Member Sues to Force GHI To Ban Neighbor's Smoking

by Mary Willis Clarke

Greenbelt may be becoming a frontline in the tobacco wars which are raging between smokers' rights advocates and clean air activists. Greenbelt Homes, Inc (GHI) has been sued by one of its members for failing to enforce the provision of the Mutual Ownership Contract which requires members to refrain from "any act or thing that shall or may be a nuisance, annoyance, inconvenience" to their neighbors.

The GHI member/plaintiff includes his next door neighbors of 14 years in the lawsuit claiming that the next door neighbors/civil defendants' smoking in their unit and on their patio is a nuisance interfering with his enjoyment of his property and posing a danger to his health from secondhand smoke.

In a civil suit filed in Prince George's County Circuit Court, the non-smoking GHI member seeks $300,000 in compensatory damages plus an additional $300,000 in punitive damages to his health and the diminished market value of his cooperative townhouse unit. He also seeks an injunction banning his neighbors from smoking inside their townhouse or in the adjacent yards and a declaration that GHI violated his Mutual Ownership Contract when it did not forbid his neighbors to smoke. His attorneys in the lawsuit are Smoke-free DC board member J. P. Szymkowicz and Rita Turner who is the deputy director of the

by Jim Link

Sequoia Austin is a diminutive 5' 5" and her jersey number - "0" - means "nothing." There is nothing small, however, about her impact on the Maryland Terrapins women's basketball team. Since she walked on to Coach Brenda Frese's nationally-ranked squad without a scholarship at the beginning of the 2010 season, Austin has hustled her way into the hearts of fans, gained the respect of teammates and enormously impressed her coaches.

"She jumped right in from day one, showed up in great shape, blended in beautifully and did well academically," said Coach Frese. "She had a great fall semester and is gaining the respect of everyone around her," she added.

Sequoia typically sparks the crowd and the team when she enters a game. "It's a big thrill to hear the crowd and your teammates cheering you on," she said. Dribbling feverishly, she often hears the crowd yell, "Shoot it!" If she sinks her shot, the crowd yells, appreciatively and eponymously, "Tree! Tree!"

It's virtually impossible for a player on a nationally-ranked team not to have hoop dreams of playing pro ball but Sequoia seems pretty grounded about that prospect. "Basketball can take

by Thomas X. White

Although eclipsed by Greenbelt City Manager Michael McLaughlin's presentation of his proposed Fiscal Year 2012 budget at the March 28 city council meeting, other items on the agenda also drew council attention. A proposed city ordinance and a resolution were introduced for first reading. City action regarding notice for residential property foreclosures was also proposed. In addition Mayor Judith Davis made a request regarding the 2011 National League of Cities meeting.

The first presentation was an opportunity for Aaron Marcavitch, new director of the Anacostia Trails Heritage Area (ATHA), to introduce himself and brief council on recent restructuring of ATHA and discuss the group's initiatives. Marcavitch said ATHA has been transformed from a quasi-governmental entity into a nonprofit organization with a governing body for overall policy and a management board for day-to-day operations.

Funding opportunities for projects in the ATHA area will continue to focus on the Anacostia Trails Area but he sees ATHA reaching out to other cities and towns in Prince George's County, such as Laurel and Bowie, in order to stimulate more interest in the business community for tourism in the county. He described a concentrated effort as well to promote the 200th anniversary of the War of 1812 and the major battle which took place in the Port Towns area surrounding Bladensburg.

Marcavitch noted the juxtaposition of that celebration with the 75th Anniversary of Greenbelt's founding, the 125th anniversary for Hyattsville and a more expanded 1812-1814 celebration in Baltimore.

Members of council wished Marcavitch well with the new organization. When he noted that a May 8 planning meeting is scheduled in Greenbelt, councilmembers suggested that attention be directed to better signage for the ATHA area and improved connectivity for ATHA trails like those around Lake Artemesia in College Park and Berwyn Heights.

Disclosure

Introduced for first reading was a proposed update of the Greenbelt city code on Financial Disclosure. Proposed changes would require certain city employees (those not covered by a collective bargaining agreement and classified at or above Salary Grade 22 as well as police command staff at the rank of or above lieutenant) to file an annual report of gifts received for the previous year on or before April 30 of each year.

Also introduced for first reading was a resolution to negotiate upgrades to the outdoor swimming pool from Wilcoxon Construction of Rockville at a cost not to exceed $38,000. This work is required by the Prince George's County Health

CARES 2012 Budget at $854,000 Remains Same Level as Last Year

by Jonathan Taylor

Director Liz Park presented her department's accomplishments Monday, April 4 in a Fiscal Year 2012 budget worksession on Social Services. The proposed budget includes $854,000 for Greenbelt CARES. All councilmembers were present, with the exception of Councilmember Leta Mach, who sent in questions.

The budget emphasizes the "Greenbelt CARES" name, chosen in part to eliminate confusion with Prince George's County Department of Social Services. Greenbelt CARES provides an array of social services and educational programs to enhance the quality of life for Greenbelt residents in addition to those provided by the county.

Park explained the name also was chosen to underscore the department's philosophy and vision. The letters don't stand for anything, she said, "It's just that we care." Council agreed.

"These programs are so important to us," Councilmember Silke Pope said, referencing her own observations of CARES in action at Springhill Lake Elementary School.

Youth and Family Services, the largest component of Greenbelt CARES with a proposed budget of $584,500, is the department's family counseling program that promotes responsible behavior and family management skills.

