most of Greenbelt for almost a day. Some areas were still without power Tuesday afternoon. Fortunately, no injuries from the storm have been reported.

The storm, moving at a rate of 55 miles per hour according to television reports, caused widespread damage throughout Montgomery, Prince George's and Anne Arundel Counties. While the rains were heavy, they lasted only a brief time and did not cause much damage. The wind, on the other hand, wreaked havoc.

City officials estimate that power was out in about 90 percent of the city with telephone service also greatly disabled. Of the major city centers, only the lights at Greenway Center stayed on. While power was later restored to the Beltway Plaza and parts of Empirian Village, according to City Manager Michael P. McLaughlin, most residents spent Sunday night in the dark.

Communication

The greatest concern to public safety officials was the loss of communication ability, particularly the loss of the 911 emergency call lines in large parts of Prince George's County. Greenbelt communication systems were down.

According to Jocelyn Curley, administrative associate to the Command Staff at Greenbelt Police, an exchange facility for Verizon opposite Beltway Plaza had its backup generator fail after the

Sharon Porter, New Principal Of GMS, Faces Fresh Challenges

by Jim Link

Sharon H. Porter seems undaunted by the challenges that await her this fall as the new principal of Greenbelt Middle School.

Formerly principal at Lamont Elementary School in New Carrollton, she is already in her new office putting the finishing touches on her largely new faculty roster. When GMS earned a poor assessment on the county's Alternative Governance Plan, a component of a larger School Improvement Plan (SIP), all faculty were invited to reapply for their jobs if they intended to stay. About 50 percent opted to leave, Porter explained in a telephone interview, which means that approximately 20 of 36 teachers will be new this fall.

Sharon Porter

Porter says she is "intrigued by the idea of helping the school move forward" and that "building relationships with parents, teachers and students" is her first priority.

Then she will "concentrate on achievement – institutional delivery." Crucial to creating an atmosphere conducive to learning is a strong, active PTA, Porter intimated. "I'm a true believer in connecting to people," she said, "and I welcome parental support. Parental help is needed and wanted." A group of parents of incoming students intends to establish a PTA at GMS this fall.

Porter holds degrees from Winston-Salem State University, National-Louis University, Walden University and the Johns Hopkins University. Perhaps her arrival along with the many new teachers at GMS is cause for optimism.

Greenbelt Museum Records Busy Days, Many Visitors

by Sheila Maffay-Tuthill

The Greenbelt Museum has had a busy spring and early summer filled with special tours and events, planting a Victory Garden, a volunteer appreciation dinner and more. A new exhibition is in the final stages of development and the long-awaited museum orientation film is entering the post-production phase. Watch for news of the film's premiere this fall.

In May the Greenbelt Museum hosted the Vernacular Architecture Forum for a tour of some of the city's homes and buildings. Participants were complimentary – intrigued by the structures they visited and by Greenbelt itself.

In May museum Education and Volunteer Coordinator Sheila Maffay-Tuthill visited Springhill Lake Elementary School to speak with four different classes about a career in museum work. Everyone enjoyed the interaction and the children asked probing questions.

Victory Garden

In June, with the help of some dedicated volunteers, the museum's Victory Garden took shape. Victory Gardens were a staple of World War II Greenbelt, as part of the war effort. Families all over the country were encouraged to grow and can their own produce to feed themselves, take pressure off the commercial food supply and to cut down on fuel used in trucking food.

The garden is part of the

Letters to the Editor

Home Saved by GHI Worker Dwayne White

Thanks to quick thinking by diligent GHI employee Dwayne White, a 5 Court Ridge home was saved from fire on Monday.

This has been an exciting week in 5 Court Ridge and it's only Monday! Yesterday during the storm several large branches came toppling down onto our walkways and common areas. Thanks be to God no one was hurt. We all pitched in to clear the walkways and driveway. It felt like deja vu all over again and reminded all of us of Snowmageddon 2010.

On Monday, while the GHI crew was cleaning up the area, one of the men, Dwayne White, smelled smoke outside an unoccupied home. He called it in and the Greenbelt Volunteer Fire Department quickly came, along with a hook and ladder from Berwyn Heights. Once inside the home they were able to determine that food cooking on the stove was the cause of the large quantity of smoke. The food had been cooking on Sunday when the power went out and began to cook again once the power was restored on Monday around 12:30 p.m.

