City Council Hears Discussion On Changes in School Budget

by James Giese

Two new changes in how county schools will operate were explained to Greenbelt City Councilmembers by members of the Prince George's County Board of Education and school administrative staff at the January 30 city council stakeholder meeting. First, student-based budgeting distributes educational funds to various schools based on student needs and characteristics. This process is intended to give individual school principals greater autonomy on how to use the allocated funds for the school.

The other, called secondary school reform, would allow students to enroll in specialized academies at one of several nearby high schools as well as to make other changes to raise educational expectations, expand opportunities and enhance support to teachers and students.

Attending this worksession were five members of the Board of Education: Verjeane Jacobs, Chair; Peggy Higgins, Vice-Chair representing District 2 which includes Greenbelt; Rosalind Johnson, District 1 (who represented Greenbelt prior to the last redistricting); Patricia Eubanks, District 4; and Donna Hathaway Beck, District 9. Deputy School Superintendent Bonita Coleman also attended the meeting. All members of the city council except Silke Pope were present, as well as City Manager Michael McLaughlin.

Student-based Budgeting

This budgeting process differs from the traditional funding system that allocates resources to schools based on staffing formulas and school-specific programs. Instead, schools will be funded per child, with the amount of funding attached to each child varying based on each child's needs. Schools also will have more flexibility in deciding what to do with those resources.

During the current school year, this new way of budgeting was tested in eight schools, none in the Greenbelt area. Now the school system is undertaking a full roll-out of the new budget process in all schools. Preliminary figures for each school are available and may be obtained at the school system website: www1.pgcps.org.

New Figures

Tentatively, all schools will receive $3,077 (rounded up to nearest dollar) for each student enrolled. (Greenbelt Middle School is projected to have 946 students for a base budget allocation of $2,910,698. Eleanor Roosevelt High School is to have 2,420 students for an allocation of $7,445,971.)

Additional funds are then added for each projected student

Photographer Eric Zhang Shows Slices of Greenbelt Life in 2012

by Brian Compere

Greenbelt is a city with stories to tell and Eric Zhang, 38, has made it his personal mission to document those stories throughout 2012, the 75th anniversary of the city.

Armed with a Nikon D700 camera and a photo blog at <http://greenbelt2012.wordpress.com/>, Zhang is pursuing a personal goal of illustrating "slices of life" in Greenbelt by putting a post online every day of the year.

With the exception of a handful of short workshops, Zhang learned what he knows about photography primarily by teaching himself based on what he saw in other people's works.

Inspired by History

His inspiration for this project originates from Greenbelt's first days. In the early history of the city President Franklin Delano

Eric Zhang

Roosevelt's administration hired photographers of high caliber, such as Arthur Rothstein, Marjory Collins and Dorothea Lange, to document American life at that time.

Through this program, executed by the Farm Security Administration (FSA), photographers took a photographic record of places throughout the nation, including Greenbelt. Those involved with this endeavor, who Zhang said had a "special sense of what's important," influenced Zhang to start his project.

When in charge of the FSA project, Roy Emerson Stryker utilized the concept of a "shooting script," a detailed checklist of what to photograph depending on the setting. Zhang said that creating something similar to this formula is his "ultimate goal."

Zhang had studied the work of photographers like Lange, Marion Post Wolcott and Russell Lee before knowing about Greenbelt, a connection that helped inspire him.

This connection between these photographers Zhang admires and the town he lives in, led to his idea to "follow in these people's footsteps" recording snapshots of everyday life in Greenbelt in 2012 just as they had done 75 years ago.

"These people are really amazing," Zhang said. "I wanted to do something like what they were doing at that time."

Zhang's inspiration is not limited to FSA photographers, however. The photographs Lange took of Japanese Americans in internment camps during World War II, published in 2006 by Linda Gordon and Gary Okihito,

Black History Month

February 1 marked the beginning of Black History Month. The observance celebrates the achievements of African Americans and a time for recognizing their role in U.S. history. For the month of February, the News Review will run articles about the contributions of African Americans living in Greenbelt. The series is being coordinated by News Review reporter Altoria Bell Ross.

Washington Has Diversity In Family, Seeks it Here

by Virginia Beauchamp and Marat Moore

"A wonderful experience" – that's how Darrin Washington describes his 23 years in Greenbelt. But his path to community involvement came after one very unpleasant experience – being burglarized at his brand-new Belle Point townhome.

Washington, distraught, turned to his father, a retired D.C. police officer with 37 years on the force.

"He told me, 'This is your fault. You don't participate in your community. You live here but you're not really living here. And if you don't care, why should anyone else?'" Washington recalled.

That tough-love challenge prompted him to get involved with the homeowner's association in Belle Point and he's now been on the board for six years. "I had done charity work but I'd never been part of a civic association in my own community," he said. Soon he became excited about being able to make a positive difference where he lives.

"We have so many talented and intelligent people in Greenbelt, more than in most communities," said Washington, a software engineer who now handles sales and contracts with the military health system of Northrup Grumman.

Later he joined the city's Public Safety Advisory Committee and learned more about all parts of Greenbelt and the demographic differences in the city. Now his

L. Baravechia Is Paralegal, Soccer Mom and Volunteer

by Jim Link

Chatting over a morning cup of Karim's coffee at the New Deal Café, Lashell Baravechia put me at ease with her unpretentious manner, articulate expression and voluble flow of good talk.

