Council Divides on Purchases, Hears Proposal for LED Lighting

by Kathleen Gallagher

Although the featured event of the April 26 meeting of the Greenbelt City Council was the first public hearing on the proposed Fiscal Year 2012 city budget (see separate story), the long meeting included other items of interest. Among these were a proposed change in the city's banking services, a surprising amount of debate on whether to replace the city's antiquated DOS-based fleet software and approval of the use of a right-of-way to place a sign at the remodeled Parke Crescent Apartments. City staff also proposed installing LED lights in some parking lots and along some pathways.

Purchases

In legislative actions, council adopted three resolutions of negotiated purchase. The only one to pass unanimously will move the contract for the city's banking services from M&T Bank to The Columbia Bank of Columbia, Md., following the receipt of seven bids.

The other two resolutions produced discussion regarding their appropriateness given current economic conditions. On a 6 to 1 vote with Councilmember Rodney Roberts objecting, a resolution was adopted to award the city's annual contract for landscape and mowing services to Inside Out Services of Silver Spring, which offered the low bid, for up to $34,260. Despite the assurance of Lesley Riddle, assistant director for public works, that out-sourcing this work was much cheaper than doing it in house, Roberts said he preferred to have such work done by city staff as a way to safeguard jobs.

Spawning a good deal of discussion was the third resolution, to replace the city's old, DOS-based fleet management software with a product called Dossier from Arsenault Associates of Burlington, N.J., at a cost of up to $17,000. Although this was one of the higher bids, the product was judged best in meeting the city's needs and included better training and a lower annual fee for licensing and updating.

Councilmember Emmett Jordan joined Roberts in questioning the need for this purchase and suggested that the city could defer the purchase for another year or two. Roberts also questioned the need for such software if managers were sufficiently involved with the work.

Resident Bill Orleans went a step further, suggesting a pencil and an index card would do the job. Both Riddle and IT Director Dale Worley addressed the software's benefits in tracking information on vehicles and inventory that cannot now be tracked, which they believe will save staff time and money in the long term. Jordan and Roberts were not persuaded and the resolution was adopted on a 5 to 2 vote.

Parke Crescent

In conjunction with a request to place a monument sign on the city right-of-way off Crescent identifying the apartments commonly known as "the red bricks," representatives of the Donaldson Group described renovations currently being undertaken at the Parke Crescent Apartments. The management had already agreed to the conditions attached by city staff.

In-house Candidate Urged to Apply As Greenbelt Homes, Inc. Manager

by Sue Krofchik

The most newsworthy item at the Greenbelt Homes, Inc. (GHI) board of directors meeting April 28 was not on the agenda. Immediately after announcing the item, Transition Task Force Report, board president Suzette Agans said to Eldon Ralph, assistant general manager, "The board wants you to submit a letter of application, resume and completed GHI forms within 30 days."

The current general manager, Gretchen Overdurff, will retire in December after 17 years. The hiring of a search firm to solicit candidates and organize the transition to a new general manager had been on the agenda for the last two board meetings. On April 5 the board voted 5 to 3 (one member absent) to table discussion because of cost ($30-35,000) since a qualified and interested candidate already was in-house, in the person of Eldon Ralph.

Hiring of a search firm was also an agenda item for the April 14 meeting but was removed without explanation.

Transition Report

While Agans instructed Ralph to apply for the position of general manager, no mention was made of how, or if, additional candidates will be solicited.

Task force member Diane Wilkerson presented the board with a draft request for a proposal to solicit outside firms to plan and implement the transition. This proposal includes expectations for each stage in the process.

Pre-hiring steps include preparing a job description, conducting a salary survey and identifying critical issues pertaining to GHI. The hiring stage includes activities such as doing background and financial checks, preparing a list of candidates, scheduling interviews, negotiating a salary and preparing a letter of job offer.

Post-hiring tasks include welcoming and introducing the person to GHI staff and members, conducting workshops for the general manager and board of directors, preparing organizational assessments of departments, offering coaching support and conducting reviews at three, six and 12 months.

Audit Report

The annual audit conducted this year by Wegner CPAs and Consultants was discussed. No problems or issues were found.

Auditors recommended that certain work reviews be documented, dated and signed. For example, bank statements are already reviewed monthly but without documentation of this fact.