Dwayne called Shawnta Cermenio in the maintenance department, who called the fire department; Dwayne had the key to the unit pulled and brought to the home . . . such impressive teamwork! The firemen were able to use their large fan to dispel the smoke from the home and it all ended very well.

Thanks to the quick-thinking and diligence of Dwayne White, the home escaped damage. But we think the cats are still hiding under the bed!

Joan Conway

GHI employee Dwayne White quickly contacted 911 and avert further damage.

Truly Remarkable In Many Ways

I very much enjoyed Virginia Beauchamp's article "This Shaking Planet of Ours" (Greenbelt News Review, July 22, 2010). Some truly remarkable experiences were related.

Most remarkable to me, however, was learning in the last paragraph of the article that we have in our midst a local who is almost 900 years old. This is something we need to hear more about!

Peter Colarco

Editors Note: ahem. Obviously we should have caught that . . . and thanks to Peter Colarco for pointing out that our senior-most editor is closing out her ninth decade at age 90, not her 90th decade.

Global Warming 101

Now we've all been through it! Several weeks of parched, dry heat. (These record-setting temperatures caused around 15 deaths.) At last the heat "breaks." But this turns out to be gale force winds – downing many big trees, blocking major roads, causing hundreds of thousands of power blackouts and damaging property. The harsh, brief downpours are of little help for lawns or farms.

Well, this is "Global Warming" weather: heat and drought, followed by intense local storms. The bad news is that it's all gonna get worse. Unless we can find ways to cut back on "dirty" carbon-based fuels – coal, oil, even natural gas. (Although gas has the least carbon pollution relative to energy provided.)

To reduce this Global Warming impact on future populations would truly be "A change we can believe in."

Christopher K. Scherer

Kudos for Photos

While many of our neighbors were focused on cleaning up after the recent storm, many others were out snapping photographs. The News Review received more than 200 of them, recording damage throughout the city. Needless to say, without many more pages, we could not print them all.

We thank you all for sharing.

Shaking up the Family

Opening at Old Greenbelt Theatre on Friday, July 30 is "The Kids Are All Right." It's the summer before 18-year-old Joni (Mia Wasikowska) goes off to college, to leave behind little brother Laser (Josh Hutcherson) and their separate but together mothers – a doctor played by Annette Bening and her homebody mate (Julianne Moore). Enter the kids' laid-back, sperm-donor father (Mark Ruffalo) to shake up the picture. Labeled a comedy, the film has drawn a houseful of hosannas, notwithstanding its rating of R for strong sexual content, nudity, profanity and teen alcohol and drug use.

Running time: 106 minutes.

Greenbelters Win On Rally in 11th

Down 9-7 with two out in the last of the 11th inning, the Greenbelters of the Baltimore Beltway Senior Softball League rallied on Wednesday, July 21 for three runs to win 10-9 over Carroll Gray. Pinchhitters Jim Dugan and Lefty Smith singled before Barry Clark smashed a shot over the left fielder's head. When the relay throw got away from the cutoff man, third base coach Al Martin waved Clark in with the winning run.

Earlier, Greenbelt tied the game against the Division B opponent in the 9th inning, 7-7, when Clark singled, advanced to second on Jasper Pendergrass's groundout and - with two out - scored on John Benish's single. John Streckel and Paul Williams shared the pitching.

The next day, July 22, Catonsville, also from Division B, outlasted Greenbelt 16-13 (manager Ray Reed and Phil Olson split the pitching) but the home team remained in first place for Division C, two games ahead of Howard Hitters.

Deadline Extended On Logo Contest

The deadline has been extended to August 6 for submissions in the contest for best logo and best slogan for use in Greenbelt's 75th anniversary celebration, the Anniversary Committee has announced. Fourteen high-quality submissions have been received thus far and are being given careful consideration by committee members.

The logo and slogan should be appropriate for use in posters, banners, T-shirts, hats and more. It must contain the word "Greenbelt" and should use the 1937-2012 designation as well. All areas of Greenbelt will be celebrated and submissions that incorporate this idea are especially encouraged.

The contest winner will receive a $75 gift certificate to the Greenbelt Co-op grocery store. By August 6 entries no larger than 11" x 17" may be emailed in PDF format to Greenbelt Museum Director Megan Searing Young at museum@greenbeltmd.gov or submitted in hard copy to her at the museum office in the Community Center, 15 Crescent Road.