The mother of a 9-year-old son (Matthew) and wife of a retired firefighter (Rick), the Boxwood Village resident has lived in Greenbelt for 12 years. "When we met, my (future) husband had already lived in Greenbelt for 16 years and wouldn't think of leaving, so I joined him." After 30 years of fighting fires, Rick left the Arlington County Fire Department as a captain. "Now we are professional volunteers," claims Lashell, or at least she and Matthew are.

Matthew and his mom volunteer twice a week at the Greenbelt Animal Shelter. "We love to interact with animals; they get their TLC and we get our dog fix."

Lashell and Rick have involved Matthew in a variety of sports.

"We're always at the Greenbelt Youth Center; Matthew plays on lots of Greenbelt teams, the boys club teams – soccer, baseball, basketball."

Letters to the Editor

Loved the Issue

From the Valentine's Day King and Queen photos that ran with Sandra Lange's early days to the Eric Zhang pop-up Valentine pictures during Artful Afternoon to love notes, the News Review's issue for Valentine's Day rocks!

Altoria Ross

Editor's Note: Altoria Ross, reporter and former board member of the News Review is away from her desk recovering from foot surgery.

THANKS!

A most sincere thank you to Father Walter Tappe of St. Hugh of Grenoble Catholic Church, the Greenbelt Volunteer Fire Department, GVFD Ladies Auxiliary, Greenbelt Police Department and countless friends who were there for support for me and our family during my Mom's illness and also when she passed.

It has been very difficult for our family to experience such a loss. But the support and love of so many has made every day more bearable.

God bless you all.

Barking Dog May Be Excellent Deterrent

The refusal of Greenbelt Homes to allow a Greenbelt police officer who is also a resident of Greenbelt to put a dog kennel in his yard is totally ludicrous. Has anyone at GHI noticed the great number of dogs in Greenbelt and how they all bark? That is what dogs do!

Having a kennel does not mean that the dog would be always in the kennel. Police dogs become members of the family and most likely spend little time in the outdoor facility. Walk down almost any sidewalk in Greenbelt and you will be barked at – which in some cases is an excellent deterrent.

Greenbelt should be glad to have Officer Robert DeFibaugh not only as a resident but as a 5-1/2 year member of the Greenbelt Police Department who is committed to serving and protecting the residents of Greenbelt as a K-9 officer.

Pauline Bordas

Let's Not Lose A Valued K-9

Let's find another home in GHI for K-9 police officer Robert DeFibaugh and his police dog. Let's not lose this valued member of the Greenbelt Police Department, City of Greenbelt and Greenbelt Homes, Inc.

The house next to me is a corner lot and the owner has not lived there since September. My neighbors and I would be honored to have Officer DeFibaugh in our court.

Entitled to Opinion

I feel I must respond to Mr. Scott Rose's letter demanding Junior Miss Greenbelt Sarah Crank surrender her crown, sash and title because she doesn't agree with many people's opinions of gay marriage.

Last time I checked, Greenbelt and the State of Maryland were part of the United States, which believes in freedom of speech. Miss Crank spoke giving her opinion that her best birthday present would be the Maryland politicians' vote against gay marriage. That is her right as a citizen of the United States, Maryland and Greenbelt. I did not see in the rules to be Miss Greenbelt or Junior Miss Greenbelt that they must be pro- or anti-gay, Democrat or Republican.

I find it amazing that Mr. Rose has started to use tactics that were used against the people like him 30 to 50 years ago. Now he is doing the same things that were done to people like him then, he feels free to make his opinions known; she doesn't have that right because her opinion differs from his.

I sure hope Miss Crank rejects the demand to surrender her title because someone doesn't like her opinion. I do not object to Mr. Rose standing up for his belief. I don't think that Mr. Rose should object that Miss Crank is standing up for her belief. That's why this country is so great.

Thomas Carter

Penalize Free Speech?

Sarah Crank, Junior Miss Greenbelt, has come under fire for indulging in a time-honored Greenbelt tradition – saying what she thinks. I've lived in this community since 1943 and never before has punishment been demanded of an individual for speaking her mind.

You don't have to agree with her but you do have to let her have her say. Just as you have yours. Don't penalize her for the free speech you demand for yourself.

Judith Holland

Hypocrisy at Work?

After reading last week's letter to the editor from Scott Rose, I felt compelled to respond and even defend Sarah Crank, our city's reigning Junior Miss Greenbelt. First I must confess I do not know either of these people personally and so this is strictly a matter of grace and clarity.

I am not sure if Rose is just informing us (the greater Greenbelt community) of this action (Demands Surrender) or if he is drumming up support to have the action invoked? So I tread lightly as to whether this is a political view or a journalistic view. What I find to be of merit is that a young person like Sarah Crank (who as a Junior Miss cannot be more than in the midst of her teenage years) had the courage to speak her mind in front of elder statesmen. Now I do not agree with her stance on this issue but I admire and respect her convictions to state her beliefs and voice her viewpoint. For activists who freely speak their views for their causes to demand she relinquish her title and benefits received as a contest winner, for speaking boldly as well, seems on the surface hypocritical. Under the surface it seems like bullying a young person, a young person who has not accrued much human experience thus far in her life and may not know how this issue truly impacts others.

Sarah Crank is a youth and if youth really remained steadfast in what they hoped for in this world, there would be a lot more veterinarians in the world. Seriously though, this appears to be another extreme reaction to a person's freedom to speak their conscience in contrast to another person's beliefs. Sarah Crank does have the freedom to be involved in the political process, she also has the right to be wrong if that is the case.

I am proud to know that here

Monster or Heroine?

