On March 18, the city's Advisory Committee on Education (ACE) presented its 30th Educators Awards, according to ACE chair and awards host Janet Mirsky, "to recognize school-based adults who have made an exceptional contribution to our schools." Nominees can be teachers, guidance counselors or other professional, support or building staff. Awardees are nominated by the administrations of each of Greenbelt's public schools.

ACE was formed in 1994, and according to Mirsky, "serves as a link between the community and city council to promote high quality schools for Greenbelt." In addition to these yearly awards, ACE offers grants for school-based projects not addressed by the Board of Education, such as field trips, guest speakers and afterschool clubs, as well as yearly awards to Greenbelt students.

Indoor Pool Will Close April 7; Outdoor Pool Might Open May 5

by Anna Bedford-Dillow

The indoor pool and hot tub are scheduled to close from April 7 to September 29.

Greenbelt's indoor pool is scheduled to close on Monday, April 7, for repairs (see the January 30, 2025, issue). The current projected reopening date of the indoor pool is Monday, September 29. The city hopes to be able to keep the outdoor pool open past the usual Labor Day weekend until the indoor pool reopens. Staff are also working to open the outdoor pool early, possibly as soon as Monday, May 5, according to information on the city's website, though the opening date is yet to be confirmed.

Additional Hours

The outdoor pool will open earlier and close later than in regular summer seasons. Its projected hours are Monday through Friday 6 a.m. to 8 p.m., Saturday

8 a.m. to 8 p.m. and Sunday 9 a.m. to 8 p.m., with closing time extended to 8:30 p.m. between May 24 and September 8.

Passes and Rates

Daily rates and membership rates will not be impacted. However, passholders who will not use the outdoor pool can pause their membership during the closure. Pool staff say further details regarding membership pauses will be sent directly to current passholders prior to the closure date of April 7.

Activities and Programs

Greenbelt Aquatic & Fitness Center has announced they will run a modified schedule of programs utilizing the outdoor pool.

Measles Cases in County, School; Vaccination Rates Declining

by Anna Bedford-Dillow

This month two cases of measles have been confirmed in Prince George's County. This is not necessarily an outbreak, however, because to be considered such there need to be three or more related cases. The two cases in Prince George's County arose in individuals who had travelled internationally, returning through Dulles International and Reagan National Airports on March 14. In addition, there was also a recent confirmed case in Howard County, also a person who had travelled internationally, and on Tuesday this week a case was confirmed in Washington, D.C.

Measles Hits PGCPs

On Thursday, March 20, parents of children who attend Prince George's County Public Schools (PGCPS) received an email from Superintendent Millard House II informing them of the confirmed case of measles within PGCPS. The confirmed case was at John Hanson Montessori, but the email came eight days after the last known exposure there, which occurred on March 12. The specialty Montessori school is located in Oxon Hill and serves students from pre-k to eighth grade.

In his email, House noted measles cases are rising nationwide and said the school district

"is working closely with the Prince George's County Health Department to monitor and respond to any local impact."

According to data from the Centers for Disease Control (CDC), nationwide there were

Council Analyzes Its Funding Priorities for U.S. Delegates

by Cathie Meetre

During its March 12 meeting, the Greenbelt City Council reviewed the highest priority projects the city has identified for federal grant discussions with our congressional delegation who, at this time of year, considers the competing requests of its constituent municipalities for federal funding in the form of Bonds. This was done without reference to the current federal situation which offers no certainty what funding, if any, will be available.

Additional material from this meeting will be provided in a separate article.

City Manager Josué Salmerón said it was impossible to guess what reception the request to our federal delegation would get. He said their choices would depend on the field of requests and the sense of the delegation about what it should back that had the highest chance of success in the allocations.

Priorities

The top four priorities were 1) improvements to the Greenbelt Museum, 2) an addition to the Springhill Lake Recreation Center (SHLRC), 3) structural remediation at the Community Center and 4) replacement of four community playgrounds. Although all the applications were aimed at the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) only the museum sought funding from the Historic Preservation Fund. The remaining applications would be to the HUD Economic Development Initiative.

Greenbelt Museum

Salmerón stated that his highest priority was for an

Letters to the Editor

Dangerous Firefighter Shortage Evidenced

Local television news crews showed a Montgomery County fire truck and firefighters on the scene of the fire at Franklin Park Apartments, assisting the Prince George's County Fire Department.

This is a very important fact, as former Prince George's County Fire Department Chief Tiffany Green had removed career firefighters from the Greenbelt, Berwyn Heights and College Park fire stations. The public needs to know that they remain in danger due to the continued lack of firefighters in the Greenbelt area.