Above, an uprooted oak tree damaged roofs of honeymoon cottage and adjacent units at 60 Crescent.

At right, from another angle, this 64-year-old oak tree (with an estimated weight of 24,000 lbs) had to be removed from the roofs of several homes at 60 Court Crescent Road. As the tree roots show, although the tree is 64 years old (ring count), its roots were never able to penetrate the clay, which may be true of many Greenbelt trees (the old photos of Greenbelt under construction show that the top soil was stripped off the clay).

Greenbelt Was Designated To Receive 10th Tree Award

by Barbara Hopkins

Greenbelt is one of over 3400 communities in the United States designated a Tree City USA. The National Arbor Day Foundation, in association with the National Association of State Foresters and the USDA Forest Service, has presented this award to Greenbelt for 10 years. Lesley Riddle, of the city's Public Works Department, accepted the award on July 12 at the Greenbelt City Council meeting.

The city also received the Foundation's Tree City USA Growth Award for meeting a number of requirements under the category of Planning and Management. The Growth Award is given to recognize "environmental improvement and encourage higher levels of tree care" throughout the country. Over 500 communities share this distinction with Greenbelt, according to the Foundation's website.

Tree Care

Riddle suggested people can help trees now by watering around the drip line (i.e., as far out as the branches extend) infrequently and deeply (as opposed to frequent, more shallow waterings). Morning is the best time for watering, she said. Trees in raised beds may require more frequent watering than others.

Riddle also said fertilization should be stopped now and pruning definitely avoided.

Champion Pine

After accepting the award, Riddle referred to problems with the champion Long Needle Pine at Schrom Hills Park. She later explained to the News Review that the tree had been inappropriately trimmed of its lower branches by a landscaping company contracted for work in Greenbelt East. Riddle noted it was a bad time for trimming, as the tree uses transpiration from its needles to help survive the heat. She hopes, she added, the tree will be fine. It will receive supplemental watering in dry conditions, she said.

Crews were seen all over town cleaning up the debris.

Greenbelt Voices Adapts Our Stories to the Stage

by Carol Griffith

If you're reading this newspaper, you have a connection to Greenbelt. Regardless of what that tie is there's something in "Greenbelt Voices" at Greenbelt Arts Center (GAC) that will jog a memory, provoke some thought or amuse you. And bring your non-Greenbelter friends and family – there are plenty of wonderful and touching stories to entertain them, too.

"Greenbelt Voices" is a series of monologues which are adapted from stories submitted to director Misha R'kingsley in her appeal earlier this year for stories of life in Greenbelt. Some will bring back childhood memories, such as the wonders of the old library when it was located in what is now the Community Center, and teenage pranks at the pool. Some of the vignettes tell more modern tales of mentoring young students at Greenbelt Middle School, transitioning from parochial school to Eleanor Roosevelt High School and finding a different world or an inspiring tale of coaching a girls' basketball team at Springhill Lake Recreation Center. A few of the stories were humorous and made even more funny by the talents of the actors, such as the stories of mother and daughter Miss Greenbelt winners and finding a home for a stray cat.

Several monologues showed how a community's love and caring helped the teller through tremendous personal loss or illness. Although these touching stories highlighted the caring nature of many Greenbelters, the themes of community and sharing are universal and can be appreciated by all.

Masters of ceremony Dirk R'kingsley and Stephen Cox introduce the show and ask for audience participation: They request that when they share an anecdote about Greenbelt, the audience respond "Only in Greenbelt!" Many of us tried to comply but were laughing too hard to do so.

Some of the actors are seasoned veterans and several are enjoying their first time on stage. The show is so well-rehearsed and directed it's impossible to tell the difference.

Go and see this unique show about Greenbelt and being home, wherever it is. See a real, unique and living community come to life as only its people and stories can illustrate.

Strong language may make the show inappropriate for younger children.

"Greenbelt Voices" will play on Friday, July 30 at 8 p.m. and Saturday, July 31 at 2 p.m. Reservations may be made through the box office at 301-441-8770 or at the Arts Center at 123 Centerway, located beneath the Co-op supermarket.

Charleston Mystery Is Revisited at Arts Center

by Carol Griffith

Charleston's historic district and its ghosts and mysteries are the setting for "Charleston Revisited," a Seventh Street Playhouse production coming to the Greenbelt Arts Center on August 6.