Payroll reports are likewise reviewed by accounting staff but not documented. The consultants also recommended that, in the case of payroll, a second review by human resources staff take place, either monthly or quarterly, to ensure that no "ghost" employees are being paid.

New Lender

BB&T Bank was accepted as an approved lender for GHI homes. Joseph Giampetroni, senior mortgage specialist, said although BB&T is the 10th largest regional bank in this country, it operates like a community bank.

They provide financing for several cooperatives in the area, he said, and such loans are kept in their portfolio, not sold to other banks.

In response to a question about solvency, Giampetroni said, "BB&T is the only bank in the country that for 138 years

Citizens Object to Budget Items at Public Hearings

by Kathleen Gallagher

The first of two public hearings on the proposed Fiscal Year 2012 budget was held Tuesday, April 26 as part of the regular Greenbelt City Council meeting. The second will be held during the May 23 council meeting, which falls between the final budget review worksession on May 18 and the June 6 meeting at which the budget is scheduled for adoption.

After recessing the regular meeting to begin the public hearing, the mayor noted that she had received at least 15 email messages in support of the city's animal control and shelter program that would be considered part of the record.

Unfortunately, a microphone malfunction at the podium made it difficult to hear speakers in the council room and sufficient sound was cablecast only for the last quarter of the public hearing. This problem was eventually corrected after an email message from a home viewer was received at the dais.

The first speaker was Marc "Kap" Kapastin, general counsel for Quantum Companies, owner of Beltway Plaza Mall, who referred to his prior testimony at the worksession for the planning and community development budget. He opposed what he described as a 125 percent increase in commercial licensing fees in the proposed budget. Kapastin argued that although the increase affects all Beltway Plaza merchants, a disproportionate burden is placed on the 76 small business owners, still being hurt by the

by Richard McMullin

This weekend the Green Man Festival will offer an interesting mix of music and musical talent. Styles of music will range from American gospel and mountain country to Celtic, folk rock, mystical chants, New Age lute, alternative rock and African drums. The Akoma Drummers and Dancers and Four Shillings Short are two of the 10 groups that will be performing.

Akoma Drummers

The Akoma Drummers are a group of percussionists, singers and dancers led by D.C. drummer Kristen Arant and talented Ghanaian drummer Michael "Kweku" Owusu. The group formed in spring 2010 when Arant and Owusu brought their best friends and students together for a weekly jam. Since then the group has performed at a

What about Consulting Members in the Court?

Now, just about anyone who knows me will tell you that I am just about the biggest fan of Old Greenbelt and GHI that you'll ever find. I moved here eight years ago and I have loved every minute of it . . . until this past Sunday, when I returned from a week-long vacation to find that a gravel drive had been laid down "overnight" at the end of our garage court and in the formerly grassy common area at the foot of the hill just in front of my house. Needless to say, it is an ugly and unwelcome intruder into our lovely court, it is obviously completely inconsistent with the historical design of Old Greenbelt and it has apparently been put there for a purpose, so I'm guessing that some additional truck traffic is in our court's future.

Until now, the GHI maintenance trucks have occasionally used our court to gain access to the common playground area near the court in order to maintain that area, which is understandable and perfectly reasonable. This usage resulted in some wear-and-tear on the common area in front of our houses, which the maintenance teams took care of by periodically re-seeding and mulching the affected areas. Why this arrangement that has worked for so many years should suddenly become unacceptable is a mystery to me, as is why GHI would impose a gravel drive on 9 Court Ridge Road without consulting with or, at the very least, notifying us, the affected residents.

In my absence, my neighbors have signed and submitted a petition to GHI, expressing their displeasure with the situation. This letter is my version of doing the same. I hope that other GHI residents share our view that the common areas of the community belong to all of us and that GHI should have consulted with those of us who live in the court before decisions were made regarding its use.

Greenbelt Diner Is Setting For Corporate Commercial

by Ashley Brotherton

On April 26 the Silver Diner's parking lot was filled with cars, trailers and . . . spot lights?

The Greenbelt Silver Diner was the production location last week for their new commercial featuring children promoting the chain's fresh local foods initiative.

"Being a diner is our best friend and our worst enemy," said Ype von Hengst, the chain's executive chef and co-founder. He said that because they are a diner, people assume that they don't have healthy or fresh options. A year ago they decided they were going to promote an initiative of using fresh, local food.