CARES also provides vocational/educational services including GED, ESOL, babysitting and tutoring classes; staff liaison to the Advisory Committee on Education; and the Crisis Intervention Program. The latter provides crisis counseling to victims of crime and follow-up services to individuals who may have had contact with the police because of a suicide, death of a family member or a community crisis.

While the budget is at about the same level as the current year, city funding will be increased by $30,600 due to the loss of grants from other organizations. A federal and state grant that funded a part-time juvenile delinquency outreach counselor will phase out this December. The budget proposes using other unspent funds to pay for that position until the end of the fiscal year and sets as an objective for the budget year of finding additional funds for future years.

Recent CARES' accomplishments include a finding by the Maryland Department of Juvenile Services that 97 percent of the young people counseled through CARES in Fiscal Year 2008 were not adjudicated delinquent two years after counseling ended.

"I see the difference that it makes. You're doing an awesome job. People here in Greenbelt are so fortunate to have you," Pope said.

Mayor Judith Davis enthusiastically noted the 10-year anniversary of Greenbelt Assistance in Living (GAIL), a division of Greenbelt CARES. GAIL provides information and support to enable seniors to remain in their homes. It is slated to receive $269,500 in FY12, an amount

Single-fee Season Now For Boys & Girls Club

The Boys and Girls Club now offers five sporting seasons covering four different sports. All of these are available for the same annual fee. It is now also possible to pay a single season fee to join the Boys and Girls Club thus decreasing the entry cost of membership over what was previously available.

Being able to participate in multiple sports for the annual cost of the Boys and Girls Club represents a very good value to Greenbelt citizens.

Kimba Came Home!

During the early morning hours of March 29 our beloved kitty, Kimba, escaped out of the house and disappeared for five days. We were incredibly worried about him and informed as many people as we could about his disappearance with posters and flyers. We delivered flyers to over 350 houses in the neighborhood.

So many people were galvanized into action. We received many phone calls with advice and suggestions about how we might track him and find him. Although no one had actually seen the kitty, many were worried and remained on the lookout. In fact, several friends and neighbors spent their own time looking for Kimba. In the early morning hours of April 3 my husband found him and brought him home. He is just fine, although a bit dehydrated and thinner.

My husband and I would like to express our gratitude to the Greenbelt community for everyone's help and thoughts during this frightening time. Kimba is an amazing creature and we are so grateful for everyone's help in his return. In these times of sadness and tragedy, it is so good to know that we as a community will come together to help one another. It is even better to be able to jointly celebrate something good.

Thank you.

Izolda Trakhtenberg

THANKS!

A big thank you goes out to the Greenbelt Volunteer Fire Department and Rescue Squad and the Greenbelt Police Department for their quick response when my mom, Dee Ronchi, took a bad fall. They were extremely polite, considerate, helpful and most professional.

Also a sincere thank you to next door neighbor Elizabeth Jay, who heard my mom and called for help.

Luckily my mom is ok.

Once again we see how our community works together to help each other. We are so fortunate to have such excellent emergency professionals we can always count on.

"Eyre" Today and Tomorrow

The latest film delving into "Jane Eyre" – based on the period novel by Charlotte Bronte – opens at Old Greenbelt Theatre on Friday, April 8. Set in 19th-century Britain, the tale takes the staunch title character through trials and tribulations with a nasty aunt, an abusive girls' school and with that ever-elusive man of parts, Edward Rochester. In director Cary Joji Fukunaga's richly-caperisoned version, Mia Wasikowska is called upon to show the spirit of the independent-minded governess who has drawn so many readers to the novel and viewers to earlier adaptations (going back to 1910).

PG-13, 120 minutes.

General Government Worksession On Budget Gets the Ducks in a Row

by Thomas X. White

Right on the heels of City Manager Michael McLaughlin's proposed Fiscal Year 2012 budget presentation on March 28, the Greenbelt City Council held its first budget worksession on Wednesday, March 30 in the Community Center Multi-purpose Room. All councilmembers were present and McLaughlin, Assistant City Manager David Moran and City Treasurer Jeff Williams provided background materials for the session.

Although McLaughlin had fulfilled his charter obligation to present his proposed budget at the earlier Monday council meeting, the actual printed budget document was still not ready for this Budget Overview and General Government Worksession. City staff had, however, placed the budget on the city website. Because of a breakdown of the city copying machine, the actual printed budget documents would not be available until the following week. (See the Proposed FY12 Budget at www.greenbeltmd.gov. Click on the link to Budget on the left to find a menu that includes the proposed FY12 budget.)

Council Initiative

Mayor Judith Davis has developed a tradition at the first budget worksession to ask the city manager for documents, charts, graphs or lists of information that have been, or may be, useful as council reviews the budget. This year other councilmembers are joining that parade.

Davis started the night's review with a look back at the city manager's March 28 transmittal letter for the Proposed Fiscal Year 2012 Budget. Individual requests for information flowed from there.

Davis requested a rundown of council expenses for attendance at conferences and an explanation of the city functions covered by the County Tax Differential formula. She also noted the city has received state certification of having met the "Constant Yield Tax Rate" for Fiscal Year 2011. Councilmember Leta Mach requested staff to better identify program areas that appear out of order in the budget document or are the responsibility of one department but charged in another department's budget. Councilmember Emmett Jordan asked for a list of all grant requests from other agencies the city has made during the year.

Both Jordan and Councilmember Konrad Herling reiterated requests for more efforts by the city in reaching out to the Greenbelt business community. More generally they sought to build individual relationships rather than to deal with groups such as shopping districts and hotels. They noted from budget materials that there are nearly 1,000 businesses in Greenbelt.