Are ideas and clear thinking more important than feelings? Margaret Thatcher excelled brilliantly at the former and rather suppressed the latter. Does that make her a monster or a heroine? See Meryl Streep channel "The Iron Lady" in another of her pitch-perfect riveting characterizations (Julia Child, Karen Silkwood, Isak Dinesen, etc.), coming to Old Greenbelt Theatre this Friday, February 17.

Denis Thatcher is played by Jim Broadbent. Directed by Phyllida Lloyd and written by Abi Morgan. PG-13, the running is 1 hour, 45 min.

Join Group Bike Ride To D.C. on Sunday

All are invited to join in a community group bike ride to Washington, D.C., Sunday, February 19. The outing includes downtown, Capitol Hill and getting lunch at D.C.'s historic Eastern Market.

The 33-mile route leaves from Proteus Bike Shop in North College Park at 1 p.m. and returns to the shop at about 4:30 p.m. Greenbelt riders will leave from the New Deal Café at 12:30 p.m. to head to the start.

The route is mostly on trails, bike lanes or quiet streets. The group will ride at a moderate pace or in groups – no one will be left behind.

For details visit www.proteusbicycles.com or call 301-441-2928.

Library Talk, Concert On Fortune's Bones

On Saturday, February 25 at 2 p.m. there will be a special book reading and discussion at the Greenbelt library by author Marilyn Nelson on her groundbreaking work "Fortune's Bones: The Manumission Requiem." The presentation will be held in the library's large meeting room.

Fortune was an 18th century African American slave from Waterbury, Conn., who was dissected upon his death by his owner and used as a medical exhibit to teach anatomy. His skeleton is housed in the collection of the Mattatuck Museum in Waterbury where it was featured in a 2003 exhibit of his life and the community in which he lived.

Nelson's book was set to music by Dr. Ysaye Barnwell, artistic director of Sweet Honey and the Rock and noted composer, singer, educator and author. The University of Maryland's Clarice Smith Performing Arts Center asked Dr. Barnwell to curate the Fortune's Bones project with partners to bring the year-long celebration to Prince George's County and surrounding communities.

The following evening Saturday, February 25 at 7 p.m. and Sunday, February 26 at 2 p.m. Drs. Nelson and Barnwell will hold a free discussion of Fortune's Bones in the Leah M. Smith Lecture Hall, Room 2200. This will be just before performances of Fortune's Bones, for which there is a fee.

GATE Has Nonprofit Day for Taping PSAs

The Greenbelt Access Television (GATE) studio will hold a nonprofit day Saturday, February 18 from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. to allow Greenbelt-based nonprofit organizations to present a 30-second public service announcement. On a first-come, first-served basis the PSAs will be taped and edited for showing between programs on the GATE Channels, Comcast 77 and Verizon Fios 19.

Organizational presenters should bring a draft script including name, their organizational name, a brief description of the mission or event to be publicized and contact information. Any additional supporting pictures should be brought in as jpegs on a CD. GATE recommends against wearing all black, all white or small patterns as those do not videotape well.

A professional grade Auto-script teleprompter is available so there is no need to memorize a script, though good familiarity with the contents is highly recommended. GATE is located on the second floor of the Greenbelt Community Center, across from the Multipurpose Room.

GATE is prohibited by law from promoting commercial organizations or commercial events including raffles, sales and lotteries.

For questions or further information call the GATE studio at 301-507-6581 or MaliaMurray@hotmail.com.

Obituaries

Dirce "Dee" Ronchi

Dirce "Dee" Ronchi, a Greenbelt resident for 65 years, died February 2, 2012.

She was born March 24, 1921, in West New York, N.J., just 10 months after her parents arrived from Brusnengo, Italy, via Ellis Island.

Mrs. Ronchi grew up in West New York, graduated from Memorial High School and went to work for Farrar and Rinehard, Inc., a publishing company in New York.

Her future husband, George Ronchi, was on leave from Langley Field, N.Y., and met Dirce, at a relative's house.

They were married in 1945 and moved to Hyattsville with her husband's family and eventually found their first home in Greenbelt in 1947.

The couple raised three children, Diane, George and William. Mrs. Ronchi was very devoted to her family. She made sure her children attended Mass every Sunday. The children attended St. Hugh's School where Mrs. Ronchi was very active with being a room mother, helping with all the activities at the school, including bazaars, bake sales, luncheons, etc. She was also a cub scout leader for a number of years and was an active member of the senior program until she lost her hearing.

Mrs. Ronchi loved her neighbors so much and always considered herself blessed to be in such a wonderful court surrounded by so many friends. Mrs. Ronchi's favorite pastime was walking to the Co-op where she could count on seeing so many of her friends. Mrs. Ronchi was predeceased by her husband George in July 2000.

She is survived by her three children, her sister Jeanette (her only brother, Sergio, was killed at the Battle of the Bulge during World War II), six grandchildren, 12 great-grandchildren and many nieces and nephews. Services were held at St. Hugh of Grenoble Catholic Church on February 7, officiated by Father Walter Tappe. Interment was at Fort Lincoln Cemetery.

ALL ARE WELCOME.

Condolences to the family and friends of retired city employee Willie Earl Davis, who died February 9, 2012. He was a supervisory inspector in the city's office of planning and community development.

We were sorry to hear of the death of John D. ("Denny") Murray, 72, in Petaluma, Calif., on February 3, 2012. He was a builder in Calvert County, Md., and was the son of the late pioneer Greenbelters John P. and Theodora ("Teddy") Murray. A memorial service will be held at the Rod and Reel in Chesapeake Beach on February 20.

Congratulations to Wendy Wexler on her retirement from Greenbelt CARES after 33 years as a youth and family counselor.