Santhosh Samuel Jackson, the general manager of the Greenbelt location said he has seen a lot of new faces since they started the new campaign. Being close to the University of Maryland also lends to the demographic the diner is trying to reach with the fresh and local initiative.

Joe Howell, the social media manager for the Silver Diner, said they picked the Greenbelt location to shoot the commercial for several reasons. The diner is one of the first with the new open layout. He said they also knew they had a flexible, understanding staff. The commercial was influenced by the reality show Chopped, with children acting as judges of Silver Diner food. Three children traveled from Virginia and New Jersey to film the commercial at the Greenbelt restaurant.

There was a television set up at the side of the restaurant where the parents could watch. They all giggled as the kids worked over their lines.

Some of Silver Diner's local distributors who came aboard when the diner began its new local food campaign were also at the shoot.

One was Gunpowder Bison & Trading Co. of Monkton, Md. Trey Lewis, Gunpowder's proprietor, said all their bison meat is locally raised and all natural.

Lester Martin, of Martin's Quality Eggs in Lancaster, Pa., said all their eggs are delivered one to two days after they are laid.

Lewis said the diner's efforts to provide food that is fresh and local was a smart thing to do and that their focus on getting food from area farms is helping local economies.

The commercials are one of many advertising tools Silver Diner is using, Howell said. Last summer the Greenbelt Silver Diner started a farmer's market to help sell locally grown fresh products, which had a lot of success, he added. They are also doing online marketing, promotions on social media websites and emails and working on a new website.

The diner also supports children in the community with proceeds from its frequent diners card. The "Eat Well, Do Well" card program donates five percent of a customer's check to local schools to improve nutrition and fitness programs.

Correction

The Plot against Lincoln

"The Conspirator" opens this Friday, May 6 at Old Greenbelt Theatre, shortly after the 150th anniversary of the Civil War's start. The film pivots on Mary Surratt (Robin Wright), whose boarding house not far from Washington, D.C. was used by John Wilkes Booth, son John Surratt and others to plan President Abraham Lincoln's assassination and a coup against Cabinet members – acts considered domestic terrorism for the time.

Director Robert Redford has delved into tension-filled questions that still remain for some about what Mrs. Surratt knew and the government's case against her. She was hanged, the first woman so executed. PG-13, with some violent content.

Running time is 123 minutes.

Utopia Film Nominated For Filmmaker Award

The short documentary film "Prayers for Peace" shown at Greenbelt's 2009 Utopia Film Festival has been nominated for the "Next Great Filmmaker" award in an online film festival, vying against four other films.

Prayers for Peace by Dustin Grella is an animated documentary paying tribute to Grella's brother, who gave his life in the war in Iraq. Impetus for the film came to Grella when he noticed yellow ribbons in a New York City church yard and discovered one of the ribbons had his brother's name on it. The touching brief animated film was a hit with Utopia audiences here.

Berkshire Bank, in collaboration with the Berkshire International Film Festival, created the Great Filmmaker Award to encourage and support makers of short films. The online competition is based on the number of votes films receive through May 31 from site visitors at <http://www.biffma.com/nextGREAT>.

Votes Needed

Greenbelters and fans of the Utopia Film Festival are urged to visit the site, review the entries and cast a vote for Prayers for Peace. Those who vote are also entered into a drawing for cash prizes or electronic equipment.

Upcoming Festival

For Utopia fans, 2011 Festival planning is underway and is scheduled for October 27 to 30. Entries are being screened weekly, with the selection of 2011 films to be completed by mid-summer. For further information on the upcoming festival visit www.utopiafilmfestival.org.

In Memoriam

John Stringfellow

John David Stringfellow, 38, of Woodland Way died suddenly April 18, 2011.

John was born November 22, 1972, to Therese and Frank Stringfellow of the Woodland Way residence. He was the grandson of Greenbelt pioneers Anthony and Catherine Madden.

John was a graduate of St. Hugh's Elementary School and DeMatha Catholic High School. He received his bachelor's degree in business from Towson State University in 1994. After working in the business field, he entered the Maryland State Trooper Academy and graduated in 1997. He was attached to the Easton Barracks and worked in the patrol division and Criminal Investigation Division. He was proud to serve and protect his community as a trooper until his retirement in 2005 and considered his fellow troopers to be his second family.