Jordan also pushed for a more focused look at city fee-supported programs and Davis suggested that the manager's request for consideration of debt refinancing and a new bond issue for capital projects be discussed at a separate, added budget worksession.

Budget Elements

Another important item to council is the June 2011 renewal of the city's contract for operating the Old Greenbelt Theatre, which McLaughlin had indicated had a one-year renewal option.

With the manager's budget proposal to raise waste collection rates, councilmembers asked for a comparison of Greenbelt rates with those of other jurisdictions and/or private haulers. McLaughlin said that is usually provided at the Public Works budget worksession.

Another request arose during review of the manager's letter, which on page 4 listed various savings to help the city meet the challenges of a static economy. Council urged that information be included in the actual budget document.

Pages 6, 7 and 8 of the manager's transmittal letter list the "Goals for FY 2012" derived from the city 2008 visioning exercise and the 2009 council goal. Led by the mayor, this section engendered a considerable discussion, especially on Goal #8, "Maintain and Improve Fiscal Sustainability."

Davis wanted an additional element accommodating electronic payment options for city transactions. Herling and Jordan pressed city efforts to expand outreach to the Greenbelt business community.

A section of the transmittal letter discussed the Tax Differential system where Greenbelt taxpayers pay a lower tax rate to the county and the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission based on a formula crediting city service in those areas. The manager's letter said that the county tax differential for Greenbelt would be decreased by .005 cents causing Greenbelt taxpayers a slight increase (.002 cents) in the county tax rate from 78.3 cents to 78.5 cents.

McLaughlin explained that since the tax differential formula is finite, the 26 municipalities share the "pie." Since the City of Bowie has established its own police department, Bowie gets a proportionate share increase and Greenbelt's share decreases.

Capital Improvements

During discussion of the Capital Improvements section in the transmittal letter, the topic of "Gateway" signs for entering Greenbelt came up. Under Replacement Fund council focused on a $35,000 item to replace the city's aerial lift truck.

McLaughlin said the current truck needed to be replaced. He added that the City of College Park has expressed interest in sharing the cost of the replacement vehicle.

Council next turned to the budget itself. Nine individual budgets are included in the General Government section. These are City Council, City Administration, Elections, Finance & Administrative Services, Information Technology, Legal Counsel, Municipal Building, Public Information and Community Promotion, and Public Officers Associations. Although the Greenbelt Museum director is included among the 18.5 General Government staff positions, the museum budget is included in the budget's Miscellaneous section.

General Government

Overall expenditures proposed for General Government total $ 2,609,000, which is $75,000 over the adopted FY11 budget and $21,400 over the estimated actual transactions for the account in FY11.

$22,000 of that increase is attributable to costs of the November 2011 city election. No increase in staffing is proposed but most other increases can be attributed to higher costs in employee benefits.

In a note labeled "Workload," the budget document discusses a longstanding staff concern. "Additional staff can be well utilized in every department," the document says, "if resources were available. Specifically within General Government, the expansion of council from five to seven has caused an increased workload, especially as more councilmembers have become more involved in other regional organizations."

In addition, plans for a 75th anniversary for the city in 2012, the city's potential use of or responsibility for the historic portion of the Greenbelt Middle School and the conduct of a city election in November will further stress the administrative staff. Also noted was that the assistant city manager provides up to 50 percent of his time to state and county legislative or policy issues.

Near the end of the worksession one citizen focused on council's participation in conferences away from the city. Although recognizing the value of participation to the councilmember or to the city through new ideas, the speaker felt that in a tough budget period this might be an area that could be reduced.

Another citizen was more interested in transparency concerning such conference-related costs as being borne by taxpayers, feeling some of those costs should possibly be shared by councilmembers.

Department following its inspection of the main outdoor pool and is needed for an annual license before the pool opening on May 28.

Councilmember Emmett Jordan, noting that the Wilcoxon bid was highest of three bids received for the project, wondered why the other bids had been rejected. McLaughlin said that after checking the bidders' credentials and experience, Wilcoxon had a much better record. Seventy-five percent of the of the project's cost can be covered through Project Open Space funds.

Following a previous council request McLaughlin sought direction on developing proposed legislation requiring those individuals authorized to conduct foreclosure sales of real property to provide written notice to the city within five calendar days after filing an Order to Docket or a complaint to Foreclose a Mortgage or Deed of Trust on a residential property in the city. The city solicitor had crafted the proposed legislation based on similar legislation in force in College Park.

Its impetus is the need for the city's Code Enforcement staff to be aware in advance of such sales to assure that code violations associated with such foreclosed properties are addressed as part of the sale. Council had questions regarding timing of such notices and whether the legislation could include notifications for condominiums, cooperatives and homeowner associations.

National Meeting

At the request of Mayor Judith Davis, council approved a letter to the National League of Cities registering concern regarding scheduling of the November 8-12, 2011, Congress of Cities meeting in Phoenix, Ariz. This date conflicts with scheduled municipal elections on November 8. Officials from those cities may have to forego or miss part of the proceedings.

By a vote of five to two, with Councilmembers Rodney Roberts and Jordan voting no, council approved a motion to purchase a compact hybrid sport utility vehicle (SUV) to replace two older vehicles in the Recreation Department. The 2011 Ford Escape Hybrid SUV, costing $26,698, would be used primarily to accompany other recreation-sponsored vehicles on trips outside the city for carrying cargo and being available to return participants to Greenbelt because of illness or other emergency.