J W Thompson

Correction

In our reporting on the fire at Franklin Park last week we stated that residents were treated for smoke inhalation by the Red Cross. In fact, affected residents were swiftly transported by medical units for treatment. The Red Cross was on the scene to assist in the recovery but not with medical care.

Death of a Unicorn

A father (Paul Rudd) and daughter (Jenna Ortega) accidentally hit and kill a unicorn while en route to a weekend retreat, where his billionaire boss (Richard E. Grant) seeks to exploit the creature's miraculous curative properties.

The Penguin Lessons

The film was inspired by the true story of a disillusioned Englishman who went to work in a school in Argentina in 1976. Expecting an easy ride, Tom discovers a divided nation and a class of unteachable students. However, after he rescues a penguin from an oil-slicked beach, his life is turned upside-down. Said critic Neely Swanson of the Beverly Hills Courier, "The true star of this tale, the one who's in the title of the film, is the penguin. Never pass up an opportunity to interact with penguins, and this one is no different."

Dirty Dancing

Another chance to see this classic film. Baby (Jennifer Grey) is one listless summer away from the Peace Corps. Hoping to enjoy her youth while it lasts, she's disappointed when her summer plans deposit her at a sleepy resort in the Catskills with her parents. Her luck turns around, however, when the resort's dance instructor, Johnny (Patrick Swayze), enlists Baby as his new partner, and the two fall in love. Baby's father forbids her from seeing Johnny, but she's determined to help him perform the last big dance of the summer.

The Gleaners and I

An 1867 painting by Jean-Francois Millet inspired septuagenarian documentary Agnes Varda to cross the French countryside to videotape people who scavenge. Taking everything from surplus in the fields, to rubbish in trashcans, to oysters washed up after a storm, the "gleaners" range from those sadly in need to those hoping to recreate the community activity of centuries past, and still others who use whatever they find to cobble together a rough art. Highlighted by Varda's amusing narration.

Spring Open House At Museum April 6

Welcome spring at the Greenbelt Museum on Sunday, April 6. Come by the grounds of the Museum house (10-A and 10-B Crescent) from 2 to 4 p.m. and plant a seedling to take home. A small selection of seedlings including flowers, veggies and herbs will be provided, one seedling per person, while they last. No pre-registration is required.

While visiting, take a free, quick tour of the Museum house to see spring decorations and the start of a small demonstration victory garden on the grounds. Greenbelters would have gardened for victory in their allotment plots, not in their yards, but many households across the country did have gardens growing just outside of their doors. This will be the Museum's second victory garden. The first was in 2011 in conjunction with our exhibit, Green from the Start: A History of Gardening in Greenbelt. See the exhibit online greenbeltmuseum.org/greenfromthestart

The Museum house will be open 1 to 5 p.m. and the seedling activity will run 2 to 4 p.m. If it rains the activity will take place under a tent.

No vacancies are anticipated, but a limited number of incumbents reapply to the program annually and new applicants are also invited to apply for consideration. Learn more at bit.ly/3R2URY9. Alice Cobb White

Alice Cobb White

Alice Octavia Cobb White died Thursday, March 6, 2025. She was born on November 28, 1929, in Donora, Pa., to parents who raised her alongside her three siblings, Walter Cobb, Clara Jones and Ronnie Cobb.

After graduating from high school, Alice Cobb married Thomas White on September 9, 1950, becoming Alice Cobb White. Together, they built a home in Greenbelt, where they raised their three children, Gregory, Sharin and Carole.

Always committed to personal growth and education, Alice attended the Gardner School of Business in 1965.

In 1966, Alice became a devoted member of Zion Baptist Church, where her faith remained an important cornerstone of her life. During her time at Zion, she served on the library committee, contributing to the spiritual growth of the congregation. Her professional career spanned 25 years as an executive secretary at the University of Maryland, where she worked in both the Department of Animal Science and the Department of Chemistry until her retirement in April 1991.

Alice's retirement years were as active and purposeful as her career. She volunteered at Columbia Hospital for Women in Washington, D.C., and worked part-time as a leasing consultant at Georgian Towers in Silver Spring. She had a passion for travel, exploring destinations such as Hawaii, California, Texas, Arizona and Florida, and enjoying multiple cruises throughout her golden years.

Alice is survived by her son, Gregory White; daughters, Sharin White and Carole Montes; grandchildren, Beatrice, Jason, Keva, Ashlee and Ciera; 10 great-grandchildren; nephews Gaylord and Garren; niece Kimberly; brother-in-law George; and a host of friends and relatives who will deeply miss her warmth, wisdom and kindness.