Happy 85th birthday to Gerti Wines of 13 Court Ridge. After being surprised at a cupcake party in her honor given by her neighbors, Gerti was seen walking through the parking lot with a giant balloon presented to her by Norwegian exchange student Marie Valstad. Gerti's motto for an active life is "If you don't use it, you lose it."

Happy 80th birthday to David Freivogel of 14 Hillside, who celebrates the milestone on February 25. Born in St. Louis, he has lived in GHI since 1980 and was a pianist, percussionist, composer and music consultant at the University of Maryland Department of Dance until his 2005 retirement. In the photo above he is sharing his musical talents with several younger family members on his last visit home in 2007.

Send us your reports of new babies, awards, honors, etc. to share with our readers. We'd especially like to hear more from our neighbors in Greenbelt East and Greenbelt West (Franklin Park). To send information for "Our Neighbors" email us at newsreview@greenbelt.com or leave a message at 301-474-6892.

Letters to the Editor

in my community we have young people who wish to be relevant and that Greenbelt's youth show us they want to participate in our democratic challenges by voicing their concerns . . . that they know they do not have to be silent or that they know they can be who they see themselves to be. She may learn from this that her beliefs may change as she experiences life and grows in wisdom and maturity.

Until then, as a crowned 2011 Junior Miss Greenbelt, enjoy your year – you earned it and deserve it.

Yes to FBI Headquarters

The prospect of a new FBI headquarters at the Greenbelt Metro is terrific news for Greenbelters. Many of those 11,000+ highly-educated and highly-paid employees will find Greenbelt an attractive place to both work and live, especially as gas prices increase. The budgets for ARS, which runs BARC, and NASA are stagnant or dropping, a situation which will likely mean more vacant Greenbelt homes, more foreclosures and further reductions in both home values (which have already dropped 25 to 30 percent) and the tax base. In contrast, having a large, stable employer will be a huge benefit to Greenbelt residents and neighborhoods. The arrival of the FBI headquarters will improve apartment and office occupancy rates and business owners/operators will thrive with the influx of numerous FBI contractors. In addition, a law enforcement headquarters may put a damper on crime around the Greenbelt Metro station, Greenbelt West and possibly other parts of Greenbelt.

Some councilmembers seem concerned about losing an opportunity for high-end retail at the Metro station but there is a good chance this plan is no longer viable as brick-and-mortar stores lose more business to online retailers. City officials hope that new residential development will increase the tax base (federal facilities don't pay taxes). But new residential development would require many public services and increase city expenses, whereas services required by the FBI headquarters would be minimal or nonexistent. And new residential development would make it even harder to sell existing homes in Greenbelt.

If jobs, economic development, public safety and property values are the city's top priorities, then the FBI headquarters is a home run.

Thanks to Council!

I wish to thank the Greenbelt

City Council for its support and endorsement of the effort to request a constitutional amendment which will address (reverse) the two 2010 Supreme Court decisions that have transformed the campaign-finance-elections landscape. The first, Citizens United v. Federal Elections Commission (FEC) with the Supreme Court voting 5-4 overturned a decades-old ban on corporate and union funds being used to support individual candidates and political causes.

The second decision, SpeechNow.org v. FEC, ruled that capping donations to political committees was unconstitutional, thus paving the way for the unbridled formation of more super PACs (political-action committees). These have become a vehicle for the wealthiest individuals and corporations to magnify their influence during the elections process and through lobbying and influencing legislation.

City Council voted unanimously to support the effort to amend the Constitution at a recent City Council meeting and sent a letter February 2 to our Maryland state legislature (our three delegates in the 22nd district and State Senator Paul G. Pinsky) endorsing this effort and asking them to do so as well. Maryland State Senator Jamie Raskin (Montgomery County) is leading this effort in our Maryland State Senate.

Getting a new amendment to the constitution is no small task and may take many years to convince two-thirds of both houses of Congress and ratification by ¾ of all 50 state legislatures. Previous amendments to the Constitution began with small groups and organizations and then eventually towns and cities and this paved the way for getting the needed support (votes) in the state legislatures. Thanks to Greenbelt for doing its part.

Corn and Wind Are No Answer

Bill Norwood's January 19 letter to the editor, "The Green Elephant in the Living Room" makes good points about the cars that most of us use too much. We all need to work on that.

I'd like to add a word about a couple of other elephants in that room that were lauded in the "Deeper Shade of Green" article (January 5) that prompted Bill's letter. These elephants are a bit smaller and many don't see them as elephants yet. I'm talking about corn and wind power.

Let's start with corn. It's great that the Labor Day Festival vendors used lots of corn-based tableware. But last I read, corn covers 10 percent of Maryland – and God knows how much land elsewhere – with a monoculture compared to which a desert is positively lush with life. There has to be a better use for all that land than feeding stoves and producing tableware, to say nothing of fueling "alternative" vehicles that help the "dirty" ones clog highways, promoting destructive road-building. (I won't get into feeding beef cattle, beef being an indulgence I'm working on eliminating. I'd love some help. Less corn = less cattle = help. Thank you.) Corn may be an occasional scenic pleasure – who doesn't enjoy amber waves? – and tasty on the cob. Corn cups and plates may be a step up from petroleum (on which corn growers rely greatly, of course). But let's not pretend that increasing corn's footprint on the land is sustainable. Corn is a way station at best. It's the new tobacco; the faster we kick the habit the better.