As in nearly every year for the past 25, the city received a Fiscal Year 2011 award for Distinguished Budget Presentation from the Government Finance Officers Association.

State Legislation

Council considered and supported unanimously four pieces of legislation supported by the Maryland Municipal League which may get through the waning days of the Maryland General Assembly session in Annapolis.

The first item, SB 822 and HB 1188, would establish a "Communities for a Lifetime" program in Maryland. The law would create a state plan and provide resources to local governments to facilitate aging-in-place programs. The bills had been recommended by a Statewide Empowerment Zones for Seniors Commission. In a 2009 report the Commission cited the Greenbelt Assistance in Living (GAIL) program for "Best Practice" in such programs.

HB 1234 would establish a state task force to study and identify opportunities for placement underground of existing overhead utility lines. Its purpose would be to reduce increasing incidents of power outages due to falling trees.

HB 1137 would allow a local government to enact laws requiring banks or investment firms owning residential property to secure it and keep it free of dead or overgrown vegetation and debris.

The last bill, HB 1055, would prohibit wireless communication towers on public school property in Prince George's County. This prohibition stemmed from a potential health problem associated with communication towers.

that includes $76,200 for the operation of the Green Ridge House Service Coordination Program. That program is entirely funded by a federal grant and funds paid by Green Ridge House.

"You have a very good team," Davis said.

In response to a question from Councilmember Emmett Jordan, City Manager Michael McLaughlin reported that about half of the residents served by GAIL reside in Greenbelt Center, with the majority of the remainder from Greenbelt East. He said this mirrors the distribution of seniors living alone among the three parts of Greenbelt.

The proposed FY12 Greenbelt CARES budget accounts for about 3.4 percent of proposed city expenditures – the same level adopted in the Fiscal Year 2011 budget. Performance measures cited by the department indicate that it expects to serve about the same number of people in FY12 as they did in FY11. No changes in professional staffing levels are planned.

Greenbelt's budgeting process continues through May 25 with additional worksessions on public safety, capital projects, public works and recreation, among others. Public hearings will be held on April 26 and May 23 at 8 p.m. in the council room.

One Greenbelt resident who attended Monday's worksession – and plans to attend all the others – invited fellow residents to join her. "The sessions," she said, "are a wonderful opportunity to learn more about the city."

Greenbelt resident Alejandra Vides-Austin participated in the 18th Annual Sierra Youth Cribbage Tournament in Grass Valley, Cal. "Ale" placed 5th overall.

Greenbelt Girl, 8, Shines In Youth Cribbage Tourney

by Margaret Austin

Alejandra Vides-Austin, an eight-year-old Greenbelt resident and former St. Hugh's School student, made it to the quarter-finals and finished fifth overall in her age group in the 18th Annual Sierra Youth Cribbage Tournament in Grass Valley, Cal.

Nicknamed Ale, she began learning to play cribbage last year from her mother, becoming a member of the family's fifth generation of cribbage players. In the fall she started regular practice sessions with her grandmother, with the goal of attending the longest-running and best-known youth cribbage tournament in the country.

For the uninitiated, cribbage is a card game that requires a grasp of math skills, knowledge of game rules, a good deal of luck and, for tournament play, the ability to complete a game in 20 minutes.

Bright and early on March 12 Alejandra and almost 60 other youths were at the Chicago Park School in Grass Valley, eager to test their skills against each other. Alejandra was the youngest player and played in the eight-to-11-year-old group of about 25 children. Imagine her excitement when she realized she could play with the best of them!

Until the tournament, she had played only with adults, either in her family or at Greenbelt's Tuesday night strategy games sessions at the Greenbelt Youth Center, where she is well known. In Grass Valley she found kindred spirits as eager as she to win their share of games. She won five of her six tournament games and went to the third game of a best two-out-of-three in the quarter-finals.

Back in the fall we tried to generate some interest in local schools for a cribbage session in their after-school programs. In California several schools use cribbage as a teaching tool in their math classes in 4th to 6th grade. It is an awesome card game.

Since I couldn't spend enough time to drum up interest in the schools in an after-school cribbage program, I concentrated on my granddaughter, who absolutely loves the game! What a pleasure to know that old-fashioned games can still be totally awesome for young kids.

Margaret Austin is Alejandra's grandmother.

Vides-Austin takes her card shuffling very seriously.

Dems Meeting Topic Is on Labor Unions

The next meeting of Greenbelt's Eleanor and Franklin Roosevelt Democratic Club is at 7:30 p.m. on Friday, April 15 at the Greenbriar Community Center. The guest speaker will be Denise Riley, the political director of Maryland state and D.C. AFL-CIO.

Recent conservative political and business leaders have moved against labor rights in states like Wisconsin in the name of fiscal responsibility, threatening decades of union movement struggle and many human and environmental programs. State and federal employees and employees of union companies are not exempt when collective bargaining, basic to equality between owners/management and labor/unions, is eroded. Riley will offer ideas on how to counter these serious anti-labor moves and still be fiscally responsible. There will be time for questions and answers after her presentation.

All are welcome; light refreshments will be served.

CROP Walk

The Roosevelt Club will again participate in the annual ecumenical community CROP Hunger Walk around Lake Artemesia in College Park on Sunday afternoon, May 1. Walkers turn in their sponsors' donations to Church World Service, an established and highly rated charity. The funds are used for emergency food in Prince George's County, shelter during natural crises and self-help development in 70 countries including the U.S. The club welcomes people to join in walking with them. For more information call Marty at 301-552-9329.