Her legacy of hard work, devotion to family and service to others will continue to inspire all who knew her.

Visitation will be held Wednesday, March 26 from 5 to 8 p.m. at Fort Lincoln Funeral Home located at 3401 Bladensburg Road, Brentwood. Funeral services will follow on Thursday, March 27 at 10:30 a.m.

Faith in Action to Help Famlies

by Jeff Warner

Members of Maryland Christian Fellowship (MCF) Community Church, some of whom are students at the University of Maryland (UMD), traveled to South Carolina to assist families in need during UMD's spring break. MCF served three families. The team rebuilt deteriorated and unsafe steps, and built and installed handrails. In addition, the MCF team power washed and stained the decks of another home and repaired and installed interior doors and a storm door. One family had been requesting help for 15 years! Their request was answered from the dedicated team that traveled 550 miles one way and paid their own expenses to bless a family in need.

Lenten Agape Meals At Community Church

Greenbelt Community Church, United Church of Christ, will be hosting its annual series of Agape Meals on Wednesdays at 6 p.m. through April 9. The event is free and open to the public. A free-will offering will be donated to the missions of the church.

Agape meals are a Lenten tradition for the church and named using the Greek word for the unconditional, unearned love that God has for all. Each simple meal of soup, bread and salad is preceded by a short devotional lesson. These events are a celebration of Lent and intended to promote spiritual reflection while providing an opportunity for fellowship. This year's theme is Unraveling Lent.

The church is located at 1 Hillside Road and is an open and affirming congregation, welcoming to all.

ACE members at the meeting also included Stephenie Arcido, Treasurer Denna Lambert and Gulnura Rakhyshova, who served as presenters. The introductory remarks were provided by Mirsky. Also present were members of the Greenbelt City Council and District Four County Council Member Ingrid Watson, all of whom also bestowed awards.

Magnolia Elementary

The first award went to Tamia Perry from Magnolia Elementary School. Perry is a Title 1 resource teacher and math ambassador. Said Mirsky, Perry is “always working – whether it be modeling a lesson for novice teachers, co-facilitating collaborative planning, covering a class,” as well as many others things, all done with a smile. Mirsky cited her “commitment to carrying out a task and the ability to always find the bright side in every situation.”

Perry thanked God, her family and friends, colleagues and the Greenbelt community. She declared her abiding love of education, and that she is fueled by a “love for working with students and teachers.”

Greenbelt Elementary

Janna Robinson, a kindergarten teacher and former Grade 1 Level Chairperson, received the award from Greenbelt Elementary School. Mirsky characterized her as “a beacon of inspiration and dedication,” adding, Robinson “consistently invests time in ensuring every student believes in their own abilities and strives beyond them,” acting as a model of “punctuality, preparation and prudent decision-making,” encouraging risk-taking and maximizing learning opportunities. She also serves outside the classroom as an American Sign Language sponsor and mentor teacher.

Robinson said that this is the first such award she has received in her 18 years of teaching, citing it as “an honor.”

Springhill Lake Elementary

Springhill Lake Elementary’s Danielle Todd-Jones, a special education resource teacher for multiple grades, was next honored. Mirsky said “she collaborates and inspires teachers with her kind and positive attitude” and is “passionate about doing what is in the best interest of all our students.” This year, she has taken on a new role as special education co-chair, performed with “patience, collaboration and efficiency.” She also leads the school’s Green Team and is a founding member of the Annual Stream Cleanup.

Todd-Jones extolled the many mentors in her career as essential to her success, praising her “amazing colleagues” for their support, drive, assistance and emotional availability, declaring that one “can’t find that at every school.” She applauded her students for their daily willingness to learn and always give their best.

Dora Kennedy French Immersion

Diarra Dieng was the recipient from Dora Kennedy French Immersion School. A first-grade teacher since 2021, Mirsky said Dieng “has found her stride quickly through determination, patience, resourcefulness and open-mindedness.” Of Senegalese origin, she speaks Wolof, French, English, “with a spark of Spanish.” Mirsky said that “in three years, she has become one of our most remarkable educators.” Diverging from an initial career path in business administration and human resources, Mirsky said that Dieng is “infinitely patient, gentle but firm, resourceful and full of team spirit.”

Dieng extolled her school, saying that she “would not be able to do any of it,” without its support; thanking all “from the bottom of my heart.”