Charlotte Butler, a matron of Charleston, raises flowers, keeps birds, ballroom dances and plays championship bridge to classical music. One evening she finds herself entertaining her neighbor's gentleman friend Mark, a dashing former senator, when her neighbor cannot keep the date. Finding that they have much in common, Charlotte takes Mark to the cemetery at night where they encounter someone Charlotte does not want to see and she must face the result of a decision she made 80 years ago.

"Charleston Revisited" will show on Friday and Saturday nights, August 6 and 7 and 13 and 14. There will be matinee performances on Sundays, August 8 and 15.

Create a Backyard Cutting Garden

Lupe Rodriguez, gardener at the U.S. Botanic Garden, will talk about tips and techniques for creating a backyard cutting garden while leading a tour outside in the garden on Thursday, August 5 from 10 to 11 a.m. There will be a small demo at the tour's end. Participants are advised to wear sunscreen, protective clothing and to bring water. The tour is cancelled if it rains.

The tour is free but pre-registration is required. Visit www.usbg.gov or call 202-225-1116.

museum's upcoming gardening exhibition opening August 1, called "Green from the Start: A History of Gardening in Greenbelt." In conjunction with the gardening theme, the Museum's July 20 lecture focused on home canning. Support for the exhibition comes from the Greenbelt Community Foundation and 4th District Prince George's County Councilmember Ingrid Turner.

At the end of June and again in early July, the museum welcomed over 60 Maryland educators for walking tours and training sessions funded by two "Teaching American History" grants. The first group of teachers came from Prince George's County schools and the second group was from Baltimore. All learned of Greenbelt's significant New Deal history and gained insight on teaching this history to their students.

For more information on happenings at the Greenbelt Museum (or to join) visit the website at www.GreenbeltMuseum.org.

area power system failure, causing the communication problem.

On Monday morning, Greenbelt Police got reconnected temporarily to other police agencies through a borrowed Prince George's County mobile communications center. After power was restored to the Police facility, Verizon redirected city 911 calls to the police non-emergency number pending restoration of the 911 system.

Police reported no significant accidents or crime that was storm related. The department was aware of only one fire, in a Greenbelt Homes townhouse at 5 Court Ridge Road. Minor damage was reported.

Empirian Village

While trees and tree limbs were down throughout the apartment complex, the most severe damage occurred in Section 9, where the roofs, shingles and plywood sheathing underneath were blown off of six buildings. According to McLaughlin, city Code Enforcement ordered the evacuation of about 65 apartment units.

With all the roof damage throughout the area, repairs could take some time to be accomplished, particularly in those Empirian Village buildings where engineering evaluation of roof trusses has been found to be necessary.

City officials planned to use The Giant Learning Center at the apartment complex for temporary housing and to bring in cots obtained through the county from Homeland Security. That plan proved to be unnecessary as most residents found other accommodations. A few received three-day vouchers for area motels from Empirian Village.

According to Lt. Carl Schinner of the Greenbelt Police, Empirian Village has offered displaced residents the choice of other units in the complex or cancellation of leases without penalty. It is hoped that early repairs to buildings, where possible, will enable many residents to return to their present premises.

Section 9, the last section of the apartment complex to be built, is located at the end of Edmonston Road adjacent to the Capital Beltway. It is also next to the tributary stream to Indian Creek that flows from Greenbelt Lake. This is the lowest area of the city.

Lakeside

Upstream from Section 9, on the shores of Greenbelt Lake, still a low area, is the other section of Greenbelt suffering the most serious damage. In Lakeside on Maplewood Court trees fell on three homes. Other trees fell onto homes on nearby Pinecrest Court.

McLaughlin reported that numerous trees fell on the Lakeside side of Greenbelt Lake, causing city officials to close the path around the lake between the bridge near the peninsula and the spillway beside the dam. At least five trees in a row were uprooted beside the path behind the homes on Maplewood Court.

A giant poplar tree was uprooted and fell onto the Marc Siegel family home, crushing the roof over the master bedroom. While the roots of the tree were on city park property behind the home, the top of the tree was near the street in front. A city crew was busy Tuesday morning removing the tree from the house and property. Smaller trees that also fell on the adjacent home were not yet removed and the extent of damage unknown.

Siegel pointed out an historic beech tree next to the poplar, upon the soft bark of which had been carved the initials of many early Greenbelters. The lake trail in this area is part of the original trail used by students to walk to Greenbelt High School (now Greenbelt Middle School).