Hoyer Opens Annual Art Competition

Greenbelt's Congressman Steny H. Hoyer has issued a call to high school student artists in Maryland's Fifth Congressional District for the annual Congressional Art Competition, which is now open for submissions. The winner's art is displayed in the U.S. Capitol for a year. Members of Congress showcase art of students in their districts in display space in the main corridor connecting House of Representatives office buildings with the Capitol, a walkway through which millions of visitors travel.

To participate students should contact Congressman Hoyer's Waldorf District Office at 301-843-1577 for competition guidelines. All artwork must be delivered to one of Hoyer's district offices (in Greenbelt at 6500 Cherrywood Lane, Suite 310) by 5 p.m. on Friday, May 6. The following week a panel from the Fifth District arts community including art teachers and professional artists will review the submissions to select one piece to represent Hoyer's district in the Capitol exhibit. All other entries are displayed in the Congressman's Waldorf office. The winner will also be invited to attend a reception at the Capitol in June.

Neighbor's Complaints

In the lawsuit, the plaintiff complains that his neighbors' cigarette smoking causes him "serious discomfort, irritation and illness (including headaches, irritated eyes and an irritated nose)."

He presents the findings of consultant James L. Repace, visiting assistant clinical professor, Department of Family and Community Medicine at Tufts University School of Medicine. Repace, author of over 80 scientific papers, is a nationally recognized expert on the effects of secondhand tobacco smoke and his work has been quoted in surgeons' general reports on the adverse health effects of smoking. Repace used a nicotine monitor to measure the level of nicotine in the townhouse unit for 33 days. The monitoring found that the average nicotine level in the plaintiff's home and his average daily secondhand smoke/nicotine exposure, produces an excess chronic mortality risk that exceeds by 910 times the de minimis risk level used by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency for hazardous air pollutants.

Consultant Repace's report referenced the 2006 Health Consequences of Involuntary Exposure to Tobacco Smoke: A Report of the surgeon general finding that there are at least 250 chemicals in secondhand smoke that are known to be toxic or carcinogenic. The surgeon general described compounds in slipstream tobacco smoke (that smoke to which non-smoking bystanders are exposed) that are known to cause pulmonary edema, immune alterations, cardiac arrhythmias and hepatotoxic and neurologic conditions. According to Repace, epidemiological studies have "convincingly" demonstrated that secondhand smoke is associated with an increased risk for cardiovascular disease and estimated increase in risk of cardiovascular disease from exposure to secondhand smoke is 25 to 30 percent above that of unexposed persons.

GHI Position

In response, GHI emphasizes that it has done all that can be done structurally and in mediating between neighbors and that it is not a non-smoking community.

The housing cooperative describes complaints about smoke odors from both the current lawsuit's plaintiff and the neighbors on the other side beginning soon after the smokers moved in. In 1997 GHI maintenance crews sealed wall openings between the smokers' unit and plaintiff's unit and also the common wall with the neighbors on the other side. These efforts are estimated by GHI as costing approximately $10,000 in parts and labor to seal wall openings. When the 1997 work was completed, GHI retained an industrial hygienist who noted the excellent job of sealing possible smoke migration pathways; the industrial hygienist detected no smoke odors at that time.

GHI describes extensive renovations by the non-smoking plaintiff to his unit in 2008 which stripped parts of walls down to the studs. Not long after the renovations, plaintiff's complaints of smoke odors began again. Extensive efforts at mediation by staff, a member complaints panel and the board of directors could not resolve the differences between neighbors. After all of its attempts at conciliation, GHI notified the non-smoking plaintiff member that nothing more could be done about his complaint since it is not a non-smoking community.

In a court filing, GHI also notes that although all members have the ability to propose/request rules changes, plaintiff has never requested that GHI or any part of it be made smoke-free.

Decreased Smoking

The GHI members who are civil defendants in the lawsuit claim that they no longer smoke inside of their townhouse. One of the couple has developed a lung tumor and has ceased smoking while the other, in consideration of the spouse's medical condition, only smokes outside on the patio.

Impact on Neighbors

Because the plaintiff sought an immediate injunction, there was a preliminary hearing in August 2010 at which three neighbors, not parties to the lawsuit, testified. The neighbor on the other side of the smokers' unit testified to the exacerbation of her asthma when the tobacco smoke enters her unit. She has to use her rescue inhaler and has moved to a bedroom on the opposite side of the house from where her neighbors typically smoke. She described smoke odors in her clothing stored in a closet adjacent to the common wall with the smoking neighbors. She said she could not use her screened porch when the neighbors smoked outside and has to shut her windows to try to keep smoke from patio smoking from coming into her unit.

Other neighbors, not adjacent to the smokers' townhouse, described having to close their windows against the smoke and developing headaches from exposure to the smoke.

Current Status

After the preliminary hearing in August 2010, Prince George's County Circuit Court Judge Albert Northrup denied a motion for a declaratory judgment that the secondhand smoke was a nuisance prescribed by the GHI Mutual Ownership Contract, denied a motion to order the smokers not to smoke outside on their patio and issued a temporary order, with the consent of the smoking defendants, forbidding smoking inside the townhouse unit. The non-smoking plaintiff has appealed the denial of the declaratory judgment and the injunction against outside smoking to the Maryland Court of Special Appeals. A full trial of remaining issues is scheduled for later this year.

Sequoia Austin, small in stature and tall in performance.

you only so far," she said. "I need to stay humble but, if I had the opportunity, I'd like to take advantage of it."