Greenbelt Middle

Jamon McEwan was the awardee from Greenbelt Middle School, where he serves as Student Advocate. According to Mirsky, he “has a deep passion for supporting students to not only be strong instructionally, but to build honor and class to our community,” helping “shape the futures of children.” His efforts have led to a 30 percent drop in the school’s suspension rate, where he instills “resolution skills for students through restorative practices.” McEwan also acts as the school’s basketball coach.

McEwan thanked God, without whom “none is possible,” as well as his principal Marcellus Clement, who “shows the way and leads by example.” His daily mission and wish for his students is to “try to be better today than we were yesterday.”

Roosevelt High

The evening’s last award went to Anne Zhu from Eleanor Roosevelt High School. Mirsky cited her “exceptional commitment to fostering an inclusive, engaging and supportive learning environment for all students,” praising her “unwavering commitment to student success, innovative teaching methods, and dedication to professional growth.” Her unique focus on language acquisition, vocabulary development and speaking, listening and writing skills, especially with recent newcomers to the United States was highlighted. Mirsky noted her “patience, creativity and a strong belief in every student’s potential to succeed.”

Zhu, a teacher for 37 years, thanked her father, a math professor, for his essential support for her career path. She lauded her 150 fellow teachers for their common passion for teaching, stating that it drives her and them to want to “teach another 57 years.”

They hope to include youth swim lessons, morning and evening water exercise sessions and senior swim, while also accommodating the summer season practice schedule for Greenbelt’s Municipal Swim Team. The finalized schedule of department programs will be published in the 2025 Recreation Summer Activity Guide.

The hot tub will be closed for the duration of the repairs, confirmed Assistant Director Andrew Phelan. However, the family/accessible changing room and bathroom located off the pool deck, which also serves as an all-gender changing room and bathroom is expected to be available. “At this time, we do not anticipate any access restrictions to the changing room/restroom in the indoor pool area and we hope to have it available throughout the indoor pool closure to those that wish to use that room,” Phelan told the News Review.

The fitness wing and its hours will not be impacted.

285 measles cases reported in 2024 but by March 20, 2025, there have already been a total of 378 confirmed measles cases in the U.S. this year.

Also Battling Flu

The measles case was announced just two weeks after PGCPs announced two students had died from flu (see the March 13 issue). “While measles is a serious concern, it is not the only health risk we are currently facing,” noted House. “We remain in the midst of flu season and as you may be aware, our community has recently experienced two flu-related deaths. This serves as a sobering reminder of the importance of protecting our health and taking steps to prevent the spread of illness.”

Need for Vaccination

House’s March 7 email called vaccination an “important step” in keeping schools safe and his March 20 message called it “critical.” “Those who have been vaccinated for Measles (MMR) are at very low risk. However, unvaccinated individuals face a much higher risk of infection. As a precaution, any unvaccinated student or staff member at a school with a confirmed case will be excluded from in-person learning or work until 21 days after the last confirmed case,” stated the superintendent’s message.

PGCPs is currently conducting enhanced cleaning and disinfecting, calling on parents to keep sick children at home, practice hand washing and hygiene and keep children up to date with vaccinations.

Drop in Vaccinations

According to the CDC, when more than 95 percent of people in a community are vaccinated, “most people are protected through community immunity (herd immunity).” However, nationwide data shows “coverage among U.S. kindergartners has decreased from 95.2 percent during the 2019-2020 school year to 92.7 percent in the 2023-2024 school year, leaving approximately 280,000 kindergartners at risk during the 2023-2024 school year.”

Vaccination coverage in Maryland looks better than the national average. Maryland state law requires that students receive “age appropriate vaccinations,” which include the MMR vaccine. However, the state allows for possible exemptions to vaccine requirements – the most commonly used one is the religious exemption. The number of children in the state and in the county who utilize exemptions to vaccination has risen in recent years and spiked during Covid, according to data from the Maryland Department of Health Center for Immunization. For the 2023-2024 school year 0.66 percent of kindergartners in Prince George’s

County were unvaccinated for medical reasons and 1.33 percent were unvaccinated with a religious exemption, meaning 2 percent of the 98.1 percent of students surveyed were unvaccinated. We can compare those rates to 20 years ago and see that in the 2003-2004 school year the number of kindergartners with medical exemptions in the county was 0.1 percent and those with religious exemptions made up 0.2 percent. Similarly, a decade ago exemptions remained low for the 2013-2014 school year with still only 0.1 percent of kindergartners having a medical exemption and 0.3 percent a religious exemption in Prince George’s County. The number of unvaccinated students was already rising but spiked during Covid, with a total of over 4.5 percent of kindergartners using exemptions for the 2019-2020 school year.