While the beech was still upright, a large crack in the earth clearly indicated that the tree had been uprooted and the city forester advised Siegel that the tree would have to come down. Siegel has requested that the portion of the trunk carved with initials be saved and has offered to keep it.

Across the cul-de-sac from Siegel, a Public Works crew had earlier Tuesday removed an oak street tree leaning against the home of former Greenbelt City Clerk Gudrun Mills. That tree had been quickly sawed to pieces and the smaller branches ground up in the chipper. Mills' home appears to have sustained only minor damage.

Above, clean-up crews try to remove the tree which fell on a Charles-towne Village third floor roof. Below, what remains of a treehouse in Boxwood Village.

Nominate Your Outstanding Candidate

by Katrina Holloway

2010's Outstanding Citizen could be living right next door to you. No one will know, of course, without your nomination.

The deadline for submitting nominations for this year's Greenbelt Outstanding Citizen is drawing near with the completed nomination form due no later than Monday, August 2. All completed forms must be delivered, by mail or by hand, to Committee Chair Robert Zugby's residence at 94 Ridge Road in Greenbelt.

The Outstanding Citizen award is presented annually to a Greenbelt resident who has unselfishly contributed to the good of the community and to the citizens of Greenbelt. Past recipients have provided exemplary volunteer service, helping to make Greenbelt a desirable community in which to live. Outstanding Citizens in the past have worked on charitable causes and volunteered for city services, youth organizations and nonprofits, to name a few.

While the Committee will select the Outstanding Citizen, its job cannot be done without submissions from the community. This year's recipient may be that neighbor, volunteer, senior citizen, coach, church member or business person you have interacted with and wish you could show appreciation for the things they do.

Now is your chance. Let everyone else know what you know already – Greenbelt is a better place because of them.

The 38th recipient will be announced this September during the opening ceremonies of the Labor Day Festival and that person will serve as the Parade Marshal for Monday's Labor Day Parade.

If in the past you have nominated some deserving individual who has not been selected, the Committee encourages you to be persistent. Many talented residents in our community deserve to be recognized for their seen and unseen contributions. They do not do the work they do for recognition but for their willingness and desire to serve in their own way. They do not give up and neither should you!

The nomination form is easy to complete. Be sure to explain clearly why your nominee deserves to be selected by the committee. Include examples of their volunteer work and describe how their personal attributes make them an Outstanding Citizen of Greenbelt. Be sure to sign your form and include a contact number and address.

Who will be 2010's Outstanding Citizen? It is up to you!

At the intersection of Maplewood Court and Lakeside Drive, two large branches broke off a tree at the residence of Jan Watson and a large tree crashed in the back yard of the Charles Kendall residence.

Two streets away on Pinecrest Court, large backyard trees were observed to have fallen onto the roofs of two homes. No information on damages is available.

Other Areas

Throughout the city, other trees and branches fell, some causing damage. In Greenbelt East, city crews indicated that a lot of branches were lost on Bradford pear trees.

One significant tree fall was on Crescent Road near the Greenbelt Fire Station. There a tree fell across the road, obstructing traffic and bringing down power lines.

A live wire there prevented city crews from clearing the road until Pepco cut the power to the wire. Traffic had to be detoured by way of Northway and Hillside Road. By Tuesday morning, the tree had been pushed to the roadside and a Pepco crew was repairing the power lines.

Nearby, another large tree was uprooted and fell on a GHI honeymoon (one-story) cottage.

City Services

Due to the storm, city services were greatly curtailed Sunday night and much of Monday until power was restored. All recreation facilities were closed, according to McLaughlin. However, the Recreation Department kept open its camp programs since the weather was pleasant on Monday and the kids could stay outdoors without their being exposed to heat exhaustion.

No Christmas?

City officials have less than five months to determine what to do about the opening of the Festival of Lights ceremony. The official city holiday tree, a Blue Spruce, was never much of a tree. In fact, in past years city crews augmented its branches with those from other trees. There were also problems with getting light strings to work. But it was the official city tree.

Now the poor tree is broken in two with the top leaning against the base of the tree. Nearby are numerous branches from other trees at the Community Center front yard waiting for the chipper.

Please help the Outstanding Citizen Committee find the next outstanding citizen. Submit your nomination for that person whose volunteer service to our community has made him or her your choice to be the Greenbelt Outstanding Citizen of 2010.