Alternative dreams? As a secondary education major specializing in biology, Sequoia could be teaching science to high school kids someday.

Would coaching the girls' team tempt her? "Yep! It would be wonderful!"

Grandmother a Fan

Sequoia's number one fan is clearly her grandmother, Margaret Austin. Sequoia spent formative high school years in Greenbelt with Margaret on Ridge Road while Sequoia played point guard for four years for the Holton-Arms School. Mrs. Austin in 1999 moved from Springhill Lake to Ridge Road, where she now lives. A legal secretary with a law firm in Washington, D.C., she is a season ticket holder who attends every home game and some away games, whenever she can.

"I bought tickets even before I knew she had made the team. I had that much confidence in her," said the proud grandmother. "When she puts her mind to something, she sticks with it."

Austin tactfully deflected my question about Sequoia's possible future as a pro player. "I always want for her what makes her happy; I see her as a fantastic teacher. She makes good choices," Austin said.

One good choice Sequoia made was to listen to Gary Daniels, a family friend who, before she entered high school, encouraged her to play basketball. After learning to play haphazardly at age 4 (!), Sequoia improved her game exponentially when, as she says, Daniels "began working with me. He's an important part of my development as a player." Daniels now coaches AAU Team Sol.

Sequoia was pleasantly shocked at a Christmas party at Coach Frese's home last December – her Secret Santa gift was a basketball scholarship. "We always do a gift exchange at Christmas time," Frese explained, "and the coaching staff and I made a big certificate and put it in a manila folder. When Sequoia read the good news, she started screaming and crying."

Coach Frese echoed the sentiments of many when she said, "Sequoia is quite an addition to our team and our program. She's a very special girl."

"I'd love to coach," Sequoia asserted unambiguously.

Condolences to the family and friends of longtime resident Virginia Hunt, who died March 27, 2011. She and her family have lived in Greenbelt since 1955.

We were saddened to hear of the death of Merle E. Scheibel.

Our sympathy to Tricia Dabbs and other family members on the death of her mother, Green Ridge House resident Beatrice H. Nee.

Congratulations to:

– the ERHS Destination Imagination team, the Eleanor Roosevelt Juniors – who will be attending Destination Imagination Global Finals in Knoxville, Tenn., at the end of May, where they will compete against teams from 20 countries.

– ERHS 10th grader Alice Noll, who has been selected to participate in the National Student Leadership Conference this summer at Fordham University. She is the daughter of Franklin and Ellen Noll of Boxwood Village.

– Cub Scout Yusuf Khan, of Greenbelt Pack 202, who won first place in the Wolf Division at the Prince George's County District Pinewood Derby Race held at Reid Temple on Saturday, March 26.

– David Gardner, of Greenbelt Middle School, who received an Honorable Mention in the mathematics category in the Prince George's County Science, Technology, Engineering and Mathematics Fair. He also received awards from the Washington Statistical Society and the US Navy for his project, "A Byte of Pi."

– Siobhán Milligan and Kirk Cemper on the birth of their son, Declan Roger, on March 23, 2011. He is the grandson of former Greenbelter Marci McGee Milligan and the first great-grandchild of Bernie McGee and Jim Giese.

Family and friends gathered at Sir Walter Raleigh Inn on March 26 to celebrate Dee Ronchi's 90th birthday. Family and friends including great-grandchildren gathered from Florida, Tennessee, New Jersey and locally to celebrate the happy occasion. Happy Birthday Dee!

Our gratitude to 1st Lt. Angela Cho, who is currently serving in Japan in the U.S. Air Force Japan relief mission, Operation Tomodachi. She is on the night-shift reception line processing incoming Air Force personnel, 1,500 thus far, supporting Operation Tomodachi.

Greenbelt's CERT team – Charlene Backstrom, Stacy Hindalong, Larry Hull, Rena Hull, Clement Lau, Karen Seaton, Ken Silberman, Melanie Taylor and Lester Whitmer – were honored on April 2 with each receiving a certificate and a key to the city of Laurel on completion of the "All-Hazards Homeland Security Initiative: Community Partnerships and Awareness Training for Disaster Preparedness."

Send us your reports of new babies, awards, honors, etc. to share with our readers. We'd especially like to hear more from our neighbors in Greenbelt East and Greenbelt West (Franklin Park). Goddard's Webb Telescope Awes Area Science Writers

by Eric Villard

On Saturday, March 26 members of the D.C. Science Writers Association (DCSWA) got a behind-the-scenes look at the planning for the James Webb Space Telescope (JWST), the most ambitious and challenging space astronomy project since Hubble Space Telescope.

Scientists and engineers at NASA's Goddard Space Flight Center (GSFC) in Greenbelt wowed visiting DCSWA members and guests with an information session and tour of the facilities where Webb is under development. Deputy Technical Project Manager Paul Geithner and Research Astrophysicist Amber Straughn presented both the technical and scientific sides of the JWST endeavor.

The engineering hurdles of Webb require nothing short of perfection: launching the folded telescope and ensuring it is as graceful as an origami crane when it comes time to unfold, polishing mirrors such that they deform to just the right shape when exposed to the cold of space and shielding the sensitive array from the glare of the sun while somehow balancing the extreme heat on Webb's sunshield with the extreme cold on its shadowed side. A daunting task? Yes, but doable with NASA know-how and perseverance, say the engineers.