A man of quiet strength, high character and integrity, he was fiercely loyal to his family at home and at work. He was a loving person who always put family first. This was apparent through the loving bond he shared with his mother and the many hobbies and trips he shared with his father. He and his sister Mary were very close and especially enjoyed times when their daughters were together. He was extremely generous and non-judgmental, always ready to help others with his time, resources or just to offer a shoulder to lean on.

John loved children and loved making them happy. He cherished his time with his daughter Sara. Their favorite places were the park, the beach and the playground. One of Sara's favorite things was being twirled over her daddy's head. He also loved his nieces Allison and Erin and his cousins' sons, often showing up for a surprise visit with pizza or ice cream in hand.

A true child of Greenbelt, John played sports from an early age, including football, soccer and basketball. His favorite sport was baseball and he played Little League, CYO, Babe Ruth, Boys and Girls Club and American Legion. He also played for DeMatha Catholic High School and Prince George's Community College. He could often be seen throwing the ball on Woodland Way and shooting hoops at various courts around town. He also enjoyed running, especially in the Beltsville farms.

In addition to his parents, John is survived by his cherished daughter Sara Elaine Stringfellow, his sister and brother-in-law Mary and Steven Daly, their daughters Allison and Erin Daly, numerous aunts, uncles, cousins, nieces and nephews.

A gathering of John's family and friends was held at the funeral home and was attended by many people who shared John's life back to early childhood. From friends he knew from the earliest age, coaches, fellow players, friends, neighbors, high school and college friends to fellow troopers, stories and memories were shared of fun times with John and the ways John had helped others. He was well loved.

His funeral at St. Hugh of Grenoble Catholic Church was led by Fr. Walter Tappe, whose homily gave great peace and comfort to John's family, friends and fellow police officers. Burial followed at Gate of Heaven Cemetery.

The family would like to thank the entire Greenbelt community for their support, especially the St. Hugh's Ladies of Charity and the Maryland State Police and Troopers Association. Memorial contributions may be sent to the Maryland State Troopers Association, 1300 Reisterstown Road, Pikesville, MD 21208-3803 in John's memory. Memories can still be shared on Legacy.com.

Joshua Rosen to Perform Next in Synagogue Series

by Carol Griffith

On Sunday, May 15 at 2 p.m., French horn player Joshua Rosen will be the featured performer in the third concert in the Mishkan Torah Young Performers three-concert generation to generation-themed series. This year three young adults in their early 20s were selected to showcase their musical endeavors. Greenfield was the first musician spotlighted in the Young Performer series and Sarah Saviet, the second.

Rosen, who has grown up at Mishkan Torah, will play part of Mozart's Second French Horn Concerto, a pinnacle of the French horn repertoire. French horn, Rosen's specialty, is one of the most difficult brass instruments to master. He is currently studying French horn performance and education at the Chicago College of the Performing Arts under the tutelage of Dale Clevenger, who is the principle French horn player for the Chicago Symphony Orchestra. Rosen is active in several ensembles and orchestras in the Chicago area.

In honor of the generational theme, Rosen has composed a setting for piano, French horn and tenor of the "I Will Espouse You" text from the Book of Hosea in Hebrew and will be joined by Ben Greenfield and local pianist Andrew Kraus.

Rosen's first appearance on the Mishkan Torah stage was at the age of five and since then he has performed in many shows there. He played with the District of Columbia Youth Orchestra during his high school years and rose to the position of principal French horn.

While in high school, Rosen studied French horn and piano at the Levine School of Music, where he performed his senior recital. He has also performed at the White House and Kennedy Center.

Tickets for the last concert of the Young Performers Concert Series may be ordered from the synagogue or reserved online at www.mishkantorah.org.

A Review

Greek Tragedy Hits Home
In New Version at GAC

by Jim Link

Antigone, Sophocles' nuanced and powerful tragedy of political dissidence and family loyalty, has come to the Greenbelt Arts Center in the form of Seamus Heaney's accessible new translation, "The Burial at Thebes." Did the Nobel Prize-winning poet Heaney, who was born Catholic just north of Belfast, mean his 2005 version of this timeless play to be a commentary on Ireland's Troubles, the American entanglement in Iraq or the gropings toward democracy in the Middle East or in the dissolved Soviet Union? Whether or not, the play – in modern dress – is as relevant, gripping and cathartic now as it was in 442 B.C.E.