As to wind power: once again we have something that looks great from a distance (e.g., your electric bill). It's not so great when one is standing in a wind farm. Frequently one is standing in a forest that isn't there anymore. Then there are the birds, bats and insects that die in droves on the blades of wind turbines (the bats die when their lungs hemorrhage from the pressure drop; the blades don't even have to touch them). We aren't apparently counting but Spain is: Spanish wind kills from six to 18 million birds and bats per year, according to a report released in January and our country has twice as many wind turbines. (A chilling note from the report: "the mortality figures that were reported in Germany and Sweden in the early 1990s are not unusual after all.") These animals, already under assault from various other eco-misdeeds of ours, are critical to the biotic foundation on which our green efforts rest. Although wind may be somewhat of an improvement over what we were doing – that sounds awful, now, eh? – we can't paint it as a green triumph. Too many of our cohabitants on this orb mortally disagree.

(It's ironic that Clean Currents is helping fund gardens and tree planting. Call it damage control.)

I hope it's obvious to everyone that mitigating the harm we do to the nature around us is a process of halting baby steps. That we are taking them is better than doing nothing. I'm just saying that getting greener is no cause for self-congratulation, a bit too much of which I saw in the January 5 article. It's a debt we owe the creation. We must recognize baby steps and the urgency of taking the next one as soon as we can. We're nowhere near the destination yet.

Use less of everything you use. Continuously doing that is the biggest baby step any of us can take.

Lashell has also volunteered at the Greenbelt Nursery School and was its board president in 2006. Now whenever she volunteers for anything, Rick tends to ask "Is this going to be a paying gig?"

Though she is busy as a volunteer and a soccer mom, Lashell is far from retired. She has traveled an interesting path from being a lunch and recess monitor at Greenbelt Elementary School (GES) to working as a legal secretary to being a paralegal now.

"My job at GES got cut – budget restraints."

"Did Matthew mind having his mom around at lunch and recess?"

"Oh no, he loved it. I got to feed him and monitor the kids, which I loved doing. I miss it. Most people wouldn't but I enjoy being around kids."

Lashell was a legal secretary at Robert Ades and Associates in Landover from 1999 until recently. Her work skills there prepared her for work as a paralegal at McAndrew and Zitver in Greenbelt. "I do a lot of research and prepare attorneys (the cases) for court."

Lashell was born in Washington, D.C. at Children's Hospital and graduated from Springbrook High School in Montgomery County. She attends a non-denominational Christian Church in Bethesda and Matthew is a third grader at Holy Redeemer Elementary School in College Park.

"Since your husband is retired and you are not, does he sleep late and drink coffee all day?" asked the obtuse interviewer.

"Oh no, not at all! He's up with us, helping out," Lashell insisted.

Concerning Black History Month, she says, "It's nice to be recognized; I'm glad it (Black History Month) is recognized but black history is not confined to just one month. It's not as if black history takes a holiday."

Because Lashell was born in 1966 – "in January, during the blizzard – my mother almost didn't make it to the hospital – my grandfather had to carry her" – there are some African-American icons who don't particularly resonate with her. Malcolm X and Muhammad Ali, for example, elicit a polite shrug. But Lena Horne? "Oh yes, I've always loved Lena Horne and Mary Wilson, too. I saw her at the Kennedy Center. And I'm a big Billie Holiday fan, ever since I saw 'Lady Sings the Blues.'"

"Starring?"

"Diana Ross!"

It is startlingly ironic that Lashell's mother missed seeing Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr.'s "I Have a Dream" speech at Lincoln Memorial on August 28, 1963, "because my grandparents wouldn't let her go," she said.

"They were worried; they didn't think it would be safe."

Perceptions have changed; we've come a long way, presumably.

As we rose to leave the New Deal Café, Lashell recognized another coffee drinker, George Krieger.

Lashell: "Hello! I'm Matthew's mother. Basketball, remember?"

George: "Oh yes, he played with Dan (grandson)."

Lashell: "Is Joyce still wearing those wonderful hats?"

George: "Of course!"

biggest wish is to help find a way to expand cultural diversity among Greenbelt's active community of volunteers.

He's learned a lot about diversity – and the lack of it – firsthand. When Washington first moved into Charlestowne North in Greenbelt in the late 1980s, he was the only African American in the high-rise building. As people from Africa, El Salvador, India and China began to move into the city, though, he realized the difference between what he calls "color diversity" and "cultural diversity."

He had a closer look at these issues more than a decade ago, when he attended a Washington family reunion on the Eastern Shore – organized to explore the link with George Washington. "There were hundreds of people and there I was – a black man who identified with "Roots" and African kings – and instead my relatives included Caucasians and Blackfoot Indians and members of other tribes in Maryland.

"My hope is that one day Greenbelt will have a reunion as colorful as mine," he said.

What's next for Darrin Washington? Right now, he's focused on serious medical challenges facing his wife and his mother and caring for his daughters Madison, 2, and Kennedy, 4 months. "They were purposely named after U.S. presidents, he said, "I am attempting to raise the first African American woman president. Yes, right here in Greenbelt, Maryland. Wish me luck . . ."

But in the future – maybe a "run for City Council," he says, then is quick to qualify: "Not in the near future."

Gain Economic Info At ERHS Feb. 29

Business owners interested in learning more about Prince George's County's $50 million Economic Development Incentive Fund are invited to an information session on Wednesday, February 29 from 7 to 9 p.m. at Eleanor Roosevelt High School (ERHS).

County Executive Rushern Baker will host the meeting and discuss the fund and its application process. Goals of the fund, with $7 million earmarked for Fiscal Year 2012, include expansion of the county's commercial tax base, promotion of major development and redevelopment opportunities, transit-oriented development and more.