All of the hard work has the promised payoff of allowing humanity to gaze farther into the cosmos than ever before and see further back in time than was ever possible, back to the epoch of the very first stars and galaxies that first lit up the cosmos when the universe was only a few percent of its current age. A little closer to home, the telescope will look at nearby exoplanets' atmospheres and perhaps determine if they could be suitable homes for life.

Writers Intrigued

The presentations intrigued DCSWA science writers and their younger guests alike. This showed how the telescope's cultural impact transcends generations with the enticing and timeless questions it will address: are we alone in the universe? How were the galaxies born and how did they evolve? The writers had no shortage of questions for their hosts regarding the complexities and meticulous operations planned for the immense space observatory.

The day ended with a visit to GSFC Building 29 Spacecraft Systems Development and Integration Facility. Visitors were captivated by the sight of one of the largest clean rooms in the world. Pieces of Webb are coming together here from manufacturing facilities and instrument development labs spread across the United States, Canada and Europe. The visitors were especially fascinated by the fact that components of Webb and ultimately its fully assembled segments mirror must travel back and forth across the country in special trucks to various fabrication and testing facilities. Visitors looked with awe upon various pieces of Webb, including its spare mirror. The large golden shimmering object is only one of many that will comprise Webb's segmented "fly's-eye" array that is 6.5 meters across.

And the excitement over the telescope is not simply confined to the Goddard campus. JWST has even gone viral on more than one occasion. A video blog by Vlogbrothers explains just how awesome the Webb Telescope is (<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=ihpNNBmJypE>). Meanwhile, star-struck rapper Milky J mourned Hubble's departure on Late Night with Jimmy Fallon (<http://www.nasa.gov/topics/people/features/nasa-gotchu.html>). But there's no need to mourn; Hubble had its glorious heyday. New discovery, thy name is Webb.

Like Hubble, Webb promises to inspire a new generation of sky watchers. And given GSFC's monumental care and upgrading of the Hubble Space Telescope, Webb is the next logical step to ushering in an exciting new era of space astronomy.

Eric Villard is a freelance science writer.

Poetry Month – Surf's Up In Waves of Verse Here

by Jim Link

Two lovely waves of poetry washed into Greenbelt last week, the first at the New Deal Café on Tuesday, March 29 and the second at the Greenbelt Library on Saturday, April 2. Both celebrated April as National Poetry Month. The first was casual, loose, bohemian, spontaneous, funky; the second was tighter, more formal, better organized, more cerebral; both were charged, erotic, laced with lyrical beauty and disturbing images.

At the Café Amethyst Dwyer jump-started the crowd with a passionate recitation of "Sacred Sensual Dance" and convinced us that "we have come to be danced." Other vivid phrases included "the camaraderie of the foxhole" (Janet); "the trees' twiggy greed tried to throw a net over the sun" (Mark); "the meat cleaver is on the downswing; your head is about to be parted like the Red Sea" (Rocky); "the soft sacrament of her skin, it's her body again" (Rob); "In spring a young man's fancy turns to thoughts of – Viagra!" (Alfred); "It is a tale told by an idiot, full of sound and fury, signifying nothing." (Shakespeare channeled by Paul); "We are all just made of light." (Fred).

More than 20 readers facilitated by Don Comis gave the evening a jazzy frisson.

At the library over a dozen poets celebrated the theme "Poetry Connects Communities." Their mysterious and tender phrases included "Play is my work" (Anne); "Poetry is where you find it" (Kathleen); "In the very essence of poetry there is something indecent" (Yahia); "the purpose of poetry is to remind us how difficult it is to remain just one person" (Taneika); "I am the deep silence at the core of your being" (Hollis); "Some poems are like kissing porcupines" (Jen); "All my life I have been a bride married to amazement; I was a bridegroom taking the world into my arms" (Mary Oliver, read by Rob). Chris read poems commemorating those who died in the 1911 Triangle Shirtwaist Fire. Eighty-five-year-old Elois thrilled the crowd with two love poems.

The efforts and generosity of branch manager Ellen Utley and literary activist Jacqueline Miller Byrd were crucial to the afternoon's success.

Catch the next wave on Tuesday, April 19 at the New Deal Café.

Help Clean Dragonfly Refuge on Sunday

As part of its Earth Month commemoration, the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission (WSSC) is planning a cleanup on Sunday, April 10 from 9 a.m. to noon at Browns Bridge in Silver Spring, a favorite spot for dragonflies.

Trash and weeds are threatening the Browns Bridge site that is the best place on the Patuxent River to see dragonflies. WSSC is seeking help to clean this special spot and will provide all materials needed for the cleanup.

Browns Bridge is at 2220 Ednor Road in Silver Spring.

Seniors Offered Free Movie

The Publick Playhouse at 5445 Landover Road in Cheverly, presents a free movie for seniors on Tuesday, April 12 at 11 a.m.

"The Longshots" is based on a true story about a poor Illinois town that comes together behind the local Pop Warner football team and their unlikely quarterback, Jasmine Plummer. She was the first female to play in the event's 56-year history. Under the tutelage of her Uncle Curtis, she led her team and inspired her town to reclaim some of its former glory. Advance registration is required and may be made by calling 301-277-1710.

Top 5 Dental Procedures For a Beautiful Smile

McCarl Dental Group

Are you self-conscious about your smile? A healthy smile contributes more than just beauty; it is a vital component of good overall health. Every day dental patients ask about options for improving the health and appearance of their smile. The great news is that dental procedures and especially cosmetic dental procedures have improved dramatically over the last 10 to 15 years. As a result, there's an array of affordable options that are no longer a luxury limited to Hollywood celebrities. There are a wide range of choices available for improving the health and appearance of your smile. Speak to a dental professional who can help you determine which dental procedures are best for your needs.