The action is triggered when Antigone defies King Creon's diktat to leave her brother Polyneices' corpse unburied, a prey to birds and dogs. The brothers Eteocles and Polyneices have slain each other during the Theban civil war; Creon honors his supporter Eteocles with a hero's funeral and condemns his enemy Polyneices to rot outside the city walls.

Antigone fails to enlist her sister Ismene in her life-risking effort to secretly bury Polyneices; her fiancé Haemon, the son of Creon no less, sympathizes with Antigone while trying to mollify the enraged father; the chorus waffles; the blind seer Tiresias warns Creon that the gods are offended by his blasphemous humiliation of Polyneices; Creon persists in his blasphemy . . . for a time.

To discover the lovers' fates and that of Creon, his queen and Polyneices' corpse, see this wonderful production. Hint: Elizabethan tragedy did not shy away from strewing the stage with corpses; ancient Greek tragedy, however, kept bloody slaughter off stage, tactfully reporting the carnage through breathless messengers.

The play is a tapestry of contrasts, of clashing loyalties: man-made law vs. God's law, man vs. woman, younger generation vs. older, the individual vs. the state.

"Every man, in one of his past lives, has fallen in love with Antigone at least once," pronounced Fahnlohnee Tate as Antigone, Michael Galizia as Creon, Rachelle White as Ismene in Burial at Thebes, now at the Greenbelt Arts Center.

Shelley, somewhat oracularly I suppose. Now is your chance to fall in love with Fahnlohnee Tate's altogether convincing portrayal of the defiant heroine. The beautiful Tate, a West African from Liberia, has a perfect foil in the beautiful Rachelle White as her sister Ismene. The former is dark-haired, mocha-skinned, wears an elegant flowing white Grecian dress with red floral decoration; she is passionate, wild, rigid, headstrong, righteous. White is blonde, porcelain-skinned, wears a modest red dress with white trim; she is cautious, practical, fearful.

Michael Galizia is intimidating as the crypto-fascist Creon – bearded, muscular, whose deep voice James Earl Jones could admire. He is a "middle-aged portly male good at playing an SOB," according to his description of himself in the program. Scott Courlander is appropriately tender toward Antigone, tactfully opposed to his father, a lover/son torn between two loyalties.

The guard Kevin O'Connell is maddeningly circuitous in his revelation of bad news to Creon; Dan Staicer is ominously indignant as the blind Tiresias; Maureen Roulit is touchingly dignified/horrified as Creon's queen Eurydice. The whole cast is uniformly competent, costumed in army camouflage gear, combat boots, cargo pants, T-shirts and sports Kalyshnikovs (AK-47s?) when appropriate.

See "The Burial at Thebes" weekends through May 21, Friday and Saturday evenings at 8 p.m., Sunday May 8 and 15 at 2:30 p.m.

BCWWG Has Session

Soccer Alliance
Meets May 15

The Greenbelt Soccer Alliance first annual meeting will be held on Sunday, May 15 at 2 p.m. in the Greenbelt Youth Center multipurpose room. The organization focuses on providing purely recreational soccer opportunities for Greenbelt children. Currently, affiliated teams are playing in the county soccer league in Hyattsville on smaller fields and in the Takoma Park league.

The meeting agenda includes a discussion of accomplishments, goals and plans for an informal summer soccer league in Greenbelt.

for planning, explained there were precedents for the city's granting permission for use of right-of-way for this purpose and staff had determined there was no other location for the sign. Council unanimously approved the request, expressing pleasure that upgrades were being made and encouraged the company representatives to connect their residents to the community by linking to the city website.

LED Lights

Also on the agenda was a staff recommendation for use of $93,000 in grant monies awarded to the city as part of the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act. Based on population, funds were awarded to every local government in Maryland by the U.S. Department of Energy for projects to improve energy efficiency in the jurisdiction's facilities or property.