Though there have been three confirmed cases of measles in Maryland this month alone, high rates of vaccination should prevent an outbreak in the state of the kind currently seen in Texas and New Mexico.

Cases of measles in the U.S. dropped dramatically following the introduction of vaccinations. The disease was declared eliminated in the U.S. in 2000. Elimination is defined as the absence of endemic measles transmission in a region for at least 12 months in the presence of a well-performing surveillance system.

Measles symptoms include a high fever, cough, runny nose, sore throat and red, watery eyes. The rash it’s commonly associated with often takes approximately five days to develop. Those most at risk from the highly contagious virus are the unvaccinated, including babies.

additional $300,000 from HUD for the Greenbelt Visitor and Education Center (referred to as the Greenbelt Museum). This would provide matching funds to leverage an additional $300,000 slug of funding from the state – with a goal of $600,000 total in new funding, half federal, half state.

This stirred up considerable comment among councilmembers who questioned its level of priority or if we should ask for funding at all. The Museum comprises two former GHI houses now owned by the city. One unit is renovated to resemble the house as it would have been in 1937 while the other house is not yet renovated to fulfill its purposes which include a variety of supporting functions for the Museum.

Priority
Councilmember Rodney Roberts felt strongly that we should not seek federal money for such projects and instead focus on initiatives that will help people keep their jobs. Councilmember Danielle McKinney commented that she agreed with Roberts – and she proposed that other items on the priority list were more aligned with the potential needs of residents. She wanted to know what the minimum need was for additional funding for the Museum that would avoid losing funds already obtained.

Councilmember Amy Knesel stated that although the museum facility was owned by the city, the Museum was run by a non-profit organization, Friends of the Greenbelt Museum, that had the capacity to propose for funding on its own behalf. Mayor Emmett Jordan noted that the Museum had used a consultant to help it compete for funding but had so far not been successful on a large enough scale. Roberts noted that the funds weren't for programs or even to restore the building to its original state. Salmerón explained that though the title of the fund was "Historic Preservation," its purpose could include educational and programmatic elements other than returning space to its original condition. Roberts was unmoved.

Recreation Facility
The SHLRC project, also on the list for a federal funding request, would not be in competition with the Museum because it is in a different category. Although the entire project has a price tag of $2 to $3 million, the grant request to HUD would be for $750,000 for interior work to the existing facility in preparation for the addition, including repairs and remediation where a wall is beginning to detach. The proposed addition would expand space for community activities for all age groups and includes programs for child care; Science Technology, Engineering, and Mathematics (STEM) education; and sports. The city has no funds available for this in the budget.

Community Center
This project would fund repair of part of the addition built in 1967 which is deteriorating.

Playgrounds
The fourth initiative groups four outdated playgrounds, three on city property within GHI's circumference and the fourth on school board property at Greenbelt Elementary School, for replacement.

Other Projects
Additional candidates (in descending order of preference, likelihood or funding opportunities) were new bathrooms at Buddy Attick Park, upgrades to the club house and picnic areas at Schrom Hills Park, a multisport court at Franklin Park, a new municipal building, an Aquatic & Fitness Center splash pad and field restoration at Greenbelt Middle School.

Discussion of Priorities
Councilmember Kristin Weaver stated she preferred to move the SHLRC improvements into first place ahead of the Museum. She favored promoting better facilities for this area of the city and felt that the Museum could perhaps be assisted to raise more funding itself.

Jordan wanted to check into helping the Museum with its attempts to self fund but didn't want to lose the funding from the bond. He also wanted to promote the remediation of the Greenbelt Middle School field (now last on the list) to higher in priority as it had been a negotiated initiative with the school system.

Knesel echoed the desire of others to push SHLRC up to the top noting that the report states that "Currently staff struggles to meet the need of participants."

Councilmember Silke Pope was a proponent of replacing the Buddy Attick Park bathrooms and asked what funding source would be likely to be appropriate for the splash pad facility for small children. Salmerón replied that following last year's federal guidelines, as they have been told to do as there is, to date, no guidance for this year, there is no category that would cover the splash pad but that it could be funded from Project Open Space if sufficient funds were to be available.

Weaver noted that the splash pad and the bathrooms had previously met with a lukewarm reception from the delegation but Salmerón countered that they had been advised to send everything just in case there was something in there that caught the delegation's eye or was just the right size.