If you've thought about improving your smile, this guide can help you learn about the latest techniques in dentistry and cosmetic dental procedures.

Invisalign Orthodontics is a simple and convenient way to straighten your teeth. Clear, thin Invisalign trays straighten teeth and correct your bite. Unlike metal braces, almost no one else can tell you are wearing Invisalign. Straightening crooked teeth with Invisalign orthodontics is more comfortable, more convenient, less expensive and usually faster than metal braces. For most adults, treatment time is just under one year. Overall gum and bone health are improved when teeth are properly aligned and fit together with an ideal bite. Straight teeth are not only important for a beautiful smile - they contribute to a healthy smile!

Dental Implants are an excellent example of the benefits of new dental technology and are often an ideal solution for replacing missing teeth. A dental implant serves as a tooth root and anchors a replacement tooth, bridge or denture to your jaw. When dental implants are restored with porcelain crowns, they look, feel and function like natural teeth. One of the most common uses of mini dental implants is stabilization of dentures. Anchoring a denture with one or more dental implants solves problems commonly associated with dentures, including concern and discomfort from loose and poorly fitting dentures.

Teeth Whitening or Bleaching with professional whitening gel often reduces or eliminates tooth stains and discoloration that occurs over time. Patients have great success with the Zoom and DayWhite custom take home whitening tray systems. The results can be achieved quickly and you can enjoy whiter teeth for a long time.

Porcelain Veneers are a thin layer of porcelain applied to the front of teeth. Veneers allow dentists to change the color, size and shape of teeth for a more aesthetic smile. Porcelain veneers are an excellent option for people with tooth discoloration or heavy stains that do not lighten with professional tooth whitening.

Dental veneers are custom made. The thickness of the veneer and the amount of tooth reduction necessary varies with each patient's specific needs.

Crowns are used to cover or "cap" damaged teeth starting at the gum line. In addition to strengthening the damaged tooth, a crown can be used to improve the tooth's appearance, shape or alignment. In the past, porcelain crowns were fused to metal and were less natural looking. Today, all-porcelain crowns are more durable, comfortable and much more attractive.

Radical Readers at Greenbelt Middle Celebrate with Dignitaries

by Anne Gardner

Maryland Governor Martin O'Malley and Greenbelt Middle School's Radical Readers shared a big day on March 31. The Media Center there was packed with dignitaries including the governor, Prince George's County Schools Superintendent William Hite and representatives from the offices of County Executive Rushern Baker and County Councilmember Ingrid Turner.

Also present at the event were school board members Peggy Higgins and Henry Armwood, mayors from Greenbelt, College Park and Berwyn Heights and most of the Greenbelt City Council. It was clear, however, that the most important people in the room were the approximately 30 students from grades 6 to 8 who had taken the challenge and become "Radical Readers."

The "Radical Readers" program, set up by the Maryland State Education Association and the Prince George's County Memorial Library System, challenge students to read for 30 minutes on 30 consecutive days, as part of "Read Across Maryland" month and to keep a log of the books they read. Some students read as many as 32 books during the month and had written summaries of each of them.

Students at the event were rewarded with citations from Governor O'Malley and from Ingrid Turner's office. Students Nelson Chen and Aminata Diallo were also presented with Barnes and Noble "Nook" electronic readers and Kathryn Breon and Ja'Quan Brown received $50 Barnes and Noble gift certificates for outstanding participation in the program. Additional "Nooks" were given to the school and to the Greenbelt library.

Governor's Words

The governor spoke eloquently to the students, telling them that the smarter they become, the better and stronger their city, county and state will also become. "The most fundamental and important skill of all," he told them, "is to read."

Although on a tight schedule, O'Malley, assisted by Superintendent Hite, also found time to read to the students Dr. Seuss' "Oh the Places You'll Go."

The program was coordinated at the school by 6th grade reading teacher Paula Davis, who told assembled parents and dignitaries that in her seven years of teaching, this was the most amazing program in which she had ever taken part. "It has changed my life as a teacher," she said, as she described how excited the students had become about being "radical readers."

Acting Principal Warren Tweedy also expressed pride in the students as he closed the event, releasing them to enjoy a pizza party before they returned to class.

Reel & Meal Film: "A Chemical Reaction"

The next film in the monthly Reel and Meal at the New Deal series is "A Chemical Reaction" and will be shown on Monday, April 18 at 7 p.m. at the New Deal Café. The film series, which explores environmental and social justice issues, is sponsored by four local affinity groups. A buffet is available for purchase at 6:30 p.m.; there is no charge for the film.

The film depicts one of the most powerful, effective community initiatives on herbicides and pesticides in North America. Dr. June Irwin, a practicing dermatologist in Hudson, Quebec, fought chemical companies to a 2001 victory in the Supreme Court of Canada upholding Hudson's ban on lawn herbicides and pesticides. Quebec banned the chemicals throughout the province, followed by bans in individual municipalities across Canada.

Veterinarian Dr. Diana Post, executive director of the Rachel Carson Council, who is featured in Chemical Reaction, will be present to answer questions and facilitate the discussion after the film. She has led the Carson Council's compilation of data on the health and environmental effects of pesticides. Public Works Assistant Director, Parks and Grounds, Lesley Riddle will also be present to talk about city pesticide policies and answer questions.

Details about the film is available at www.pfzmedia.com.