Assistant City Manager David Moran said staff recommends using the funds to install LED lighting fixtures in the parking lots at Roosevelt Center, the Community Center and Schrom Hills, as well as along the stream valley path between Woodland Hills and Lakewood to the public library. Council unanimously supported the plan, referring it to the Greenbelt Advisory Committee on Environmental Sustainability and, at Roberts' request, for review by the Youth Advisory Committee.

Other Business

At Councilmember Leta Mach's request, council voted to support a request from the National Association of Counties and the National League of Cities by writing to the city's congressional and state delegations to urge a restoration of Property Assessed Clean Energy (PACE), a vehicle whereby state and local governments can assist homeowners with financing energy-efficient improvements through a tax assessment mechanism.

A recent appointment to the city's Advisory Committee on Education (ACE), Janet Mirsky, who had already been serving on the Greenbelt Middle School Task Force as a resident, was designated as ACE representative to the task force.

At the meeting's start Mayor Judith Davis presented three proclamations to city staff in recognition of departmental activities. Lesley Riddle, assistant director for public works, received a proclamation recognizing May 15-21 as National Public Works Week.

Recreation Department Director Julie McHale received the other two. One proclaimed the city's participation in the first National Kids to Parks Day, a new public education initiative of the National Parks Trust to encourage young people and their families to spend time outdoors and visit their local, regional and national parks. The mayor also presented McHale a Healthy Maryland Day proclamation awarded to the city by Governor Martin O'Malley in recognition of Greenbelt's active involvement in the Coalition of a Healthy Maryland.

Officers responded to the area but were unable to locate the suspect or his vehicle. The girl was not injured during the incident.

The girl described the suspect as a white male, 40-50 years old, with brown hair, wearing a light blue shirt.

The Greenbelt Police Department wants to remind parents to speak to their children about the dangers associated with strangers and to report any similar instances they or their child may encounter.

ATTENTION, GHI MEMBERS! DON'T MISS THE CANDIDATE FORUM

Council Room - Municipal Building
Tuesday, May 10, 2010—7:30 p.m.

GHI's Nominations & Elections Committee will host a Candidate Forum Tuesday, May 10, for members running for the offices of Board of Directors (5 seats) and Audit Committee (3 seats). The Forum will be held at 7:30 p.m. in the City Council Room of the Greenbelt Municipal Building, 25 Crescent Road.

You can experience the forum in different ways. Come in person. View the live cablecast on Comcast Channel 71 or Verizon Channel 21. Watch the live video-stream from the city's web site. Or see it later at your convenience—replayed on the cable stations or on demand from the city's web site.

At the forum, you'll not only hear the candidates speak but also have a chance to question them about the issues that concern you most about GHI. It's a great way to decide for whom you want to cast your votes at the Annual Meeting and election on Wednesday, May 18, and Thursday, May 19.

Mark your calendar to attend the Annual Meeting at the Greenbelt Community Center on Wednesday, May 18, at 7:30 p.m. Come early to avoid long check-in lines! Voting will begin after the meeting recesses and continue from 7-10 a.m. and 5-8 p.m. on Thursday, May 19 in the GHI Board Room.

The Department is offering a reward of up to $1,000 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of a suspect in any of the unsolved crimes reported in the blotter. Call 1-866-411-TIPS. People may anonymously report suspected drug activity by calling the Drug Tip Line at 240-542-2145.

recession and rising gas prices. Noting that Greenbelt is largely built out, with little growth in population or commercial space occurring, he said it was not fair for the city to continue to raise taxes and fees disproportionately on that group.

Kapastin said inspections of the entire mall take roughly a week, with the fee not reflecting the effort spent. He gave as an example the mall kiosks, which in some cases would have to pay a $285 fee to have nothing inspected but an electrical outlet.

Kapastin said there had been a threefold increase in the Planning and Community Development budget over 11 years. He thought costs could be reduced, he said. Having private certification rather than city inspection would reduce costs and increase efficiency, he said, and the existing three vacancies in the department provide a good opportunity to explore reduction of staff costs.

Public Safety

At the April 6 worksession on the public safety budget, residents Kelly Ivy and Molly Lester had spoken in support of a request to add at least $400,000 to the budget for additional police patrol officers. Both accepted Mayor Davis' invitation to attend the April 26 public hearing with suggestions on what they would cut from the budget to allow for an additional expenditure of that size.