Roberts asked why we were proposing to replace bathrooms that were only 10 years old. Salmerón replied that the installation was suffering from rust, with the doors and frame particularly affected. Roberts appeared much dissatisfied with the rationale, stating that "it doesn't cost $500,000 to repair it" and that it "really goes to how we're maintaining our buildings."

Although the only clear guidance from the meeting was to increase the priority for SHLRC, Salmerón felt he had what he needed to go forward but expressed his concerns about the Museum – with fewer sources to fund it and the long duration of its evolution – he felt that some review and rethinking might be in order.

Reparations Commission Announces New Website, Community Events

by Gail Crichlow and Lois Rosado

The Greenbelt Reparations Commission (GRC), with support from the Public Information Office, created a website to provide information about the city's reparations work. Go to GreenbeltReparations.Info to find videos and blogs about GRC events and information and resources about local and national reparations work. Greenbelt residents are invited to provide comments and feedback, join the GRC mailing list, and/or volunteer to host a listening session in their neighborhood.

Hear from the Community
The commission needs to hear the voices of community residents who have historically faced any form of racial, economic or social injustice. Those who have (or who know someone who has) experienced injustices with law enforcement, been denied an opportunity to live where they want and/or attended underfunded schools, speak up and share those stories. The community is stronger when working together to make sure each individual is treated fairly. Email Megan Young, staff liaison to the commission, at myoung@greenbeltnmd.gov to schedule a meeting.

Upcoming Events
Saturday, March 29 from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m.: visit the GRC table in front of the Giant at Beltway Plaza to get information about GRC work and to share experiences as a Greenbelt resident. All are welcome. Those who complete a survey will have their name added to a raffle to receive a $25 grocery gift card from a local grocery store. There are 10 chances to win.

Saturday, April 5, 2:30 to 4:30 p.m.: GRC, with help from national and local organizations that have researched reparations, is planning a town hall to be held in the large meeting room at the Springhill Lake Recreation Center, 6101 Cherrywood Lane. Light refreshments will be served, and a sign language interpreter can be available if requested in advance.

Friday, April 11, 5 to 6 p.m.: GRC will host a listening session to discuss Greenbelt Then and Now at the Greenbelt Museum, 10-A Crescent Road.

Pastor Jeff Warner said, "MCF is serious about putting our faith in action and demonstrating the love of Jesus. I'm so proud of the team and of the love and kindness they lived out with strangers whom we now call friends. It is truly an honor and privilege to serve."

MCF partnered with Home-works of America which is a nonprofit organization that serves disadvantaged communities across the nation. MCF is a local multicultural, nondenominational Christian church that meets Sundays at 10 a.m. at Greenbelt Elementary School (MCFcc.org).

ERHS Basketball Season Ends at Region But County Claims Two State Titles

by Patrick Gleason

While the Eleanor Roosevelt High School (ERHS) Raiders boys basketball team was not able to extend its pattern of 4A state championships – won in 2013, 2016, 2019, 2022 – this season, their appearance in the region championship game is an improvement from last season and an indication that Coach Chaun Miller is following in his predecessor's footsteps. The Raiders lost to C.H. Flowers (one of the county's two state semi-finalists) for the third time this season in a closely contested region final. The Laurel Spartans joined the Flowers Jaguars in the state semi-finals, where the Jaguars succumbed to Walt Whitman, while the Spartans advanced to – and won – their first state championship since 1980.

Despite the absence of the Raiders, who asserted themselves as the premier public school program in the state under former Coach Brendan O'Connell from 2006-2023 in the state finals, Prince George's County basketball continues to define itself as the state's most challenging domain. The Spartans narrowly defeated the Raiders in their regular season final before marching to the March 15 state final against Whitman, who after jumping to an early lead, could not match the intensity of a senior-laden Laurel squad, led by Head Coach

Eric Hines. The Spartans sprinted past the Vikings en route to a 68-53 victory at the University of Maryland.

Furthermore, the Largo Lions added to the Prince George's haul with its second consecutive state championship, earned in heart-stopping fashion on March 14. Led by Cam Ward, a Michigan State-bound senior, the Lions faced off with the New Town Titans in the 2A state final, a rematch of the 2023 final which the Titans won. Despite leading much of the way, behind Ward, now the unofficial all-time in Maryland puberty, the Lions fought in a one-possession game with only second down. Ward asserted his prowess much of the game but missed two first downs.

Junior Donte Whitaker will return to lead the Raiders next season as they look to extend Prince George's County basketball's successful run.

ing an opportunity for the Titans to steal a victory. Trailing 50-48, New Town pushed the ball up court where guard Tyriq Liggins drove hard to his right before the Largo defender fell, creating an open three-point attempt for the victory. The shot fell round the rim as time expired, resulting in a raucous celebration for the Lions – and Prince George's County athletics, having claimed two of the four state titles across classifications.