For details email edifund@pgcdcc.com or call 301-583-4601.

who falls into a special category. There are added funds for certain grade levels, such as $830 for example for each middle school level student.

For each student with high academic performance, a school will receive an added $91. Schools with children at the poverty level who qualify for the Free and Reduced Meals Program will be allocated another $94 per child.

These additions will result in another $500,000 being added to the Roosevelt budget. Greenbelt Middle School, preliminarily, will get an additional $1.19 million over the base allocation.

Jacobs told council that the board did not want schools to be central office-driven. This budget process gives each school greater autonomy.

Coleman noted there would be three opportunities, beginning in October, for interested persons to become involved in the process. This is an open budget process.

Greenbelt Mayor Judith Davis commented on the innovative budget process, asking if other jurisdictions were doing it. She was told that about five other major jurisdictions are doing student-based budgeting, including Houston and San Francisco.

Johnson considered this a better way of allocating funds. "One size doesn't fit all," she said. It will be a better way to measure teacher effectiveness, she thought.

Jordan, however, expressed concern that Roosevelt might not do as well under this process.

High School Reform

The school system will be offering greater opportunities for high school students to choose specialized studies through the creation of academies. County high schools will be grouped in clusters of three to four schools.

Every student will have the opportunity to enroll in a special academy of his or her choice at a nearby school. It will take several years for this program to be fully implemented, however.

Davis thought there could be a downside to this program in students having to choose another high school to go to in order to get courses they are interested in.

Nutrition, Activity

School representatives also discussed changes to promote better health among students. Johnson said there will no longer be "silent lunch" periods.

She thought the school board had been delinquent about nutrition and physical activity in the past but were now making changes. "Our school lunches may not taste as good as Mickey D's but they will be a lot healthier," she said.

Beck noted that school vending machines were being transitioned to healthier choices. However, kids are bypassing the "green" products, she said. It is a struggle to retrain kids on food choices and to get more colorful foods into their diets.

Next Reel & Meal Is Dirt, the Movie

The next in the monthly Reel and Meal at the New Deal free film series is "Dirt! The Movie," to be shown on Monday, February 20 at 7 p.m. at the New Deal Café in Roosevelt Center. Sponsored by the Beaverdam Creek Watershed Watch Group, the discussion afterward will be led by Greenbelter Dr. Michel Cavagelli, who works at Beltsville Agricultural Research Center. A vegan buffet is available for purchase at 6:30 p.m.

"Dirt! The Movie" was produced by Bill Benenson and Gene Rosow and is narrated by Jamie Lee Curtis. It shows where dirt originates, then how it functions, followed by how humans have made it difficult for dirt to do its thing. At the end of the film there's a section showing how people have changed their relation to dirt and are now giving it the respect it deserves. The result is beneficial to the earth and to humans and other creatures who live here.

follow the model of the FSA photographers, Zhang said, and thus inspire him similarly.

City's 75th Anniversary

The fact that 2012 is Greenbelt's 75th anniversary encouraged Zhang to take advantage of the opportunity and execute his plan. He intends to post pictures about activities planned for the anniversary year.

Despite having lived here only since December 2010, Zhang praised Greenbelt as a "unique community," speaking highly of the old part of the city. He cited especially the ability to walk to other houses or the town center without dealing with major roads as a nice design touch encouraging interaction and leisure.

Zhang was born in China and came to the U.S. for school. Although he has lived in this country for a large portion of his life, he said he looks at things from an outsider's perspective because he did not grow up here. He said he is "always curious about American lives."

"By the end of the year, I want to be able to show these photos to show others a sense of what an American small town is like in the 21st century," Zhang said.

Zhang also pointed out that a project like this could be as interesting to people in the future as photographs from the era of the FSA project are to people like him today.

Although the FSA photography has strongly influenced Zhang, he has no interest in replicating the project too closely, he said, because he wants to portray Greenbelt as it is in 2012. He does not plan to post any photos in black and white.

Because he believes that blogs are the go-to form of communication in this day and age, Zhang embraced that medium for his project. He appreciates in particular the interactivity made possible by instant feedback from readers.

Complete Picture

Of his posts thus far, Zhang considers the one about the January 9 city council meeting to best illustrate the mission of his blog. By documenting the meeting from the Pledge of Allegiance to adjournment, he got a sense of the issues facing Greenbelt at that one point in time – the controversial, the mundane and everything in between.

In order to "paint a more complete picture," Zhang said he included information not traditionally picked up by media outlets in order to document the "more neglected stuff."

Moving forward, Zhang plans on scheduling more interviews in order to post about individual lives in Greenbelt. He said he is open to letting other people help with his project but stressed that he must make sure the style is consistent.

Zhang said he felt "this town is worthy of studying" and he hopes to match the bar set by those who have inspired him. He hopes his blog could allow people unfamiliar with Greenbelt to understand what everyday life here is like in this day and age.

Golden Age Club

by Bunny Fitzgerald

The Golden Age Club is very pleased to welcome new members to the club and greeted two new members at the last meeting. This is what the club needs – new faces and new ideas.

We need to correct a mistake in the letter members received stating a wrong date for the Anniversary Luncheon. The correct date is Thursday, April 19 at the College Park Holiday Inn. Sorry about the wrong information in the letter!

Thanks to Tom Moran for giving club members information on income taxes and reminding everyone to make reservations to have our taxes done by calling GIVES. This year AARP is doing taxes at the American Legion Post and the fire house in Greenbelt.

We'll play bingo at the February 22 meeting. On February 29 Bob Lindley will tell us about the history of the Civil War.