Molly Lester spoke next. Her first suggestion, she said, was that council look at city employees' two percent COLA, budgeted at $244,000. Lester said that it was not clear to her how it had been indexed. Since many taxpayers who work for other governmental jurisdictions or in the private sector have experienced layoffs, furloughs and salary reductions, she felt that a city COLA required greater justification.

Regarding the animal control program and shelter, Lester said that because Greenbelters pay taxes to support the county shelter, it might have been better to try to improve that facility rather than starting our own. She said it always concerned her to see uncapped line items – in this case, veterinary services – in a budget.

Partnering with other municipalities might be more cost-effective, she said, and also suggested looking at other models for animal care, such as an eviction-relief program funded by contributions.

Cutting Expenses

Lester also questioned whether fewer councilmembers and staff should attend conferences when funding is tight, and expressed interest in the city's response to the leap in costs for workers' compensation insurance.

She encouraged council to engage someone to work in economic development and write proposals to enhance city revenues. Stressing the need to give budget priority to public safety, Lester closed by reading from a February Greenbelt Patch article in which students spoke of their perceptions of neighborhood crime.

Councilmember Leta Mach asked if the city received tax differential credit from the county on animal control services. City Treasurer Jeff Williams said the credit was minimal for such a small service. City Manager Mike McLaughlin said the city still receives backup service on animal control as well from the county.

Tax Rate

Martin Murray was the third resident to speak. He reviewed the tax rate and assessment history since 1991 on his single-family house on Research Road. He said property values will continue to drop, further reducing city revenue.

Regarding the Police Department's unexpected request for an additional $400,000, he said he appreciated the mayor's response of "What would you cut to pay for it?" rather than assuming taxes should be raised to pay for this increase. Murray compared officer ranks and salaries in Greenbelt and Bowie, acknowledging that the Bowie Police Department is new. He said that all city departments, including police, should look for ways to save money, not increase budgets.

Davis responded that Bowie's department is much newer and younger than Greenbelt's. She said 16 police officers will become eligible to retire over the next few years and that although not all of them will do so, the retirement of senior personnel will result in decreases in the salary line.

Councilmember Ed Putens stressed the need to hire to fill the police ranks. Waiting until retirements occur may result in unfilled positions if candidates are not available when needed. That had not been the rationale for the funding offered by the police at the public safety worksession.

According to Capt. Carl Schinner, Patrol Division Commander, the need for more patrol officers was not based on future need but on the lack of adequate staffing to meet minimal professional standards and assure officers' safety. According to the memo Schinner presented to council, eight additional officers (about $801,000) are needed to fill the current gap, with a minimum of four requested. Funding to fill in the ranks through retirements would appear to be over and above that.

GCAN Topic to Be Green Churches

The focus of the next Greenbelt Climate Action Network (GCAN) on Wednesday, May 11 at 7 p.m. at the Community Center, Room 114, is assuring that faith communities' places of worship are as green as possible. There will be a discussion by panelists from various faiths in the area on what can be done to have greener sanctuaries and congregations. All are invited to attend.

Top 5 Dental Procedures For a Beautiful Smile

McCarl Dental Group

Are you self-conscious about your smile? A healthy smile contributes more than just beauty; it is a vital component of good overall health. Every day dental patients ask about options for improving the health and appearance of their smile. The great news is that dental procedures and especially cosmetic dental procedures have improved dramatically over the last 10 to 15 years. As a result, there's an array of affordable options that are no longer a luxury limited to Hollywood celebrities. There are a wide range of choices available for improving the health and appearance of your smile. Speak to a dental professional who can help you determine which dental procedures are best for your needs.

If you've thought about improving your smile, this guide can help you learn about the latest techniques in dentistry and cosmetic dental procedures.

Invisalign Orthodontics is a simple and convenient way to straighten your teeth. Clear, thin Invisalign trays straighten teeth and correct your bite. Unlike metal braces, almost no one else can tell you are wearing Invisalign. Straightening crooked teeth with Invisalign orthodontics is more comfortable, more convenient, less expensive and usually faster than metal braces. For most adults, treatment time is just under one year. Overall gum and bone health are improved when teeth are properly aligned and fit together with an ideal bite. Straight teeth are not only important for a beautiful smile - they contribute to a healthy smile!