The Raiders feel they aren't far off from the hardware earned by the Spartans and Lions this winter. Coach Miller's squad will return guards Donte Whitaker and DeKare Tyler, who proved instrumental in Roosevelt's improvements this season, while juniors Tristan King and Pierre-Samual Fomo also contributed important minutes throughout this year's campaign. Certainly, the Raiders will meet challenges as they look to reassert their dominance in a county awash in basketball excellence.

Tick, Tick ... Boom!

by Melissa Sites

Probationary Workers Reinstated
As Federal Court Battles Continue

by Anna Bedford-Dillow

The sound of the ticking clock represents the fear of approaching the age of 30 without achieving the big break into show business. Composer Jonathan Larson wrote this musical about his own life, fears and ambitions, before he completed the tremendously successful musical, Rent. Jon's (Michael McCarthy) anxiety is compounded, because his best friend Michael (Dylan Nicholson) left acting to enter the corporate world and his girlfriend Susan (Elizabeth Suzanne) is ready to leave New York. Nicholson and Suzanne also play several other characters in Jon's life, such as his casting agent, his father and the lead actress in the new musical he is workshoping. Simple set pieces swirl around Jon, representing different parts of his life that he is struggling to balance: his keyboard, where he strives to write great rock tunes that he hopes will transform Broadway; his couch, signifying his domestic life with his girlfriend, the sweet familiarity between them straining as she begins to want something different; the table, signifying Jon's weekend job at the diner; or Michael's corporate workplace, as well as Michael's beautiful new apartment that he can afford because he decided to leave acting to take a corporate job. The show is fast moving, running through 13 songs in 90 minutes.

Michael McCarthy as Jon, Dylan Nicholson as Michael, and Elizabeth Suzanne as Susan in the GAC production of Tick, Tick ... Boom!

The songs are pleasant and tuneful, well performed by the cast. McCarthy is great at singing and acting. His voice is beautiful and his emotions are heartfelt. In her supporting role, Suzanne also brings skilled vocals and nuanced acting. Nicholson rounds out the show with the great physicality he brings to the role of Michael. Three-part harmonies throughout the show showcase these powerful voices. The time period of 1990 has two signifiers on stage: one, a poster reading Silence = Death; and two, Jon's comfy plaid flannel shirt, the ubiquitous uniform of the 1990s musician. The autobiographical nature of the piece means that change is inevitable, and a happy ending is not always guaranteed. The audience knows that Jon will succeed, because we know he wrote Rent. But sadly, Larson died of a heart defect just one day before Rent opened. Larson dedicated his life to his art, and his art survives, in what would be his 65th year. Tick, Tick ... Boom! directed by Margo Myst McCready, shows at Greenbelt Arts Center on Fridays and Saturdays at 8 p.m. and Sundays at 2 p.m. through April 12. Masks will be required March 30 and April 11. Traveling Pop-up Museum Features Black Artifacts

by Lois Rosado

Regina Small, a Greenbelt resident and curator of the Black Artifacts Pop-up Museum, has been making the rounds traveling to numerous schools during Black History Month in order to educate children about the many contributions of Black Americans. The idea for a pop-up museum began while Small was teaching in the reading program at her church. During Black American History Month, she would bring in artifacts that she had collected over the years featuring Black historical figures and related historical items for the children to examine. Some of these items included typewriters and old-fashioned telephones.

Traveling Exhibits

Small has stepped away from the reading program in order to expand pop-up museum venues. She wanted to reach a larger audience in order to educate the community about Black American contributions. She sent out 25 letters to various elementary schools in D.C. and Maryland asking if they would be interested in her pop-up museum, with 20 schools responding positively. During Black History Month, Small and her husband traveled to each of the schools to set up her exhibits starting with just four tables but soon expanding to 14 exhibit tables. That exhibit included detailed information about the various historical figures and the related artifacts.

Small is continuing to travel to schools with her Black Arti-

The Black Artifacts Pop-up Museum exhibit

facts Pop-up Museum but instead of elementary schools she is now focusing on middle and high school where she finds that the students are very curious and ask important questions. High school students who assist Small with exhibit setup and cleanup are able to earn community service hours. Small would like to display the museum permanently during Black History Month and on Juneteenth, with a site to be determined. She has been traveling with her museum since 2018. Greenbelt residents may remember her pop-up museum was exhibited at the Community Center in 2020 and again at Springhill Lake Recreation Center in 2021. Small was invited to arrange a small display in Beltway Plaza in 2023.