Just a reminder that dues must be paid before the Anniversary Luncheon. Come to meetings and bring a friend. Remember, sharing is caring.

Café Celebrates 75 Years with 30s Jazz

On Saturday, February 18 at 8 p.m. the Reverie Jazz Trio starts off the New Deal Café's year-long celebration of Greenbelt's 75th Anniversary with the first of its 1930s themed performances.

The Reverie Jazz Trio performs early jazz and blues standards, evoking the style and grace of that bygone era. The group features songs associated with local legends such as Duke Ellington and also talks about the role of early jazz in the history of the D.C. area.

This is the first in a series of free concerts at the New Deal Café that will celebrate the musical heritage of the 1930s. Friday, March 9 at 8 p.m., the Hot Club of D.C. will bring jazz to the Café; on Sunday, March 11 a Woody Guthrie Tribute with Don Walters will celebrate the folk music traditions of the era from 5 to 8 p.m. The series of celebratory concerts is sponsored by the Friends of New Deal Café Arts.

Belair Remembers Fibber and Molly

Belair Mansion in Bowie will be the site of a special program on Saturday, February 18 at 2 p.m. 79 Wistful Vista: Fibber McGee and Molly's Years in Radio will be presented by the Radio History Society's Brian Belanger and Ed Walker. They will recall one of the most delightful programs in broadcast history.

This program is free but donations will be accepted.

Call 301-390-1020 for more information. The snow date is February 25.

Dental Implants - Don't Wait to Replace your Missing Teeth!

McCarl Dental Group

Dental implants are today's standard of care for replacing missing teeth and securing removable dentures. In the past few years, improvements in dental implant technology have made implants more reliable, more comfortable and more affordable. There are circumstances for which a dental implant has replaced root canal therapy as the preferred dental treatment. When the root of a tooth is too short or too badly damaged to support restoration with a dental crown, it may be best to extract the tooth and place a dental implant. The implant will provide greater support for the restored tooth and improved long term success.

Dental implants are placed in the jaw where they fuse to the bone. They are effective for restoration of a single missing tooth or multiple missing teeth. In the past, dentists relied on procedures that were often temporary measures to repair badly damaged teeth. Now, in many cases, implants restored with crowns will last longer and cost less than ongoing repair efforts.

When you lose a tooth, your jawbone gradually loses strength and firmness. This leads to bone loss and can even cause changes in facial features. The loss of just one tooth can cause uneven chewing and an unstable bite. The remaining teeth shift and proper cleaning becomes more difficult. A misaligned bite can also contribute jaw joint dysfunction and headaches. Unlike a denture or bridge, a dental implant can prevent bone loss at the site of the missing tooth.

Many patients tell us that having a dental implant placed is more comfortable than they expected. Unlike teeth, the jaw bone does not have nerves. The type and density of bone varies from patient to patient and even within different locations in the same patient's jaw. Bone density will determine whether the dental implant can be restored immediately, or whether the implant needs to "sleep" and strengthen for several months before use. Allowing an implant to "sleep" and fuse to the jaw bone significantly adds to its strength.

There are advantages to having a properly trained general dentist place your implant. A general dentist will be restoring the implant and can determine the type and size implant that is most suitable as well as optimal position for later restoration. When the implant is placed and restored by the same dentist, there are fewer visits to the dentist which results in lower cost and greater convenience for the dental patient. Many patients are pleasantly surprised that the cost of dental implants is much lower than they expected. If you are missing teeth, visit a properly trained dentist to learn how dental implants can improve the health of your smile.

ACE Members Receive Update on Local Schools

by Mary Moien

The Greenbelt Advisory Committee on Education (ACE) held its yearly meeting with school principals on Tuesday, January 24. Most principals participated, including Monica Gaines, Greenbelt Elementary School; Phyllis Gillens, Magnolia Elementary; Ann Swann, vice-principal of Springhill Lake Elementary; Warren Tweedy, Greenbelt Middle School; and Reginald McNeill, Eleanor Roosevelt High School. Turning Point Academy Public Charter School was the only school not represented.

Jon Gardner is the ACE chair, Leta Mach is council liaison and Wendy Wexler is the city staff liaison. A little celebration was held in her honor as this was Wexler's final meeting prior to her retirement.

Greenbelt Middle

The status of the new Greenbelt Middle School (GMS) was the first topic. Principal Tweedy said he had recently met with the architect, who had said there is not a school building to compare with it in the whole state. It is a "green LEED" building and will be state-of-the-art.

The school was built for 1,089 students and 946 are expected when it opens next August. The building should be completed by July 15.

Tweedy said he expects more students once parents see the facility. He wondered if it might open already needing temporary classrooms. The northern area middle school TAG program will be located at GMS.

Tweedy is concerned that Breezewood Drive will not be wide enough to handle buses and the many students who walk to the school from nearby apartments. Mach will bring that concern to the council's attention, she said.

Middle school no longer has shop and family and consumer (home economics) classes. Instead there will be graphic design classes and Tweedy commented that the school is working with staff from the B. Smith's Union Station restaurant to learn about hospitality and food preparation.

Sixth Graders Move

More sixth graders will be moving to GMS next fall. The Springhill Lake sixth graders have been at the middle school for several years. Next fall Greenbelt Elementary and Berwyn Elementary sixth graders will also move to the school. Principal Gillens said that Magnolia sixth graders were on the list but had been "dropped off."

ACE member Susan Breon asked how the elementary schools will be affected by losing their sixth graders. The Greenbelt Elementary (GES) principal indicated that her school will have a little more room. A science lab had been converted into a classroom, she said, and could now become a lab again.