Dental Implants are an excellent example of the benefits of new dental technology and are often an ideal solution for replacing missing teeth. A dental implant serves as a tooth root and anchors a replacement tooth, bridge or denture to your jaw. When dental implants are restored with porcelain crowns, they look, feel and function like natural teeth. One of the most common uses of mini dental implants is stabilization of dentures. Anchoring a denture with one or more dental implants solves problems commonly associated with dentures, including concern and discomfort from loose and poorly fitting dentures.

Teeth Whitening or Bleaching with professional whitening gel often reduces or eliminates tooth stains and discoloration that occurs over time. Patients have great success with the Zoom and DayWhite custom take home whitening tray systems. The results can be achieved quickly and you can enjoy whiter teeth for a long time.

Porcelain Veneers are a thin layer of porcelain applied to the front of teeth. Veneers allow dentists to change the color, size and shape of teeth for a more aesthetic smile. Porcelain veneers are an excellent option for people with tooth discoloration or heavy stains that do not lighten with professional tooth whitening.

Dental veneers are custom made. The thickness of the veneer and the amount of tooth reduction necessary varies with each patient's specific needs.

Crowns are used to cover or "cap" damaged teeth starting at the gum line. In addition to strengthening the damaged tooth, a crown can be used to improve the tooth's appearance, shape or alignment. In the past, porcelain crowns were fused to metal and were less natural looking. Today, all-porcelain crowns are more durable, comfortable and much more attractive.

form of go-go. They play djembe, kpanlogo, conga and dun-un drums and spice up compositions with dancing and songs. AKOMA describes the Adinkra symbol that represents THE HEART. Adinkra is an ancient symbolic language of West Africa; the heart represents patience and tolerance. The group will perform at 1 p.m. on Sunday, May 8.

Four Shillings Short

Travelling musicians with a carload of instruments is nothing new in the world of folk music but what if one of those instruments is a sitar from India or a Renaissance crumhorn? Going out on a musical limb is common for the group Four Shillings Short. With an ever-increasing array of instruments (over 20 at last count), including hammered dulcimer, mandola, mandolin, tin-whistle, woodwinds, sitar, banjo, percussion and vocals, their music is always varied and captivating.

In a single night Four Shillings Short perform traditional Irish tunes and airs, Indian ragas, folk ballads, old-time songs, medieval and Renaissance instrumentals and a cappella numbers as well as contemporary folk and original compositions. Their sound has been described as “wondrously diverse,” “truly refreshing” and “alternative neo-Celtic folk of the first order.” They will perform Friday evening and at 3 p.m. on both Saturday and Sunday.

The Chesapeake Arts Education and Research Society (CHEARS.org), sponsors of the festival is looking forward to a good crowd for the weekend to enjoy the music, arts offered by the Green Man and hopefully great weather, while reconnecting again with the outside natural world.

Richard McMullin, Festival Director, arranged for the music.

The Akoma Drummers will perform on Sunday, May 8 at 1 p.m.

Community Garden Opens this Weekend

The Three Sisters Garden at the Community Center will open this weekend; all are invited to till and turn the soil and plant some seeds.

Arboretum Hosts World Bonsai Day

On Saturday, May 14 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. an open house will celebrate World Bonsai Day at the U.S. National Arboretum, honoring the memory of Saburo Kato, a bonsai master and founder of World Bonsai Friendship Federation. Admission and all events are free.

has paid shareholders a dividend.”

Other Business

The board also approved a contract with CPE, Inc. for spring repairs to concrete sidewalks and selected steps at 40 sites within the co-op. The bid accepted was for $26,985 plus 10 percent for contingencies, not to exceed $29,684.

GHI rules for smoke detectors are being updated to reflect new code requirements. Smoke detectors will be required to be in each room used for sleeping purposes and in each story of a dwelling, including basements. The revised requirements will be enforced at member resale, for rental purposes and for site-specific city or county citations.

The board approved one prize of a $50 gift certificate to the Co-op Supermarket as an incentive for members to complete and return a communications survey. Forms will be available at the annual meeting May 18, on the GHI website and in the summer (June) newsletter. However, only surveys completed and received by May 20 are eligible for the drawing.

Fee-for-service program charges, last revised in 2004, have been evaluated based on a review of work orders over the last few years. Although fees are now higher, they are consistent with outside prevailing rates and are based on material, labor and administrative fees.