New Exhibits

Small calls her newest exhibit The Wall, honoring Black American firsts. For example, she has added Marlene Fullilove, the first African American to enter the University of Tennessee's Dental School Hygiene program. Fullilove was later appointed by the governor of Tennessee to serve on the state Board of Dentistry. Fullilove is Small's sister. Also included on The Wall are the first Black American pharmacist in Tennessee, Dr. Charles Champion, and one of the earliest cowboys, Tom Herns. In addition to detailed information, Small has also included quotes attributed to each of these individuals. Small hopes to be back in Greenbelt next year, exhibiting her Black Artifacts Pop-up Museum at the Community Center.

Probationary Workers Reinstated As Federal Court Battles Continue

by Anna Bedford-Dillow

As we reported on March 13, probationary workers were among the first federal employees at multiple agencies to be cut en masse and indiscriminately as part of the Trump administration's attempt to reduce the federal workforce. The administration now faces over 100 lawsuits challenging their recent actions related to workforce cuts, the freezing of federal funds approved by Congress and other policies, such as ending birthright citizenship. In the case of fired probationary workers, a judge has ruled that the Office of Personnel Management could not terminate employees at other agencies, and another later ordered a halt to the layoffs and reinstatement of those fired. Greenbelter Chelly Tavss, an employee at the National Archives and Records Administration (NARA), still a probationary employee, was fired in February while on maternity leave (see the March 13 issue). Last week, on March 19, she received word, first from her attorneys and then from NARA, that her termination was rescinded. Tavss was reinstated on Monday, March 24, and returned to the office full-time. During her unemployment she'd remained on a waitlist for childcare for her baby. She told the News Review she's feeling "cautiously optimistic." So far two federal judges – one in California and one in Maryland – have ordered the reinstatement of fired probationary workers. Together, their rulings apply to 24,583 probationary employees across at least 18 agencies. According to Federal News Network, 24,570 have been notified their jobs are reinstated, though most are on administrative leave at least temporarily. Meanwhile the Trump administration has vowed to fight back against challenges to their authority and agenda. On Monday, March 24, Trump asked the Supreme Court to halt the order to reinstate thousands of probationary federal workers. The case goes first to Justice Elena Kagan, who handles emergency appeals from the 9th Circuit in California.

As the City Welcomes Spring, Memories of Greenbelt's Winter

by Patrick Gleason

With calendars now matching meteorology, spring is fully upon us, as cherry blossoms will soon match the vibrancy of the daffodils and crocuses dotting our suburban landscape. The changing of seasons is a perfect time to reflect on a winter that proved colder and snowier than most in recent memory. As we appreciate increasing warmth and the profusion of color dotting the landscape, here are recollections from a beautiful, though at times cold and unforgiving, winter.

January 4, 2025

The moon rose as the colder air compressed its reach on the entire landscape and the frozen silence of a frigid night in suburbia offered a rare peace – a quiet night beneath midnight blue-black skies adorned by starlight twinkling followed a morning punctuated by howling winds, as persistent as they were frigid. Fields encrusted with snow endured January's bluster while most reasonable beings sought refuge in warmer environs.

January 23, 2025

The recent air grasped our breath and robbed it from our throats before expelling it in a fogged undulation befitting of a mid-Victorian London skyline. Crystallized and crisped ice and snow still covered shaded northern areas 17 days after the magical powder fell for nearly 24 hours. The cold arrested and asserted itself in a way it hasn't for several years, unrelenting all January in a formidable spirit befitting of the season. Still, somehow, each morning birds chirped as the dark blue softened to a lighter hue that belied our single digit temperatures – their morning arrival continued a deepest freeze.

An icy GHI clothesline after a winter storm

February 19, 2025

A bitter cold returned, proving groundhogs shouldn't be ignored. Though the snowstorm originally forecast for today steered south, the unforgiving sky never conceded its callous gray omnipotence, matching the dullness of rush hour exhaust, mid-day chimney output and morning breath, all inundated by an Arctic force. While birds still offered cheery notes of warmer times in a seemingly distant future, the stillness of a day frozen in February remained the prevailing notion of this afternoon. Even a crisp horizon illuminated by sunset couldn't obscure the air that never exceeded freezing on a day that left commuters hoping for something warm to juxtapose evening's onsetting chill.

Patrick Gleason teaches English at Eleanor Roosevelt High School and writes about the school's sports teams for the News Review. He grew up in Greenbelt.