She was asked what would become of the sixth grade teachers. Gaines said that teachers might have some choices depending on what grades or subjects they were certified for. GMS will have a need for TAG and sixth grade teachers. There was agreement on the high quality of the current GES sixth grade teachers.

Gaines commented later that GES would be affected from a budget point of view. Schools are allocated a certain amount of money per pupil and sixth graders get a little more money per pupil. There will be less money coming to the school when the sixth graders leave.

There was some discussion and uncertainty about whether elementary TAG students would follow the TAG program into GMS. These TAG students would be coming from elementary schools all over the northern county area. Some students, however, may decide to drop out of TAG and go instead to their neighborhood middle school.

Tweedy commented that middle school is more structured than high school. Students are grouped by grade, staying with their peer groups for most of their classes.

Budgeting

The committee asked if school-based budgeting was really a budget cut in disguise, since funds are limited. Gillens described how the process might work, using Magnolia Elementary as an example.

The school-based budget committee would look at instructional needs, look at teacher and other positions and try to be creative, she said. They would try to decide if it would be better to have one more teacher and have smaller classes or to use funds to hire a para-professional. Decisions are difficult to make, she added.

Principal McNeill at Roosevelt described how some positions are "locked" and cannot be changed but there is some flexibility with certain positions. He says his concentration is on staff and that the school tries to be creative in areas such as supplies.

Several schools mentioned the high cost of supplies, including paper. In response to a question, McNeill indicated that the Italian language program is remaining at ERHS but that cuts in ROTC are expected.

GES Tech Needs

Principal Gaines commented about a real need for upgraded technology at GES. The school is not a Title I school, so does not qualify for additional funding. GES needs more computers, smart boards and projectors, she said, and cannot compete with schools that get the extra funds.

Students that move and come to GES are surprised to see all classes using only regular blackboards and not smart boards. The school is working with the PTA and planning to apply for some grant funding, she added. Gaines said she was unsure of the exact amount of money needed to improve technology in the school.

Magnolia Elementary

Principal Gillens described participation in the ACE Science

Club and the Robotics Club. Magnolia's Robotics Club was the only elementary school in the county to participate recently in competitions at the University of Maryland, Baltimore County. She said the club requires a strong commitment from parents, teachers and students but that students learn core values about studying, not just about how to build a robot.

GMS Activities

Principal Tweedy described new activities at the school to emphasize community service for students, both local and global. They are trying to work with Franklin Park apartments but to date have had little response.

There is a new Haitian teacher, he said, and students have become involved with assistance to a Haitian orphanage. The principal wants his students to understand how little some children and families have in Haiti.

New ACE member Elsie Waynes commented on how successful Red Cross programs were at the schools where she had taught in D.C.

Tweedy then mentioned a relatively new group, "Distinguished Gentlemen of Greenbelt." He said they will work with students at Springhill Lake Elementary.

Astronomy Club Salutes 1937 Sky

All are invited to join the Astronomical Society of Greenbelt on Thursday, February 23 at 7:30 p.m. at the Howard B. Owens Science Center to celebrate the 75th anniversary of the founding of the City of Greenbelt. The program will consist of a series of brief vignettes describing astronomical events which occurred 75 years ago. Topics include the birth of radio astronomy, stories about Robert Goddard and the status of rocketry in 1937 and other topics of interest from that era.

The Howard B. Owens Science Center is at 9601 Greenbelt Road adjacent to DuVal High School. In the event that the Prince George's County public schools are closed, the event will be rescheduled.

Kids Open Microphone At New Deal Sunday

A Kids Open Microphone session at the New Deal Café on Sunday, February 19 will run from 1:30 to 2:30 p.m. It is held on the third Sunday of every month. Children up to age 17 are invited to play a musical instrument, sing, dance, juggle, recite a poem or otherwise perform.

Many People Will Miss Out On BIGGER REFUNDS
This Year Just Because They Weren't Sure Which Forms
To Use and Might Benefit From a Second Opinion!

(Don't Let Uncle Sam Keep Your Hard Earned Money This Tax Season!)

Congress has passed some very confusing tax laws! To protect yourself from filing an "incorrect" tax return this year and missing out on a ton of cash that is supposed to be YOURS, you better call a tax professional to help you get ALL the money you deserve back from the IRS!

Hi, my name is Bob Newland and I have been a tax professional in this area for 29 years. I have an office on Route 1 near Wendy's, and an experienced "hand picked" staff. Robert C. Newland & Associates will not only prepare your tax return, we will help you keep the highest amount of money legally possible, AND, if we prepare your return, We Will Electronically File Your Tax Return with the IRS AND the State of Maryland for FREE!

All this is backed by our total "PEACE OF MIND" GUARANTEE"

How does it work? It's simple, really. We are going to bend over backwards to make sure you are well taken care of. If we don't achieve that goal, tell us. If we can't make it right to your satisfaction, we will give you your money back PLUS $40 FOR YOUR TIME AND TROUBLE! And, if there is ever a problem on your tax return, we will fix it and pay any penalties caused if we made a mistake. That's our "Peace of Mind" Accuracy Guarantee.

No other tax firm (that I know of) makes such a strong claim, but we believe that choosing Robert C. Newland & Associates to prepare your taxes should be a "risk-free no-brainer." But just in case you are still not sure, I am also throwing in a Special Bonus offer of a $40 discount for the first 50 new clients who respond to this message before February 29, 2012.

It's our way of saying, "Thanks for Trusting Us To Be Your Tax Professional!"
